The remedial suggestions as set out in the six resolutions passed embraced many views of the problem. In all appeared the word of censor for present police administration. The first resolution was purely condemnatory referring specifically to the matter of theatrical censorship of burlesque houses. In the second, the laxity of law enforcement toward social evil was condemned and the police commissioners to see that the law in this regard be strictly enforced The next called for an investigation of the administration of the police department and a reorganization of it to bring it into harmony with the best public sentiment, from which, the preamble rehearsed, it has at present wandered far. The next declared that all laws regarding morality must be administered without fear, favor, or affection and irrespective of all private or local interests or prejudices. The fifth resolution, which many of the speakers referred to as the key to the whole problem, called for a reconstruction of the police governing body, the board of commissioners, demanding that it be made more representative of and responsible to the citizens. By the sixth and last resolution, a committee of forty representative citizens was named and appointed whose duty it shall be to keep themselves informed of the city's social condition, the administration of the authorities, and by public meetings or otherwise as they may deem expedient, to keep the public fully apprised of such conditions and need of action where any may arise.

JURY SAY AGNES McKISSOCK DIED BY HER OWN HAND

Poison Was Self Administered—Not Sure as to Suicide

Woodstock, Nov. 2.—"We, the jury find that, in our opinion, Agnes McKissock came to her death by poison taken by herself, but that the evidence is not sufficient for us to say what kind of poison or whether taken with suicidal intent."

This was the verdict reached after two hours' deliberation yesterday afternoon by the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of the young Scotch girl who died at Lakeside last week. There were no new developments when the inquest was resumed yesterday, but a letter was read from W. E. Ireland, Toronto, stating that the girl worked for him two days and left one morning at 6 o'clock. As the girl was only absent from Lakeside two days, this appears to contradict the girl's story that she was in Hamilton to see her cousin, and while in Toronto she was enticed by a strange lady to a strange house, where an attempt was made to keep her a prisoner.

Coroner McLay reported that he had written on Wednesday to Chief Grasett, Toronto, to have the girl's trunk sent to Lakeside so that it might be examined, but this had not been done. He also announced that the fur stole supposed to have been stolen from Mr. Ireland's place, would be held by the crown at Woodstock until the supposed owner came and proved his right to the property.

A number of the jurymen thought it a serious mistake that the contents of the stomach of the girl had not been analyzed, and after two hours of wrangling, five refused to sign the verdict.

DEMANDS THE P.M.G.'s RESIGNATION

Quebec, Nov. 2.—Armand Lavergne appeared at Indian Lorette yesterday and announced he had received a letter from the Postmaster-General declining to meet him in debate.

Lavergne claimed he and Mr. Pelletier appointed a Minister after he declined a portfolio himself; the Postmaster-General had backed up on the naval and the school questions and Mr. Lavergne demanded his resignation. The gathering, which numbered fifteen hundred, passed a resolution to this effect.

DUKE APPROVES OF THE AWARD

Silver Cross Medals to Heroic Boy Scouts.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—The Duke of Connaught has been pleased to approve in his capacity of chief scout of the Canadian Boy Scouts, of the award of silver cross medals for life-saving to Assistant Troop Leader Peter Fobert of Toronto, and Scout Bruce Ross of Grimsby, Ont. The medals have been sent to the provincial headquarters at Toronto for presentation.

Fobert rescued Wilfred Culham, aged 11, from drowning at the foot of Beech avenue, Toronto, last August.

Ross saved the life of a companion scout, named Wm. Flannery at Grimsby last summer. Flannery had tried to jump into a boat from a pier, but missed the mark and fell into the water. He could not swim.

BALLOON IS STILL MISSING

Duesseldorf II. Has Not Reported for Five Days.

Bremen, Nov. 2—The missing balloon Duesseldorf II with the two American aeronauts, John Watts and Arthur T. Atherholt on board, was probably the balloon seen sailing to the north on Monday by John Berry and A. Von Hoffman, when they landed in the Million Population near Danzig. In the course of an interview here yesterday the two aeronauts said:

"After we had landed near Ueckermuende at noon on Monday, we saw about an hour later a balloon sailing at the height of from 9,000 to 11,000 feet towards the northeast. It soon disappeared in the clouds.

"We believe it was the Duesseldorf II. and that the pilot had aimed to reach Norway. Since the balloon was so high in the air and was traveling at least forty miles an hour, the pilot could not have descended before dark, and we are of the opinion that he would not be able to tell where he was before next morning. By that time he must have sailed 600 miles, and if the balloon kept in the direction it was taking when we observed it, it must have been carried far into Norway or Lapland, or even beyond into the Arctic Ocean."

The Duesseldorf II. has not reported for five full days since she started in the race for the Gordon Bennett cup from Stuttgart on Sunday evening.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE PARTITION OF TURKEY

The success of the Balkan allies brings up the question of the partition of Turkey. Here is the danger point to the peace of Europe. The next three weeks will see the war clouds lower, or the sky clear. The Bulgars and Serbs are free to march upon Constantinople, and will do so without delay. Turkey is looking for the powers to intervene, as the only method of maintaining the status quo. But the allies have declared that the ground they have conquered is not to be restored to Turkey. Turkey cannot be saved now, no matter what the powers say, for as soon as Austria-Hungary starts in to regulate matters, the Russian Bear will interpose a growl, and persistence will bring about a clash. The danger is that the dual monarchy and Russia will not be able to agree as to the settlement that must be reached. The powers now are rushing warships to Constantinople to protect the Christians there from massacre in the event of the advance of the Bulgars and Serbs, and also to have a force on hand to keep control over events.

The British policy of befriending the Turk cannot be followed with any assurance of success now. That much is clear. Thirty three years ago, Gladstone rose to a great pitch of indignation about the Bulgarian atrocities, and said that the Turk could not be countenanced by any Christian power. But the fears and jealousies of the powers have kept the Ottoman kingdom intact, or nearly so, for a long time. The remarkably successful Bulgarian campaign has evidently driven in the wedge that will split the Turkish domain in half. History will be made when the allies reach Constantinople, and the terms of peace are considered.

BOURASSA AND THE GRITS

The news has been received at Ottawa that Henri Bourassa himself will be the candidate in Hochelaga against Hon. Louis Coderre, who was recently made Secretary of State in the Borden Cabinet. The news also is very interesting—if it is to be credited—that the Liberals have entered into an alliance with Bourassa to fight the emergency naval contribution proposed by the Borden Government. Either the Liberals will put up a straight candidate, or will make way for Bourassa, giving him their secret support in the fight. That seems to be the present outlook. How does the Examiner like it? At the last election it called Bourassa all the names in its vocabulary that would stand the light in print. It made a great pow-wow about the "unholy alliance" between the Nationalists and Conservatives, Bourassa was the master of the Borden administration. Bourassa was the enfant terrible, the bad genius who was to direct Canadian affairs henceforth. Bourassa had the Borden Government under his thumb, and when he said "Come," the members of the Government came and when he said "Go" they went. The Bourassa business got on the Examiner's brain to such an extent that someone said that it suffered from Bourassitis.

However, all this may be, if the Liberals form an alliance with Bourassa to fight the Borden Government, they as well as he will be soundly licked. The Laurier politicians may try to make capital against the Borden Government under the cloak of Nationalism, but it is not likely to have much effect. Surely, the leaders of the party which described Bourassa as everything nauseous and detestable under the sun will have "no truck or trade" with him now. Now that he is liable to come forward openly against the men who were said to be his intimate allies, will the Liberals take him to their bosom, and keep the stinger warm? What does the Examiner say to the proposition that it should enroll Bourassa as one of its party friends? The thought is overpowering, we admit, but as the Examiner has more than once said, politics make strange bed-fellows, and what stranger than Laurier, Graham & Co., and Bourassa?

BOBS IS SUPPORTED

That is a rather remarkable speech which Winston Churchill delivered at Manchester, commenting on Lord Roberts' great plea for the arming of Britain to face the German peril. Coming simultaneously with the utterance of Sir Edward Grey in the House of Commons, in which he practically repudiated all official cognizance of the speech, giving Bobs a lecture on international proprieties, the Churchill speech seems to indicate a very strong cleavage in the British Cabinet somewhere. "That Lord Roberts is subject to attack when he tells us honestly and straightforwardly the only way to avoid a bloody and disastrous war, is humiliating to all men who love their country and are willing to give themselves to her service," says Churchill. "This unquestionably is the voice of England whose independent press stands resolutely behind the hero of Paardeburg and Ladysmith. Does any sane man who is not blinded by prejudice believe that Germany is not endeavoring to rival us on the sea? Look back on the past. Learn from the history of the world what is the end of sloth and indifference. Let us clear our minds of cant and acquire a knowledge of the great truth that Lord Roberts in his vigorous old age continually tries to bring to our sluggish understanding, that the only way to peace lies in being prepared to meet an attack at any moment, preserving that armed might which should make an aggressor beware."

There is a ring about this kind of talk that some people may style as "Jingo." But there are few people whose ideas on the subject of national defence are so dense, so imperfectly arranged, that they cannot perceive the substance and soundness of it. For political purposes, the Canadian Liberal newspapers may contend that Britain can best be helped by adding warships to a Canadian navy, but the manner in which Churchill attacks the problem, and he the Lord of the Admiralty, leaves very little doubt that if there is any place where Canadian battleships can most effectively fight for Canada and the Empire, that place is in the North Sea, with the British squadrons.

Figs and Dates.

It is a good plan to wash figs and dates before giving them to children or, for that matter, to any one. Their sweetness attracts insects, and their stickiness makes them a perfect home for dust and its undesirable germs. Yet most people seem never to think of this at all. Washing will not impair the flavor. On the contrary, it makes them more agreeable to the sight and touch as well as to the taste.

ENJOYING THE BEST OF HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured His Rheumatism

PROF. J. F. DAVIS

563 CHURCH ST., TORONTO.

I want to say to the people of Toronto and elsewhere that "Fruit-a-tives" is my only medicine and has been for the last four years. Previous to that, I had been very much troubled with Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, and had taken many remedies as well as employing hot applications of salt bags etc., without getting satisfactory results.

Noticing the advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives", I adopted this treatment altogether and, as everybody knows, since taking "Fruit-a-tives", I have been enjoying the very best health and find it a pleasure to follow my vocation of Dancing and Deportment Instruction".

PROF. J. F. DAVIS.

Prof. Davis, the celebrated teacher of dancing and deportment in Toronto, is quite frank in stating that "Fruit-a-tives" alone cured him of distressing Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

PROVE THIS PROPOSITION.

If You Can Do It You Are Entitled to a Prize of $25,000.

Five thousand pounds await the student who will prove a certain proposition proposed by the French mathematician, Fermat, about 250 years ago. This prize was offered about five years since and is to remain open to all comers for a century.

Professor G. A. Miller, who tells of it in a recent address on "Modern Mathematical Research," fears that such a large inducement may set all sorts of mediocre mathematicians to wasting their time.

The proposition to be proved is that the sum of no two powers except squares is itself a power of the same degree. Sums of squares are often squares—for instance, the square of 3 is 9 and that of 4 is 16. Add sixteen and 9 and you have 25, which is the square of 5. But this has never been found to be true for cubes or fourth powers or any powers above 2, and Fermat asserted that no such cases would or could ever be found.

He proved it, too—at least he said he had done so—but his proof is lost, and no one has ever recovered it or discovered another, although partial proofs have been found for definite powers—for instance, for those that are multiples of 3, 4, 5 and of certain prime numbers. Some of the world's greatest mathematicians have been working on this problem for many years.—London Sphere.

THE MARTYRS TO DIABETES

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the business men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely, but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and heedlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they were piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far-off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously, to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES (in the United States EXPURGO-ANTI-DIABETES), which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of various cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg Man. The remedy is for sale by McDermid & Jury Peterborough. Price $2.00 per bottle.

HARVEST OFFERINGS.

Startling "Fruits of the Earth" Brought to Church.

There have been some extraordinary things in evidence at harvest thanksgiving services at various times, but the live pig which figured at the festival at the Fishermen's Church at Grimsby the other day is certainly the latest novelty in this line.

On being asked by a farming shopkeeper what he would like, Rev. James Davis, replied, "Oh, anything from the farm." Shortly afterwards the pig was delivered at the church; and at the service it was given an honored place, in a wooden crate, at the base of the pulpit.

Report gravely states that the grunter "behaved splendidly," and did not even sleep through the sermon. But, notwithstanding its excellent conduct, Piggy was afterwards sold with the other thanksgiving offerings for the benefit of the church funds.

At one harvest festival at Folkestone there was quite an array of fish amongst the decorations, including cod, crabs, mackerel, plaice, and soles. Some fine codfish were suspended from the ceiling, and during the sermon one of them fell, to the amusement of the congregation. Perhaps the preacher's discourse was too long for it, or maybe the cod resented being taken from its natural element and treated as a "bird" of the air.

Last month, too, offerings of fish from the dealers at Billingsgate Market were a prominent feature at the harvest festival at the Church of St. Magnus the Martyr, Lower Thames street. A quantity of fish of all kinds was arranged between large bunches of flowers on a bench in the central aisle of the church. Besides a dish of fine whitebait was an enormous cod, and on either side were herrings, rows of oysters, and fish of all sorts and sizes.

Magnificent bunches of grapes have often figured in harvest offerings, but only once have they been seen growing in a church on such an occasion. Two or three seasons ago a very fine pot vine occupied the place of honor in the chancel of a Herefordshire church, to the astonishment of the members of the congregation.

It had been specially trained for the purpose, and the greatest care was exercised in conveying it to the sacred edifice, so that neither the vine nor the grapes should be injured in the course of transit.

The luscious fruit was very much admired by all who saw it, and, after the festival, was cut and forwarded to a neighboring hospital for the delectation of the inmates.

One of the Six Hundred.

The recent anniversary of the charge of the Light Brigade recalls the fact that there is still one amongst us who took part in that glorious ride. Lord Tredegar, though an octogenarian, is still hale and hearty, and takes a very keen interest in military matters.

Captain Morgan, as he then was, wrote a vivid account of the great charge just after that glorious event took place, and the following is a fragment:

"The 8th, 4th, and 11th followed us in, and suffered nearly as much as ourselves. We saw the enemy between us and home, and at them we went. I cut down one fellow as he ran one of my fellows through with a lance, and digging my spurs in my horse's sides he went at it as he has often gone at the big fences in Monmouthshire. I got through them with only a few lance pokes, which I managed to parry, but the number of men had diminished. We had to retire through a shower of Minie bullets, and we reformed in rear of the Heavy Brigade. I numbered off 32 men. We went into action 145 in the morning."

When the charge was over the gallant soldier found that he was the senior officer, all the others who were superior in rank having been killed. Throughout the whole campaign he displayed the greatest gallantry, and nearly lost his life on several occasions.

What Pavement Artists Earn.

One of the minor industries of London that is not dying is that of the pavement artist. His numbers, if anything, are on the increase, and it is reckoned amongst the fraternity that there are now about 500 of them pursuing this calling in the metropolis. With about 500 pavement artists in London, each earning on an average 12s., something like $1,500 is given every week by pedestrians in the metropolis.

There are a few with especially favored pitches who do much better than this, making a princely 30s. or $10 a week, but there are none of them who manage to run a nice little villa in the suburbs, with a well-dressed wife and family, like the beggar in the City with the hare-lip who was unmasked by Sherlock Holmes. There is, however, one man on a pitch in Westminster, where he has been for thirteen years, who goes away every day for luncheon and tea, leaving a cripple friend in charge while he is absent.

An Electric Waiter.

An Australian has invented an electric waiter for hotels and restaurants, operated by the customer seated at his table. A wooden frame holding the menu-card is fitted with push buttons opposite each item, and "pressing the button" rings a bell in the kitchen and displays the order and the table-number. The kitchen apparatus also prints a check the original of which comes to the customer, with a duplicate on an endless tape. This device has been in successful use in New Zealand.

Small Parishes.

The recently-issued official bluebook of the British census contains some curious figures, but it is hard to beat in regard to the population of three Buckinghamshire civil parishes. In the parish of Petsoe Manor in 1901 the population was six, and in 1911 three. In Luffield Abbey parish the population in 1901 was six, and in 1911 seven; while at Creslow in 1901 the population was five, and in 1911 eight.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

CHAPTER IV.

A Mouse and a Mountain.

All the while the foiled elopers were eloping, the San Francisco sleeper was filling up. It had been the receptacle of assorted lots of humanity tumbling into it from all directions, with all sorts of souls, bodies and destinations.

The porter received each with that expert eye of his. His car was his laboratory. A railroad journey is a sort of test-tube of character; strange elements meet under strange conditions and make strange combinations. The porter could never foresee the ingredients of any trip, nor their actions and reactions.

He had no sooner established Mr. Wedgewood of London and Mr. Ira Lathrop of Chicago, in comparative repose, than his car was invaded by a woman who flung herself into the first seat. She was flushed with running, and breathing hard, but she managed one gasp of relief:

"Thank goodness, I made it in time."

The mere sound of a woman's voice in the seat back of him was enough to disperse Ira Lathrop. With not so much as a glance backward to see what manner of woman it might be, he jammed his contract into his pocket, seized his newspapers and retreated to the farthest end of the car, bouncing down into berth number one, like a sullen snapping turtle.

Miss Anne Gattie's modest and homely valise had been brought aboard by a leisurely station usher, who set it down and waited with a speaking palm outstretched. She had her tickets in her hand, but transferred them to her teeth while she searched for money in a handbag old-fashioned enough to be called a reticule.

The usher closed his fist on the pittance she dropped into it and departed without comment. The porter advanced on her with a demand for "Tickets, please."

She began to ransack her reticule with flurried haste, taking out of it a small purse, opening that, closing it, putting it back, taking it out, searching the reticule through, turning out a handkerchief, a few hairpins, a few trunk keys, a baggage check, a bottle of salts, a card or two and numerous other maidenly articles, restoring them to place, looking in the purse again, restoring that, closing the reticule, setting it down, shaking out a book she carried, opening her old valise, going through certain white things blushingly, closing it again, shaking her skirts, and shaking her head in bewilderment.

She was about to open the reticule again, when the porter exclaimed:

"I see it! Don't look no mo'. I see it!"

When she cast up her eyes in despair, her hatbrim had been elevated enough to disclose the whereabouts of the tickets. With a murmured apology, he removed them from her teeth and held them under the light. After a time he said:

"As neah as I can make out from the—the undigested po'tion of this ticket, yo' numba is six."

"That's it—six!"

"That's right up this way."

"Let me sit here till I get my breath," she pleaded. "I ran so hard to catch the train."

"Well, you caught it good and strong."

"I'm so glad. How soon do we start?"

"In about half a houah."

"Really? Well, better half an hour too soon than half a minute too late." She said it with such a copy-book primness that the porter set her down as a school-teacher. It was not a bad guess. She was a missionary. With a pupil-like shyness she volunteered:

"Yo' berth is all ready whenever you wishes to go to baid." He caught her swift blush and amended it to—"to retiah."

"Retire?" [illegible] Miss Anne [illegible] "No, thank you! I intend to sit up till everybody else has retired."

The porter retired. Miss Gattie took out a bit of more or less useful fancy stitching and set to work like another Dorcas. Her needle had not dived in and emerged many times before she was holding it up as a weapon of defense against a sudden human mountain that threatened to crush her.

A vague round face, huge and red as a rising moon, dawned before her eyes and from it came an uncertain voice:

"Esscuzhe me, mad'm, no 'fensh intended."

The words and the breath that carried them gave the startled spinster an instant proof that her vis-a-vis did not share her prohibition principles or practices. She regarded the elephant with mouse-like terror, and the elephant regarded the mouse with elephantine fright, then he removed himself from her landscape as quickly as he could and lurched along the aisle, calling out merrily to the porter:

"Chauffeur! chauffeur; don't go so fasht 'round these corners."

He collided with a small train-boy singing his nasal lay, but it was the behemoth and not the train-boy that collapsed into a seat, sprawling as helplessly as a mammoth oyster on a table-cloth.

The porter rushed to his aid and hoisted him to his feet with an uneasy sense of impending trouble. He felt as if someone had left a monstrous baby on his doorstep, but all he said was:

Mrs. Jimmie Wellington.

"Tickets, please."

There ensued a long search, fat, flabby hands flopping and fumbling from pocket to pocket. Once more the porter was the discoverer.

"I see it. Don't look no mo'. Here it is—up in yo' hatband." He lifted it out and chuckled. "Had it right next his brains and couldn't remember!" He took up the appropriately huge luggage of the bibulous wanderer and led him to the other end of the aisle.

Weighing the Children.

How holidays benefit children is shown by an experiment carried out at Long Lane Council School, East Finchley, England. Before the school broke up the headmaster weighed and measured 150 children. On their return, after a month's holiday, he found that their average increase in weight was 1 1-2 pounds, and in height 1-4 inches. The largest increase in weight was that of a girl, who was 5 pounds heavier; two boys and two girls each grew 3-4 inches. It is intended to follow up the experiment by comparing weights and heights of the same children after a month at school.

A Motherly Bulldog.

A "novel sight is to be seen at the Sergison Arms at Hayward's Heath. The landlord, George W. Preece, has a prize bulldog, Hampton Billy, weighing 65 pounds, and for some weeks he has been "mothering" some chicks and a kitten. All of them sleep with him in his kennel, and chicks and kitten accompany him whenever he goes for a stroll.

Cookery Points

Fine Sponge Cake.

Take the whites of twenty eggs, two gobletfuls of flour, three of pulverized sugar, two teaspoonfuls of extract of lemon and one of cream of tartar. Sift the flour carefully, mix the sugar, eggs and lemon thoroughly and stir in the flour gradually, taking care not to toughen it by too much beating. The great test is in the baking. The oven should be very hot, and the cake should be baked only a few minutes, until it is a light brown.

Grapefruit Sauce.

One grapefruit, two bananas and one cupful of preserved pineapple are required. Separate the grapefruit into sections and scrape the fruit into a dish, discarding all peel and linings. Peel the bananas, split them lengthwise into quarters and then slice crosswise into the dish with the grapefruit. Add the pineapple and sugar to taste and mix slightly. Serve with sponge cake.

German Nut Loaf.

Sift together four cupfuls of flour, four heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder, half cupful sugar, teaspoonful salt, one cupful chopped walnuts, one cupful raisins, one egg, well beaten, and two cupfuls milk. Mix well together and put in buttered pans and allow to stand twenty minutes. Bake in moderate oven forty-five minutes. Serve in thin slices with butter.

Molasses Cake.

Mix in order given, one cupful of butter and the same of sugar, two cupfuls of molasses, five cupfuls of flour, salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and four or five beaten eggs. Spices may be mixed with flour to suit taste.

WEAK STOMACHS

Need New, Rich Blood to Restore Them to a Healthy Condition

Actually in need of food to nourish the body and yet afraid to eat because of the racking pains that follow. This is the condition of the sufferer from indigestion—a choice between starvation or merciless torture.

The urgent need of all dyspeptics of everybody whose organs of digestion have become unfit to perform their important duty, is for stronger stomachs that can extract nourishment from food. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give weak stomachs just the strength they need by enriching the blood supply, thus giving tone and strength to the stomach, and its nerves and enabling it to do the work nature intended it to do. Thousands of cases of indigestion have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of which the following is but one instance. Miss L. A. Brown, Port Albert, Ont., says: "For a number of years I was a terrible sufferer from indigestion, and as a result I became completely run down and suffered from backaches and nervous troubles as well. I had to force myself to eat, but never enjoyed a meal owing to the awful pains that followed eating. Life was becoming a burden, and as medicine after medicine failed to help me. I felt I was doomed to go through life a constant sufferer. Finally a married sister strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be thankful that I followed her advice, as they have fully restored my health, and I can now enjoy all kinds of food without the least discomfort. and my friends say I am looking better than I have done for years. At all events I know I feel like a new person so shall always praise Dr Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

His Job.

"When we had climbed to the top of the mountain we observed an old man sitting on a rock with a pair of glasses in his hands. Every now and then he would squint through them and then let out a yell. Finally I approached him and asked, 'Why do you rubber and holler?' He answered:

" 'Where be ye stoppin'?'

" 'Down at the Cliff hotel,' I answered.

" 'Then don't take up my time, or I'll lose my job. I'm the famous echo you read about in the advertisements of this here place. Git outer th' way while I squeal!' "—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not the Proper Gait.

If your gate is bending double
Go and remedy the trouble.
Do not brace it with a prop—that's not the proper way.
Shiftless habits are insidious,
And we hope it's not invidious
To tell you that to prop a gate will propagate delay.

—Chicago Tribune.

How It Was Done.

At a luncheon in New York Dr. Lyman Abbott, sipping a glass of ice cold milk, told a woman suffrage story.

"I had heard a lot," he said, "about the wonderful success of woman suffrage in Australia, so, meeting an Australian woman one day, I asked:

" 'How did you vote, madam, at the last election?'

"The Australian woman answered with a simper:

" 'In my mauve pannier gown, sir, with a large mauve hat trimmed with mauve ospreys.' "—Washington Post.

Miss Theora Carter, Apostle of the Toothbrush.

MISS THEORA CARTER.

Miss Theora Carter is the handsome president of the Good Cheer society, which came into existence under her direction several years ago.

The aim of this society is not any particular form of benevolence, but to do good in general. The latest form of Miss Carter's good cheer work has been along the lines of toothbrush distribution among the very poor children in the tenement districts of New York city.

She hopes, through the distribution of toothbrushes, to awaken interest for the combating of an evil which, she says, is responsible for the carrying of many diseases, such as typhoid, tuberculosis and others.

Miss Carter was born in Seattle and attended the University of Washington.

IT DOESN'T COUNT.

What the Chinese Think of Dan Cupid's Pranks.

We do not believe in love, for love is not the greatest thing in the world. It is not even a thing nor substance.

Love is the antithesis of reason, for man sees with reason and only feels with love, and it is the most violent form of brainstorm, says the Chinese Annual. Love is the symptom of a disorder brain, as a nightmare is a symptom of a disordered stomach. It is a deadly contagious disease, for it turns the strongest head and makes the wisest man a fool. Indeed, there is no fool like an old fool who is affected with amoritis. When a man has contracted this love disease and is under its influence he acts in the most idiotic manner and performs all sorts of antics, all of which he entirely renounces and repudiates when he is free from its hypnotic spell.

Perhaps there is no greater difference existing between the Chinese and the American people than that between their ideas of love. In fact, we Chinese do not believe in love, for we are not sickly, sentimental creatures, but cold, philosophical, fatalistic beings. We arrange our matrimonial affairs through the tender passion.

To us marriage is a serious business of the head and not a light affair of the heart. In these matrimonial transactions we apply the most rigid, keen, calculating business principles, and that is why we are so successful in the marriage enterprise, as we have never been bunkoed by Cupid at the game of love.

We never pay homage at the altar of this stupid, brainless yellow kid, the disturber of peace, the breaker of hearts, the destroyer of homes and the promoter of affinity stock companies. We cannot tolerate his presence in China, as China is not a land of lovers. Consequently the cool, quiet hours of our midsummer nights are not disturbed or spoiled by hot air from the wooing and cooing of sentimental creatures.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

SANOL IS SAFE AND SURE

LOGICAL REMEDY FOR ECZEMA

Many different remedies have been tried for Eczema and other skin diseases. But it is now known that the only possible cure is a mild, soothing liquid made up of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, Glycerine and other ingredients so carefully compounded that each ingredient has its proper effect.

This compound is now made up in the D.D.D. Prescription. Years of success and thousands of cures show the merit of this wonderful compound, but the most convincing proof is a trial of the remedy by any eczema sufferer.

D. D. D. will prove to you that you can be cured. The very first drops will give you instant relief.

You don't even have to pay the regular price of $1.00 a bottle, for we have arranged with the Laboratories to offer, for a while, a special large 25c. trial bottle. Get this special bottle to-day and see how quickly the itch will vanish.

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

TESTIMONIES FROM THE FIELD

What Titanic Survivor Has to Say of Christian Science

The following is from the Christian Science Journal:

It is difficult to tell of the experience which follows, but the student of Christian Science will readily see in it that acceptance of the truth made the overcoming of fear possible, even as in the case of disease, and that divine Principle is to be relied upon at all times.

While the Titanic was sinking, and during the whole time I was working at the boats, I held to the truth, thereby eliminating all fear. I do not pretend that any man can go down on a ship at midnight, in mid-Atlantic, and succeed in eliminating fear, without hard work. It was hard work, and yet the very conditions which existed on the port side were in themselves a demonstration of the workings of Truth for not the slightest hitch occurred, and all boats were got away, the last one, which was a flat-bottomed collapsible, floating off the deck. Now it is proverbial that the last thing a sailor will think of is a life-belt; certainly no thought had entered my head of my own life-belt, and I was far too busy at the boats to leave them, even had I thought of it.

I want to emphasize strongly this point, that as soon as I collected my thoughts after taking to the water, I remember saying to myself, "Now, I'll see how much I have learned from Christian Science." A doubt never entered my mind as to the possibility of my surviving; in other words, of the ability of the divine power to save me. I think I can conscientiously say that with this thought all fear left me, and I commenced again to realize the truth of being. It was at this moment that I was drawn into the water, still realizing the truth, and while I was below the surface these words from the 91st Psalm came to me so distinctly that I seemed to realize their full import: "He shall give His angels charge over thee."

• • • •

I want it to be understood that during this time in the water the fact came calmly and clearly that there was a divine power which could be utilized in a practical manner, and also it seemed perfectly natural to rely on this power with the spiritual understanding which is so often spoken of in the Bible, and which is explained in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy. Now, with the sinking of a great ship like the Titanic, there was also the fear of suction to overcome, and at this time the forward funnel fell, throwing the boat, myself, and other survivors about twenty feet clear of the ship, so that of suction we felt nothing.

• • • •

I was the last member of the Titanic to board the Carpathia, and after interviewing her captain, discarded my wet clothes in favor of a bunk, in which I remained for about half an hour and was not in bunk or bed again till we arrived in New York. Reaction or effects from the immersion—which I was confidently assured would take place—there were none; and though surprise has been expressed by very many, it only goes to prove that "with God all things are possible."—Lieut. Facts About McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace

—The Understudy of the Sun—

The Fire-pot of the "Sunshine" is made of Semi-Steel—that of the ordinary furnace is made of Grey Iron. Here's the difference — Destructive sulphur fumes penetrate Grey Iron easily because it is porous. Semi-steel is not porous—it is a close-grained material with a smooth surface secretly processed by McClary's. Gas fumes cannot penetrate Semi-Steel therefore it lasts longer. The "Sunshine" Fire-pot is built in two sections joined together with our famous cup joint. The shape of this joint, combined with a layer of McClary's asbestos cement, makes it absolutely gas, smoke and dust-proof.

Clearly, the "Sunshine" is the premier furnace as far as the Fire-pot is concerned.

The Grates of the "Sunshine" Furnace have three sides each. Plainly, they have three times the endurance of one-sided grates. Every time you rock down the ashes of the "Sunshine" you can expose a fresh side of the grate to the fierce heat of the fire—lengthen the life of the grates.

And the short, strong teeth of "Sunshine" grates simply grind up clinkers. The "Sunshine" Furnace is the best as far as grate-construction goes.

Shaking an ordinary furnace is hard, back-breaking labor. You don't need to shake the "Sunshine"—you simply rock it and the ashes drop into the ash-pan. A child can easily rock the grates of a "Sunshine" — merely another reason why you should buy a "Sunshine" Furnace.

Ordinary furnaces are called coal gluttons. There may be good reasons for that—we don't know. But—we have built the "Sunshine" Furnace so that it is very easy on coal. Hundreds of people now using the "Sunshine," and having used ordinary furnaces, declare that the "Sunshine" makes two tons of coal do the work of three. Evidently, the "Sunshine" Furnace saves coal and money.

The ordinary furnace has a water-pan hidden somewhere about the base. There, it cannot carry out the purpose for which the water-pan was devised. The water-pan of the "Sunshine" Furnace is placed scientifically above the radiator near the dome—the heat laps up the water, before being diffused all over the house. It contains the same amount of moisture as the air of a balmy June day. Plainly, as far as the water-pan is concerned, the "Sunshine" is the furnace you should buy.

There are many more reasons why you should invest your money in "The Understudy of the Sun"—McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace. Call on the McClary agent and ask him to show you all the mechanical reasons and exclusive devices which go to make the "Sunshine" the best and therefore the cheapest furnace you can buy. Write us at our nearest address if you cannot get in touch with him.

"PAIN COMPLETELY LEFT ME"

So Says Thomas Stephenson after Taking GIN PILLS

TO those who have suffered, year in and year out, from the dragging misery of Kidney Disease, anything that will relieve the pain is a blessing indeed. That is just what a well-known resident of Lachute Mills, Que., and his wife both found in GIN PILLS.

Lachute Mills, P. Q.

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Disease, and a friend told me to take GIN PILLS. After taking a few boxes, I was greatly relieved, and after finishing the twelfth box, the pain completely left me.

My wife is now using GIN PILLS and finds that she has been greatly relieved of the pain over her Kidneys.

I can safely recommend anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to give a fair trial to GIN PILLS." THOMAS STEPHENSON.

Would you welcome such a relief? Then take GIN PILLS. They go right to the spot—ease the pain almost at once—neutralize the Uric Acid which is causing all the trouble—strengthen the kidneys so that they will be able to keep the blood pure—and quickly take away that weakness and tenderness of the back which undermine the energy and vigor of manhood and womanhood.

Don't pass GIN PILLS without a trial. Every box is sold on the positive guarantee that if six boxes, used according to directions, do not help you, your money will be cheerfully refunded.

PROPER METHODS OF CULTIVATION

That proper methods of cultivation not only promises but ensures better returns, is proven by the results of the threshing on the farm of Nick Taitenger, near Claresholm, Alta. From fifty acres sowed to winter wheat, the return was 2,000 bushels of grain and it graded No. 2. His spring wheat will go 40 bushels on summer fallow. Mr. Taitenger is proud of his barley, of which he has about two car loads. Samples sent to an expert in Calgary were graded at No. 1 extra. It weighs 56 lbs. A Vancouver firm have already bid for the whole of it. Mr. Taitenger's plan is to raise his crop on summer fallow. He divides his farm into three parts. By this means two-thirds of his land is always in crop and one-third is being summer fallowed. It leaves only one-third to disc to prepare for the next crop. With this system, which seems to work out to advantage, Mr. Taitenger is a firm believer in "mixed farming," and sees in the adoption of this mode the only real road to success of a permanent nature for the western farmer.

COMPANY CAN PLANT POLES

Toronto Has No Right to Interfere in the Matter

Toronto, Oct. 2.—The Toronto & Niagara Power Company yesterday obtained an interim injunction to restrain the city from interfering with the company in the erection of poles and stringing of wires. Just how long the temporary injunction is good for is not known. The prohibitory mandate was wanted by the company because the city was stopping the pole-planting on Bathurst street, pole-planting on Bathurst street, near Davenport road, and having the workmen arrested. Mr. Justice Latchford granted the injunction, and his Lordship held that under a decision of the Privy Council the company had a right to erect poles without asking the city's consent

ROBERTS IS COMMENDED

Many Statesmen Endorse His Speech at Manchester

London, Nov. 2.—A letter extensively signed by M.P.'s and others has been sent to Lord Roberts expressing sincere admiration for his profoundly convincing address at Manchester.

"Whatever may be the precise solution of the difficult problem of national Imperial defence, we believe that only disaster awaits us unless we are prepared to face the problem with the frankness, sincerity and conviction which inspired your address," says the letter.

Among over a hundred signatories are: General Pole-Carew, Lord Beresford, Major Archer Shee, Sir George Doughty, Sir Gilbert Parker, Hon Walter Long, and Donald Mac Master.

The leading Berlin Conservative newspaper says that Lord Roberts must have realized that he was handling inflammatory matter of a most dangerous description. His clearness is worthy of commendation, but he must be told as clearly as possible that Germany is not to be provoked without reason"

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED IN THREE

Division Court proceedings were concluded last night about seven-thirty. All of the cases with the exception of three were disposed of by twelve o'clock noon. Judgment was reserved in the whole three.

The balance of the cases were for the recovery of debt, mostly small sums.

A CHANGE IN THE CHARTER

Premier Borden Promise Consideration of Deputation Request

Contract of Streets by Municipalities is Involved

The result of the municipality representatives consultation with Premier Borden at Ottawa yesterday regarding more definite legislation governing the right of power and light companies to place poles and wires on streets was generally satisfactory. The delegation from Peterborough was comprised of Messrs. Mayor Bradburn, J. H. Burnham, M.P., and City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall.

The deputation was very representative according to Mayor Bradburn, as London, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and other places besides Peterborough had strong delegations present.

The Premier promised to have the matter settled so that it would give the municipalities some voice in the matter and to have the Dominion charter altered to read as it was intended when first drafted. There was one word in the Act he stated, which left the power of the companies rather obscure, and it was this word that the Premier hoped to have amended. The deputation also asked that the Railway Commission be given wider powers in the matter.

The Bell Telephone Company in Peterborough always come to the City Council for permission to erect poles although under the charter such permission is not required.

CONTROL OF STREETS

Interviewed on this matter, Mr. J. H. Burnham said that the question involved turned out to be the control of the streets. That the matter assumed this general form is largely due to Mayor Bradburn and City Solicitor Hall. The deliberations of the delegates were not taking this comprehensive form until the Peterborough delegation represented their views in the matter. The Prime Minister said that it would be necessary to restore the law "to where we thought it was" before declaration of the Privy Council to the effect that the act did not say what it was thought to have declared. It is, of course, a most important matter

BISHOP SWEENEY AT ST JOHN'S

His Lordship Will Preach at Dedication Festival Services

To-morrow (Sunday) will be kept as the dedication festival of St. John's Church, which was re-opened after restoration just thirty years ago yesterday, All Saints' Day. It is nearly 77 years since the opening of the church, in days when Peterborough's population was about 500. At the 8 a.m. communion service it is expected that the Lord Bishop of Toronto will be the Celebrant, and he has also consented to be preacher at the festival service in the evening. In the afternoon a men's fellowship tea will be held in the school-house, beginning promptly at 5 p.m., with the Bishop as guest of honor.

Another feature of the day will be the dedication at the 8 a.m. service of a silver communion service which is being presented to the South Peterborough Mission Church by the St. John's Men's Bible Class, and which will be used by the Bishop when dedicating the new church.

In connection with the above it may be of interest to recall the fact that Rev. Samuel Armour (after whom the east city hill was named), was rector, and was the village school master of the day. Rev. J. W. R. Beck was rector when the church was modernized in 1882. the preachers at the re-opening service being Bishop Sweatman and Rev. J. W. Burke then rector of Belleville.

FIRST THOUGHT TO BE DEAD

But Case Was One of too Much Indulgence

Early this morning an unknown man was found hopelessly intoxicated, lying on the sidewalk near the Bank of Montreal building. He was carried into the police station where it was first thought that life was extinct. It was impossible to detect his breathing and his pulse beat was very irregular and feeble. A small sum of money was found in his pocket. He was not sufficiently recovered to allow being arraigned before the Magistrate this morning.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The high cost of living is already solved for the men who are willing to listen to sound reasoning and who will only use a little judgment, some men become extravagant in the matter of dress; they think that unless they pay $25.00 to $35.00 for a Suit of Clothes, that they are not properly dressed.

This is an erronious idea and should be dispelled at once.

Several Manufacturers have discovered this weakness in men, and knowing how [illegible] on their lack of knowledge of values, simply shoved up the price and strongly advertised their particular Brand of Clothing, spending thousands of dollars yearly to do it.

This is something that the man has to pay for when buying these high priced suits.

Every clothing man in the business to-day realizes this fact and they also know that some of these well advertised brands cost from $5 to $10 more, just from the fact that the Brand is sewn on to the garments.

Mr. Cameron of "Cameron" Men's Wear Store on George St. is prepared to fully demonstrate this fact to any man who is willing to be convinced, and with a call at his store it will be easy to see the truth of these statements.

You will be able to find out that you can purchase a Suit of Clothes or Overcoat of the very finest of all wool materials, with the highest grade of workmanship combined with a positive guarantee of perfect fit and wearing quality or money refunded, for the low price of $16.00 to $18.00.

This should be a good place to save your money at

PHYSICAL SIDE OF BUSINESS

By Frank Gotch

I met a friend of mine on the street recently and he had gulches beneath his eyes and wrinkles plastered all over his face like the weather-marks of an old oil-painting.

"What's wrong Jim?" I asked solicitously.

"That's just it!" he exclaimed "Nothing's wrong and I'll bet a perfectly good doughnut that something's going to happen. I feel it, here down near the pit of my stomach. This haunting fear is following me night and day. It is unjust punishment."

Poor chap! He blamed it onto fate I suppose when that had happened to him and was tearing him down, was habitual worry caused by close application to his work and lack of physical adjustment. What he felt near the pit of his stomach was his solar plexus I expect, reflecting the short-circuit of his over-burdened nervous system.

Worry will get you if you don't watch out. It is worse than dynamite—and as deadly as poison. It is poison. The body sets up a chemical laboratory business with worry on the job. And there is a depth when mental force won't pull a fellow back very handily.

That is where regular physical exercise comes into play. That exercise begins to tear away waste material sets the liver and kidneys, lungs and sweat glands into operation eliminating these poisons, and gradually brings back tone, interest, freedom from the spectre of worry.

Life which is considerably physical, can not be lived well without regard to and respect for the physical. If we looked at it in no other light than its aid to the mind it would be worth while. It is the mentality that enjoys no doubt, but it is the physical organism that makes possible this mental enjoyment—the healthy, even, normal sort.

As a cure for worry any form of exercise regularly indulged in, is advisable—be it walking, horseback riding, golf, tennis, or work in the gymnasium or at home, with wall pulleys, punching bag, rowing, machine, clubs or bells.

If you don't believe it try it. Then see how rapidly the worry fades and how free you are from the imaginary fate that you have caused to stalk by your side—when it is really only the shadow of a depleted body.

POETICAL WILLS.

Odd Bequests by Rhymesters Have Held Good In Courts.

Mr. Thomas A. Armstrong, of Dalkey, in Ireland, who died on June 23rd left all his personal estate in the United Kingdom to his wife. His will ran as follows:

All earthly goods I have in store
To my dear wife I leave for evermore.
I freely give, no limit do I fix,
This is my will, and she the executrix.

Mr. Armstrong was only following an example that has been set many a time before. Hundreds of wills have been written in rhyme. We give here one or two of the more curious.

A quaint will that was admitted to probate ran as follows:

When I'm laid underneath,
I give and bequeath,
To my two loving sisters most dear,
The whole of my store,
Were it twice as much more,
Which God's goodness has given me here.
And that none may prevent
This my will and intent,
Or occasion the least of law-racket,
With a solemn appeal
I confirm, sign, and seal
This, the true act and deed of Will Jackett.

Joshua West, who left a poetical last will and testament, was evidently uncertain in his own mind if he had anything to leave or not.

Maybe I am not worth a groat,
But should I die worth something more
I leave it all, with my old coat,
And all my manuscripts in store,
To those who will the goodness have
To cause my poor remains to rest
Within a fitting shell and grave;
This is the will of Joshua West.

Although hundreds of people have left vindicative wills in prose, very few have done so in rhyme. Evidently poetry gives testators a better outlook on life. The following will is in distinct contrast to Mr. Armstrong's:

Here is my will: I leave to my wife
Exactly nothing a year for life.
I found her, while living, the dearest I knew;
I hope now I'm dead to punish the shrew.
The whole of my goods I leave to the poor
(My wife will be one of that I am sure),
For whom she'd never a word or a crust,
But I hope that she will now I'm gone to dust.

The Latest Idea In England.

A National League for the Promotion of Domestic Happiness is the latest proposal for England. It has for its promoters a few clergymen who have been impressed by the extraordinary number of couples in their parishes who have obtained separation orders from the magistrates because of domestic strife.

The idea of the clerics is that magistrates are too accommodating to applicants chafing under the matrimonial harness and if efforts were made to subdue domestic breezes they would mostly be prevented from developing into gales. So this league is to organize ministers of all denominations and kind Christians of both sexes to act as peacemakers.

They will take their respective parishes under survey and in cases of household strife where the husband is at fault the member of the league most likely to influence him will be selected to intervene and subsequently keep an eye on the culprit. If the wife is the offender then some sympathetic woman will plead with her.

Most enthusiastic workers among the poor, especially in the north, call these separation orders the "working class equivalent to divorce," the latter being too expensive for them to obtain.

The consequence is they have no real freedom and looseness of morals is the result. In industrial centres, where both husband and wife are wage earners, this is especially the case. Lancashire alone has 25,000 people separated by law, but not free to remarry.

He Wore the Robe.

A story is told of the late Dr. Peddie, a Scotch minister, to whom his congregation had presented a pulpit robe. He had never worn a robe, and after acknowledging the gift he said he would wait in the vestry five minutes after service to hear any objections to the innovation. Nobody appeared but one old lady, who, on being asked what her objections were, answered that she had read the epistles of St. Paul and could not find any reference to the apostle wearing a gown. "What epistle did you read?" asked the doctor. "From Romans to Hebrews," answered the old lady. "Well, Janet," said her minister, "I have read from Romans to Hebrews also, and I could never find any reference to the apostle wearing the breeks. What would you think if you saw me going into the pulpit without breeks?"

The old lady quit right there, and the minister wore the robe.

Motoring Made Popular.

A British engineer has invented an apparatus which, it is claimed, will prevent the clouds of dust raised in dry weather by motors and other vehicles. The device, which is simple and inexpensive, collects the dust as it rises. The dust is drawn into conduits which are funnel shaped at the mouth and which run from the rear of the back wheels. These conduits are connected with a box into which the dust is driven by the pressure of air, or this end can also be accomplished by the aid of a centrifugal fan geared to the driving shaft of the car. The contents of the dust box can be discharged by pulling a lever at the front of the vehicle.

Isaacs' Income.

The sums paid to Sir Rufus Isaacs, the British Attorney-General, this year in Government fees will come to over $160,000, and exceed by many thousands any amount ever paid to any previous law officer.

BUILDER OF NAVIES

NEW EXPERT CHOSEN TO CONSTRUCT BRITAIN'S WARSHIPS.

E. H. Tennyson d'Eyncourt Succeeds Sir Philip Watts as Director of Naval Construction at the British Admiralty—His Family Are Mostly Legal, But He Has a Reputation In His Own Line.

The responsible post of Director of Naval Construction at the British Admiralty has been offered to Mr. E. H. Tennyson d'Eyncourt, who will build the super-dreadnoughts of the future.

The new director is the son of the late Mr. L. C. d'Eyncourt, of Market Rasen, Lincolnshire, who is remembered as a metropolitan police magistrate. His younger brother is the Clerkenwell police magistrate, so that the family has more of a legal than a naval flavor.

Mr. Tennyson d'Eyncourt has been at Elswick for the past twenty years in the Naval Construction Department, hence he knows more than a little about building fighting ships. It is interesting to note that the Admiralty generally goes outside the service to obtain a chief constructor, and is specially impressed by the men at Elswick. Sir William White was brought from that shipyard in 1885, and in 1902 he was succeeded by Sir Phillip Watts, another Elswick man, who in turn gives way to Mr. Tennyson d'Eyncourt.

MR. E. H. T. D'EYNECOURT.

This method of appointment has given rise to a deal of jealousy and ill-feeling inside the service, which the latest appointment has not allayed. But, looking at Mr. d'Eyncourt's past record and experience, there can be little doubt but that he will justify his appointment.

Dog on Sentry Go.

Major Richardson has received an interesting report concerning the behavior of a sentry dog which he presented to the Norfolk Regiment at Aldershot, England.

The dog is an Airedale terrier, and the writer, who three times used him on outpost duties at night, reports: "Each time I found the presence of the dog to be of the greatest value. He either remained beside the sentry or went with a patrol. His value consists in the fact that he can, and does, detect the approach of human beings some considerable time before the eye or ear of the average man can distinguish anything. The result is that the sentry or patrol is fully on the alert, and it is impossible for them to be either ambushed or 'rushed.'

"The dog is no expense, as he feeds on the remains of the men's dinner. He is never allowed to run loose in camp or barracks, and no one is allowed to feed him except the man in charge of him. I am of opinion that it would be a valuable asset to have four of these dogs attached to every infantry battalion for service in the field."

An Inquisitive Bird.

A peppery old English military official in India possessed a parrot and also a very irascible temperament. The parrot was a valuable bird, but was rather a nuisance by reason of its extreme talkativeness. One day while the general was writing his business letters the parrot kept up a continual chatter, very disturbing to the writer. At last the general could stand it no longer, and, jumping up, he seized the cage of the unhappy bird which he whirled vigorously round and round, at the same time shouting furiously. Then he set the cage down again, and silence for some time ensued. At length, however, a feeble voice came from the interior of the cage.

"General," it inquired in quavering accents, "where were you when that cyclone struck us?"

The Death Flower.

One of the early English explorers, Hugh Arkwright, who sailed the Pacific in 1581, warned travelers against visiting El Banoor, the home of the death flower. This flower, he says, is so large that a man can stand upright inside one of its blossoms. But if he does so he will surely fall asleep, lulled by the strange fragrance it distills. Then the flower folds its petals and suffocates him. "And so he passes into death through splendid dreams and gives his body to the death flower for food."

The Deadly Motor Cab.

A marked increase in the number of road accidents is noted in the United Kingdom. The total rose from 28,023 in 1909 to 35,210 in 1911, of which motor vehicles caused 20,226. Statistics for the London metropolitan area show that every 100 motor cabs killed five times as many persons and injured three times as many as every horse-drawn cabs.

ABDUL BAHA IN CANADA

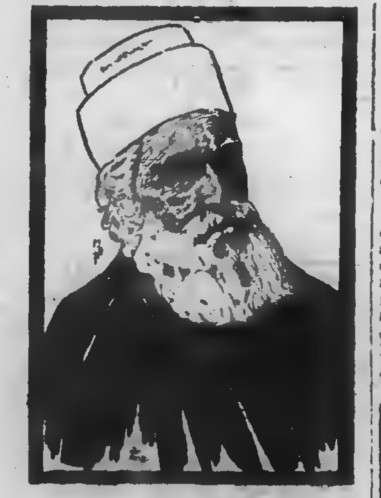
GREAT PERSIAN PEACE PROPHET SPEAKS IN MONTREAL.

The Promotion of Brotherly Love Among Men Is the Object of the World Wide Tour of One of the Most Wonderful Men of Our Day—"Servant of God" Spent Most of His Life In Prison.

It was an impressive service, especially the closing part. For there on the platform, to the left of the little Unitarian minister, stood the venerable, grey-haired Persian Prophet of Peace, Abdul Baha, praying to the God of all nations in his native tongue, for greater benevolence, greater charity, greater tolerance, greater love among all men; while, to the right, almost motionless and likewise devout, stood the cultured interpreter, Mr. Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, translating the holy words of his countryman to the congregation.

Picture to yourself a grey-haired man, older than his years, with patriarchal beard and face stamped by much suffering and serious thought, a yet handsome man with a high, intelligent forehead and the idealistic eyes of a dreamer, a man of power, determination, too, who will tread but one path when he knows that is the right one, yea, though he should lose his life for so doing. Clothe your man in eastern garb. Put a white turban on his head and hang a gown of grey canvas over his stately shoulders. Then you will have Abdul Baha, who has come among us to preach his religion of peace.

What is it that strikes one most in this remarkable man? Is it his message, his simple doctrine of peace and love among all people? Is it his power of thought, his manner of expression, the privations he has endured? No; it is none of these. It is his great sincerity. He is a man with a mission, and he believes in it with all his soul.



ABDUL BAHA.

Abdul Baha Abbas, otherwise known as Abbas Effendi, and whose name signifies the "Servant of God," has spent the greater part of his life in prison at Acra in Syria. He has also been exiled, ostracised, and met with hardships and cruelties such as would have quelled the spirit of many a brave man. But he never faltered; he never turned from the straight path, the path that to him spelled duty. Had not his father trod it before him? Had not Baha'o'llah, after the Bab had been put to death, who had founded Babism, which created much stir in the Orient during the middle of last century, arisen to preach the doctrine of universal peace, and had he not handed on the leadership of the Bahais to his son, Abdul Baha? So, come weal or woe, he would go forward fearlessly proclaiming the belief that was in him. And even when in captivity at Acra, he went on teaching all with whom he came in contact, and these in turn taught others. Thus it was that when he was liberated, on the advent of the Young Turks to power, he found that he had a goodly following both in Asia Minor and in Persia, and now, in Persia alone, his adherents are said to number three millions.

Last year he toured Europe and was favorably received. In London, he spoke in the City Temple, Rev. R. J. Campbell's church, and in St. John's Church, by permission of Canon Wilberforce. Then he turned his attention to America and, since April last, he has toured the greater part of the United States. He came then to Canada, and he spoke in the Church of the Messiah (Unitarian) in Sherbrook street west, Montreal, a few Sundays ago.

There was wonderful breadth and depth of feeling in that sermon. It was not the message of a fanatic or a hermit, or a man unconversant with modern thought and modern life. It was Eastern, and yet it was Western. It was relivered as only an Oriental of pure blood can convey a message, yet it contained truths applicable to everybody. It was an embodiment of the oneness of humanity, of the oneness of religion, of the power of reason, reality, love.

Dealing with the question of warfare and bloodshed, he said that "where there is hatred there is no religion. For true religion means love, fellowship. It is the drawing together, not the pushing apart, of peoples. It is life according to reason, science. Therefore, religious prejudice, racial prejudice, alien prejudice, must be destroyed if the foundations of humanity are to remain strong! All religions must become one and be based on reality. Races must give up their superstitions and join hands in friendship, all being equal before God, who made no divisions. Prejudices are falsehoods disliked by God."

The Game of Craps.

The game of "craps" is an old one. Is the word itself a corruption of the French "crepa," a favorite game in the gambling halls of the Palais Royal in the eighteenth century? Beacherelle says it was a game played with dice and of English origin; that the name was sometimes written "krabs" and the word was spoken when one succeeded in throwing 2, 3, 11 or 12 at the first cast.

TWO WOMEN TESTIFY

Haliburton, P.E.I.:—"I had a doctor examine me and he said I had falling of the womb, so I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. All the bearing-down pains have vanished. I have gained ten pounds in weight, the discharge is all gone, and I feel better than I have for a long time. I think any woman is foolish to suffer as I did for the sake of a few dollars.

"You can use my letter as a testimonial. It may encourage other poor women who suffer as I did to use your Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. GEO. COLLICUTT, Haliburton, Lot 7, P.E.I.

Read What This Woman Says:

New Moorefield, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in thanking you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had bearing down pains, was dizzy and weak, had pains in lower back and could not be upon my feet long enough to get a meal. As long as I laid on my back I would feel better, but when I would get up those bearing down pains would come back, and the doctor said I had female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the only medicine that helped me and I have been growing stronger ever since I commenced to take it. I hope it will help other suffering women as it has me. You can use this letter."—Mrs. CASSIE LLOYD, New Moorefield, Clark Co., Ohio.

PHANTOM SHIPS.

Lost Vessels Whose Ghosts Are Said to Sail the Ocean.

The number of phantom ships is legion. Several of the vessels which were wrecked in close proximity to the scene of the Titanic disaster are even said to reappear in the same spot on certain occasions. The Packet Light is one of them, and the story runs that whenever a storm is threatened a ball of fire emerges from the spot where the ship sank, which presently forms itself into the shape of a vessel and then sinks and disappears.

King George V. and his brother, the late Duke of Clarence, when on their cruise in the Bacchante from 1879 to 1882 are stated to have seen the phantom of the Flying Dutchman and the duke mentioned the fact in his diary under date of July 11, 1881.

A three masted frigate is said to haunt the English channel in the vicinity of the Owner lightship whenever a gale or snowstorm is threatened. Hundreds of people have declared that they have seen the apparition and heard the cries of the ghostly passengers. It is sometimes said to be the phantom of the training ship Eurydice, which went down off the Isle of Wight on March 24, 1878, involving the loss of about 200 lives.—London Standard.

The Newest Collar.

A variation of the Robespiere collar which is precisely suited to a rather low cut afternoon frock has the double front revers of familiar type, but about the neck goes a collar composed of two flat, wide strips of lace all over and plaited net or of hand embroidery frilled with lace. Only the upper edges of these strips join at center of front and back. From these they slope abruptly to form sharp V's, and the strips crossing each shoulder smoothly give the effect of a sailor collar and are very decorative.

BOYS' AUTHORS.

Youngsters Revel In Stories of School Life and Adventure.

R. L. Stevenson's "Treasure Island" is a book which is only surpassed in popularity in its own line by "Robinson Crusoe." But, as everybody knows, it went through a boys' paper without exciting undue attention. As a matter of fact, the "public" to whom it was given first yawned over the turpitude of Billy Jones and Cap'n Flint in book form. A lady who gave it to her cook to amuse her was informed by the drowsy damsel that she had actually managed to get through two chapters in a night. Nor were all the critics much more appreciative. They sneered at it as melodramatic. But the right sort of boy found it out, and he is a fellow who knows what he likes—in the way of reading, at any rate. Most of them finished the story at one sitting.

An amusing story is told of an English midshipman who, after staying at Vailima for a week, told Mrs. Strong that, though he had known and liked Mr. Stevenson all this time, it was only the other day, when he was roaming about the library looking at the books, that it came over him all of a heap, "He's the josser that wrote 'Treasure Island'."

It was the boys, too, who discovered Max Pemberton. His first book bore the "blood and thunder" title of "The Iron Pirate," and that "fetched" the boys every time. They instantly hoisted Max Pemberton's flag to the forepeak, where it has flown ever since, although the famous novelist has forsaken his first appreciative audience and appealed to mere "grown-ups."

Frankfort Moore is another novelist who went through the successive stages of journalist, writer of boys' books, and full-fledged novelist. It was the boys who discovered him and gave him his first "public." In his early days he once turned out a most realistic book called "From the Bush to the Breakers," and when he was complimented upon his knowledge of Australia, and asked how many years he had spent there, he confessed that he had never set foot on the subcontinent in his life! "But," he added, "any journalist can mug up a continent in a week."

George Manville Fenn, although he wrote many grown-up novels, never deserted the boys who discovered him. His earliest books were all written for boys, who hailed them with so much enthusiasm that this writer's name was made before he ever produced a genuine novel. Moreover, one of the last books he wrote was for his old friends, the boys, and bore the alluring title, "Trapped by Malays."

Ex-Governor Raps Dress of Women.

Former Governor R. B. Glenn of North Carolina, addressing 2,000 teachers of the Allegheny county teachers' institute recently, made a plea to them to use their influence in securing reform in the manner of dressing by the women of the country. He attributed the spread of immorality to the present styles.

"My dear ladies," he said, "if you want to wear pants, wear them. Japanese women wear them and look pretty good in them. But if you insist upon wearing them wear pants with both legs in them and not with only one, as some of you are now trying to do."

SMOKING IN CHURCH

The vicar of Lancaster, Eng., who has been obliged to put up a notice forbidding visitors to smoke in church, may not know that smoking in church is not only irreverent, but a breach of the English law. Some time ago an Essex farm laborer was seen to be smoking when he entered the church for watch-night service, and smoke afterward was observed to be issuing from his pew. He received a smart fine in court next day. Had the offender lived one or two centuries ago he could have smoked with impunity in church. Wooden spittoons filled with sawdust were placed about the church for the smokers, and they sometimes left their long clays, or "church-wardens," in the care of the verger until next Sunday came around. It is told of the incumbent of a Warwickshire church that he used to smoke regularly in the vestry while the congregation were singing the hymn before the sermon. He made a point of selecting a long hymn to give himself time to get through his pipe. "My people," he said, "like long hymns, but I prefer a long pipe."

Then His Smile Faded.

Ramsay Calles in his reminiscences says he was once traveling in a smoking compartment on an Irish railway. The only other person in the compartment was a gentleman who was smoking a pipe with evident satisfaction, but whose tobacco had a particularly disgusting smell. Not having any tobacco himself with which to overcome this appalling smell, Mr. Calles opened the window. But the weather was very cold, and he was obliged to shut it again almost at once. It then occurred to him that possibly good humored remonstrance might prevail and abate the nuisance, so he said, with a conciliatory smile, "Pardon me, sir, but really your tobacco would poison a toad."

Without moving a muscle of his face the smoker took his pipe from his mouth and replied:

"Evidently!"

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,

THE COST OF A RANGE

This book will be sent free to those interested. It will show just how the cost of a range ought to be estimated.

THE cost of a range is not the price of a range.

- Many a range cheap in price becomes expensive in cost as the years go by.
- Heavy drain on the coal cellar, and repairs every now and then, make an originally cheap stove a very dear [illegible]ed.
- Before laying in your coal for the winter — Before patching up the old range— Before buying a new one —INVEST A CENT and get our new booklet. "THE COST OF A RANGE."

SUDDEN CALL TO LINDSAY LADY

Mrs. R. J. Menzies was Stricken at the Dinner Table

The death took place yesterday at Lindsay of Mrs. R. J. Menzies, who was a sister-in-law of Mr. William Menzies, 291 Rubidge street.

The deceased lady, who was in her usual good health, was at dinner with her husband when the fatal summons came. She was seized with a severe attack of convulsions, and although Dr. Clarke responded promptly to the call, she was past all human aid.

The late Mrs. Menzies was a daughter of the late Wm. G. Mills, of Peterborough. She was born in Peterborough and was united in marriage to her husband in 1877. She had been a resident of Lindsay for 25 years.

Her demise was caused by an acute attack of indigestion, which brought on convulsions.

Never fail to lie to a woman if it will make her happy.

CHEERING WORD TO TIRED MOTHERS

The homely old wash tub is a good thing after all, even if it does get rather wearisome at times. And I suppose too, that the work of cooking, sweeping and mending, and the work of correcting, teaching and training, could all be thrown into the heartless tub together and stirred up, and when they came out you could scarcely distinguish any one of them from the steaming old tub itself.

And so apparently it is useless to run from one kind of work to another with the hope of finding a task without the sting of work in it. The only thing for us to do, then, is to be content to bear the burden and heat of the day, and to rest in the hope of sometime living in "a land of pure delight," where our chief occupation shall be to sing praises unto our King.

And yet do you not hear the heart sob echo and re-echo, throughout the land as the weary ones toil and toil and toil?

"Oh, my life is wasted; she cried,
As she mended the babie's frocks
And the tears fell on her work
While she darned little worn-out socks.
Nothing but toil all day,
Just teach or cook, or sew,
No time for a higher life,
To rich fields where I long to go.

And no time for the Master's work,
Where the vineyard lieth white;
How poor my reward will be,
To yon bright heaven of light.

But do you not, also, between the sobs hear the reassuring and cheering message of Heaven ring out loud and clear over hill and plain?—

For the Master said to the scribe,
Who is keeping the book of Life;
Write down as faithful this one,
Who serves 'mid cares and strife.
She toils from day to day.
At the task I have laid her down;
As I served for years on earth,
In a cottage in Nazareth town.

Humble and self-denying,
She is living a life of love;
And bright with gems is the crown.
I have ready for her above.

And so I think we had better go back to the big old tub; and each choosing out our former task, see if we cannot wear its roughness smooth and make of its burden a chariot to carry us upward to the Hills of Light.

CREW HAD TO TAKE TO BOAT

Left Sinking Barge and reached Shore in Safety

Port Hope, Nov. 1. — Late last night the steam barge Juneau, with the barge Locke in tow, sprang a leak when half way between Port Hope and Cobourg. The tow barge was cut adrift and the Juneau put back to Cobourg, where she sank at the pier. The anchor on the barge Locke failed to hold, and the barge sank near Gull Light, east of Port Hope.

The crew, consisting of three men and one woman, took to the lifeboat and reached Port Hope in safety after a perilous trip.

Music and Drama

Billie Burke will remain in New York in "Mind-the-Paint Girl" until Christmas. Then she will begin a tour of the principal cities.

Sarah Cowell Le Moyne has been engaged by the Shuberts for the role of the mother in The Five Frankfurters, for which rehearsals have begun.

In the company to support Margaret Wycherly in The Fight are Edward Emery, Edwin Holland, Sydney Booth, William McVey and Anna Walker.

The Shuberts are negotiating with Gladys Unger, author of the book of The Merry Countess, for two new comic operas, the first of which is to be finished Christmas.

Charles F. Nirdlinger, the adapter of The World and His Wife, and whose adaptation was used by William Faversham and Julie Opp, objects to the play being used by stock companies.

Andrew Mack will be the stock star of a company in Oakland, Cal.

Julia Herne is to appear in vaudeville in a sketch written by herself.

Henry B. Irving is to build a theater in London to bear his father's name.

Marie Tempest is in London with a new play called Art and Opportunity.

Adelaide Keim will remain as star of the stock company in Portland, Ore., for the season.

Ada Reeve a leading English music-hall commedienne, is to make an American vaudeville tour.

Mrs Annie Adams, mother of Maude Adams is playing with a stock company in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Robert Warwick has been engaged for the cast of Miss Princess in which Lina Abarbanell is to star.

John B. Henshaw has written a play called "The Girl and the Clubman" which will be produced next spring.

Charles Frohman's next musical production will be "the Marriage Market" with Donald Brian as the star.

Edna Baker has been engaged for the leading feminine role in "Bachelors and Benedicts" in which Ralph Herz is to star.

Carbaret shows are now running riot in New York and Chicago and there are few of the swell restaurants that do not have such a plan of entertainment in operation. But the first of the standard theatrical productions to be seen outside of New York including this style of performance, is "Little Miss Fix-It." The carbaret show originated in Europe. The boulevards of Paris and Vienna are lined with them. In America they might be called music halls but in them there is an intimacy between audience and the performer not to be found in the regular theatre where the footlights seem to be an insurmountable wall.

MUST ARRANGE PEACE TERMS WITHOUT INTERVENTION

The Balkan Nations and Greece Want to Deal With Turkey Alone.

Special To The Review.

London, Nov. 4.—Balkan nations and Greece are persistant in their determination that Turkey must arrange directly with them the terms of peace without intervention of European powers. This attitude is emphasized in a statement from official sources.

PROPOSALS ONLY.

London, Nov. 4.—Those powers thus far consulted have responded to Turkey's appeal for their mediation in war by declaring that they could make only proposals for peace and could not approach the Balkan nations with a request for armistice.

MUST ASK FIRST.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—Germany and Austria will not join in intervention in the Balkan war without a request to take such step coming directly from one of the belligerients. The German foreign office has not received any confirmation of the report that Turkey has asked the powers to mediate .

A PEACE SETTLEMENT.

London, Nov. 4.—The Turkish Ambassador here has been directed by the Ottoman Government to inform Great Britism of Turkey's willingness to receive assistance in bringing about a suspension of hostilities with the view of arriving at a peace settlement.

GREEK FORCES WIN.

Athens Nov. 4.—Greek forces have occupied Janitza, important town in Macedonia, thirty-five miles northwest of Saloniki.

PANIC IN SALONIKI.

London, Nov. 4.—Saloniki is in a state of panic. Twenty thousand inhabitants of surrounding villages have poured in, and 7,000 Anatolian soldiers sent from Constantinople have been driven by hunger to plunder the bakeshops.

London, Nov. 4.—The Turkish army is in full retreat on Constantinople, and the Turkish Government has asked the powers to intervene.

An official bulletin was issued by the Government at Constantinople last night, admitting defeat a' the hands of the Bulgarians in the great battle on the Thracean plains. Application was made to the embassies in Constantinople last night for mediation by the powers to end the hostilities and arrange a peace agreement.

The official bulletin acknowledging the defeat follows:

"The fortunes of war are variable, and it is not always possible to be succesful on all sides. A people which accepts war must submit with resignation to all its consequences. To overlook this obligation is to fail in one's duty. Consequently, while it would be unwise to be unnecessarily proud over victories, it likewise would be incorrect to be alarmed at want of success.

"For instance, in the present war with the four federated states the imperial troops are defending themselves with success in the environs of Scutari and Janina, but the eastern army, in the neighborhood of Visa and Lule Burgas, felt obliged to retire to the lines of defence at Tchatalja.

"In order to facilitate a successful defence, it has naturally been decided to exert all efforts to safeguard the interests of the fatherland."

The ambassadors, prior to this, had asked the Porte to grant permission to each of the great powers to send one warship through the Dardanelles, and this request had been complied with. The only guarantee of safety for the native Christians, and, perhaps the foreigners in Constantinople, is to be found in the presence of the warships of the great powers in the harbor of the Turkish capital. It is the general belief that Bulgaria will refuse to listen to anything in the way of intervention until the Bulgarian army is at the gates of Constantinople, and will insist that Turkey make an appeal direct to the allies without interference from the powers.

The powers have not been able to agree upon the French Premier's formula of "territorial disinterestedness," which is not acceptable to either Austria or Germany. They are taking steps, however, for the protection of Christians and their own interests in Turkey.

Beyond the statement that the Turkish army is retreating to the last line of fortifications outside Constantinople, there was little news received from the seat of war last night. Fighting was reported along the line from Tchorlu to Serai, which was the outcome, doubtless, or the efforts of the defeated Turks to retire within the Tchatalja lines, which the Bulgarians are doing their utmost to prevent.

The besieging forces are tightening their grip around Adrianople, and the bombardment is becoming more vigorous. In other directions the allies are consolidating their occupation of Turkish territory. The Greeks have taken Nicopolis and Prevesa, and have landed a division at Stavros, which is marching to attack Saloniki. An uncensored despatch from the latter town intimates the likelihood of its surrender without resistance.

In connection with the Servian occupation of Prishrend, a warning from Austria appears in the official Vienna Fremdenblatt, which, in the supposition that the Servians have now attained the object of their operations toward the west, says: "There are neither military nor national motives for the Servian army to penetrate the districts beyond Prishrend, which are exclusively inhabited by Albanians, that is, therefore, into the undeniable territory of another Balkan people."

Constantinople In Panic.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—Constantinople is in a fever of excitement over the alarming reports from the field of battle. Foreigners and natives alike are suffering from the tension caused by the series of military disasters, and, although the city is in a state of siege, crime in some quarters is unchecked. Many families are leaving the city.

The people fear, first, an outbreak of Moslem fanaticism by the turbulent elements, the lower classes, and, second, a rising of hordes of maddened soldiers, who are being driven by the Bulgarians to make their last stand a few miles outside of Constantinople and then, perhaps, to fall back on the capital.

Greek Forces Land.

Saloniki, Nov. 4.—A complete Greek division under Gen. Smolensky landed at Stavros, on the northeast of the Chalis Peninsula and occupied the villages and mining district, as well as the capital, Poligyro, from which the Turkish officials were expelled. The division is now marching on Galatsista and Saloniki, accompanied by 6,000 well-armed Greek peasants, many of whom are deserters from the Turkish army.

Emerson, president of the Brotherhood of Timber Workers, and his eight associates, charged with murder, as the result of the Grabow labor riot, July 7, were acquitted Saturday afternoon. The jury took less than an hour to bring in the verdict. The other indictments against all but six of the accused men were nolle prossed and they were released.

Philadelphia finds over 5,000 dead or fraudulent names on voting lists.

WHEAT CARGO BREAKS RECORD

Fort William, Nov. 4.—When the steamer Willis L. King departed for Buffalo Saturday, she carried the largest cargo of wheat that has ever been taken from any of the lake ports. The King went under the elevator spouts early Saturday morning to load capacity. It is expected that her cargo will be 425,000 bushels. The previous record was 405,000 bushels, including part of the flax taken by the steamer Jones at Duluth.

The biggest cargo previously carried from Fort William was 384,000 bushels.

$300,000 FIRE AT MONTREAL

Firemen Had to Fight Against Low Water

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Fire last night destroyed the premises of the Consumers' Cordage Co. and the Canadian Bag Co., on St. Patrick street Point St. Charles, causing damage roughly estimated at $300,000. No figures as to insurance have as yet been given out. For three hours the full fighting strength of the city's fire department battled with a weak water supply to save neighboring structures and had it not been for a favorable wind the loss would have been far greater.

The fire broke out a few minutes after eight o'clock in the factory of the Canadian Consumers' Cordage Co. and by the time the firemen of the Point St. Charles division had arrived it was rushing through the long, low building of the company which runs from Charlevoix to Roperty streets, and had spread to the lumber piles, along the banks of the Lachine Canal.

Owing to the low pressure it was impossible to throw a stream of water any distance and the fire spread with startling rapidity. Only when pumping engines were hauled to the bank of the canal and the water pumped directly from there instead of from the hydrants were the firemen able to make any progress. Before long the entire building of the cordage company was in flames, except a small section which included the offices, and before the fire could be subdued the entire building with that exception was destroyed. The fire also spread to the Canadian Bag Co., a three-storey building which fell an easy prey to the flames. The firemen were early driven from the building owing to lack of water. The firemen then secured better pressure by pumping direct from the canal and were able to prevent the flames from spreading across St. Patrick street to the numerous factories there.

Fortunately the wind was blowing directly towards the canal and fanned the flames in the one direction they could do no harm.

Prefontaine's lumber yard, adjoining the Canadian Bag Co., was saved although several times the flames reached its limits. The cause of the fire has not yet been definitely determined.

GREAT NAVAL ACTIVITY AT PORTSMOUTH PREVAILS

SIXTH FLOTILLA DESTROYER TO SAIL

His Death a Mystery.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—The body of John Grindall, aged 43, 27 Herrick street, was found floating in Ashbridge's Bay, at the foot of Leslie street, about five o'clock Saturday afternoon by Jack Robson, aged 19, 90 Logan avenue. Constable Morris had the remains removed to the morgue and Coroner Dr. Lynd will open an inquest tonight.

Two brothers of Grindall, who identified the corpse as that of their eldest brother, are completely mystified over his death. They say that two weeks ago he did not go to his work at Hees' factory on Davenport road, but stayed home with his mother.

On Tuesday he started out as usual with his lunch, seemingly in good spirits. He had uttered no complaints to their knowledge. Since Tuesday he has been missing until the body was found Saturday evening. Grindall was a widower.

MANY BODIES COME ASHORE

Wreck of the Cecilia Cost Twelve Lives.

Montreal, Nov. 4.—Twelve persons perished and four were rescued from the wreck of the steamer Cecilia L. in the narrow channel between Beauharnois and Isle Perrot at the mouth of the Chateauguay river during the gale on Friday evening.

The dead are: Captain E. Leduc, Valleyfield; Clovis de Bellefeuille, engineer, Valleyfield; Albertus Hebert, sailor, Valleyfield; Joseph Lebouef, fireman, Valleyfield; Mrs. Maxime Michaud, stewardess, Valleyfield; Alexina de Bellefeuille, sister of engineer, Valleyfield; Miss Leduc, daughter of George Leduc, 10 years old, Valleyfield; Mrs. (Miss) Valerie Valois, Montreal; Mrs. Jos. St. Marseille, Cascades; Jimmie St. Marseille, son of preceding, 18 years old, Cascades; Mrs. Zilda de Repentigny, Valleyfield; Miss de Repentigny, 10 years old, Valleyfield.

The survivors are: Lionel Leduc, second officer, son of captain; Alex. Gosselin, wheelsman, Cascades; A. E. Baillarge, passenger, Cedars; Felix Cousineau, passenger, Coteau du Lac.

The Cecelia, which was a freight and passenger carrying vessel, running between Montreal and Valleyfield, left Montreal on Friday afternoon with nine passengers, six of them women and children, and a large cargo.

After passing through the Lachine Canal the steamer encountered heavy weather immediately on entering Lake St. Louis, causing alarm among the passengers. But the craft weathered the wind, which blew in gusts of 50 miles an hour and the heavy sea, until she reached the channel, where, in the darkness, she was driven on a shoal and smashed into wreckage in an incredibly short time.

So rapid was the breaking up of the vessel that all attempts to lower the frail boats in the heavy sea and to get the passengers aboard were unsuccessful. Only four of the sixteen people aboard escaped. Two of the passengers managed to cling to some wreckage, which consisted of part of the upper deck and some empty beer barrels, which floated high out of the water, and two of the crew managed to clamber into one of the boats which had gone adrift after the final destruction of the vessel.

The two passengers floated ashore at Sister's Island, and would undoubtedly have perished of exposure had not people on shore at Chateauguay heard their cries and at great risk to themselves, rowed out and taken them to the mainland. The two sailors succeeded in reaching the little village of Woodlands three hours after the disaster.

All the women and children, together with the captain and several of the crew and other passengers, perished. Most of the bodies have been washed ashore and an inquest will be held to-day.

Active Service Men Are Being Recalled—Thirty-Five Ships.

Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 4.—Unusual activity in the Portsmouth dockyards is reported in a special edition of The Evening News of Saturday, which says that preparations are being made to get the sixth destroyer flotilla ready for sea.

"The official explanation," says The News, "is that this is being done merely to be in readiness for the quarterly mobilization on Monday, but we understand that the preparations are of a much more warlike nature. The active service ratings have been recalled by notice and special messenger since two o'clock in the afternoon, and the men have been directed to proceed aboard ship by 8.15 this evening."

The News adds that it is rumored that the flotilla will sail under sealed orders. Notices have been posted ordering all submarine men to return to their boats at once. The paper also states that men on leave have been recalled by wire to other naval ports.

Thirty-Five Ships.

Devonport, Nov. 4.—The officers and men attached to the seventh destroyer flotilla were ordered to return to their ships Saturday night at the latest. Fight to Unionize City.

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—Extracts from The Ironworkers' Union Magazine concerning a demand made upon the American Federation of Labor to raise a tax of one cent a month on all its members to unionize Los Angeles, Cal., three years before James B. McNamara, a brother of the secretary of the Ironworkers' Union, blew up The Los Angeles Times building, were read by the Government at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial Saturday.

One abstract was a copy of a resolution adopted by the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers in September, 1907. It asserted that Los Angles was a "breeding place for strikebreakers of all crafts and trades," and added "if unionism is crushed in Los Angeles it will be but a short time before the same methods are applied to other cities. The struggle is national in scope and should be financed by the American Federation of Labor."

He will be buried to-day with Indian rites.

Two Airmen Still Missing.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—A feeling of profound anxiety reigns in aeronautical circles as to the fate of the two aeronauts, John Watts and Arthur Atherholt, who have been missing with the balloon Dusseldorf II. since they started from Stuttgart on Sunday last in the international race for the Gordon Bennett balloon cup.

The managers of the international balloon cup race still express the hope that the two American aeronauts have landed somewhere in Russia. They say the aeronauts may have been made prisoners and are unable to communicate.

C.P.R. Trains In Head-On Collision.

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 4.—An operator's mistake caused two C.P.R. trains to meet in a head-on collision near Pardee, west of North Bay, at noon Saturday, causing great damage to the rolling stock, both engines being badly damaged. The mistaken order allowed a work train to run out of Chapleau in face of an on-coming freight train, the two being hidden from each other by the curving nature of the tracks. No one was killed, but one of the engineers was injured.

UNITED STATES TO INVADE CUBA

Four Transports to Carry 2,800 Troops.

Fort Monroe, Va., Nov. 4.—The army general staff has ordered four transports in reserve here to be prepared within four days for instant readiness to carry 2,800 troops to Cuba. The preparation of the army transports at Newport for immediate service is one of several steps taken already by the general staff to have the army in readiness for service in Cuba should disorder arise, demanding intervention. The transports are calculated to convey three regiments, and it is believed the soldiers could be landed in Cuba within nine days after an order for their despatch.

Officials are careful to make it plain they do not expect it will be necessary to despatch the troops, feeling much encouraged at the peaceful manner in which the Cuba election was conducted Friday. But having in mind the past threats of the Liberal leaders to rebel in case the election resulted in favor of the Conservatives, it has been regarded as only prudent to put the army in condition to respond to a call for immediate service within the next few day.

Mrs. McFadden lived in a room adjoining Mrs. Abeles, and that part of the building collapsed soon after the fire started.

Company Will Not Accede to Request For Recognition of Union.

Special To The Review

Ottawa, Nov. 4—President Mosher of the Canadian Brotherhood Railway Employes, in an official statement issued at nine o'clock this morning announced that by noon, a general strike of members of the Order would be in progress throughout the Dominion, on lines of the C. P. R. Men are already out at small stations and will soon be out at larger centres. About 5,000 employes are effected.

Toronto, Nov. 4—The strike of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes is not affecting Toronto as freight and baggage handlers on the C. P. R. here, are members of the International body and not bound by any action of the Canadian organization. The same is true of London. At some other Canadian points on the C. P. R., however, work has been stopped, and in some instances, no freight or baggage is being handled. This is true of Ottawa. Fort William, Brandon and Swift Current.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Five thousand men employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway in all parts of the Dominion as freight-handlers, checkers and clerks in the freight department are expected to go out on strike to-day.

The men are all members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employes, and will cease work in response to a telegram sent out yesterday by Grand President A. R. Mosher of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The order to quit work was precipitated by the refusal of the C.P.R. to grant the men an increase of wages and recognition of the union.

Grand officers of the brotherhood lay the blame for the strike on Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, who, it is stated, refused to order a board of conciliation. It is claimed every possible effort has been exerted by the brotherhood officers to avert a strike.

Between eight and nine hundred men are employed in the freight department of the C.P.R. in Toronto, and these men, for reasons which could not be made known, will not leave work until later in the week unless they are discharged by the company. In all other cities and towns of Canada, however, it is expected that every member of the brotherhood from St. John to Vancouver will quit.

Letters have been sent out by the brotherhood to Boards of Trade in all parts of the Dominion, intimating that there is grave danger of a serious interruption to trade if the strike is prolonged, and urging them to cooperate with the workmen in securing a conciliation board, with a view to reaching a speedy adjustment of the differences. The matter will be taken up to-day with the general secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

WOMAN IS IDENTIFIED

Hamilton Woman Was Sister of Homicidal Teamster.

Hamilton, Nov. 4.—The body of the young woman who is supposed to have committed suicide by throwing herself in front of a switch engine at the Stuart Street Station of the G.T.R., was identified Saturday evening by her husband as that of Mrs. Varna Kirby, 82 Kinrade avenue.

Mrs. Kirby, who was 23 years old, was a sister of Frank Truckle, the young teamster who shot his wife to death on Market street on May 18 last and committed suicide a few minuees later, after making a desperate effort to escape. She was born and raised in Brantford, where she was married to Fred. Kirby two years ago. The couple had boarded at 82 Kinrade about a month. Mrs. Kirby, who frequently left her husband for days at a time, was last seen by Kirby on Thanksgiving Day, when she said she was going to Brantford. She told another woman, it is said, that she was going up in the west end of the city to spend a few days. She had recently returned from a trip to Winnipeg.

Foundry Is Absorbed.

Brantford, Nov. 4—The Pratt & Letchworth Co. of this city, which employs 500 hands in the manufacture of malleable iron castings, has been acquired by the Canadian Car & Foundry Co. of Montreal. The firm thus becomes a purely Canadian concern, its general policy having been formerly directed from Buffalo. No change is contemplated in the operating management or in name, and extensive enlargements to the plant are now under way.

The deal is one of the most important consummated in Brantford in some time.

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak there is no pill like them.

DISCUSSION FURTHER ON

The question is asked, and not unreasonably so, why is there not some daily comment in the papers and advocacy of the Hydro side of the power and light proposition. There is a by-law to be carried, and the merits of the scheme should be put before the ratepayers.

This is quite true. It is also true that there is a proposition before the City Council. That proposition has been sent to the Hydro-Electric authorities to be analysed, and passed upon. When that report is received by the Council, and it is hoped in a few days it will be considered and contrasted with the Hydro assurances of what the city could achieve under municipal ownership. If the Council should view it favorably—and the members have been elected for the express purpose of doing business for the people at large—it may be offered to the electorate as an alternative propisition.

The merits of the Hydro-Electric scheme are already known to the Council as to the other they are not fully sized, so discussion is suspended for a short time pending developments.

Even should the Electric Power Co. offer commend itself to the Council of public opinion, for the reason that it is composed on an agreement. It is a settled impression in the minds of most men that no form of agreement can be drawn that will not have holes in it to work to the disadvantage of the city in years to come. It is not the agreement put on paper, but what may be read into it that is feared. Such motives are not imputed to the Company, but the future is mighty ungrows increasingly complex. Consider the deputation to Ottawa from municipalities to seek power to retain the rights of their own streets. The thing was thought absurd ten years ago. Now, in view of recent interpretations, it is a vital factor. What we have we often don't hold

THE DEFECTIVES PROBLEM

Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, formerly of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, writes to the New York Times on the need of a National campaign for "mental hygiene"—health of mind. He says that provision must be made for the birth of children whose brains shall, so far as possible, be innately of good quality; this means the denial of the privilege of parenthood to those likely to transmit bad nervous systems to their offspring, and is a task of eugenics. Secondly, society must be so organized that all individuals, whether well born or ill-born, shall so far as possible, be surrounded by those external influences which most favor the welfare of their mentality—a task of euthenics.

Dr. Barker says that on every side there are too many evidences of defective and disordered brains. More than 250,000 in the United States were insane, and the number rapidly increasing. If there were anything to be done to keep down the growing prevalence of mental degeneracy, it ought to be done now. There is no question that the care and restraint of the feeble-minded, the defectives and other mental deficients, is becoming a pressing matter. All over the civilized world the public conscience has awakened to the need not only of gathering up and caring for the unfortunates popularly classed as "silly" and "half-there," but to the necessity of preventing them from propagating their kind. The feeble-mindedness from which they suffer is hereditary, to a large extent, and transmissible, and the increase in the number of defectives is due to the propagation of the unfit—surely a crime against the child as well as against society. How the evil may be mastered is yet not entirely clear, but the lines are beginning to assume definiteness, and before long there will be as strong a campaign against feeble-mindedness and mental defects as there is against tuberculosis or contagious disease. Dr. Barker is hitting in the right spot.

CANADIAN PROGRESS

Henry Vivian, who recently visited Canada, in connection with the town-planning and co-partnership building movement, says that a sharp decline in the price of real estate in Canada is inevitable. He says that values are far too high, and the real estate man too much in evidence. Too much capital is being used up in land gambling. In Britain, so much land is being sold at inflated prices, of course, that there will be a heavy score to settle up at no distant date. This may sound very pessimistic to many Canadians, but it refers particularly to the west, and there is no doubt that some day, there will be a reckoning. It comes in the life of every country. If Canada goes ahead as it is doing at present, internal conditions must for a long time be satisfactory, but the coming of a sudden relapse, such as bit the United States in 1907, would prick many a fine bubble. Canada is being infected with a mad rush for wealth that is astonishing the older generation of Canadians, who were accustomed to slow profits and small earnings. In fact, there is a distinct danger to the sound health of the community in the riot of speculation that is absorbing so much capital in the large cities and in the west. In short, Canadians are taking advantage of fair weather to crowd on a superfluity of soil.

It is very satisfactory, however, that the wealth that is being accumulated is going mostly to Canadians. This country has to pay interest on capital borrowed from Great Britain amounting to nearly two billion dollars, on capital from the United States amountig to about $400,000,000. This for a population slightly over 7,000,000 is a heavy burden. If immigration did not create a demand for new housing to make business extension on all sides a necessity, and enlarge the immediate markets, we would find our international financial burdens far more heavy than they seem at present. However, there is no reason for the slightest pessimism in Canada regarding the commercial outbreak. It is true that in some places, real estate has been speculated into an extreme, but that is merely the excrescence of an abounding prosperity. The defeat of reciprocity last year was a turning point in Canadian history. The subsequent events have shown that Canada has not lost, but gained, materially, through her choice. In the next ten or fifteen years much history will be made. Probably, the future course of Canada will be well settled, both in respect of its relations with the United States, and with the British Empire.

IS WINNIPEG'S MAYOR

RICHARD D. WAUGH HAS MANY IRONS IN THE FIRE.

Energetic Westerner Who Has Been Elected Vice-President of the Union of Canadian Municipalities Was a Pioneer In the Good Roads Movement and Has Worked For Baths and Playgrounds In His City.

Twenty-nine years ago, a Scotch lad, fifteen years old, came to Winnipeg and got a job in a law office at not much per week. To-day he is Richard Deans Waugh, mayor of the city, who recently was elected vice-president of the Union of Canadian Municipalities. Few men with as meagre a chance have got ahead as fast in Winnipeg as the mayor. He has made a large fortune in land and in financial manoeuvring, and at the same time has found time to identify himself with the big movements which have made Winnipeg the buckle of the wheat belt.

Mr. Waugh's first venture as a municipal politician was when he served on the Cycle Paths Board. Strange, but he has never lost sight of the Good Roads idea. It was largely his advocacy of the "Good Roads Bill" which got that measure through the Manitoba Legislature last session. In 1906 he was first elected to the Board of Control. In the following two years he was re-elected controller. In 1911 he became mayor of the city. A feature of his work is that Mr. Waugh has done much to extend sanitary facilities in Winnipeg. He was the pioneer worker for the public baths and playgrounds in the city.

MAYOR R. D. WAUGH.

Personally, the mayor is of the very likeable, popular, earnest type of citizen. Though a very busy man he is not at all of a fogey. He belongs to at least a dozen athletic clubs; Mr Waugh is an enthusiast at curling, cricket and swimming. He has perhaps a preference for the Scotch game of curling, and is president of the Granite Club, the parent curling club of the city.—Canadian Courier.

Life Saving Pontoons.

The pontoon method of saving life in the event of the foundering of a ship finds an illustrious advocate in Cuniberti, the chief naval architect of the Italian navy. He believes that the upper and after portion of a ship, containing the cabins, should be constructed of wood and form a structure independent of the rest of the ship. This should be bolted to the hull by fastenings which could be readily unlocked in the event of the loss of the ship.

"Treasure Island" Sold.

Christmas island, the original "Treasure Island" of Robert Louis Stevenson's great story and around which many another less famous tale of piracy, treasure and blackbirding has been written, on whose coral shores lie the skeletons of many a wreck, has been sold by the Greig family to a German syndicate for a mid-Pacific depot for steamships. The price is said to be $272,000 cash.

EXCUSE ME!

BY RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY H. K. FLY CO.

"Numba two is yours, sah. Right heah—all nice and cosy, and already made up."

The big man looked through the curtains into the cabined confinement, and groaned:

"That! Haven't you got a man's size berth?"

"Sorry, sah. That's as big a bunk as they is on the train."

"Have I got to be locked up in that pigeon-hole for—for how many days is it to Reno?"

"Reno?" The porter greeted that meaningful name with a smile. "We're doo in Reno the—the—mawnin' of the fo'th day, sah. Yassah." He put the baggage down and started away, but the fat man seized his hand, with great emotion:

"Don't leave me all alone in there, porter, for I'm a broken-hearted man."

"Is that so? Too bad, sah."

"Were you ever a broken-hearted man, porter?"

"Always, sah."

"Did you ever put your trust in a false-hearted woman?"

"Often, sah."

"Was she ever true to you, porter?"

"Never, sah."

"Porter, we are partners in mis-is-ery."

And he wrung the rough, black hand with a solemnity that embarrassed the porter almost as much as it would have embarrassed the passenger himself if he could have understood what he was doing. The porter disengaged himself with a patient but hasty:

"I'm afraid you'll have to 'scuse me. I got to he'p the other passengers on bode."

"Don't let me keep you from your duty. Duty is the—the—" But he could not remember what duty was, and he would have dropped off to sleep, if he had not been startled by a familiar voice which the porter had luckily escaped.

"Pawtah! Pawtah! Can't you raise this light—or rather can't you lower it? Pawtah! This light is so infernally dim I can't read."

To the Englishman's intense amazement his call brought to him not the porter, but a rising moon with the profound query:

"Whasa a li'l thing like dim light, when the light of your life has gone out?"

"I beg your pardon?"

Without further invitation, the mammoth descended on the Englishman's territory.

"I'm a broken-hearted man, Mr.—Mr.—I didn't get your name."

"Er—ah—I dare say."

"Thanks, I will sit down." He lifted a great carry-all and airily tossed it into the aisle, set the Gladstone on the lap of the infuriated Englishman, and squeezed into the seat opposite, making a sad mix-up of knees.

"My name's Wellington. Ever hear of li'l Jimmie Wellington? That's me."

"Any relation to the Duke?"

"Nagh!"

He no longer interested Mr. Wedgewood. But Mr. Wellington was not aware that he was being snubbed. He went right on getting acquainted:

"Are you married, Mr.—Mr.—?"

"No!"

"My heartfelt congrashlations. Hang on to your luck, my boy. Don't let any female take it away from you." He slapped the Englishman on the elbow amiably, and his prisoner was too stifled with wrath to emit more than one feeble "Pawtah!"

Mr. Wellington mused on aloud: "Oh, if I had only remained single. But she was so beautiful and she swore to love, honor and obey. Mrs. Wellington is a queen among women, mind you, and I have nothing to say against her except that she has the temper of a tarantula." He italicised the word with a light fillip of his left hand along the back of the seat. He did not notice that he filliped the angry head of Mr. Ira Lathrop in the next seat. He went on with his portrait of his wife. "She has the 'stravaganza of a sultana"—another fillip for Mr. Lathrop—"the shealousy of a cobra, the flirtatiousness of a humming bird." Mr. Lathrop was glaring round like a man-eating tiger, but Wellington talked on. "She drinks, swears and smokes cigars, otherwise she's fine—a queen among women."

Neither this amazing vision of womankind, nor this beautiful example of longing for confession and sympathy awakened a response in the Englishman's frozen bosom. His only action was another violent effort to disengage his cramped knees from the knees of his tormentor; his only comment a vain and weakening, cry for help, "Pawtah! Pawtah!"

Wellington's bleary, teary eyes were lighted with triumph. "Finally I saw I couldn't stand it any longer so I bought a tic-hic-et to Reno. I 'stablish a residensh in six monfths—get a divorce—no shcandal. Even m'own wife won't know anything about it."

The Englishman was almost attracted by this astounding picture of the divorce laws in America. It sounded sa barbarically quaint that he leaned forward to hear more, but Mr. Wellington's hand, like a mischievous runaway, had wandered back into the shaggy locks atop of Mr. Lathrop. His right hand did not let his left know what it was doing, but proceeded quite independently to grip as much of Lathrop's hair as it would hold.

Then as Mr. Wellington shook with joy at the prospect of "Dear old Reno!" he began unconsciously to draw Ira Lathrop's head after his hair across the seat. The pain of it shot the tears into Lathrop's eyes, and as he writhed and twisted he was too full of profanity to get any one word out.

When he managed to wrench his skull free, he was ready to murder his tormentor. But as soon as he confronted the doddering and blinking toper, he was helpless. Drunken men have always been treated with great tenderness in America, and when Wellington, seeing Lathroy's white hair, exclaimed with rapture: "Why, hello, Pop! here's Pop!" the most that Lathrop could do was to tear loose those fat, groping hands, slap them like a school teacher, and push the man away.

But that one shove upset Mr. Wellington and sent him toppling down upon the pit of the Englishman's stomach.

For Wedgewood, it was suddenly as if all the air had been removed from the world. He gulped like a fish drowning for lack of water. He was a long while getting breath enough for words, but his first words were wild demands that Mr. Wellington remove himself forthwith.

Wellington accepted the banishment with the sorrowful eyes of a dying deer, and tottered away wagging his fat head and wailing:

"I'm a broken-hearted man, and nobody gives a—." At this point he caromed over into Ira Lathrop's berth and was welcomed with a savage roar:

"What the devil's the matter with you?"

"I'm a broken-hearted man, that's all."

"Oh, is that all," Lathrop snapped, vanishing behind his newspaper. The desperately melancholy seeker for a word of human kindness bleared at the blurred newspaper wall a while, then waded into a new attempt at acquaintance. Laying his hand on Lathrop's knee, he stammered: "Esscushe me, Mr.—Mr—"

From behind the newspaper came a stingy answer: "Lathrop's my name—if you want to know."

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. Lothrop."

"Lathrop!"

"Lathrop! My name's Wellington. Li'l Jimmie Wellington. Ever hear of me?"

He waited with the genial smile of a famous man; the smile froze at Lathrop's curt, "Don't think so."

He tried again: "Ever hear of well-known Chicago belle, Mrs. Jimmie Wellington?"

"Yes, I've heard of her!" There was an ominous grin in the tone.

Wellington waved his hand with modest pride. "Well, I'm Jimmie."

"Serves you right."

This jolt was so discourteous that Wellington decided to protest: "Mister Latham!"

"Lathrop!"

The name came out with a whip-snap. He tried to echo it, "La-throp!"

"I don't like that Throp. That's a kind of a seasick name, isn't it?" Finding the newspaper still intervening between him and his prey, he calmly tore it down the middle and pushed through it like a moon coming through a cloud. "But a man can't change his name by marrying, can he? That's the worst of it. A woman can. Think of a heartless cobra di capello in woman's form wearing my fair name—and wearing it out. Mr. La-throp, did you ever put your trust in a false-hearted woman?"

"Never put my trust in anybody."

"Didn't you ever love a woman?"

"No!"

"Well, then, didn't you ever marry a woman?"

"Not one. I've had the measles and the mumps, but I've never had matrimony."

"Oh, lucky man," beamed Wellington. "Hang on to your luck."

"I intend to," said Lathrop, "I was born single and I like it."

"Oh, how I envy you! You see, Mrs. Wellington—she's a queen among women, mind you—a queen among women, but she has the 'stravagance of a—"

Lathrop had endured all he could endure, even from a privileged character like little Jimmy Wellington. He rose to take refuge in the smoking-room. But the very vigor of this departure only served to help Wellington to his feet, for he seized Lathrop's coat and hung on, through the door, down the little corridor, always explaining:

"Mrs. Wellington is a queen among women, mind you, but I can't stand her temper any longer."

He had hardly squeezed into the smoking-room when the porter and an usher almost invisible under the baggage they carried brought in a new passenger. Her first question was:

"Oh, porter, did a box of flowers, or candy, or anything, come for me?"

"What name would they be in, miss?"

"~~Mrs. Wellington~~—Mrs. James Wellington."

THE GIRL'S ROOM.

How the Business Woman May Fit Up a Den.

Blue is always lovely for a girl's room and combined with cheesecloth is pretty and clean looking. Stencil materials are reasonable, while the work amounts to almost nothing.

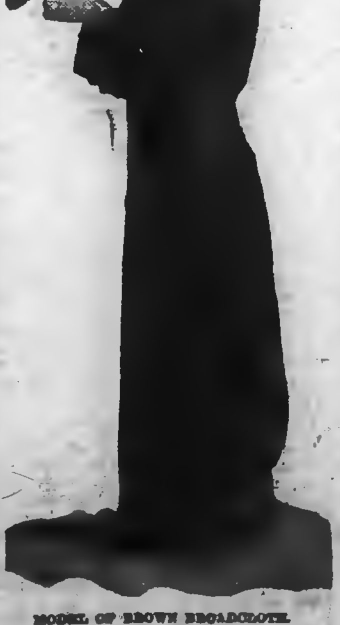
If blue and white have been chosen for the color scheme buy some Japanese toweling, cut it into lengths, hem it and use it for a few panels against the walls. Its bluebirds and flowers against the white background will be attractive with the curtains. It can be purchased for a few cents a yard.

If one has a couch instead of a bed there is the Japanese crape that could be used as a covering for it and a few extra pillows, which would go well with the rest of the room.

Of course if a girl enjoys sewing and it rests her, as it does some persons, she can make a great many attractive things for her room besides the sewing for herself which must be done. But for many it is hard after the day's work to accomplish anything beyond the mending and darning and renovating which are necessary if one is to remain trim and neat. Yet the time and thought would be well spent, for it gives a very real sense of independence and happiness to have an attractive room of her own.

A Delightfully Chic Suit.

No matter what the current style, a certain Parisian dressmaker manages to introduce into it her favorite pointed motif. The suit illustrated for fall wear is made of brown broadcloth, and the coat, fitted by two curious curved slot seams under the arms, hints at a slight outline of the figure.



MODEL OF BROWN BROADCLOTH.

The skirt has a slight pannier drapery, and the coat, in cutaway effect, follows the line of this drapery gracefully. The loose sleeve of the coat demands a long glove. The braiding on the suit is done with satin tubing.

Cookery Points

The School Lunch.

Sandwiches are the standby for the school lunch. Variety in the kinds of bread used is most desirable. Nearly every kind of meat is usable, and there are also the various pastes made from all sorts of scraps and leftovers in the meat line, put through the chopping machine and seasoned to suit the children's tastes. Cold chicken, roast beef, lamb, ham and even thin slices of beefsteak (wrapped in paraffin paper) help to add to the variety and are always acceptable. It is a good idea to save all the paper from the cracker boxes and use it to wrap the different articles in, so that they do not taste of one another.

A most delicious filling for graham sandwiches is made of cream cheese to which have been added some chopped nut meats, olives or a wee bit of green pepper. For another good filling take the yolks of hard boiled eggs, add pepper and salt and a tiny pinch of curry powder. Mix to a paste and spread rather thick. These may be varied by a little catsup or sauce of any kind instead of the curry.

Hard boiled eggs from which the yolks have been removed may be stuffed with spinach, seasoned to taste or with chopped nut meats, cold ham or celery dressed with either mayonnaise or French dressing. Another way is to stuff them with chipped ham mixed with a bit of the yolk and vinegar, pepper and salt, or just cheese and mayonnaise may be used.

Below are given the menus for a week's lunches, which could, however, be varied indefinitely:

Monday.—Bread and cheese sandwiches, sliced chicken (from Sunday's dinner), celery tips, nut and apple salad (in a glass bottle), piece of chocolate cake and an orange.

Tuesday.—Graham bread and cream cheese sandwiches, clam broth in a vacuum bottle, olives, sweet crackers, figs and an orange.

Wednesday.—Cold roast beef sandwiches (made of rolls), cabbage salad (in bottle), dates, a piece of cake and an apple.

Thursday.—Deviled meat sandwiches, baked apple or apple sauce (in bottle), salted or fresh peanuts, cookies, milk chocolate and an orange.

Friday.—Egg sandwiches (made from yolks), stuffed eggs (using one of the fillings suggested previously), chicken broth in the vacuum bottle, cracker tarts and an apple.

Potato Pancakes.

For three potatoes weighing about a half pound each allow two or three eggs, one-half cupful of milk, one level teaspoonful of salt and, if necessary, a very little flour.

Grate the potatoes (raw) in a pan of cold water, let stand a few minutes, then drain, put potatoes with the starch that remained at the bottom of the pan in a cheesecloth bag, squeeze out all water, then put back the potato with the other ingredients and fry the cakes as you would wheat cakes in hot lard.

Ginger Loaf.

Place in a bowl a cupful each of molasses and sour cream and mix into this two rounding cupfuls of flour sifted with two level teaspoonfuls of soda, the same of ginger and a little salt. Add a well beaten egg, mix thoroughly and bake.

Wash rice, mix ingredients and pour into buttered pudding dish. Bake three hours in very slow oven, stirring three times during first hour of baking to prevent rice from settling.

A Safe Prediction.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

PERTINENT DISCUSSION AT MURRAY ST. CHURCH

Yesterday, the pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, made an announcement of unusual interest. He stated that on Wednesday evening at the mid week service he would read a few sentences from Dr. Jowett's latest book and then have these sentences discussed by the audience. The point of special interest is the fact that the chapter referred to deals in Dr. Jowett's own strong style with such subjects as—

"The functions of a choir in a church."

"The relationship of the congregation to the choir."

"The minister's relations with the organist."

"The powers and weakness of ushers."

"The successes and failures of deacons, elders and stewards."

Mr. Webb will occupy but fifteen minutes in laying Dr. Jowett's utterances before the people, after which, organists and choir leaders from various churches will express their opinions as well as officers of the local and other churches. In fact, any one present is free to say any word which may tend to enrich the service of the Sanctuary.

The proposed evening will not only assure a very large audience, but will be exceedingly profitable to the whole community. The chapter referred to is one of the recent "Yale lectures."

ARCHDEACONRY OF PETERBOROUGH

Service in St. Luke's To-night Conference Opens To-morrow

The 15th annual conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, will commence this evening, with service in St. Luke's Church. Rev. Jas. E. Fenning is the preacher.

The first session will be held tomorrow, when subjects relating to the Church will be dealt with by visiting clergy.

Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, M.A., D. D. of Wycliffe College, will address a public meeting in the school hall, at 8 p.m. The conference continues on Wednesday.

SINCERITY UNITY AND CHRISTIANITY

Three Elements to Make the Home What it Should Be

"I care not how beautiful the statue may be; if it is not all it pretends to be, the wax will soon fall out and there stands the statue, a monument to its shame. We cannot be anything, at the peril of our own peace, but sincere."

These words Rev. J. R. Webb used last evening when speaking to sincerity as being one of three elements to make the home what it ought to be. The sermon was particularly for the young people.

The other two elements were unity and Christianity. The sermon was formful of warming and practical advice, and undoubtedly made an impression on the young people of the large congregation.

The young women who went about the streets, in tailor-made attire; visiting cards in hand; going from door to door, meeting people to talk of "my new maid," and a great many other things, would soon tire. Such as that would not bear the heat and struggle of the day.

"You haven't touched the fringe of it," said the preacher, in answer to the young man who had bought and furnished the home and provided his wife with everything of the best, and then thought he had done all.

"It is only when you enthrone the wife of your choice above every lodge, every baseball field, every temptation, and give her all the right due to her as your wife, that she has the opportunity of showing what a woman can be at the fireside.

"The source of the ideal home is God, and the home will lose its soul if it fails to keep in touch with the source from which it comes," was another point brought out by the preacher.

Following the sermon, Miss Clara Kidd sang "Beulah Land."

WHICH MOTORMAN WAS TO BLAME?

A funny incident occurred on George street as people were hurrying home from work. Two street cars, one a George street car and the other the C. G. E. car nearly collided on George street, because the motorman of each refused apparently to stop, although they could see each other gradually coming closer and closer. Finally the fenders of the two cars touched, and the excited motormen climbed out and commenced to argue as to who should retreat. It appeared to be a question of who had the right of way, as one of the two must have been running off schedule. The argument between the two continued while the passengers enjoyed the situation, judging from the laughter which followed.

Eventually, the George street motorman agreed to back up, and reversed the motor until his car reached the switch at Central Park.

The question upon which the controversy hinged, namely, who [illegible] running on schedule time was evidently unsettled.

THE VISION IS USELESS

Without Definite Relationship With Him—Bishop Sweeney at St John's

The dedication festival at St John's church yesterday was carried out with much enthusiasm. There were a large number of communicants at the two morning services. His Lordship the Bishop of the diocese, was the celebrant at 8 o'clock. The feature of this service was the dedication of the Communion service of the new South Peterborough church, which is of great beauty and design.

At 11 o'clock the rector preached and made special reference to the members of St. John's who were scattered through the Northwest and other parts of the world, but were not forgotten, and also to the departed who went to Paradise.

At 5 o'clock over one hundred and twenty men sat down at the Men's Fellowship tea, in the school house, to a substantial repast, prepared by Messrs. Coleman Bros., and provided for by the generosity of some ten men of the congregation. The schoolhouse was brightly decorated with bunting and flags, the kindness of Mr. A. W. Turner, which, with the many plants and flowers on the tables, presented a very pretty scene. There were representative members of all ranks of the congregation of St. John's. After the tea Canon Davidson, as chairman, referred briefly to former teas as a pet institution of St. John's held during the past eight years, and suggested that different men introduce the congregation to the Bishop by short, informal addresses. This was willingly responded to with bright contributions made from all sides on the work and aspirations of St John's. The speakers called for more workers in the parish and the demands of the church in the diocese and missionary field. Several of the speakers referred to the diocesan cathedral, hoping that it will receive strong support. Different verses of the brotherhood hymn, "Jesus Calls us o'er the Tumult," were sung between addresses, all of which expressed the appreciation of the presence of the Bishop. The bishop on rising, was received with prolonged applause. He thanked the congregation for their splendid reception, and said that he was already a convert to the idea of these fellowship teas, so strong was the impression made upon him. He had been greatly interested in the different remarks, and particularly to those of St. Alban's Cathedral. It was a privilege for him to meet the laity in this informal fashion, and he warmly congratulated St John's on possessing so large and enthusiastic a body of men.

At 7 o'clock the church was crowded, the whole front of the church being occupied by a body of men who had come in from the tea. The service was of the warmest and heartiest character imaginable. The sermon was a splendid effort by the Bishop of Toronto on the text, "What think ye of Christ." in which he followed up the teaching and inspiration of the evangelistic services. The vision of Christ, of which they had heard, was useless unless men came into some definite relationship with Him, and this implied a definite belief. In glowing language he pictured Christ as Saviour, Advocate and Friend, and appealed to all to realize that relationship which the splendid work of St John's had been carried on, extending over the greater part of a century, and commended the present, and other leaders of the congregation, who were well worthy of all support that could be given them. The influence of St. John's should be felt more and more in the community as greater Peterborough was evolved, and this required the strong and continued support of the whole congregation. Their opportunity was a great one, and he was glad as a bishop that they [illegible] making full use of it.

The offertory anthem, "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears from their Eyes," was sung exquisitely by the large choir of nearly fifty voices, as was the inspiring recessional hymn, "For All the Saints."

Afterwards, in the vestry, the bishop warmly congratulated Mr Devey and Miss Flowers upon the high standard of efficiency for which the choir was widely known.

A FORGOTTEN BURNS POEM

In It the Poet Hands His Lordship a Stinging Rebuke.

Dr. Samuel Johnson's letter to the Earl of Chesterfield, one of the classics of English literature, now has a companion piece in a recently discovered poem by Robert Burns, hitherto unpublished, says the New York World. The poem was found in the possession of Mrs. John Moffatt of St. Andrews, Scotland, and, as told in the preface by the poet, it was composed and presented to the nobleman addressed "upon being called up from the servants' hall, where he had been sent to dine along with them, to add to the entertainment of his company." The poet adds, "On presenting which he put on his hat, turned on his heel and retired."

There are thirty-one lines in the poem, the closing part of which is as follows:

I was not fit, it seems, to dine
With those fox hunting heroes fine,
But only came to bandy jests
Among your lordship's hopeful guests.
There must be here some sad mistake—
I would not play for such a stake,
Be a buffoon for drink and meat,
At a poor earl's tax paid seat!
No, die, my heart, ere such a shame
Descends on Robert Burns' name!

A FAMOUS WOMAN DETECTIVE.

Mrs. Goodwin of the New York Police a Real Sherlock Holmes.

In the Woman's Home Companion appears the following account of Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, the famous detective in New York city in connection with the police department:

"Here is a real Sherlock Holmes who has been instrumental in the capture of hundreds of lawbreakers without smoking a single pipeful of tobacco. She is Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, police matron, recently promoted to detective of the first grade on the New York city force with a salary of $2,250 a year in recognition of her services in procuring the capture of the "taxicab bandits," whose reckless exploits had startled the city. Mrs. Goodwin is a widow, forty-seven years old, the mother of three children, and her home life is as peacefully busy as that of any village housekeeper. Since the death of her husband, a roundsman on the police force, fifteen years ago, until her recent promotion Mrs. Goodwin served as a police matron, incidentally exercising her gifts as a detective in quietly gathering evidence against hundreds of dangerous frauds and quacks.

"Her elder son is a detective of the first grade, her sister is a department store detective, and her daughter also has already manifested ability in detective work. When the taxicab bandits, after robbing two bank messengers of $25,000, had seemingly baffled the police Mrs. Goodwin was enlisted in the case. By impersonating the sister of the landlady of a boarding house frequented by friends of the robbers she was enabled gradually to pick up information that was invaluable to the authorities in running down the criminals. It was this case that won her promotion and official standing as a detective, yet through her fifteen years of service she had already done an enormous amount of even more valuable though less sensational work in obtaining evidence against over 500 dangerous swindlers—astrologers, palmists, fortune tellers, crystal gazers, psychics, trance mediums, Hindu magicians, quack doctors and surgeons and others that in the large cities prey upon foolish people, almost unmolested because of the difficulty of proving that they actually violate the law."

The Word "Legion."

"Legion" was originally a word with a definite meaning. It meant approximately the same as our word "brigade," meaning a Roman regiment of 6,000 men or less. In the course of time it has become a figure of speech, intended to express the presence of a large number of persons. Perhaps "brigade" or "corps" will be similarly corrupted a thousand years from now.

What They Do With Wood in Germany

In Germany, says the Scientific American, wood is too expensive to be burned, and it is made into artificial silk worth $2 a pound and bristles worth $4 a pound, into paper, yarn, twine, carpet, canvas and cloth. From sawdust parquetry flooring is made. The materials for this may be bought by the pound and then mixed so that the householder can lay his own hardwood floors according to his individual taste and ingenuity.

Wrecked by Locusts.

A Spanish aviator nearly lost his life by colliding with a swarm of locusts. He was flying at a height of sixty feet when he ran into the swarm, which so blinded him that he lost control of the machine and fell to the ground. It was regarded as remarkable that he escaped without injuries.

SELECT THE SEED POTATOES

It is a common impression among potato growers that where any variety is grown year after year on the same farm, the potatoes gradually diminish in size and in production per acre, or as it is often described they "run out." As a matter of common observation, this is true, and an attempt is made to remedy the difficulty by securing seed potatoes from a distant source, often from seed merchants, at fancy prices. A few, however, are beginning to realize that the cause is not so much in the variety of potatoes as it is in the variety of farmer.

The quality of any crop depends largely upon the quality of seed sown. If we plant potatoes with deep eyes, we may expect a crop of deep-eyed potatoes. If we plant potatoes with "knuckles," or secondary growths upon them, or potatoes that are ill-shapen, we may expect to harvest a crop of the same description. A miscellaneous collection of large and small tubers with varying shapes will likewise produce their own kinds. It therefore depends primarily upon the farmer, whether the potatoes deteriorate or improve. It is the purpose of each kind of plants, you will likely see the reason for some of them turning yellow. On the dark green plants, if you will examine the roots you will find a number of little nodules which look like warts. These growths contain the bacteria which secure the nitrogen element from the air. On the roots of the plants turned yellow, you will likely find very few, not enough to keep it looking healthy.

Had the seed been treated with nitro culture when sown, or earth from an alfalfa field been sown when the seed was put in, it isn't likely that you would have had so many unhealthy looking plants. In seeding a new piece with alfalfa, get some inoculated soil from one of the Experimental Farms and sow on the land. Such soil may be obtained through G. H. Hutton, Lacombe, Alta., or H. Fairfield, Lethbridge, Alta.—T. G. R.

SOME DRASTIC MARRIAGE RULES

The Kind of Orders They Issue In Autocratic Russia.

One of the earliest and most stringent of the service regulations devised by General Sevastianoff, director of the department of posts and telegraphs in Russia for the last fifteen years, ordains that any male or female clerk in the combined services desiring to marry must choose his or her consort from among the postal or telegraphic personnel under the penalty of dismissal and loss of pension.

The Woman's Rights league is now endeavoring to procure the abrogation of this obnoxious and oppressively coercive regulation. Quite recently a male telegraphist was, for some slight delinquency, dismissed from the service. This involved the necessity of his wife, also a telegraph operator, sending in her resignation, despite her long service and excellent record. The poor woman, without means and with three small children to support, appealed to General Sevastianoff for reinstatement. She was briefly informed that before her appeal could be considered she must divorce her husband.

The director of state telephones, M. Semenovich, is still more drastic with regard to marriage among his employees. His very numerous staff consists entirely of women, who have no departmental confreres with whom to mate. Once a female telephonist announces her intention to marry she instantly receives her conge, with loss of pension. It is scarcely surprising to learn that, as a rule, the telephone girl keeps the secret of her intended marriage until the eve of her nuptials. M. Semenovich is, rightly or wrongly, credited with the enunciation of the amiable opinion that all young women entering the civil services as a career should be subjected to a signed pledge of celibacy.—New York Press.

NO UNION OF THE OCEANS.

Atlantic and Pacific Waters Will Not Meet In Panama Canal.

"When the waters of the two oceans are blended in the soil of Panama," exclaimed Secretary Knox in the speech inaugurating his notable mission to the Central American republics—and proceeded to develop with much eloquence the commercial and political transformations that are bound to follow the opening of the canal. "At no distant time," ran the answering phrase of the Panama cabinet minister who spoke on the occasion, "the deep, blue waters of the Atlantic and Pacific will be united for all eternity!"

The cold, unimaginative fact is that the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific will not meet nor be blended in the Panama canal.

The Panama canal is a water bridge over the isthmus—not a channel through it. A ship steams into Limon bay, on the Atlantic side, and comes to a stop in a lock, the first of three locks, by which she is lifted to the level of a fresh water lake, eighty-five feet above the sea. She leaves the water of the Atlantic behind her, and she sails through the lake. Then three locks more lower her to the level of the Pacific and to the salt water.—William Bayard Hale in World's Work.

Seats Which Make Rafts.

News comes from England that seats are being prepared for placing on board White Star liners which can at a moment's notice be transformed into rafts. Each of these seats measures nine feet in length and is provided with four metal air cases. One person can instantly change a seat into a life saving raft by lifting up the front portion and opening it out flat, in which position it immediately locks itself. The seats are secured to the deck by means of a lashing over a hooked hinge pin at each end, and should the deck become submerged the front portion of the seat floats upward, turns the hook around and tips off the lashing, and so automatically turns itself into a raft ready for use.—Shipping Illustrated.

The Alaska-Canada Survey.

Since the summer of 1909 the joint commission appointed by the United States and Canadian governments to mark the boundary line seperating British territory from Alaska has been actively engaged in this work, pushing the line northward from the Yukon to Porcupine river by the end of the 1910 season. In the summer of 1911 the field operations were advanced farther along that part of the one hundred and forty-first meridian which extends from Porcupine river to the Arctic ocean, and it is believed that the present year will witness the completion of this part of the survey.—New York Sun.

THEATRICAL

The Trail of the Lonesome Pine

When John Fox, Jr., the author of "The Little Shephard of Kingdom Come," wrote his later work, the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," this latter book was hailed as the author's finest and best work. The book sold by the hundreds of thousands. Eugene Walter, whose success, "Paid in Full," was then in the making, read the book, and saw the wonderful opportunity it offered for the drama. Hence the book was dramatized. The presentation at the Grand Opera House was an opportunity.

The work is well done. The original novel has about it and throughout it an odor of the pine woods, the fresh, high, clear mountain spirit. June, the heroine, is a fine characterization, while the mountain men, the feudists, are drawn true to the life as it exists to-day in the Kentucky mountains.

Miss Isabelle Lowe, plays the part of June most acceptably and faithfully. Perhaps her dress in the first act is a little better than might have been expected on the part of a barefoot mountain girl, but that, after all, is cavilling. Her accent is splendid. Noah Berry, as her father, plays a fine character part, and the same may be said of Thomas V. Morrison's Dave, her cousin and mountain lover.

The two mountain lovers, Loretty and Cal, played by Miss Abbot and Barrett Greenwood, were fine. Their costume, their dialect, their mountain awkwardness, were convincingly photographic of the life, even to those who knew it only through literature. In fact, the whole play, as one might expect from a combination of John Fox, Jr., and Eugene Walter, is extremely able. Moreover the play preserves the original pine-wood sweetness of the novel.

HUMAN FEELINGS, "HUMAN HEARTS"

Till we have reflected on it, we are scarcely aware how much the sum of Human Happiness is indebted to the stage. We acquire cheerfulness and vigor from mere association with our fellow men in the Theatre, and from the looks of happy expectancy radiating from our neighbor's countenance inspired by anticipation of prospective enjoyment of good, clean, wholesome drama, well acted and properly presented.

Such, at least, is the idea brought forcibly to mind in gazing over an audience assembled to witness "Human Hearts" aptly described as the "Forever Evergreen Success." "Human Hearts" is a play that invariably appeals to all that is best in man's nature and uplifts him from the sordid cares and petty worries of daily toil and trouble. The story of "Human Hearts" is clean, wholesome and intelligible to everyone. There is no suggestion of vulgarity in any of its acts, but a story of convincing strength is told by the author in a manner that appeals irresistably to all classes of theatre-goers.

The great success of "Human Hearts" is made possible by its interesting story of humanity and human feelings and the skillful manner in which it is told. It touches our heart strings, arouses our latent better instincts and makes us feel kinder towards our fellow men for having witnessed it.

"Human Hearts" will be presented this season with an especially strong company of players, and the same fidelity to scenic and mechanical detail that made its former visit notable. The engagement is for one night, Friday, Nov. 8th. 1d

MUSICALE AT CONSERVATORY

The second "Twilight Musicale" of the season almost filled the Conservatory Music Hall on Saturday afternoon, where a program of exceptional merit was supplied by the Conservatory Orchestra, Miss Ida Sanderson, contralto soloist; and Mr. Harold Cluxton, reader.

The opening number, "Songs of Ireland" rendered by the orchestra was a decided hit. Some remarkably tuneful and melodious passages run through the series and these were most effectively brought out.

Miss Sanderson followed with a solo "Rock-a-by," which proved most acceptable for her rich sympathetic voice. The violin obligato for this selection was played by Mr. Wm. Wilson.

Selections by the orchestra, from "William Tell" and the musical operetta "H. M. S. Pinafore," were enthusiastically received. This was also true of two readings from Drummond by Mr. Harold Cluxton, who displayed fine ability in speaking the patois of the French as found in Drummond's popular works.

Miss McKee presided at the piano in her usual capable manner.

Rev. F. J. Sawers, M.A., announced the various numbers as they were performed.

The Conservatory orchestra was under the leadership of Mr. Gliddon.

"My sister's baby's goin' to be waxinated, sir," replied Jones. "And what has that to do with you?" "She's my sister, d'ye see, sir?" exclaimed Jones, with a hurt look. "What, the baby?" "No, sir. The baby's sister's my brother—I mean, I'm the mother's baby—er—the father's my mother—no—I mean"— "You mean!" broke in the commanding officer angrily. "What do they want you for, that's the point?" "P-p-please, sir," stuttered Jones, "they want m-m-me t-to stand as godmother."—Argonaut.

Appeal For Alms at Wedding.

There are many customs associated with the French wedding which American brides might copy. One concerns the duties of the maids of honor. An American who attended a fashionable wedding in the Madeleine, in Paris, recently was impressed with the following little ceremony: The maids passed through the assembly of guests making a silent appeal for alms for the poor. At a wedding where no money had been spared and untold extravagance exhibited no one could begrudge the offering of silver expected to be dropped into the dainty "aumoniere," or receptacle of filmy lace, ribbon and flowers, which, when not in use, was hung on the arms in lieu of a bouquet.—New York Sun.

London's First Balloon Ascent.

When Lunardi made the first balloon ascent from London in 1784 he had for fellow passengers a cat, a dog and a pigeon. Such was the excitement caused by this ascent that a jury, deliberating on the fate of a criminal, returned a hasty verdict of acquittal in order not to miss the spectacle, while King George III. broke up a meeting of his council to watch the progress of the balloon. It was in the following year, 1785, that an adventurous Dublin undergraduate, Mr. Maguire, made a balloon ascent and was actually knighted by the lord lieutenant for his courage.

FRENCHMAN TOOK REVENGE ON REFEREE'S MEGAPHONE

LeMarin Lost First Fall to Cazeaux by Foul, but Parisian Won Out

A Peterborough man witnessed the interesting struggle between the two wrestlers most prominently before the public, viz, Le Marin, the Belgian champion, and Cazeaux, the champion of France. These men met recently at Montreal, and after a desperate struggle, the Belgian won.

At Ottawa an immense crowd assembled to witness the bout. Le Marin is a sturdily built man, but very skilful and confident, and quick as a flash. Cazeaux is not so powerfully built, but is evidently of considerable strength and a past master of the art.

CAZEAUX KICKED.

After three-quarters of an hour's struggle, of the fiercest kind, and without a moment's rest, the Frenchman took offence at the Belgian and kicked at him, but in a very quiet and inoffensive manner. It must be borne in mind that in France boxers are allowed to kick above the belt. This probably has interfered with the French champion in his wrestling.

The Frenchman repeatedly got the double-nelson, but each time was swung over the Belgian's head, but to do his best the latter could not press more than one of the Frenchman's shoulders to the mat.

The first bout was awarded to the Belgian on a foul, on account of the kick. To the spectators this seemed injustice and a straining of the rules, as the kick would not have hurt a kitten, but it shows how strictly the rules of fair play are carried out in these matters.

Wrestlers' earning powers depend on their winning, and this prevents frame-ups in the case of prominent wrestlers. It never pays to throw a match unless the betting is easy, and this it never is. The two wrestlers were a lather of perspiration, but their vigor, speed and stamina never lessened for one moment. Hammerlocks, scissors and other holds were carefully avoided by each man, and whenever a dangerous hold was obtained, the other man would spin out.

These two giants threw each other about as two boys would. The Belgian weighed probably 249 pounds; Cazeaux would likely be about 210 pounds.

FRENCHMAN WAS ANGRY.

The Frenchman was very angry at the loss of the bout on a foul, and repeatedly challenged the spectators to fight, although he had many sympathizers. In the midst of an argument with the referee, he seized the official's megaphone and dashed it to pieces. The referee compelled him to pick it up, and this made him wilder than ever.

Shortly after the second period began, it was discovered that Cazeaux was wearing boots with raised heels which is against the regulation. Le Marin was wearing the regulation shoes. Referee Davy ordered Cazeaux to remove his footgear, and after a lot of gesticulation the Frenchman complied and finished the bout in his bare feet.

Le Marin got the second fall in 18 minutes. For the greater part of the period the men rolled about the mat, locked in a vice-like embrace, only twice breaking free. Then Cazeaux seemed to have the advantage, but twisting free, Le Marin sprang up, and as his rival rushed at him, ducked and Cazeaux turned a complete somersault over Le Marin's neck. In a moment Le Marin was on him and had his shoulders pinned fairly to the mat.

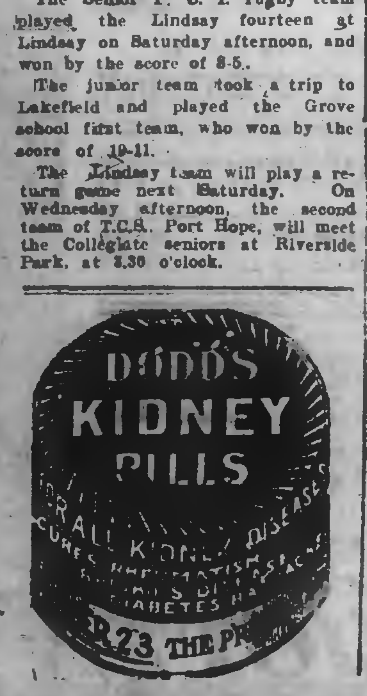
SENIORS WON JUNIORS LOST

First Team From Collegiate Won in Rugby at Lindsay

The Senior P. C. I. rugby team played the Lindsay fourteen at Lindsay on Saturday afternoon, and won by the score of 8-5.

The junior team took a trip to Lakefield and played the Grove school first team, who won by the score of 19-11.

The Lindsay team will play a return game next Saturday. On Wednesday afternoon, the second team of T.C.S. Port Hope, will meet the Collegiate seniors at Riverside Park, at 3.30 o'clock.



SPORTING GOSSIP

Frank Chance is now mentioned for the leadership of the New York American League team.

The New York horse show takes place November 18 to 23. Many Canadian and English horses will be entered.

Sam Lichtenhein has become the real Balkan war cloud of the hockey world. Father Stanton intends to inquire of the Wanderer president if it will be all right to enter the Ottawa section of the Interprovincial Union.

Stanislaus Zyszko has issued his annual challenge to Frank Gotch. He seems determined to land the world's heavyweight wrestling honors.

Iron Man Joe McGinnity has offers from Montreal and Detroit, but may succeed Frank Shaughnessy at the head of the Fort Wayne Club of the Central Ball League.

President Fogel now denies that he intends to sell his interests in the Philadelphia Baseball Club.

Louis Kilonis, the Greek wrestler has enlisted to fight against the Turks and is now on hi away to the seat of war. Kilonis went with 60 other New York men.

McGill will take a great crowd of supporters to Kingston to-night for their match against Queen's. Look out, Shaughnessy. It looks as if McGill had succeeded Ottawa as the Intercollegiate "goat."

Y.M.C.A. SPORTS

In an exhibition basketball game Saturday night, the intermediates defeated the junior Collegiates 22—12.

In the Junior Class League Green's defeated Thompson's by 10—66, and Gumpricht won from Eagle by 10—4.

NAMES FOR WARSHIPS.

How the Admiralty Selects Cognomens For Big Fighting Machines.

No small amount of interest has been aroused by the announcement that Mr. Winston Churchill has decided that the names for the twenty new destroyers ordered for the navy shall be taken from the works of Sir Walter Scott and Shakespeare. Florizel, Ivanhoe, Waverley, Rob Roy, Portia, Hotspur, Orlando, Rosalind, and Viola are some of the names which have been chosen for the new fighting ships.

This is quite a modern innovation, although the action of the First Lord of the Admiralty in choosing literary names for warships is not entirely unprecedented. About the middle of last century there were some revenue vessels called Rob Roy and the Lady of the Lake, while a century ago one or two Shakespeare names were used, such as Imogene and Orlando. These, however, seem to be the only occasions when literary names were used for warships.

The naming of our men-of-war rests with the First Lord of the Admiralty, although in some administrations it has been left to the controller; and there have been times when the whole board has pronounced upon it. Finally, says The Times, the selection has to be sanctioned and approved by the King.

Occasionally the First Lord has indulged in some peculiar fancies when choosing names for war vessels, and there was one administrator who called a number of small craft after his pack of hounds, and the names of Bouncer, Pincher, Boxer, Tickler, and the like have come down to us in consequence.

Some particularly interesting facts regarding ships' names are given by Prince Louis of Battenberg in his book, published some time ago, entitled "Men-of-War Names." It appears that nearly all names in the present navy list have a long record of past services. There have been eight Dreadnoughts, for instance, since 1573. This was one of the compound Elizabethan ship names; but the Dreadnought is not the oldest name. The oldest ship name in the navy list is the Queen, and there have been five Queens since 1232. This ancient name was revived in 1900 in honor of Queen Victoria, but the battleship destined to bear the name was not actually laid down until two months after the venerable monarch had passed away.

Regarding the most popular names for warships, it is mentioned that there have been ten Cygnets and a similar number of Drakes. But the name which has been most frequently used is the Swift, for there have been sixteen Swifts since 1552. There have also been eleven Eagles, eleven Falcons, twelve Foxes, and thirteen Hawks.

Modern surnames do not appear very frequently in the list, but at least one Chancellor of the Exchequer in modern times has been honored in this direction. This was the late Rt. Hon. Hugh Childers, who had a warship named after him. Mr. Childers, who died in 1896, went to Australia in 1850, and was a prominent member of the Victorian Government. After he came to England he held the offices of First Lord of the Admiralty, Secretary for War, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Home Secretary. Lord Lansdowne gives his name to a Canadian war vessel, as does also Lady Laurier.

Luxurious Church Pews.

A good Wilberforce story is told by Rev. P. H. Ditchfield in "The Old English Country Squire." In the old days the average squire believed in taking his religion easily and comfortably, and his pew was often the most luxurious in the parish. Mr. Ditchfield describes it as "a cosy, sleep-provoking structure, curtained off, wherein was often a special fireplace, the pew being furnished like a drawing-room. If the clergyman was rather too long preaching his sermon, the squire would poke the fire somewhat impatiently and vigorously. It is reported that sherry and biscuits were sometimes served by a livery servant, and that the squire used to have his letters and newspapers delivered to him in his pew, and to read them during the sermon.

"When Bishop Wilberforce was shown a luxurious squire's pew, with a special fireplace, armchairs, and 'every convenience,' and when the clerk asked if the bishop could suggest any improvement, or the addition of any furniture, Wilberforce quietly whispered to the clergyman by his side, 'A card table!'"

A Black Eye.

A badgering lawyer was examining a doctor in an assault case. The solicitor represented the defence, and the doctor testified that he treated the prosecutor for a black eye. "What do you mean by a black eye?" queried the legal gentleman. "I mean," said the doctor without a smile, "that the prosecutor had received a severe contusion over the lower portion of the frontal bone, producing extensive echymosis around the eye, together with considerable infiltration of the subjacent areolar tissue." The medical witness was relieved from further cross-examination.

A Statesman.

At a meeting of a woman suffrage organization in Kansas City, Kan., it was suggested that the members talk to their servants and other women workers with a view to forming an estimate as to the strength of suffrage sentiment in that particular locality. One member, who has employed the same washerwoman for the last six years, reported that she put the question to this worthy lady.

"Are you in favor of votes for women?" the suffrage woman asked.

"I don't pay attention to politics," the washerwoman replied. "I leave all that to my husband."

"Well, how does your husband stand on woman suffrage?"

"He don't stand at all. He believes in women staying at home and minding their own business."

"How many families do you wash for?"

"Six."

"And what does your husband do, Mary?"

"He ain't doing anything right now—unless he found something this morning."—Kansas City Times.

MAKING HIS POINT.

It is to Be Hoped That the Charity Promoter Saw It.

The correspondence was brief, but to the point. The letter she received was as follows:

"Dear Madam—We take pleasure in shipping to your address this fine Persian rug, for which we shall be glad to receive your check. If you do not desire the rug, please return it. Very truly yours, etc."

"I never heard of such impertinence!" cried the lady. "The idea!" And she replied as follows:

"Dear Sirs—I have ordered no rug from your store, and I see no reason why I should go to the expense of returning a thing I don't want and which was sent to me unsolicited. Respectfully yours, etc."

In due time she received this communication:

"Dear Madam—I am sending for that unsolicited rug. Will you return the favor and send for the unsolicited charity entertainment tickets? Twenty-four lie on my desk."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"'No, sir!' the boss answered, striking himself upon the chest. 'No, sir! I'm a freeborn American citizen, and I'll sell my support to no man.'

"'But,' said the millionaire blandly as he drew out his check book and fountain pen—'but, if you won't sell me your support, perhaps you'll rent it to me for the term of this campaign?'

Fish in the Sea of Galilee.

Bible students may be interested to know that there is still good fishing in the sea of Galilee. Dr. Ernest W. Gurney Masterman, who has practiced medicine in Galilee, made a special study of the fishes found there and in a recent book says that he found forty-three varieties, twice as many as can be found in the British Isles. The fishermen are taxed a fifth of the value of the fish caught, the revenue going partly to the sultan and partly to a pasha in Damascus.

Dear Sir,
I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

CRAVATH WINS

A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T. McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of stonemason that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

Next the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful woman, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

Taking another tack, the Blaylows endeavor to have the real pistol stolen by a Swedish butler, whom they "plant" in Cravath's home, but the plot is discovered, barely in time.

A cleverer plot is next hatched. Cravath is requested to show the curious old pistol to an antiquarian friend who has been hurt in an automobile accident and cannot leave his house. When Cravath lays it on a table, there is a mysterious upset, the antiquarian is bowled over and the pistol is gone. Again Cravath and Scanlon suspect that a butler has been subsidized. They force him to admit it, and get the pistol from young Blaylow, who has taken it and hidden in a recess behind a Venetian panel.

VII.—The Adventure of the Lonely House

ON THE evening of the seventh day I also dined with Cravath, and during the course of the meal he seemed more than usually light hearted. Finally, I inquired as to the cause.

He considered a little and then began to smile.

"I hadn't known that I was in noticeable spirits," said he. "But, since you mention it, I realize that I am. And, I suppose, my mother is the cause of it."

"Your mother?" said I.

He nodded.

"I am just like the little boy we all know—made happy by the return of my mother," said he.

"Oh, she has returned then?"

He shook his head.

"Not here. But she is now with some friends at Croyden Park."

He took out a letter.

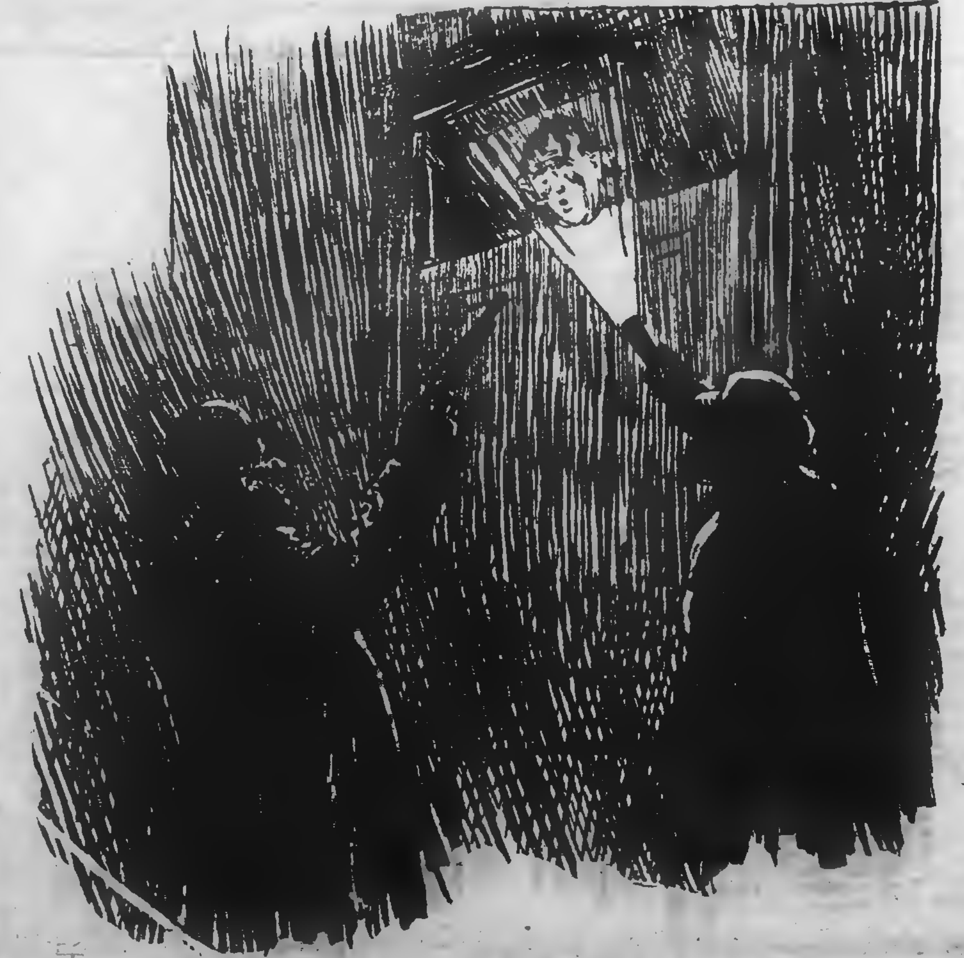
"I got this this morning," said he, and then read:

"Croyden Park.

"My Dear James—I had been no more than two days with Amy when I had a letter from poor little Mary Croyden. Her husband has been called away—to Mexico this time—to look into some mining interests, and she was, except for the servants, alone in this great house. So I packed at once and came to her. I shall be here for a week, perhaps. Run up and see us, there's a good boy."

"Croyden Park, eh?" said I. "I've heard of that place."

"About three miles beyond the city line," said Cravath. "The Croydens own the whole section—the town, the farms and everything about them, from the churches to the blacksmith shop. And they are all models of their kind, as modern and as scientific as they can stick."



"Cravath produced the Betterton flintlock and pointed it at his head"

"That is a very excellent thing to do with surplus money," said I. "Somehow, I admire these efforts at improved living and working. They are the sanest notes of the time. I would like to see Croyden Park."

"Well," said he, "I suppose, then, we had better postpone our little run up there until tomorrow."

"Had we meant to go tonight?" I asked.

"We had. You see, I was anxious to see my mother; also, I was anxious to have her see you."

"Then we shall go tonight," decided I. "My view of Croyden Park by day can wait."

"Good enough," said he.

All the way on the train he talked about his mother with the enthusiasm of a lover; when we left the coach at Croyden Park Station he still held to the subject devotedly. The station was a beautiful little place of brick, stone and tile; the roads leading to it were lighted by incandescent lights. There was a public carryall awaiting business, but Cravath said:

"The house is only twenty minutes away and the road is of wood blocks. Let's walk."

This suggestion pleased me, for the night was a brisk, enlivening one.

"I have been here only once before," said my friend, as we started off, "but I know that the house stands back some distance from the road among a growth of trees. It's only about ten years old, but its surroundings make it look a hundred."

The fine road seemed to spring under our feet; the lights along the road sparkled like stars; never did I swing along with greater enjoyment, never did I feel more confident or thoroughly at ease. And then I was spilled from the heights.

"I wish," said Cravath, "that the old-time craftsmen had put less material in their productions."

"Why?" I asked, with comfortable curiosity.

"Because," said he, "this confounded pistol wouldn't be so hard to carry."

I stopped in my tracks, appalled and clammy.

"Have you the pistol with you?" I asked.

"Yes," replied he, easily.

I was still casting about for a remark of sufficient strength to cover the situation when I heard a chuckle; we both turned, and a few paces away, under the rays of one of the lamps, we beheld a man.

"Hello," said I, startled.

He nodded, with a wide smile, his elbows upon a low stone wall and his lean chin resting in his palms.

"Nice night, ain't it?" said he.

"I guess it'll do," I replied.

We approached him and he stood erect. He was very tall and very lean; his face was long, like that of a horse, and his ears stood out from a small round head.

"Sort of browsing around, eh?" said I. This was meant to be a lead that would draw a counter; but he merely replied:

"Yes." And then he smiled with much content.

"Work hereabouts, I suppose?" suggested I.

He nodded.

"I do a little now and then," chuckled he. "Not a great deal, but a little."

The attitude of the stranger was an aggravation; what my further procedure would have been is a problem; but Cravath plucked me by the sleeve.

"How far is it to Mrs. Croyden's?" asked he.

"A little more than half a mile," replied the man, nodding his head and smiling at the top of his bent.

"Thank you," said Cravath; and with his hand still upon my arm we went on our way. When we got out of earshot, I said:

"There is a gentleman who is properly mysterious, and he also possesses the dramatic instinct in no small degree. He selected the time and place with a practiced judgment."

"Seemed a bit like an idiot to me," said Cravath. "But," and I noticed a surprised side glance at me, "why so short of temper? I detected in your tone a something which the lady novelists of another day called asperity."

"It is a weak word," said I, "and does scant justice to my feelings."

"I may be wrong," said he, "but I think I detect something personal in both your bearing and your voice."

"You are not wrong," I assured him. "There is quite a bit of personal feeling stored away within me. The plain fact of the matter is that if you were some years younger I would spank you."

"Why?"

"In the face of all that has gone before, you place that which is most valuable to you in danger. The events of the last half dozen days and nights have apparently taught you nothing. Once again you stand upon the verge of an experience; and once again the Betterton pistol is in a position to be grabbed at by the first enterprising crook that happens along."

"Dear friend," said Cravath, soothingly, "the adventures which we have shared have made you unduly nervous. Brace up! There is no danger at all. We are only going to call on my mother."

"Last night there was no danger either, I suppose. Then we only went to call on your old, old friend, the professor. But you know what happened."

He seemed rather impressed by this. However, he still scouted all notion of danger.

"Last night's affair," said he, "was planned by a parcel of rascals."

"And tonight's may have been arranged by worse. That fellow back there by the wall promises well; did you notice the pleasure he got out of the mere sight of us? His chuckle, when you answered my question about the pistol, held as much information for me as a book."

"It is a fine thing," said Cravath, "to have a friend who has one's interests so at heart. But in this you have been carried away by your feelings. The thing is impossible; for how could that fellow have been aware that I was to visit my mother tonight?"

"If your mother had written you, I'd say that, too," said I.

I heard him catch his breath at this and felt triumphant.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Your mother had nothing to do with the letter asking you to come out here tonight," I told him. "It's another frame-up."

There was a distinct pause, and then Cravath laughed.

"You have a singularly inventive mind," said he, "and if I were not quite sure as to the handwriting of the note I might be a little disturbed."

"You are quite sure of that, then?"

"I am positive. There can be no mistake."

This was a flush hit dealt my suspicions, but I was not entirely bereft of a subject for discussion.

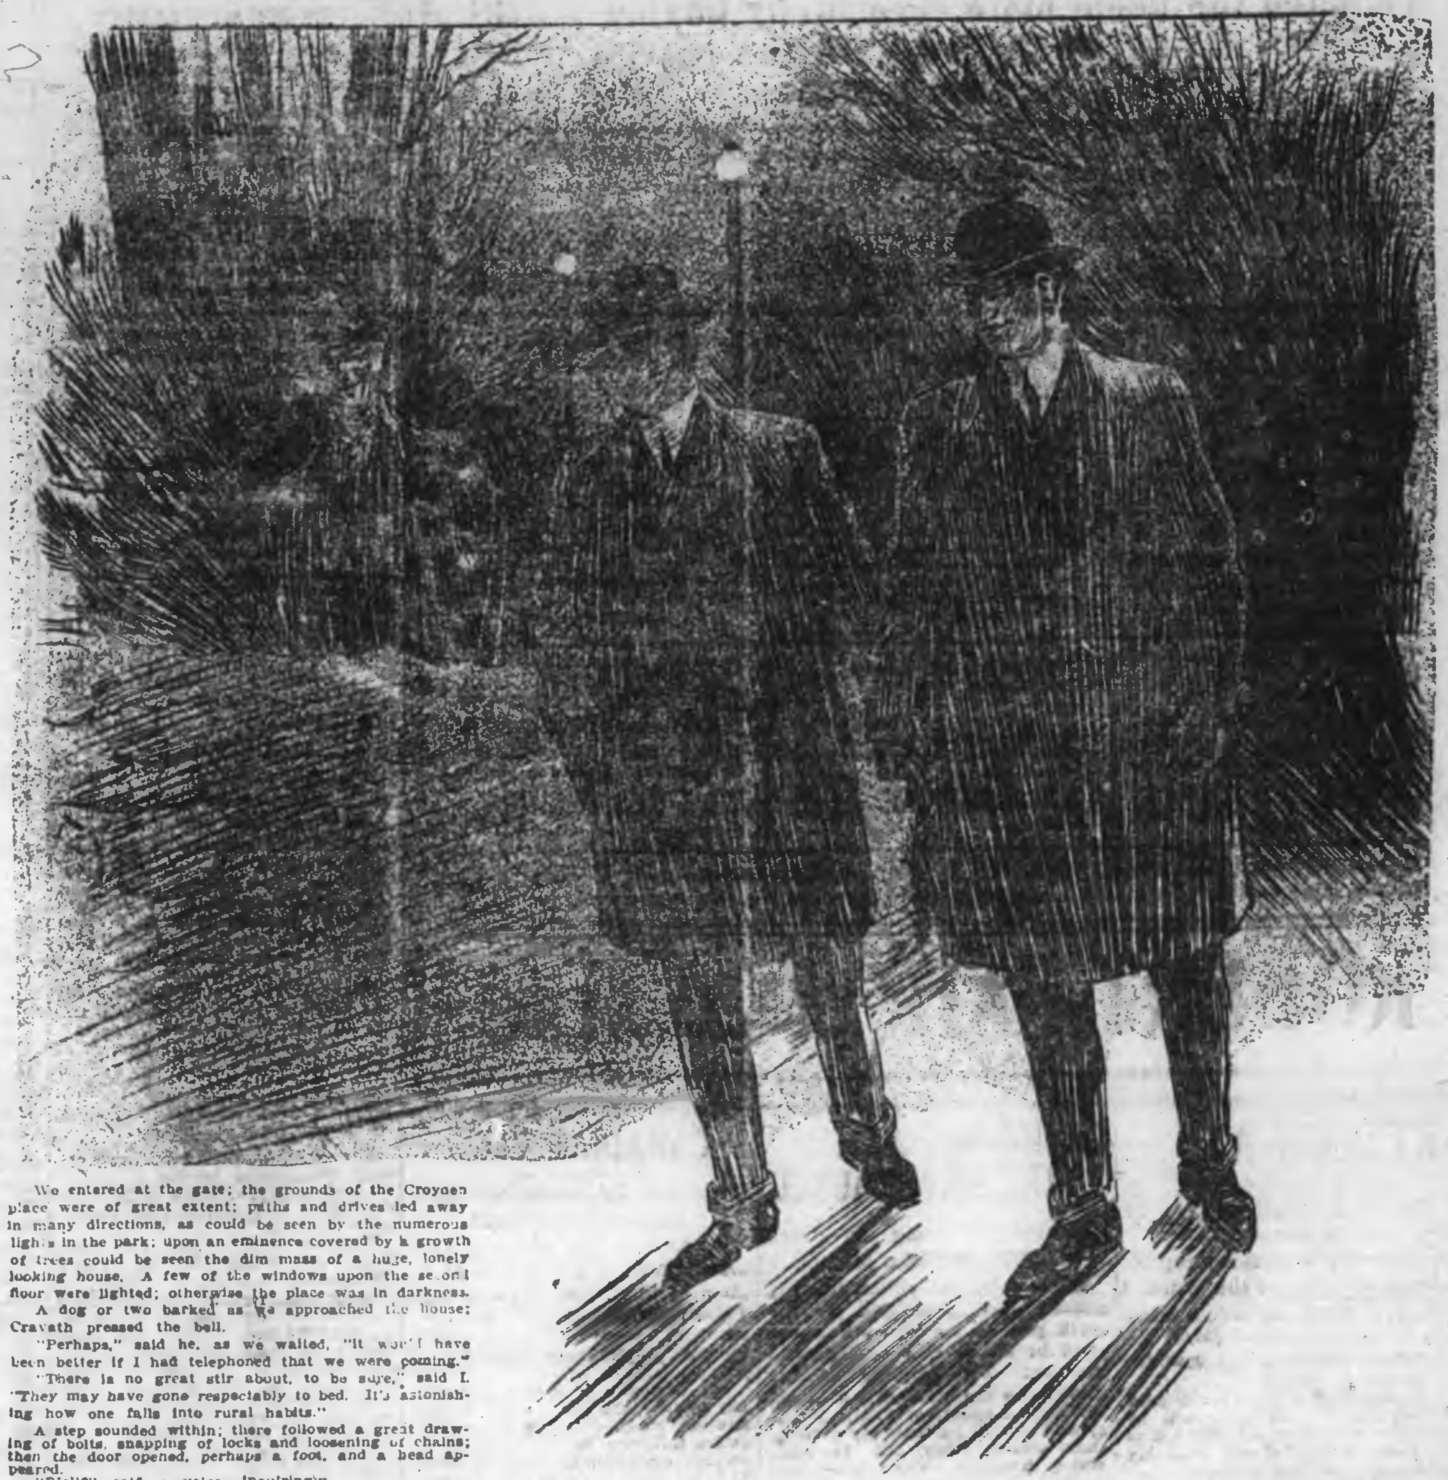
"Let us say that you are right, though I am far from being convinced," said I. "What excuse is the genuineness of the note for your lugging the Betterton flintlock out here with you?"

"None at all," said Cravath. "The note has nothing to do with it. I can explain my having the weapon with me by saying that the struggle for its possession has grown so acute that I no longer trust it out of my reach. I now carry it with me wherever I go."

"Oh," said I, "I see."

A few moments later, while I was still pondering the above, we came to a huge iron gate set in the wall.

"Here we are," said Cravath. "And," pointing, "there is the house up there upon the hill."



"'There is a gentleman who is properly mysterious'"

We entered at the gate; the grounds of the Croyden place were of great extent; paths and drives led away in many directions, as could be seen by the numerous lights in the park; upon an eminence covered by a growth of trees could be seen the dim mass of a huge, lonely looking house. A few of the windows upon the second floor were lighted; otherwise the place was in darkness.

A dog or two barked as we approached the house; Cravath pressed the bell.

"Perhaps," said he, as we waited, "it won't have been better if I had telephoned that we were coming."

"There is no great stir about, to be sure," said I. "They may have gone respectably to bed. It's astonishing how one falls into rural habits."

A step sounded within; there followed a great drawing of bolts, snapping of locks and loosening of chains; then the door opened, perhaps a foot, and a head appeared.

"Well?" said a voice, inquiringly.

"This is Mrs. Croyden's?" asked Cravath.

"It is," said the voice, and there was an accompanying chuckle that had so familiar a sound that my quieted doubts arose all but full armed and quivering. Before another word could be spoken I produced a match and scratched it upon the wall and held it toward the man. Cravath and I recognized the long face, the small head and protruding ears, simultaneously.

"Hello," said Cravath, astonished. "It's you, is it?"

The long-faced man grinned widely and nodded his head through the opening.

"Yes," said he, "it's me."

Then he seemed to wag his lean chin in enjoyment of the situation, while he eyed us quizzically. As he showed no disposition to take the chain off the door, Cravath requested:

"Will you please say to Mrs. Croyden that I am here?"

The man withdrew his head for a moment. To this day I am not quite sure, but I fancied that I heard him whisper to some one who stood with him in the hall. Then came the chinking of the chain and the door swung wide.

"Will you step in?" asked the tall man. We did so. He locked the door elaborately, then started along the hall. "If you will be so good as to follow me, gentlemen," said he, "I'll make you comfortable."

Did I notice him leering at us out of the corner of his eye as he cast a glance at us over his shoulder? Perhaps it was imagination; but, at any rate, that is what I thought I saw, and the sight did not please me. I nudged Cravath.

"I'm liking that fellow less every minute," I told him in a whisper. "There is something about him that arouses my resentment."

He grinned.

"You have a specially well-oiled imagination," he informed me, in the same low tone. "You ought to be in something having to do with finance."

"Call it what you like," said I as we climbed the stairs after the man, "the fact remains that it is there. If I followed my inclinations at this moment I'd take these steps three at a time, get that fellow by the neck and make him tell all about it."

"All about what?" asked Cravath.

"Just wait a little," I replied. "You'll see."

The long-faced man opened a door on the second floor.

"If you will step in here," said he, "I will speak to Mrs. Croyden."

The room was dark, save for what light the single lamp far down the hall threw into it. We entered without hesitation; then the door slapped behind us. No sooner had the sound struck my ears than I leaped toward it. But it was too late. The door was fast and we were trapped.

Cravath struck a match; its dim flickering light showed us that the room was bare; there was not a stick of furniture, not a rug, not a picture.

"Hello," said Cravath, astonished. "What's all this?"

"It looks like taps for us," said I. Here the match went out and we once more stood in darkness. "I knew from the moment I set eyes on that fellow down the road that this Croyden Park thing was a 'plant.'"

"Oh, I say!" spoke Cravath, but there was only faint denial in his tone.

"Lombroso warns us to beware of the man whose ears stick out like those of the jackass rabbit," said I. "And even the least observant could have told you that neither religion, morals nor ethics have an abiding place in a head shaped like a doorknob."

Here a thin ray of light [illegible] from the transom above the hall door; waveringly it [illegible] Cravath's face and then my own.

"Gentlemen," said a voice from behind the source of the light, "I trust that you are comfortable."

It was the man with the failings which I had just enumerated; we could not see him, but the tones of his voice were readily recognizable. It was Cravath who answered him.

"May I inquire," asked my friend, "why we have been treated in this summary fashion in the house of friends?"

The light shifted to his face and remained there. The effect was rather weird. It was as though a stream of light sprang from the darkness above the door, crossed a space of some dozen feet and splashed into the face of Cravath. All else was in darkness.

At the words of the young man there came a chuckling from behind the light, and then the unseen replied:

"I am sorry, indeed, to place any person of enterprise at a disadvantage. Your surroundings reflect no great credit upon the hospitality of the house. But your present situation is up to yourselves altogether. As a matter of fact, you need remain there no longer than you see fit."

With the light still streaming in his face, Cravath considered.

"I think," spoke he, finally, "I get an undertone of meaning in that saying. To bring our—shall we call it imprisonment—to a close, there is something which we must do."

Again came the chuckle; never in my life have I been more aggravated by a sound than I was by this; noiselessly I crept nearer to the door; the stream of light still held to Cravath and it was impossible for any one to detect my movements.

"From the first," said the unseen behind the light, "I have admired your enterprise, but your discernment or perception, I must confess, has received scant praise. However, I now take all that back. I now see that you have not only perception, you have instinct; one who recognizes a desire through a subtone in another's voice must have."

"You are very kind," said Cravath; "but this is scarcely the time for compliments. Let us approach the necessary things as speedily as we may. What is this thing which you demand of us?"

"Along with other rare qualities," spoke the long-faced man through the darkness, "I am delighted to find that of directness in you. It is a privilege to have met you, sir."

Cravath blinked in the direction of the voice; I could see by his expression that he was fast approaching my own condition of mind with regard to the unseen; but he controlled himself sufficiently to say:

"But the demand—what is it that we are to do?"

"There is in your possession," answered the man, "a pistol, I believe. Before we come to any other subject, I would request that you pass this weapon through the transom."

He had just pronounced this last word when I, from my position at the door, sprang upward and snatched the light from him. It was a good-sized electric torch, and instantly I turned it on him. At the same moment Cravath produced the Betterton flintlock and pointed it at his head. A cry of dismay came from the man; there then followed a crash, as though his support, whatever it was, failed him, and he disappeared from the open transom with a promptness that drew a shout of laughter from us both.

"That fellow," gasped Cravath, finally, "has a genuine talent as a comedian. What a pity he neglected it and took up off-side gumshoe work."

Our situation, however, was of greater moment to me than the long-faced man's accomplishments, and my amusement was briefer than Cravath's.

"Let's get out of this," said I.

The door being locked, my first thought was the windows; these, however, had an ornamental iron grating securely fastened upon the outside.

"Well?" asked I, turning to Cravath.

"There should be some action by the legislature against imitating prisons," said he. "It is not only unlovely, but it is inconvenient." Taking the torch from my hand, he shot the light about; finally it rested upon the transom above the hall door. "That is our way out," said he.

In a moment we had formed our plan. Bracing myself against the door, I gave Cravath a "boost"; then he reached down and drew me partly up. I stood balanced upon the door handle while he slipped through the opening into the hall; then I followed, and we stood in the now dark hall, flashing our light here and there.

"There's the stairs," said Cravath. "We might go down that way, but my recollection of the miscellaneous fastenings of the front door makes it all but hopeless as a way out."

"There are other ways," said I. "All the windows can't be barred."

We started down the stairs, I leading the way with the light; at one turning there was a tall clock which ticked with loud monotony; we were passing this when the torch was knocked from my hand. I heard it go rolling down the steps, the broken glass tinkling as it went; then there was a sudden struggle behind me, Cravath ripped out an oath, and the stairrail cracked under a heavy fall. Then racing feet went madly up the dark staircase.

"Cravath!" I called. But there was no answer save the stamping of feet through empty halls and up flights of stairs, the sharp concussion of closing doors and the flinging of them open immediately after. And when I had recovered from my surprise the cause of it all was plain enough.

"They were waiting here at the turn of the stairs," I reasoned. "Knocking the light out of my hand, they leaped upon Cravath, snatched the pistol from him and made away with it." The sound of sharply closing doors and running feet were still to be heard upon the upper floors. "It's like the clown being pursued through a trick house by a comedy policeman," I told myself, as I listened. "And it wouldn't surprise me a bit to have the Harlequin jump out of the big clock and fetch me one with his wand."

I waited for some fresh developments. The sounds of flight and pursuit now came entirely from the third floor; and so long continued were they that I finally made up my mind that I was needed there to help round up the pursued. I had started on my way up the remainder of the first flight when there came the sharp, aggressive bark of a revolver from the upper regions, followed by another and another. Holding my breath, I paused and listened for what was to follow. The sounds of pursuit ceased with the last shot. After a pause I heard a door softly open and close, a step sounded in the hall on the third floor and then upon the stairs, a careful step, firm but cautious, the step of a man who knew there was danger to be faced and was willing to face that which was necessary, but no more.

Steadily it descended until it reached the second floor; here there was a pause, as though the unseen were sensing his surroundings; then the step came down the hall, a hand passed along the wall as though feeling for the handrail; then firmly, slowly, cautiously, the descent of the last flight was begun.

It would be impossible for me to tell of all the wild imaginings that filled my mind at that moment. But above everything else I clung to the hypothesis that the pistol shots meant that Cravath was stretched out upon the upper floor with a bullet in him and that his murderer was now seeking me to repeat the performance. I began a search of my pockets for a weapon, knowing very well that I should find none. The feet sounded upon a step only two removed from that upon which I stood. I braced myself for a spring, my hands outstretched to clutch at the other's throat.

Then a match scratched, and with a great wheeze of relief I recognized Cravath.

"Hello," said he, softly. "I thought I'd find you hereabouts."

"What happened upstairs?" I asked, anxiously.

"I was getting too close to him," said Cravath, "and he unlimbered a gun on me. And as I was in no humor for such proceedings, I thought it best to come down and hold a council of war."

"It's no time for saying I told you so," said I. "But the temptation is almost irresistible."

"The man with the stickup ears has the Betterton flintlock," said Cravath, gently. "He is a most excellent tactician and also some runner. You were right in your warnings, old boy, and I was wrong in paying no attention to them. But," inquiringly, through the darkness, for the match had gone out, "now that things have happened, what are we going to do about them?"

"I think," said I, "it would be good judgment to get outside, if we can. It won't be long before your man, or men, take the notion to leave the house secretly. Being outside, we'll have more chance to spot them."

"That sounds like good sense," agreed Cravath.

We tried a number of doors and windows on the first floor. At last a window was found which would open to the untrained; and then we leaped out into—it seemed, several dozen waiting arms. A moment before not a sound was to be heard, now we were deafened by a babble of voices. Where all had been darkness, there now flashed a number of lamps.

"Make no resistance," a voice advised us. "A fuss will get you nothing, except maybe a wallop or two."

I saw Cravath give a couple of heaves, as though testing the strength of the men who held him. Then he laughed.

"Well," said he, with calm philosophy, "now that you've got us, what next?"

The party bustled us away in the midst of a circle of lights; when we reached the big iron gate, the searchlight of an automobile added itself to these.

"Have you caught them?" asked a woman from the machine.

"Here they are," replied the man who had warned us to make no fuss.

"Wasn't it fortunate that the watchman telephoned to every one?" said the woman.

"Suppose they had broken into your house instead of that of your husband's [illegible] a woman. "The wretches!" [illegible]

Cravath seemed highly tickled at this, for I heard him chuckle.

"You don't object to being called a wretch, then," said I.

"Not when it is my own mother who does the calling," said he. "The other," in explanation, "is her hostess, Mrs. Croyden."

"Mrs. Croyden!" I echoed, a suspicion for the first time beginning to take possession of me. "Then we weren't in her house?"

"It would seem not," replied Cravath.

There came the thud, thud, thud of running feet from the direction of the lonely house. It was the long-faced man.

"Oh, you've got them," he said. He looked first at Cravath and then at me; in the rays of the searchlight I saw marked contempt in the glances. "I thought they were swell cracksmen, such as you read about," said he. "That was at first; now I've changed my mind. They are dubs. Not only do they try to rob an empty house, but they ring bells to let people know they are on the job. And then," here he drew forth the old flintlock, "they carry a gun like this. I almost broke my neck in the dark trying to get it away from him. Why, you couldn't shoot it off if it was loaded."

In his eagerness to get nearer the precious pistol, Cravath drew his captors into the [illegible] light of the car lamps. A cry rang out, then came a scurrying and a pair of loving arms were about his neck.

"Burglar!" said his mother. "Burglar! How could you make such a stupid mistake?"

STEPS WERE TAKEN FROM VERANDAH

Young Girls Will be Asked to Give Evidence

The initial police court case arising from Hallowe'en depredations was aired this morning. Two young lads were arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct to which they pleaded "not guilty."

It was P. C. Sills who gathered in the boys and took their names. The constable was patrolling the northern part of the city on Hallowe'en when his attention was drawn to a noise resembling the crash of wood. He walked toward the place from where the noise appeared to have originated. He met three boys and three girls, no one else being around. Taking two of the boys back, he discovered a verandah minus the steps and later the steps lying on the road.

The young lads this morning, both professed innocence, and one of them upon being asked by the Magistrate imparted the names of the young ladies who were in the party. An adjournment until Thursday was ordered to allow the girls to be subpoenaed and they will, in all likelihood appear in court. One of the boys gallantly wished to spare the girls that embarrassment and volunteered to shoulder all the blame personally. His chivalrous offer was refused.

BOTH YOUNG MEN WERE DROWNED

One of the Victims was Cousin of Mrs. (Dr.) Walmsley

Dr. Asa G. Walmsley, the Osteopathic physician has returned from Buffalo, where he and Mrs. Walmsley were called by the death of the latter's cousin who was drowned in the Ohio river last week.

The young man was twenty-three years of age, and while he and a companion of the same age were boating, their canoe was swept into rough water, causing it to capsize and both young men were drowned.

Dr. and Mrs. Walmsley left for Buffalo immediately on learning the sad news.

Mrs Walmsley will remain in Buffalo until the recovery of the body.

Four men were sentenced at Milan, Italy, to terms of from three months to a year for defaming the character of Enrico Caruso, the tenor.

DEATH OF MR. M. W. MACLEOD

Was the Father of M. E. C. MacLeod of This City

Winnipeg, Nov. 4.—M. W. Macleod, ex-Postoffice Inspector, and for many years a prominent citizen of Winnipeg, died this morning at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Macleod was superannuated last July, after forty-six years' service in the department. He was born at New London, P. E. I., in 1842, coming west in 1882, and since that time had resided in Winnipeg.

Mr. E. C. Macleod, local manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is a son. He is now in Winnipeg.

A BLACK AMAZON.

African Chieftainess Leads Tribesmen Against Europeans.

The Anglo-German-Belgian Boundary Commission having completed its work in Africa, Major E. M. Jack, the British Commissioner, has returned to England.

The frontier which has now been delimited is that between the Uganda Protectorate and, on the west, the Belgian colony of the Congo (lately Congo Free State), and, on the south, German East Africa. It lies, says Reuter, in the neighborhood of the celebrated Mfumbiro volcanoes, whose peaks were first seen by Speke on his journey through Ruanda to Uganda. Three of the eight volcanoes, one of which a few years ago showed signs of activity, are partly in British territory.

The country traversed and mapped by the British Commission is for the greater part of the wildest and roughest description, consisting of massive mountains intersected by steep narrow valleys, at the bottoms of which are large swamps. Parts of the country are covered with impenetrable forests, others with bamboo.

The whole region lies at a high altitude, varying from 6,000 feet to 8,000 feet above sea level, while the volcanoes vary from 11,000 feet to 14,000 feet. The climate is, in consequence, cool and healthy, but near the volcanoes subject to violent winds and thunderstorms. The slopes of most of the volcanoes are thickly clothed with bamboo forest, and in these are found elephant, buffalo and lion.

While the commission was surveying the Anglo-German frontier, however, it was not safe for porters and soldiers to travel alone, and several men were attacked and killed.

On one occasion a chieftainess, a "witch-doctor" named Mumusa, collected a considerable following and announced her intention of driving the Europeans out of the country. A portion of the British escort was detached to co-operate with Capt. Reid, of The King's African Rifles, in an attack on her position, but before the two forces joined Capt. Reid had successfully surprised Mumusa, capturing her and dispersing her followers. After that no further trouble was experienced.

By the delimitation of this portion of the frontier the international boundaries on the west and south of the Uganda Protectorate are now complete.

A Scissor-Grinder's Will.

Some years ago a certain David Fenby, who was working as a scissor-grinder in Sheffield at $6 per week, having saved a little money—thanks to the assistance of an admirable wife, who shared her husband's thrifty habits—determined to launch out into the grocery and general business. They started with a little shop in a back street, Fenby fetching his groceries and smallware from the market on a wheelbarrow, which he hired until he could afford to buy one. Ultimately he was able to purchase a donkey and cart, and after two years in his little shop was able to take a grocer's shop with an off-license, and to pay $150 valuation.

A few days ago Fenby died worth no less than $100,000. A man of keen business acumen and energy, he was able after nine years' trading in his grocer's shop, to buy a shop and no fewer than nine adjoining houses. At the same time he carried on a business as furniture remover, his wife looking after the shop. He was afterwards able to move to bigger premises and became a wealthy man; but he and his wife continued to live in a very moderate style until his death. Mr. Fenby has left bequests of $2,500 each to four charitable institutions of Sheffield.

F. W. BERGMANN IS NEW CHIEF OF G. T. P.'S HOTELS..

Manager of the Chateau Laurier Is Appointed to an Important Post That Will Make Him a Figure of Interest From Coast to Coast—Has Had a Wide Experience Both In England and on This Side.

F. W. Bergmann, who has just been appointed head and general manager of the Grand Trunk hotel system of Canada and who has been in charge of the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa since its opening, is one of the most experienced and among the ablest hotel men in the world. He has been connected with the management of some of the most famous hotels in the old country and in the United States and has had full charge of the outfitting of the Chateau Laurier and managed it during the short period he has been in charge, with admirable skill and ability. The present promotion shows that the directorate and president of the big railroad corporation appreciate his good work.

F. W. BERGMANN.

The company has several large hotels along its line and proposes extending the system so that they will have a magnificent system of hostelries at all leading points on its great railway system. The entire management and control of these hotels will in future be in the hands of Mr Bergmann. Before going to Ottawa he was in charge of the celebrated Banff Hotel at the Springs there and he was for a time also at the Mountain Stephen House at Field, B.C. Previously he had been manager of the Nortonia Hotel, Oregon, and at the Del Monte Hotel, Castle Crags, California. He has been connected with the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, and also had charge of the Cliff's Hotel, Newport, R.I., besides having extensive experience in the management of some of the leading London hotels of the Spiers and Bond syndicate. He has had a hotel experience extending over [illegible] years and he has been a hard worker and his success is due to perseverance, industry and ability, combined with a genial and kindly manner, which makes him very much liked by the traveling public.

Liberal With His Money.

The ex-sultan of Morocco, Mulai Hafid, has made himself very popular in Marseilles by the truly royal fashion in which he has been flinging his money about. If he does not learn the value of money in the near future it is certain that the $75,000 which the French government allowed him as his annual civil list will not last very long. "His first visit was to the cathedral, and on leaving he handed the cure $60," says a Paris correspondent of the London Express. "A blind beggar he met outside received $20. At the Church of Notre Dame de la Garde another blind beggar received $5."

In parts of Norway the area of cultivated land might easily be quadrupled.

C.P.R. OFFICIALS CLAIM ONLY SLIGHT RESPONSE IN STRIKE

But President of Brotherhood Puts Number at 3,000—Toronto Men Meet To-night.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Three thousand ticket, freight, passenger and other grades of clerks, car checkers, baggagemen, freight handlers, yard office men, etc., employed by the C.P.R. at stations all over the line of the system in Canada, went on strike yesterday at a given signal flashed from Ottawa by A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, of which those who went out are members, following a refusal of the company to grant an increase in wages from 15 to 30 per cent. and payment for overtime.

One hundred and twenty-five men employed by the C.P.R. at Broad street station are among the strikers. At 9.30 yesterday morning they left their work, and shortly afterwards the officials of the C.P.R. said that many of the positions had been filled by experienced men who came from Montreal for the purpose.

In the afternoon there was no one working in the freight sheds. Of the 125 local strikers, half a dozen are clerks from the office of the division superintendent.

Late last night President Mosher said that practically all the members of the union employed at C.P.R. stations, except Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, were on strike. Though the men at those large railroad centres are still working, they are ready to quit when requested, he declares. He says further that the members of the union employed by the C.P.R. total 5,000, and every one is willing to go out if called upon.

The strike is being directed from Ottawa. Besides Mr. Mosher there are a number of other members of the executive committee of the union in the city. At a meeting of the strikers, held last night, it was declared that in consequence of the strike, freight is becoming congested all over the system. Specific cases were cited, among which were that of Fort William, where there are 1,000 cars of grain, besides other cars of goods, blocking the yards. At Winnipeg it was reported there were 743 cars, which cannot be gotten out of the yards.

No Change at Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Not a man went out on strike here yesterday, according to the C.P.R. officials. All over the road it was estimated by C.P.R. officials that only about 250 were out. Many had already been replaced, and it would not take long to fill the places of the others.

David McNicoll, vice-president of the company, discussing the strike, said that a few misguided employes, members of an impossible organization had gone on strike.

The officials point to the refusal of Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labor, to grant the union concerned a board of conciliation as all the justification required for the company's refusal to deal with the order. All the unions the company recognize count as well-defined spheres of railway activity, and it is possible to lay down schedules to be generally applied. In this instance everybody is taken in, from confidential employes to common laborers, and it is declared impossible to deal with the men as a whole.

According to the officials at Windsor street station, not one had gone out at Montreal or Quebec. At Ottawa, Sherbrooke and other points walkouts are reported.

Toronto Men Organizing.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—To-day is the last day that the Toronto clerks and freight handlers of the Canadian Pacific Railway will work for the company until the demands of the brotherhood are met, according to the expectation of the officers of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employes. A meeting, which will be attended by the 800 C.P.R. employes of Toronto and district affected, will be held at the brotherhood headquarters in the assembly room at Occident Hall, Bathurst street, to-night, and it is expected the men will decide to go on strike.

The reason the Toronto employes affected did not go out when the strike order was issued from the brotherhood headquarters at Ottawa to take effect yesterday was that they are not yet wholly organized here. More than fifty per cent. of the Toronto employes are members of the brotherhood, but those in charge of the strike decided not to call the men out in Toronto until an organization meeting, at which an effort will be made to get the non-members to join, could be held. This is the meeting to be held to-night.

None Out at Woodstock.

Woodstock, Nov. 5.—Although a [illegible] has been received calling local freight handlers, checkers, clerks, etc., out on strike, the men are still at work. If they decide to go out in answer to the call, fifteen men will be affected, and the freight business will be completely tied up.

At Ingersoll three of the freight handlers, two clerks and two sympathizers walked out.

At St. John.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 5.—As a result of the strike called by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes men have quit work on the C.P.R. as follows: St. John, 3 clerks, 3 freight handlers; Fredericton, 3 clerks; Woodstock, 8 clerks and 2 freight handlers.

Is Woman Insane?

Woodstock, Nov. 5.—There is in jail at present a woman between fifty and sixty years of age, who has been declared insane by two local doctors, after two Ingersoll doctors had refused to sign a certificate of insanity, claiming that she was not insane.

May Exhume Body.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—That it may be necessary to exhume the body of Private John Bannatyne of the 48th Highlanders, which was laid to rest with so great pomp and ceremony, was the startling statement made at the continuation of the wreck inquest by Chief Coroner Arthur Jukes Johnson at the morgue last night. This arises from the serious illness of J. J. Butler, foreman of the jury empaneled to hear the evidence, who lies at his home in a dangerous condition. It may be necessary to empanel a new jury and view the body again.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

Man Found in Harbor May Have Been Murdered.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—Evidence of foul play submitted last night at the inquest into the death of John Grindall, 27 Herrick street, the man whose body was found in the bay last Saturday, led Coroner Adam Lynd to adjourn the inquest for a week.

Dr. Wigham, who performed the post mortem examination, gave asphyxiation from drowning as the cause of death, but at the same time he stated that he had found a bump as large as a silver dollar on the back of the man's head toward the right, and a skin scrape across the forehead. On being questioned, he said that the scalp wound on the back of the head could easily have been caused by a blow from a club. In his opinion, the man was alive when he entered the water.

Constable Gordon Morris, who took the body from the bay after the boys who found it had informed the police, said that he noticed one peculiar thing when he reached the body. The man's coat was pulled over his head and shoulders with the lining and seams showing. In answer to a question, he said the man would be almost powerless if his coat were pulled over his head in the manner in which he found it.

Sidney Grindall, a brother of the dead man, said that it was a mystery to him how his brother came to be found in the east end of the city, as he lived in the west end and worked on Davenport road. On Tuesday morning the dead man left for work with a lunch in his pocket, and was never seen alive afterwards by any of the family.

FRANK WEBB IS IMPLICATED

Damaging Letters Secured by Government Read at Trial.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 5.—Letters which the Government charged showed that Frank C. Webb of New York, wrote to J. J. McNamara about sending Ortie E. McManigal to New York and Boston to blow up work there, were read at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

A letter from Webb was quoted as showing that M. J. Young of Boston was anxious to have "jobs" done in Boston in the spring of 1909, and in reply McNamara wrote, "I don't know whether my friend will be able to get down your way. Find out if the deal could be pulled off. I'll attend to the rest of it, so no one will know anything about it as to time." The Government asserted these letters were referred to Frank M. Ryan, president of the Ironworkers' Union, and that Herbert S. Hockin was sent to Chicago to prepare McManigal for the eastern trips. McManigal reported that an opera house under construction in Boston, and a viaduct in Hoboken, N.J., were blown up in March, 1909.

"BOBS" SPEECH STILL IN THE AIR

Different Views Are Taken in London.

London, Nov. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lord Roberts' speech at Manchester, which directly declared that Germany would strike England the moment she was fully prepared, continues to attract undiminished comment. Ever since its delivery a fortnight ago, The Mail has published a summary of the speech daily.

The International Arbitration League, however, has carried a resolution denouncing the speech and declaring that Roberts speaks only for "a small section of fanatical militarists, whose violent language measures their failure to place the yoke of conscription on the shoulders of the British people."

A mustering of the German colony of Manchester Saturday condemned the speech, and begging friends in Germany to understand that the soldier's words did not reflect the opinion of the great majority of Englishmen.

The Royal Academy was founded by George III. in 1768, and was originally situated in Piccadilly, being removed to Trafalgar Square in 1834, and to its present site in 1869, where it is rent free.

CASTILLO DE SAN JUAN DE ULUA, WHERE GENERAL FELIX DIAZ PROBABLY WILL BE IMPRISONED.
GENERAL FELIX DIAZ.

It is generally believed in Mexico that General Felix Diaz, the captured leader of the Vera Cruz revolt, will probably not be shot, but will be incarcerated in San Juan de Ulua prison, overlooking Vera Cruz harbor.

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN FLEET IS EN ROUTE TO THE EAST

Will Receive Further Instructions From the Ambassador at Constantinople—France, Britain and Russia Will Not Intervene.

French Premier Thinks an Armistic Would Give Turks an Unfair Advantage—Turkey Says She is Not Beaten and Will Continue to Fight.

Special To The Review.

Vienna, Nov. 5—The first division of the Austro-Hungarian fleet, consisting of three battleships, one cruiser and two torpedo boats, left the naval station at Pola, during the night for the East. The destination is not known, but the Commander has orders to report to the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at Constantinople from whom he will ascertain where vessels can best be employed.

Paris, Nov. 5.—The French attitude to the Turkish appeal for mediation is shared by England and Russia. Turkey's proposals were as follows:

First—That the powers offer and, if need be, enforce an armistice on the belligerents.

Second—That the powers profit by the armistice to invite the belligerents to make known their peace terms, and if necessary harmonize the conflicting terms of the belligerents.

In refusing to act, Premier Poincare declared that France was unable to accept the suggestion about an armistice without furnishing to the Balkan allies guarantees relative to the conditions of peace. An armistice, he said, would check the advance of the allies at the height of their victories, and give the Turks time to reorganize and strengthen their armies.

Premier Poincare's proposals to the powers are:

First—Recognition by the powers of political and administrative changes in the territory occupied by the troops of the allies.

Second—Retention of the Sultan's sovereignty at Constantinople and the region round the capital.

Third—The summoning of a European conference in which the Balkan nations shall participate.

Rejected by Three Powers.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The Turkish ambassador presented to the Foreign Office yesterday afternoon a communication from his Government asking the powers' good offices to bring about an armistice. Germany immediately put itself into communication with the other five powers with a view to carrying out the request.

The reply of Germany, Austria and Italy to Premier Poincare's proposal has just been despatched. It rejects the proposed declaration of "disinterestedness."

Envoys Go to Russia.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 5.—The newspapers announce the arrival at Odessa of two representatives of the Turkish Foreign Office on a secret mission. They will interview the Russian Foreign Minister, M. Sazonoff, and subsequently go to Berlin and Vienna.

Advices from Odessa say that the Russian Black Sea fleet is cruising off the mouth of the Bosphorus, ostensibly with the object of protecting Russian subjects in Constantinople.

Will Keep Up Fight.

London, Nov. 5.—The prospect that a considerable portion of the defeated Turkish army will be able to re-form behind the lines of Tchatalja, the last of the fortifications before Constantinople, is not altogether excluded, but whether the Turks will be able to maintain there any serious resistance to the Bulgarians is a question which permits of doubt.

In the struggle with the allies the Turks lost more than half their artillery. In fact the Servians alone claim to have captured no less than 300 guns. This will certain militate against any prolonged stand at Tchatalja.

In a circular note to the Turkish ambassadors abroad the Turkish Government maintains that, although embarrassing, the position of affairs is not desperate, and declares that whereas the allies had completed their mobilization Turkey had barely begun hers.

The note insists that Turkey is still able to maintain prolonged warfare.

Up to the present hour there is no sign that anything has come of the Porte's appeal to the powers for mediation. No replies have been received at Constantinople, and there is little doubt that when they are received they embody a declination to consider the idea of proposing an armistice. Apparently Bulgaria is in no mood to negotiate peace at the present time.

Although fighting is still proceeding on the Tchorlu-Serai line and correspondents are sending reports of Bulgarian and Turkish successes in that neighborhood, according to which side they draw inspiration from, the official announcement from Constantinople that the Turks are withdrawing to the Tchatalja line of forts is not to be doubted, and it is evidence that this fighting is merely an extensive rear-guard action to cover the movement of the Turks towards Constantinople.

The fall of Adrianople is expected daily. The occupation of Buk, on the railway between Saloniki and Kuleli Burgas, is the last link of the chain wholly cutting off the Turkish armies which have been fighting the great battles in the east from the scattered forces in the heart of the country and to the west.

Comparative order is still maintained in Constantinople and Saloniki, but apparently the nervousness felt in Europe over possible outbreaks and disorders is equally shared by the authorities in Turkey. In Constantinople already the Government is seizing great supplies for the army, and the likelihood of famine prices for food will add to the Government's difficulties. The anxiety has been partly relieved by the arrival of European war ships. Others are on the way and are expected to pass through the Dardanelles to-day.

It is considered not unlikely that the fear of serious outbreaks in Constantinople may urge the powers to use diplomatic pressure to bring about peace at the earliest moment.

Pillaged a Monastery.

Athens, Nov. 5.—A wireless message from a foreign warship at Saloniki says that the Turkish army, which was defeated at Yenidje, about 14 miles from Saloniki, has reached that city in complete disorder. Before their flight from Statista, to the southwest of Kosani, the Turks pillaged a monastery. They cut a monk to pieces, impaled a three-year old child, and massacred many of the inhabitants of the town.

AUTO BANDIT HAS SURRENDERED

His Pal Was Shot Dead by Baseball Secretary.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—The survivor of the two automobile bandits, who attempted to hold up and rob R. B. Cooke, assistant secretary of the Chicago National League Baseball Club, was arrested yesterday afternoon, having confessed to detectives. Edward Meyers was killed early Sunday morning by Cooke, who shot him dead when Meyers leaped from an automobile and ordered Cooke to give up his valuables. The young man arrested yesterday, Clifford Fail, remained in the car and escaped, though Cooke fired several shots at him.

McKenna Flees From Suffragettes.

London, Nov. 5.—The Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna, was prevented from making a speech last night in Holborn town hall because of the uproar created by suffragettes. The Secretary escaped a mauling by fleeing with his wife through a side door.

Myers, president of the Kansas City Aero Club, from Captain H. E. Honeywell in Stuttgart. Capt. Honeywell piloted the balloon Uncle Sam.

Boys' Work Conference.

Four hundred delegates will attend. Some of America's strongest speakers for boys and workers with boys will be at the conference.

Convicted of Revolting Crime.

St. Catharines, Nov. 5.—James Logue, a Scotchman, residing in Merritton, was convicted yesterday on a charge of attempted indecent assault upon a thirteen-year-old girl. His wife, who is in delicate health, swooned when judgment was pronounced.

He will be sentenced by Judge Carman to-day.

ROOSEVELT OR WILSON?

Review Will Bulletin Results of the Voting

W. R. Hartshorne, Went to College With Democratic Candidate

Very little interest is manifested locally in the Presidential elections in the U. S. to-day. The feeling here is that the real contest is between Wilson and Roosevelt. The Democratic candidate has one ardent well-wisher here in the person of Mr. W. R. Hartshorne, who is an old college chum of Woodrow. Some time ago Mr. Hartshorne wrote to Wilson and received a friendly reply.

The Review has arranged for a bulletin service of the elections and returns will commence to come over the wires about 7.30. It is not likely that decisive news of the result will be available till near midnight.

HEAVY VOTING IN SECTIONS WHERE RESULT IS IN DOUBT

Pelletier Answers Lavergne.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—Referring to Armand Lavergne's challenge to meet him in debate, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, said yesterday: "I regret exceedingly the stand taken by Mr. Lavergne, especially as I entertain the most kindly feeling towards him, and can only account for his attitude is that he is carried away by the influence of Quebec Liberals. Lavergne made statements at Loretto which I see reported in the press concerning the Quebec personnel of the Federal Cabinet, and if he was familiar with the negotiations he speaks of I must say he violated the good faith reposed in him. But the statements he made came from his imagination.

"Lavergne's motto says we owe England nothing. My motto is we are part of the British Empire. Lavergne is to-day without a following.

"Lavergne and Bourassa have thrown in their lot with the Liberals in the moment of pique because they could not dictate to the Conservative party, and the Liberals seem glad to have them in their ranks, notwithstanding the manner in which the Liberals have besmirched Mr. Lavergne with all the filth of their denunciations for several years past."

THOUGHT HE HAD SLAIN BROTHER

St. Catharines Man is Remanded to Sober Up.

St. Catharines, Nov. 5.—As the result of a delusion on the part of Wm. Young that he had murdered his brother, a squad of police went to his home on Nelson street and kicked in the door. The "victim" was found at work on a night shift at a paper mill. Young has been remanded to the jail to sober up and to undergo a sanity test.

NEW EVIDENCE MAY BE DISCLOSED IN ELLIS CASE

Did Lew Porter Make Threats Against the Life of Ellis?

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 5.—New evidence may be disclosed in the case of Arthur A. Ellis, now under the death sentence in the county jail here, through Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, in whose constituency the convicted man lived, and the shooting of Lewis Porter, for whose murder he is under sentence of death, took place. It is understood that a report has come to the Minister that Ellis had sought to marry Edith Porter, the daughter of his dead wife, before their marriage, and the girl, whom the defence tried to show at the trial, had written to Ellis to tell him of the threats of the Porters against him. This intention is said to have brought from Lew Porter direct and definite threats against the life of Ellis. At the time of the trial Ellis told a reporter of hearing that such had been made, but as he had been unable to locate the man who had given him this information, this was not put in evidence at the trial. It is understood that this report may form the basis of an application for a new trial by Ellis' counsel.

Ottawa Protest on Nov. 6.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The Ottawa Separate School Board has been notified that the Ontario Government has fixed to-morrow as the date on which Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, will hear the delegation from Provincial Separate School Boards in regard to bilingual regulations.

It is felt that the notice is too short to properly organize the delegation.

TEAMSTER KILLED BY LIGHT ENGINE

His Wagon Was Struck at Railway Crossing.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—William Andrews, aged 45 living on Sammon street, East Toronto, was instantly killed on the G.T.R. crossing at Greenwood avenue, just east of the Don River, at six o'clock last night, when the wagon he was driving was struck by a light engine running backward. The man was carried about 40 yards. He was quite dead when picked up.

There is hardly any light at all on the crossing, and the fact may have had a bearing on the accident.

Weather Conditions For United States Elections is Ideal.

Women's Vote Will be An Important Factor in the Contest.

Special To The Review.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 5— Ideal weather for the election prevails throughout the United States today which will result in the polling of an exceptionally large rural vote where the contest is regarded as close. In fact, in every section where the result is believed to be in doubt, the heaviest vote on record is being polled both in rural and urban districts. The only states from which a light voting is reported are those on the south, where a Democratic victory is conceded.

New York, Nov. 5.—The most vigorous Presidential fight of recent years came to an end last night with the leading candidates for the nation's chief office continuing their personal appeal to voters almost to the last moment. President Taft, speaking from his train in Ohio, on his trip to Cincinnati; Col. Roosevelt, addressing voters at Long Island points close to Oyster Bay, and Governor Wilson addressing meetings at Paterson and Passaic, N.J., gave to the conclusion of the long campaign a touch of personal activity that emphasized the interest in to-day's balloting.

More than the Presidency is at stake in the elections to-day. The Republican forces have concentrated their efforts in doubtful states to prevent an overturning of local organizations, or a capture of the Legislatures in states heretofore safely Republican. The Democrats have made an organized assault upon a number of states to control the Legislatures, so that the majority in the United States Senate may be swung to the Democratic column. Against Republican predictions that the Senate will remain Republican, the Democratic national leaders yesterday claimed enough states to give them the Senate, and to greatly swell their majority in the House of Representatives, which they captured in 1910.

Few American campaigns have run through a longer period of heated controversy. The fight for the Presidency, to terminate at the ballot boxes to-day, was under way early in February, and has scarcely lagged since that time. Out of the eight men who were active candidates for Presidential nominations early in the summer, three candidates representing three parties whose relative strength is still a matter of conjecture, remain to solicit the voters support to-day.

The influence of women in the campaign will probably be greater than in any previous election. Each national headquarters has had an organized bureau to appeal to women workers, presided over by women well-known in public and social life. In the six western states where women will vote, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, California, Idaho and Washington, their ballots will be an important factor in the results. In five other states, Arizona, Michigan, Kansas, Oregon and Wisconsin, the right of women to vote will be an issue at the polls.

Fair weather is predicted for the majority of states. The uncertainty caused by the third party ticket, the more than ordinarily urgent appeal of party managers to all voters to "go to the polls," and the local interest caused by fights for state offices and control of state machinery, indicate a record vote in almost all sections of the country, and a popular Presidential vote of huge proportions.

Fight Till Polls Closes.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Final telegraphic instructions to state and county chairmen in all of the western states were sent out last night from the various national politic l headquarters in Chicago.

All the party managers reviewed their confident predictions of success, but all emphasized the necessity of keeping up the fight until the polls have been closed finally to-night.

Joseph E. Davis sent out a warning to Democrats, urging them not to be led astray by over-confidence.

Medill McCormick asserted that a Progressive landslide had started and that Col. Roosevelt would be elected by an overwhelming plurality.

The Socialists expected to double the Socialist poll of four years ago, and several of the party leaders insisted the Socialist vote would be tripled.

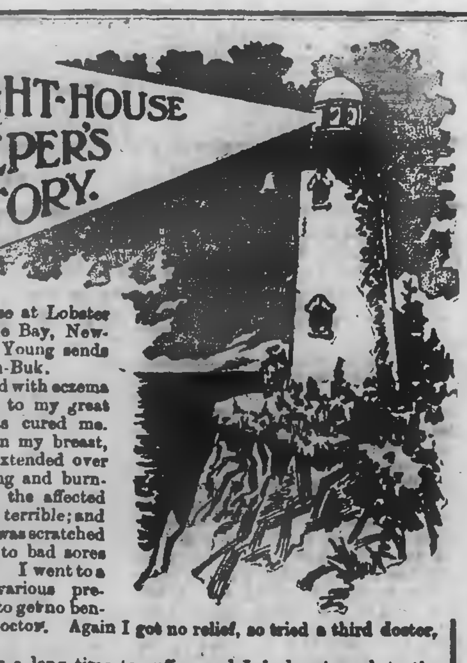
Taft Finishes Campaign.

Cincinnati, Nov. 5.—President Taft spent the last day before election in a leisurely trip across his home state, addressing crowds in more than a dozen cities, and last night reached his home city, where to-day he will cast his ballot. The Democrats last night ended their long campaign in the state with a final rally in Toledo, the Republicans and Progressives having finished their efforts Saturday night.

Leaders of each of the three parties are making claims of victory. Governor Harmon, returning here from Columbus to vote, expressed his conviction that Governor Wilson would carry the state, and said he believed President Taft would run second.

Both the Democrats and Republicans claim they will elect a majority of the 22 members of Congress to be chosen. Progressive candidates for Congress entered the field in only a few more than half of the Congressional districts.

THE LIGHT-HOUSE KEEPER'S STORY.



FROM the lighthouse at Lobster Cove Head, Bonne Bay, Newfoundland, Mrs. W. Young sends her experience of Zam-Buk.

She says: "I suffered with eczema for seven years and to my great delight Zam-Buk has cured me. The disease started on my breast, and spread until it extended over my back. The itching and burning—especially when the affected parts were warm—was terrible; and yet when the eruption was scratched or rubbed, it turned to bad sores and caused great pain. I went to a doctor and tried various prescriptions, but seemed to get no benefit, so tried another doctor. Again I got no relief, so tried a third doctor, and then a fourth.

"Seven years is a long time to suffer, and I had got used to the thought that I never would be cured, when I saw a report in the Family Herald, telling how beneficial Zam-Buk was in cases of skin disease.

"I bought some Zam-Buk, and from the use of the very first box I saw it was going to do me good. I persevered with it, and the improvement it worked in my condition was really wonderful.

"It eased the irritation, stopped the pain, and the sores began to dry up and disappear. In short, I found Zam-Buk all that was claimed for it and within a very short time it worked a complete cure in my case.

"Since that time I have recommended it for several other cases, and in each it has proved its wonderful merit."

THE WAR SCARE

The war dispatches indicate that within another week or two the crisis in the Balkan will have abated. It surely is almost inconceivable that Austria should be willing to plunge Europe into the Armageddon of which so much is heard for the sake of a little piece of territory, or some suzerain rights over the minor Balkan States. But if Austria is not prepared to join the other powers in a declaration as to territorial disinterestedness. She can count on the support of Germany. Germany is holding back somewhat, to try to let the war clouds roll over, but if it came to an issue, Austria would have her aid, as well as that of Italy. The Italian position in the Triple Alliance has not been distinct for some time but that, she intends to stay by the ship seems evident in the latest international mix-up. The Triple alliance would, in the event of hostilities be lined up against the Triple entente, composed of Britain, France and Russia. But it is now conceded that the Turkish Empire cannot be maintained intact. The status quo has disappeared never to return. The problem is for the powers to apportion territory, and divide up spheres of influence among the Balkan allies in such a way that none of the large powers will have any cause for material grievance. With Russia pressing on one side to gain certain advantages, and Austria declaring that any invasion of her rights, or encroachment upon her position, will be a signal for extreme measures, that problem is rather delicate. It would not be at all surprising if some fine morning there should be a sharp exchange of notes, ambassadors saying "Au reservoir" and then the springing of the great fight. The mobilisation of the British fleet, the calling in of the reserves indicates a preparedness for action that is at once ominous and reassuring. It shows that conditions are rather critical, and that Britain is going to be ready with its forces prepared for instant action. The situation is by no means without much peril.

MR. ROWELL TO GO

A dispatch from Toronto says that the leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario will once again be in the ring. There has been a strong undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the way Mr. Rowell has managed the party campaigning a general impression that he has failed to make good Out of the disturbance there pops the genial head of Hon Mackenzie King, who was Minister of Labor in the Laurier cabinet, and who is a politician much more adept than Mr. Rowell. It is significant that both the Toronto Globe and the Toronto Star have published leading editorials within the last two or three days bolstering up Mr. Rowell, laying unusual stress upon the good that he has already done to the party chances, and to the bright prospects there are for his leadership. We do not know whether the papers dislike the idea of Mackenzie King coming in to boss the show, or whether they merely conceive it to be their duty to indicate that Mr. Rowell must be supported in his position. Mr. Rowell is a director of the Globe, so that there is ample reason for that newspaper continuing to prop up the idol with the feet of clay.

Mr. Rowell is a very amiable sort of gentleman, and he is taking his duties as leader of the Opposition very seriously. He declares that if he can get his policies, or part of them, adopted by the Whitney Government, he is quite well satisfied, since he does not seek office for its own sake. He is working for the good of the country. This is delightfully disingenuous The cockles of one's cold and matter-of-fact heart warm to a public man with such Utopian ideals, and such generous practices. But when they have a leader who makes such a brave pose of ministering to the public good, without any mercenary or mundane lust for office, it is no wonder that Liberals who would like to get somewhere get restless. The trouble is that they haven't been educated up to the broad ideas of their leader. They fail to see the heroic attitude he strikes when he is ministering to the public welfare

They do not appreciate his hard fights on behalf of the public in Middlesex and North Waterloo. In fact, they—like the Liberals say the temperance element is—are devoid of consistency, and are a most unstable supporter for any leader to bank on. If Mr. Rowell goes the way of Hon. A. G. MacKay, there may be some signs and groans over the lost opportunity to wipe out the iniquitous bar, but full many a party henchman will say "now let's square away for business"

A STORY OF THE LATE QUEEN VICTORIA.

It is a very well-known fact that Queen Victoria was, to say the least, somewhat strait-laced, and possessed some remarkable ideas regarding propriety and dignity. A story which Sir Frederick Wedmore tells in his recent book of "Memories" illustrates this characteristic.

One day, during a conversation, her intimate friend, Lady Southampton, who, by reason of age, long-proved devotedness, and reciprocated friendship, was privileged to talk of many things, addressed Her Majesty as follows:

"Do not you think, ma'am, one of the satisfactions of the future state will be not only our reunion with those whom we have loved on earth, but our opportunities of seeing face to face so many of the noble figures of the past—of other lands and times? Bible times, for instance. Abraham will be there, ma'am, Isaac too, and Jacob. Think of what they will be like. And the sweet singer of Israel—he too. Yes, ma'am, King David we shall see."

And after a moment's silence, with perfect dignity and decision, the great Queen made answer, "I will not meet David."

The "Spanish Ham."

Leveson Gower tells how the representative of Spain at the court of St. James dined with his family on one occasion and how a servant then and there beat all records in the art of misplacing the letter "h," Flinging the door open, he announced:

"The Spanish ham"—making a perceptible pause before he added—"bassador."

The author declares that he never will forget the effect produced. "Edmund Yates and Corney Grain, who were of the party and talking together at the moment, bolted into the small dining room and behaved certainly as well as the circumstances permitted. My wife had the profoundest difficulty to control her laughter and accord a proper reception to our guest, who was, of course, innocent of the abuse of his distinction."

A Very Funny Englishman.

A story is told concerning Beerbohm Tree, who, after an evening at one of the London clubs, called a hansom from a nearby stand he frequently patronized.

"Home," shouted Tree to the cabby, who was a new one about town.

"Beg pardon," said the man.

"Home," repeated Tree in commanding tone, and the driver whipped up his horse. He drove his fare about for half an hour or so and then returned again. Stopping his horse and arousing the sleepy actor, he apologized and asked to what number he should drive.

"Home," thundered Mr. Tree, this time thoroughly indignant.

"And where might your home be?" queried the cabby, shaking in his boots.

"You idiot," replied Tree, "do you think I'm going to tell you where my beautiful home is?"

The Kings Private Name.

If the King were to renounce the throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer:

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches—the Ernestine and Albertine—of the House of Saxony. The name comes from the castle of Wettin, near Magdeburg, which claimed Wittekind as the founder of the race.

Fishing for Millions.

In the waters of the Zuyder Zee British divers are fishing for millions in gold bullion. The gross value of the treasure is estimated at $8,570,000. It is entombed in the wreck of the British frigate Lutine, which foundered in a storm at the entrance of the Zuyder Zee in October, 1799. For the better part of a century a dispute continued between the Governments of the Netherlands and Great Britain as to the rights of salvage. An agreement was ultimately come to, but in the meantime the sands covered the wreck, and now many charges of dynamite will have to be employed before the divers can hope to get at the gold.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 2 were 2000 cattle, 3000 sheep and lambs, 2800 hogs and 600 calves. The supplies on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1250 cattle, 2350 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for butchers' cattle, but the feeling was better, owing to the lighter receipts and the fact that the percentage of common stock was much smaller than it has been of late. Demand was good, and a fairly active trade was done. A few full loads of choice steers changed hands at $6.25, and picked lots at $6.50 to $6.75, while full loads of good cattle sold at $5.75 per 100 pounds. There was a good demand from packers for canning stock, and, as the offerings were smaller, a stronger feeling developed in the market for such, and prices advanced 15c to 25c per 100 pounds, with sales of bulls at $2.90 to $3.15, and cows at $2.25 to $2.75 per 100 pounds.

Owing to the continued good demand for lambs from packers and butchers for future requirements, and the falling off in supplies, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds, with sales of Ontario stock at $6.25 to $6.50, and Quebec at $5.75 to $6 per 100 pounds. The tone of the market for sheep was firm, but, as the supplies coming forward were ample to fill the wants of the trade, prices are unchanged. Calves were in good demand. Mill-fed stock sold at 5c to 7c, and grass-fed at 2½c to 3c per pound.

Hogs were weak, prices showing a decline of 5c to 75c per 100 pounds, as compared with last week. At the above reduction the demand from packers was good and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 to $8.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, and in a few instances as high as $9 was paid.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.25 to $6.75; do., medium, $5 to $5.50; do., common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2.25 to $3.15; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5 to $5.25; do., medium, $4.50 to $4.75; do., bulls, $3.50 to $4; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $70; springers, $55 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50. Lambs, $5.75 to $6.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.50 to $8.75.

Calves, $3 to $10.

DRIVING HIM TO THE GRAVE

"Fruit-a-tives Saved my Life"

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., JULY 26th, 1911.

"For thirteen years, I was a terrible sufferer from the tortures of Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation and Vomiting. I could not retain much food, and this, together with the pain, and headaches, was driving me to the grave.

Then I used "Fruit-a-tives" and almost at once I got relief.

"Fruit-a-tives" stopped the vomiting, relieved the Constipation, toned up the stomach, and gave me the first relief in years. I feel that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives" and for the sake of other victims of Indigestion and Headaches, I will allow this statement to be published."

HARRY DICKINSON.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CHAPTER V.

A Queen Among Women.

Miss Anne Gattle, seated in Mrs. Jimmie Wellington's seat, had not heard Mr. Jimmie Wellington's sketch of his wife. But she needed hardly more than a glance to satisfy herself that she and Mrs. Jimmie were as hopelessly antipathetic as only two polite women can be.

Mrs. Jimmie was accounted something of a snob in Chicago society, but perhaps the missionary was a trifle the snobbisher of the two when they met.

Miss Gattle could overlook a hundred vices in a Zulu queen more easily than a few in a fellow countrywoman. She did not like Mrs. Jimmie, and she was proud of it.

When the porter said, "I'm afraid you got this lady's seat," Miss Gattle shot one glance at the intruder and rose stiffly. "Then I suppose I'll have to—"

"Oh, please don't go, there's plenty of room," Mrs. Wellington insisted, pressing her to remain. This nettled Miss Gattle still more, but she sank back, while the porter piled up expensive traveling-bags and hat boxes till there was hardly a place to sit. But even at that Mrs. Jimmie felt called on to apologize:

"I haven't brought much luggage. How I'll ever live four days with this, I can't imagine. It will be such a relief to get my trunks at Reno."

"Reno?" echoed Miss Gattle. "Do you live there?"

"Well, theoretically, yes."

"I don't understand you."

"I've got to live there to get it."

"To get it? Oh!" A look of sudden and dreadful realization came over the missionary. Mrs. Wellington interpreted it with a smile of gay defiance:

Jimmie Welington.

"Do you believe in divorces?"

Anne Gattle stuck to her guns. "I must say I don't. I think a law ought to be passed stopping them."

"So do I," Mrs. Wellington amiably agreed, "and I hope they'll pass just such a law—after I get mine." Then she ventured a little shaft of her own. "You don't believe in divorces. I judge you've never been married."

"Not once!" The spinster drew herself up, but Mrs. Wellington disarmed her with an unexpected bouquet:

"Oh, lucky woman! Don't let any heartless man delude you into taking the fatal step."

Anne Gattle was nothing if not honest. She confessed frankly: "I must say that nobody has made any violent efforts to compel me to. That's why I'm going to China."

"To China!" Mrs. Wellington gasped, hardly believing her ears. "My dear! You don't intend to marry a laundryman?"

"The idea! I'm going as a missionary."

"A missionary? Why leave Chicago?" Mrs Wellington's eye softened more or less convincingly: "Oh, lovely! How I should dote upon being a missionary. I really think that after I get my divorce I might have a try at it. I had thought of a convent, but being a missionary must be much more exciting." She dismissed the dream with an abrupt shake of the head. "Excuse me, but do you happen to have any matches?"

"Matches! I never carry them!"

"They never have matches in the women's room, and I've used my last one."

Miss Gattle took another reef in her tight lips. "Do you smoke cigarettes?"

Mrs. Wellington's echoed disgust with disgust: "Oh, no, indeed. I loathe them. I have the most dainty little cigars. Did you ever try one?"

Miss Gattle stiffened into one exclamation point: "Cigars! Me!"

Mrs. Jimmie was so well used to being disapproved of that it never disturbed her. She went on as if the face opposite were not alive with horror: "I should think that cigars might be a great consolation to a lady missionary in the long lone hours of—what do missionaries do when they're not missionarying?"

"That depends."

There was something almost spiritual in Mrs. Jimmie's beatific look: "I can't tell you what consolation my cigars have given me in my troubles. Mr. Wellington objected—but then Mr. Wellington objected to nearly everything I did. That's why I am forced to this dreadful step."

"Cigars?"

"Divorces."

"Divorces!"

"Well, this will be only my second—my other was such a nuisance. I got that from Jimmie, too. But it didn't take. Then we made up and remarried. Rather odd, having a second honeymoon with one's first husband. But remarriage didn't succeed any better. Jimmie fell off the water-wagon with an awful splash, and he quite misunderstood my purely platonic interest in Sammy Whitcomb, a nice young fellow with a fool of a wife. Did you ever meet Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb—no? Oh, but you are a lucky woman! Indeed you are! Well, when Jimmie got jealous, I just gave him up entirely. I'm running away to Reno. I sent a note to my husband's club, saying that I had gone to Europe, and he needn't try to find me. Poor fellow, he will. He'll hunt the continent high and low for me, but all the while I'll be in Nevada. Rather good joke on little Jimmie, eh?"

"Excruciating."

"But now I must go. Now I must go. I've really become quite addicted to them."

"Divorces?"

Snakes and Music.

Music often proves the destruction of the snake tribe in India, for when a house becomes infested with these reptiles, which hide themselves in holes and crevices until such times when their society is least desired, the musicians are sent for to bring them to the surface. At the first notes of the flageolet one after another of the unwelcome lodgers glides softly out of its retreat, looking so intensely happy that it seems almost cruel to kill them. But as it is a question between snake happiness and human safety, each swaying head receives its death stroke without hesitation.—Harper's Young People.

The New Umbrella.

Oh, Ella!
With her first umbrella!
She walked abroad like any queen;
She held it proudly for display;
Admired its handle, stroked its sheen.
Was ever little girl more gay?

Dear Ella!
Such a small umbrella!
Once in the rain swept market place
I met her. Dripping were her curls,
She looked, despite her sunny face,
The most forlorn of little girls.

"Why, Ella,
Where's you new umbrella?"
Said I: "The storm has drenched your hair,
Just see your frock! Just see your hat!
And what is this you hug with care,
A broom, a fiddle or a cat?"

Oh, Ella!
With her first umbrella!
She looked at me and shyly spoke;
The raindrops pelting on her yet.
"I have it here beneath my cloak,
Because, you see, it might get wet!"

MRS. GREATON'S AWFUL EXPERIENCE

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this perod of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. MARION SWEET GREATON, No. 1 Jefferson St., Natick, Mass.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Will Salute Hereafter.

Camden, N.J., Nov. 4.—George Whiting, the ten-year-old Camden schoolboy, who was dismissed from school because he refused to salute the American flag, is penitent at his home. George announced Saturday that after he had talked the matter over with his father he was ready to apologize to his teacher and to the school authorities for his failure to observe the rules, and that hereafter he would salute the stars and stripes.

It is probable that George will salute the flag to-day and once more patriotism will be triumphant in the education of Camden's youthful citizens.

Strathcona's Slush.

When Lord Strathcona was called upon to drive the golden spike into the last tie of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the foreman in charge of the section was told to make a hole in the tie so that the precious spike could easily be extracted and preserved under a glass case. As it was early spring, with a thaw setting in, the foreman bored out quite a substantial hole, and, to make the ceremony of "driving the spike" appear real, he carefully filled the deep pocket with slush. When Lord Strathcona, bending low before a distinguished gathering, raised the mallet and drove the huge nail far into the tie, a powerful squirt of melted snow instantly darted back at him, covering his long beard and immaculate clothes in the most unexpected and embarrassing fashion. But his lordship did not forget to join in the chorus of half-smothered merriment that burst forth at his expense.

A TROUSERS CENTENARY.

It Was Napoleon's Men Who Brought That Garment Into Fashion.

As nearly as can be ascertained it is a hundred years since Napoleon Bonaparte's soldiers introduced the old-new style of leg wear which speedily secured recognition as the distinctively masculine garment of civilians throughout two continents.

In 1814—the year before Waterloo—it was related as a current news item of some importance that the great Duke of Wellington had been refused admittance to Almack's in London because he presented himself wearing trousers instead of the conventional breeches which the dress regulations then in vogue demanded.

As a matter of historical fact trousers have been worn by various races and by both sexes in all the ages of which any authentic records [illegible]. Generally speaking, trousers were regarded in ancient times as symbolical of inferiority or effeminacy. In the triumphal processions of the Caesars, for example, prisoners of war wore them as a sign of defeat, while the sturdy legs of Rome's victorious legions were bare below the bottom of the skirted or kilted coat of mail.

For the last hundred years or thereabout trousers have been widely recognised as the garments of authority, the outward and visible sign of the stronger sex, says the American Tailor and Cutter. But that position has not been won or maintained without a struggle. Many attempts have been made to trample down the tyranny of trousers, as their rule has been called. Many times has their superiority been challenged. But so far their position remains secure.

For the Children

A Fringetail Goldfish Twelve Years of Age.

From "Goldfish Breeds," permission Innes & Sons, Philadelphia.

William T. Innes, writing in St. Nicholas about the age of goldfish, says:

"I knew of a very highly developed goldfish that lived for twelve years. This was the scaled fringetail used as an illustration in Wolf's book on goldfish. I know of a person who claimed sixteen years for a moon telescope fish. My mother raised some common fish twenty years ago. We had one of them for fifteen years and then gave it to a relative, who kept it alive under very poor conditions for three years more. During these three years a number of younger fish died in the same aquarium. Under proper conditions I am sure it would have lived for twenty years, and I believe that such a fish can be kept alive for a quarter of a century. Highly developed fish, if they live to become six months of age, will usually then live from two to four years."

Camels Block Trains.

One of the queerest and most interesting railroads on earth is the one through the delta of the Nile, which is operated almost entirely by native Egyptians. Out of the 2,500 employees only a very few are English, but the road manages to get along very well nevertheless. It has been running for over ten years now, and the natives are entirely accustomed to it. Indeed, there never was any prejudice against it, but it was difficult at first to make the inhabitants understand that they could not ride upon it for nothing. Now, however, they are all very fond of it, and it is said that when a native's donkey dies he does not buy another any more, trusting to get about by the railroad. Camels cause a lot of trouble on the lines because they often get in the way and obstinately refuse to pay any attention to the whistle. And the engines used are so light that the engineer is afraid to drive ahead and hit a camel for fear that the engine will be thrown off the track.

Conundrums.

What is that which Adam never saw, never possessed and yet gave two to each of his children? Parents.

Why have crockery dealers a hard time selling their ware? Because they can't crack up their goods.

What is the difference between a cat and a document? One has claws at the end of its paws; the other has pauses at the end of its clauses.

Why is life like a chessboard? Because it is checkered and every one must be on the move.

Why is a baby like wheat? First it is cradled, then thrashed, and finally it becomes the flower of the family.

What's the difference between a spinster and a burglar? One wears false locks, the other false keys.

Why is a watch like a country lane? Because it doesn't run long without winding.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of [illegible] above. One Winnipeg lady, who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

ALERTS NOT GUILTY OF ROUGH WORK

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The Executive Committee of the O.R.F.U. met last night and decided that the charges of rough play brought against the Alerts of Hamilton in their game with Toronto R. and A.A. on Saturday at Hamilton were unfounded. Alerts, of Hamilton, winners of their junior section, and Capitals, winners of the local section, will probably meet at Oakville on Saturday in a "sudden death" game to decide who will go into the semi-finals.

THE WEATHER

The snow that fell Saturday night was the first of the season and was thought by some to be unusually early. This however, is not the case Last year we had snow almost a month earlier. On October 6th, the ground was white as well as on the 27th of the same month From November 17th on till spring, there were always evidences of winter's covering. The lowest temperature this fall to date, was also on Sunday morning, namely 22 degrees.—W.P.

Still After McMicken.

Winnipeg, Nov. 5.—The appeal court yesterday granted leave to W. H. Trueman, appearing on behalf of Hugh McKenzie and R. H. McDonald, to lay information against Alex. McMicken, provincial police magistrate, for alleged misdemeanors in connection with the trial of two election impersonators arrested in Macdonald Oct. 12 at the instigation of the Opposition. McMicken heard the cases in private before the hour set for hearing and the court expressed no opinion on the merits of the question.

SOME MANUFACTURERS DID NOT KNOW ABOUT THE LETTER

It Was Sent to Hon. Adam Beck and City Council, With the Objection That Hydro Prices Were Indefinite and the Request That Consultation be Had by Council With Seymour Power Company.

Hon Adam Beck has answered the letter sent him by Mr. G. W. Hatton on behalf of the manufacturers of Peterborough, in which objection was made to the indefinite nature of the Commission's prices, and stating that they desired the Council to consult with the Seymour Power officials regarding competitive prices. The letter was a copy of the one which appeared in the local papers.

Mr Beck, in reply, stated that the Commission would be only too willing to furnish any further information desired as provided for in the Hydro Electric Power Commission Act.

"Did the manufacturers of Peterborough really request Mr. Hatton to write Hon. Mr. Beck?" asked Ald. Buller last night in Council

Mayor Bradburn—"All I know is that I inquired from two manufacturers, and they both said that they had never asked Mr Hatton to write.

Ald Duncan—"And I asked three and they knew nothing about it."

Ald Johnston—"Oh, well, let it stand, we will see about it later on."

The letter which was sent to Hon Mr. Beck was published on October 21st, and the names of about twenty-five or thirty manufacturing establishments were appended.

BETTER SATISFACTION FROM ROMAINE STREET SEWER

Pumps Now Working One Hour Each Day—What is the Cost?

Chairman Ald. Buller, of the City Board of Works, reported to the City Council last evening that the notorious "White Elephant" was at last working fairly satisfactory, and that it now requires to be pumped only one hour per day. Previously, the conditions necessitated the pumps working twenty-four hours, night and day, so that the improvement is obvious.

During a discussion on the sewer which has been a knotty problem for a long time, Alderman Buller stated that he felt that the city was now realizing its benefits. He considered that it was now proving to be a good investment for the money that had been expended. In view of the remarks which had been passed upon the dissatisfactory working of the sewer, the Chairman stated that he had opposed the building of it at its inception during the regime of Ald. Hicks as Chairman of the Board of Works.

The faithful services of the chairman in connection with the Romaine street sewer came in for recognition. Mayor Bradburn praised him for his work, and referred to the vast amount of time that Alderman Buller had spent trying to make the sewer operate satisfactorily. Whether it would continue to work satisfactorily he could not say, but Alderman Buller, he considered, certainly was deserving of credit for his services.

Ald. Morgan joined in the congratulatory remarks and told the chairman that he was heartily pleased to learn that his famous "White Elephant" was at last a paying proposition.

A detailed statement of the exact cost of the Romaine street sewer was to have been presented by Ald Buller last night but the City Engineer required a little more time before it would be ready.

MISSIONARY FOR MARK ST.

Resolution at Board Meeting Favors Such Action

The Quarterly Board of the Mark street church was held at Stewart's Hall on Monday evening. In point of attendance and interest it was one of the best Board meetings held for some time. Several matters of considerable importance were discussed

In accordance with the discipline a Committee on Temperance and Moral Reform was appointed as follows—Dr J. E. Middleton, chairman Fred Agnew, Ward Gamble, W. W. Brown, John Speer, T. J. Carr, J. E. Sargent, S. Deyell and J. W. Hanbridge It was resolved that the World's Temperance Sunday be observed, and that an effort be made to introduce the pledges into the Sunday school.

A young man from East City applied for exhortor's license. He passed the usual examination in a most creditable manner, and after several had expressed themselves as very much pleased with the young man's effort in the past, the license was granted

The question of the circuit undertaking the support of a missionary was also presented by the pastor A very interesting discussion followed, in which it was pointed out that already the Union Sunday School at Bethel had decided to support two children in one of the homes; that the Mission Band of Mark street were contemplating, either supporting a boy or girl: one of the ladies' Table classes was anxious to undertake some special object of support, while one member was now supporting a boy in an Indian school Mr. Robert Hanbridge expressed himself as heartily in support of the movement. Mr. John Speer concurred in the idea

It was finally moved by Mr. Robert Deyell, seconded by Mr. Fred. Agnew and carried unanimously that this circuit aim at raising sufficent funds as to warrant them in asking for a missionary of their own.

Prayer by T. E. Sargent, the Recording Secretary, brought a most excellent board meeting to a close

TWO CHARGES OF ASSAULT

Defendent is Bound Over to Keep the Peace

Charged with assault on two separate occasions, a local man was arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning on informations laid by a tool-maker.

Mr. D. O'Connell represented the complainant. The defendant conducted his own defence, owing to the absence from the city of his solicitor Mr. G. N. Gordon.

A young lady figured in the case, it being largely due to her that the bad feelings between the two men were due.

About a year ago the complainant said that he had kept company with the young lady. Of his own accord he ceased his attentions to here. The other man was also acquainted with her and had been in her company of late.

The complainant appeared to entertain a lingering regard for her, however, and noted his attentions. His reason for this he said was to assure himself that no advantage was taken of her.

On October 17th he watched the young man and the young lady enter her aunt's home where she resided and go into the dining room. Unable to control himself he entered the room by the rear door and confronted them both. He commenced to denounce defendant and asked him if he was not ashamed of himself. The words led to blows and the complainant alleged that he was struck several times and twice knocked down. The young lady's aunt then entered the room and ordered complainant out of the house.

The bruises and cuts on the face of the complainant necessitated medical treatment.

The second charge against the defendant of assault was alleged to have been committed on October 25th

He stated that he received a 'phone message to come out to the house of a farmer, an uncle of the young lady. On his arrival there he said that the uncle said he wished to come to an understanding regarding certain allegations which he wished complainant to retract. The latter asked the young man if there was any one else in the house, and was told that no one was in, save a little boy, who was in bed The whole story was then told by the complainant, and no sooner had he finished the telling than the kitchen door opened and the girl and the young man entered the room, having heard the entire conversation.

The girl's uncle then produced a document and demanded that complainant sign it, thereby retracting all allegations against the girl This he refused to do, after reading what the paper contained.

Complainant then endeavored to get out of the room, fearing bodily harm Finally he agreed to sign the paper in order to secure his liberty.

Under examination by Mr O'Connell, complainant stated that, fearing physical injury he had phoned for a policeman to accompany him home On their way home on Benson Ave., the officer noticed a man behind a tree, which on investigation, proved to be his assistant.

Mr O'Connell called the young lady and had her tell her story of the case in order that she might be given a chance to clear herself of the allegations against her. She emphatically denied that any questionable conduct occurred in the parlor of her aunt's home on the night of October 1st, and that what was seen was but a little innocent play

The conduct of the aggressor was denounced by the defence and was characterized as a high-handed daring proceeding upon the part of the uncle, inducing the tool maker to come to his house with the preconceived purpose of intimidating him and forcing him to sign the document.

His Worship was of the view that the first case, however, should be dismissed with costs of $2.60, which complainant paid, remarking that the tool maker certainly should not have entered the house. It was a case, he thought, in which complainant should not have interfered, seeing that he was not a guardian or particular friend of the girl, and he should not have interfered.

In the second case, however, he felt that there had been a conspiracy to get the man to the house for the purpose of forcing him to sign the document by intimidation. He also felt that as he was apparently in bodily fear of harm his assailant should be bound over to keep the peace. He accordingly had the necessary papers prepared binding him over to the extent of $500.

The latter announced his willingness to abide by the arrangement. He, however, announced his firm determination to lay an information against the tool maker, charging him with assault, claiming that he had been laid up two weeks from an assault upon him.

The brick made in the yards along the Hudson River in New York since 1901, if laid flat would make a sidewalk twenty feet wide around the world.

WRIT AGAINST THE CITY BY SOUTHERN TOWNSHIPS

Will Seek an Injunction to Prevent City From Pollut- the River.

Hunter St. Bridge By-law May Come Before Ratepayers in January.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry, on behalf of the townships of Otonabee, North Monaghan and South Monaghan, have at last issued a writ for an injunction to restrain the city from further polluting the Otonabee river with sewage, and for damages

The City Solicitor has been authorized by the Council to take the steps necessary to protect the interests of the city in connection with the writ.

JAMES STREET SIDEWALK

Mr. George Hutchison, 129 James street, complained of the bad condition of the sidewalk on that street, and requested that something be done to safeguard pedestrians. The letter has been referred to the Board of Works.

Ald Morgan said that the complaint was well justified, as he knew the sidewalks there to be in very bad condition. He asked the chairman of the Board of Works to pull up the present walk and lay a cinder track temporarily. The East City aldermen also again reminded Ald. Buller of the bad condition of the road on Concession street. The work of repairing the latter, however, has been commenced. Ald. Morgan felt that East City was not receiving the attention that it should in the matter of improvement work.

To this Ald. Buller replied that in East City the Board of Works expended more money than in any of the other wards.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

The East City alderman also suggested the commencement of negotiations again for the construction of a new Hunter street bridge, now that the Seymour Power Company has intimated a willingness to bear part of the cost.

Ald. Duffus, in supporting the suggestion, considered that it would be a good business proposition for the city to get busy with the bridge.

"Submit it to the people," he said, "when ready, and if they turn it down why all right. It would certainly develop that part of the city."

Ald. Anderson—"The crying need of East City is a street car service."

Mayor Bradburn informed the Council that they had been waiting for Hon. Mr. Cochrane to visit here, but so far the latter had been unable to make connections. The Mayor suggested, however, that the matter be discussed with J. J. G. Kerry, of the Seymour Power Company, and afterwards, if it looks feasible, to have the cost estimated as closely as possible and arrange to submit a bridge by-law at the January municipal elections.

The proposal met with general approval by Council.

LIGHT FOR DARK PLACES

Twelve Incadescents Authorized —Light or Gates at Hunter St.

A resolution to authorize the placing of incandescent lights at the following localities was carried by the Fire, Water and Light Committee last evening during a brief session: Kendry's crossing, on Water st.; Dabb's Lane; Thomas St.; Victoria Ave.; Rink St. railway crossing; Corner of Perry and Bethune Sts.; Corner of Stewart and Smith Sts.; Downie St., near Dublin, and Donegal St.; two on Woodbine Ave., and two on Concession St.

HUNTER ST. CROSSING.

Mayor Bradburn was of the opinion that either a light should be placed at the Hunter street crossing or the railway company asked to supply gates. It was at this place that the young Indian suffered the loss of a limb, being run over by a passing train.

Fire Chief Howard reported a total of twenty-five lights out during the month of October.

A matter of building a porch at the Fire Hall and the purchasing of six pairs of rubber boots for the firemen was left in the hands of Chairman Gillespie.

DIFFERENCE IN PRICES OF PEAS

Higher Quotation in Norwood and Hastings than Peterboro

A grain and produce dealer from Norwood was in the city yesterday with a consignment of peas, and was very much surprised when told that the market price was $1.25 per bushel.

He said he had been offered $1.70 in Norwood and $1.65 in Hastings. Why there should be such a difference was a puzzle.

The solution may be that the two buyers with the high price wished to complete a shipment and were willing to boost the price.

The season has not been a good one for peas, owing to the wet weather.

Silage is Cheap Food

From the standpoint of cost of feed, silage stands in a class by itself. It is by far, the cheapest rough-feed that a farmer can have. From the standpoint of digestible nutrients it is superior to practically all other feeds. That is, $1 worth of silage contains more—and generally many times more—digestible nutrients than other feeds, whether they be cotton-seed meal, oil-meal, gluten feed, oats, corn, barley, hay or straw, or any other feed. We have but to visit the farms where silos are being used to appreciate that practice supports theory regarding the economy of the ration.

WOLGAST DREW WITH MONDOT

Both Fighters Had to Stand Considerable Punishment

New Orleans, Nov. 5—Lightweight Champion Ad. Wolgast and Joe Mandot of New Orleans divided honors in a ten round no decision bout here last night. Both took a lot of punishment, but at the end neither had the advantage, according to a decision of the newspaper men. Although Mandot was credited with having the better of four of the ten rounds, Wolgast with one, while the others were even, the champion's in-fighting and early aggressiveness won for him the unofficial draw decision.

MARVELS OF PANAMA.

The Gatun Dam, the Culebra Cut and the Great Locks.

Panama's marvels are the Gatun dam, the Culebra cut and the locks, each of the six of them with two chambers 1,000 feet long and 110 feet wide.

You think you can manufacture a mental picture of these locks, but you cannot—not till you have gone down their perpendicular sides a thousand feet and got aboard a dummy train that journeys three-fourths of a mile along the bottom; not till you have looked up and seen the cathedral arches springing in glory from side to side and gazed at the steel gates seven feet thick and marked the cistern holes in the bottom of the channel, up and down through which will move the strong streams that will lift and let down the ships of the nations into their cradles with the tenderness of a mother with an infant, for underneath extend culverts the size of railroad tunnels. It is through these and through mighty valves that the locks are filled and emptied.

Move about awhile among these works like a pygmy lost in a labyrinth of the gods and it will dawn on you what sort of thing men have been about here on this neck of Darien.—World's Work.

Iodine Fumigation.

Although for disinfecting superficial wounds and for sterilizing the skin before operations surgeons have long regarded iodine as one of the most useful antiseptics, they have been unable to find a practical way of using it in liquid form in deep wounds. Dr. Louge of Marseilles, France, has devised a method of producing iodine fumes and has used them successfully in treating all kinds of wounds. He dips the end of a piece of cotton in iodoform powder and then lights the cotton at a point where it is free from powder. The fumes of iodine that at once rise can either be applied directly to the affected part or collected [illegible] means of a syringe. The effect of the fumes is both deodorant and soothing. They have been especially useful in the treatment of abscesses, cancers and similar affections.—Youth's Companion.

No Kissing Permitted.

Visitors to Switzerland are warned that kissing is strictly prohibited in the station and on the platforms of Sarnen, in the canton of Obwald, on the Brunig line, and that any such demonstration will result in the arrest and fining of the participants. A large placard bearing the following inscription has just been placed in the station with the consent of the local authorities:

"Notice.—Considering the abuses which have resulted, messieurs the honorable strangers are requested not to kiss each other on the platforms of the station. (Signed) The Society For the Protection of Young Girls Traveling Alone."

MAN OR MOUSE?

Lorena Had Her Pretty Eyes Opened.

By MARTHA M'C.-WILLIAMS.

The water, laughing and lapping, invited. The day was giddy May, and the invited young Lorena, moreover, owned all the folly normal to nineteen. So altogether it would have been a miracle if things had gone exactly as they should. A proper young woman of course would have reckoned chances before baring her feet and dancing joyously in midstream, where the pebbles lay smoothly bedded in fine sand and gleaming jewel-wise wherever a sun ray struck through the ripples.

Lorena did not let herself remember that the ford was but fifty yards higher up or that this special shallow reach of the creek lay between the two lakes that gave the finest fishing. They were not true lakes, of course—only water mirrors, still and deep, impounded by dams of the winter flood's building. Lorena did not love them. They were so placid they reminded her somehow of Johnny, and whatever did that put her out of temper.

She loved glitter, motion, excitement. It was ecstasy to her to dance all day long and half the night after, footing it as lightly as wind blown thistle seed. If only she could dance alone! But since that was out of the question she naturally preferred partners who kept step and were nimble. Johnny was neither, yet all the time she had been engaged to him he had felt it his right to say if she did not dance with him she must dance with hardly anybody else.

And not at all with Granville Gore, the very prince of partners, who was handsome and slender and light hearted, with money in both pockets and a trick of spending it with both hands. Johnny hated him, without reason so far as Lorena could see—at least he gave her no reason—only said, "If you are goin' ever to belong to me, Lollie, you must be barely civil to that fellow."

Somehow the emphasis on the last word always made Lorena shiver when she recalled it. How could she help it when Johnny was toward other folk the soul of kindly justice? Still she had felt that he was unfair. If he really new anything he might let her know it likewise.

If Johnny could have brought himself to tell her the break might not have come. But he was too proud and masterful for that. His wife must believe in him enough to understand that he had reasons for any and every thing. Besides, he was afraid of seeming envious and jealous of a man so much richer and better looking. Moreover, he did not really know much that could be told categorically. It was Gore's general air and manner, conjoined to words dropped here and there, that made Johnny certain he had no real reverence for anything feminine. A girl, any girl, was fair game to him. If she hadn't sense enough to look out for herself he was not bound to look out for her. Yet Gore was not distinctly vicious—rather, inordinately vain. He did not mean worse by womankind and girlkind than to make love to them, then ride away. Marry! Not he—not the finest girl alive!

If Lorena had known that! Unknowing it, she had thought a great many times and a great many things of the fascinating Granville in the three months since the break. He had been away for two of them, and since he came home she had seen him only in crowds. But he had used his eyes so eloquently as to set her heart wildly fluttering. But, oddly enough, it had fluttered even more when by chance she had encountered Johnny in his working clothes, driving his wagon to the mill.

They had barely nodded to each other, and she had ridden fast afterward, but not fast enough to get away from a sense that Johnny, old Johnny, although his face was impassive, had turned to look after her as long as she was in sight.

Today she was not thinking of him—hardly even of Granville. Wading was such pure joy. The water came above her ankles. She lifted her skirts lightly in both hands and balanced to her shadow upon the rippling stream, such a funny shadow, dancing grotesquely even when she stood still.

Rapt in contemplation of it, she did not hear footsteps or anything until a throaty, chuckling voice cried: "Oh, ho! A mermaid! Gore, if the variety is indigenous, understand, I shall settle in your neighborhood just as soon as I can buy a place."

Lorena flushed scarlet. She let fall her skirts, heedless of water—heedless, indeed, of anything but escape. There were men on either bank; also one in wading approaching her midstream. Gore was the farthest of them—a Gore she had never seen. He looked her over as though she were a part, a curious part, of the landscape with which he had no sort of acquaintance.

It was the man in wading who had spoken. He was striding on toward her, his rod over his shoulder, a broad grin upon his flat, red face. Her sunbonnet, her faded print frock, above all her present case, had nearly made him believe her some hoydenish milkmaid rather than mermaid.

"Didn't I tell you fellows the finest fish were here in the shallows?" he bellowed at the men on the bank. "Never yet made such a catch," he added, making to fling an arm about Lorena's waist.

She evaded him, springing to one side and trying to gain the bank, but the sportsmen there set up a laughing shout which warned her not to trust them. Desperately she fled upstream, cutting her feet on sharp stones, but never faltering. It was not easy to run against the current—the rock bottom was slippery in places and her wet skirt hampered her terribly.

Still she kept out of reach until she was twenty yards off the ford. The flat faced man, laughing and panting after her, caught her there and said as he gave her a resounding kiss: "'Pon my soul, Undine, it was worth it. I haven't had such a lark since I was a boy."

Lorena broke from him, crying wildly: "Granville! Mr. Gore! Kill this creature!"

At that the men laughed louder than ever. Granville had discreetly disappeared. He was sorry for Lorena; also angry with her, even angrier than with his friend of the flat, red face. There were millions back of the flat, red face—millions that might mean much to Gore's future. Was he to risk their help, to invite everlasting chaff, to make himself the butt of the grill rooms next time he was in town, by championship of a girl, a silly country girl, who should have known better than to put herself in such case?

Mullen, he of the flat, red face, was not a bad sort, only full of uncouth spirits. Lorena would come to no harm. And if she had sense enough to keep her mouth shut he (Gore) would see to it that she was handsomely made up to for her present fright. But of course he could not acknowledge her as an acquaintance when she looked such a guy and had let herself get caught in such a plight.

Lorena, noting his absence, stumbled blindly toward the bank and half fell upon it, covering her eyes with both hands. Mullen scrambled out beside her and tried to lift her to her feet, the rest jeering him, pretending to say things aside and singing in cracked chorus, "Where is my wandering boy?"

They were laughing so loud, watching so intently, Johnny fell upon them like a thunderbolt from blue skies. Johnny was still in working clothes. He had, in fact, started to the blacksmith's shop in a mad hurry in hope of getting a dulled plow point sharpened. So he had come to the ford in the very nick of time to see that a woman was in need of help and to rush to give it.

"Gentlemen"—Johnny's voice cut like ice—"you must show me your warrant for taking a prisoner. Unless you do"—He stopped short there, his face white, his eyes two points of flame. Even yet he did not know, but a second later Lorena was beside him, clinging to him, burying her face in his rough sleeve and sobbing out: "Johnny, save me! Take me away! Don't stop to fight them—only take me and go!"

"Not yet," Johnny said, putting her gently away.

The events of the next five minutes are better left unchronicled. Suffice it that Mr. Granville Gore and his sportsmen friends from the city went away on the night train, at least two of the visitors carrying beautiful black eyes. As to how the eyes had been achieved there was discreet silence, but when in the fall Lorena and Johnny were married there came to the bride a chest of massive silver, along with an unsigned note which ran: "Please accept this in token of forgiveness. Remember, you owe me something—in that I gave you occasion to find out the difference there is between a man and a mouse."

Lorena was for sending it back, but Johnny laughed and said: "Mullen is right. He is a man. You can drub a man into decency, but a mouse always runs away."

"And I hate mice of every sort," Lorena added with a pensive smile.

"Rascal" was a term originally applied in England to a lean and worthless deer.

Champlain's Monument.

Champlain sailed along the Maine coast several years before he discovered the lake which bears his name, and a monument was erected to his memory on the cliffs of Mount Desert island, near Seal Harbor, in 1904. That date marked the three hundredth anniversary of Champlain's voyage, and an extract from his journal (in translation) appears upon a bronze tablet on one face of the monument. Facing the sea is another tablet, bearing the following inscription: "In honor of Samuel de Champlain, born in France, 1567; died at Quebec, 1635; soldier, sailor, explorer and administrator, who gave this island its name." The monument, which consists of a large rectangular slab of the granite of the cliffs, was set up and dedicated in 1904 by a little company of summer residents of Mount Desert island, among whom were President Eliot of Harvard, President Gilman of Johns Hopkins and Bishop Doane of Albany.

A Call to Patriotism.

Our country is so big that we may sometimes feel that we cannot "take it all in." Well, that's just where the opportunity and the challenge lie. I must be large hearted if I am going to measure up to my country, for, in that old oratorical phrase, she reaches from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the gulf of Mexico. To be a base hearted man in America is worse than to be evil in any other country, and to throw away chances here is more unworthy than anywhere else in the world. It was a new call to me as I came back home from continents cut up like checkerboards to a continent spread out like a wheatfield. I did not love Europe less, but I did love America more, and I think I had the right to do so, for it seemed to me at that moment as if I owed to my land everything in me that could be called big or noble or fair or decent or worth while.—George Lawrence Parker in St. Nicholas.

Germany Asking "Why?"

Germany is beginning to be troubled over the declining birth rate throughout the empire. Last year the excess of births over deaths in Prussia was 490,000, but in 1910 it was 581,000, showing a loss of excess in one year of 91,000, or nearly 16 per cent. In Bavaria the excess of births over deaths in 1910 was 84,000 and in 1911 only 73,000, a loss in excess of 11,000, or over 11 per cent. The complete statistics for the empire are not yet available, but the Berlin statisticians regard it as certain that the year's increase in population will be less than 750,000. As a result the government of Prussia has instituted an inquiry into the causes of the decline.—Exchange.

Dyes In Turkish Rugs.

Within the last few years vegetable dyes have been superseded in the Turkish rug making industry to a great extent by coal tar and aniline preparations, owing partly to the lower price of the latter, partly to the difficulty of getting enough of the vegetable dyes to supply the fast growing business. The aniline dyes soon fade in the sunlight, whereas the vegetable dyes will not fade either in washing or in the sunlight and will grow softer, richer and glossier with the passing years.

Pearls and Diamonds In a Carpet.

A carpet which took three years in the making is one of the treasures of the much talked of gaekwar of Baroda. The carpet is only ten feet by six feet in size, but it is woven from strings of pure pearls, with a center and corner circles of diamonds. The magnificent fabric cost £200,000 and is guarded in the maharajah's treasure room.

A College For Firemen.

There has been established in New York a college for firemen, where the city firemen are trained in the best method of fighting flames and to meet the emergencies which may arise. A feature of the curriculum is to have the firemen drop from the edge of a six story building into a net below.

Under certain conditions, local authorities in Prussia are permitted to tax incomes below $225 a year.

WANTS SMALLER PAPER MONEY

Secretary MacVeagh's Plan to Reduce the Size of Banknotes.

The size of all United States currency and national banknotes will be reduced by one-third and their designs revolutionized for the sake of economies to the government, convenience to the public and safety against counterfeiting if Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury has his way.

It is proposed to make the dimensions 6 by 2½ inches. The paper money now in circulation measures 7.28 by 3.04 inches. The designs of all paper money—United States notes and certificates and national bank notes—would be systematized and made uniform for every denomination.

This move is expected to save the government about $900,000 annually and the national banks, which pay for the plates for their notes and part of the cost of redemption, about $200,000.

For many months the only deterrent to the step by executive authorities has been the belief that it would be necessary for congress to appropriate about $1,000,000 to replace the national bank plates which have been paid for by the national banks. This problem has been solved by a plan to have the general design of all national bank notes uniform, requiring only one engraved plate for each denomination, and to place on the notes by surface printing the name, location and charter number of the bank. This would do away with separate plates for each bank.

Eighteen months would be required to effect the change. To meet the objection that for a time at least there would be two sizes of currency in circulation it has been suggested that the government print in advance a sufficient quantity of the notes of the new size to be exchanged at the subtreasuries and national banks on a fixed date. The change could be substantially accomplished within a few days, treasury officials believe.

There are now nineteen different designs of currency. The change would reduce these to nine. Each denomination would be characterized by a distinctively American historical portrait engraved in the center of the note. In time the portrait would be a distinguishing feature of each denomination and would be a safeguard against counterfeiting, especially the prevalent practice of raising a note to a higher denomination.—Kansas City Star.

THE GREAT AMERICAN "ELIJAH"

Mr. Gwilym Miles requires no introduction to music lovers in America. His magnificent voice and his inspirational delivery of sacred music are well known all over the United States. His rendering of the prophetic character in the Opera "Elijah" has made [illegible] impression. Mr. Miles is a modest American, who never studied abroad but found the secret to his art in his own country.

Though still a comparatively young man, Mr. Miles has earned the distinction of being known as "The Great American Elijah." ld

HAPPY THOUGHT

The "Heat-Where-You-Want-It" Idea

Sometimes a range is judged by its fancy trimmings—by the size of its firebox—by the number of holes, or the size of its oven—or by its general appearance.

All these things are important. But the most important for you to consider is:—What will the range you buy do for you?

What return in actual service will you get from the range itself and from every ounce of fuel you put into it?

Behind "Happy Thought" Ranges, you must remember, there is the experience of over twenty-five years—a quarter of a century of sustained effort to produce the best.

The aim of the makers has been from the first to produce a stove that will give the largest possible return in perfect service.

So you find to-day that the "Happy Thought" is not only the best for baking, but also for roasting, frying, grilling, broiling, stewing and all other forms of cooking.

A sane design proportions this range so that you have the heat at the holes or in the oven just where and when you want it, and in the volume you require.

A simple demonstration will prove this to you as it is already known to a Quarter Million Canadian women who use the "Happy Thought" every day.

TWO CASES OF FIRE WHERE FAMILIES WERE ABSENT

Interior of Aylmer Street Home Damaged — The Breadman's Call Prevented Loss in Bethune Street Home.

Fire broke out in the rear of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. L. Green, 576 Aylmer street, about 10 o'clock last night. Mr. G. B. Richardson, who lives next door, sent in the alarm by telephone. A line of hose was laid, and with the assistance of a few chemicals the fire was soon extinguished. The damage is about $200.

Mr Green was out of town at the time of the fire, and Mrs. Green was not at home. It is not known how the fire originated.

A LUCKY CALL

When Joseph Sanderson, a driver for Stock's bakery, called at 173 Simcoe street, shortly after eleven o'clock this morning, he found the house filled with smoke and the family absent.

Wood had been left in the stove to dry, became ignited, and the fire spread to other wood beside the stove. Sanderson made a quick run to the nearby fire hall, and as the firemen displayed the same activity, the blaze was extinguished before damage resulted.

WILSON FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

BALKAN FIGHTING CONTINUES

VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS WON BY NEW JERSEY GOVERNOR

Woodrow Wilson Will Have 400 Electoral Votes.

Maine Goes Democrat For the First Time in History.

Col. Roosevelt and President Taft Were Left Far Behind.

Special To The Review.

New York, Nov. 6.—This morning's returns gives President Taft just three States, Vermont, Utah and Idaho, with twelve electoral votes. In Pennsylvania with something over half the vote counted. Roosevelt had twenty thousand plurality and has certainly carried the State. Roosevelt will have nearly one hundred electoral votes and Wilson four hundred. The doubtful States are Minnesota, New Hampshire, South Dakota and Wyoming.

DEMOCRATS IN MAINE.

Portland, Maine, Nov. 6.—For the first time in its history Maine will send Democratic electors to the Electoral College. Wilson now leads Roosevelt by over two thousand, with fifty precincts to be heard from.

New York, Nov. 6.—The greatest political upheaval in the history of the world has just taken place in the United States. From the northern border to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific come returns of a Democratic landslide, and though a few corrections may have to be made in the final accounting, no material difference will be shown in the final result. It was a Waterloo for the Republican party, and its ignominious defeat may forever blast its hope of dominating America. Woodrow Wilson, the schoolmaster of New Jersey, has been elected President of the United States by a united Democracy, and Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana has been elected to the vice-presidency. Theodore Roosevelt, twice President of the United States, will run a poor second to Wilson, and William Howard Taft is a bad third.

The united Democracy must give Theodore Roosevelt credit for aiding in their overwhelming victory, for he rent asunder the rock-ribbed Republican party by withdrawing from its ranks and establishing the Progressive party, which now bids fair to establish itself upon foundations once occupied by the Republican party, and become its successor.

The following list of states shows the latest estimate of the returns, which are still incomplete. After each state appears the number of electoral votes in the college:

Wilson.

Albama, 12; Arizona, 3; Arkansas, 9; Colorado, 6; Connecticut, 7; Delaware, 3; Florida, 6; Georgia, 14; Indiana, 16; Iowa, 13; Kentucky, 13; Louisiana, 10; Maine, 6; Maryland, 8; Massachusetts, 18; Michigan, 15; Minnesota, 12; Mississippi, 10; Missouri, 18; Montana, 4; Nebraska, 8; Navada, 3; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 14; New York, 45; North Carolina, 12; North Dakota, 5; Ohio, 24; Oklahoma, 10; Pennsylvania, 38; Rhode Island, 5; South Carolina, 9; Tennessee, 12; Texas, 20; Utah, 4; Virginia, 12; Wisconsin, 19.—Total, 432.

Roosevelt.

California, 13; Illinois, 29; Kansas, 10; New Mexico, 4; Oregon, 5; South Dakota, 5; Vermont, 4; Washington, 7.—Total, 76.

Taft.

Idaho, 4; West Virginia, 8; Wyoming, 3.—Total, 15.

Wilson carried his own state of New Jersey. President Taft lost his own State of Ohio to Wilson, and Col. Roosevelt lost his own State of New York, which Governor Wilson carried by an indicated plurality of 130,000. President Taft carried New York four years ago by 202,602.

The first time since the organization of the Republican party a Democratic candidate will get the electoral vote of Maine, which was carried by the Republicans in the state election in September by 4,000. Wilson carried it yesterday by more than 12,000.

Under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson the Democratic party has won its greatest victory since 1852.

But this victory is no tawdry partisan triumph. It is no vote of confidence in the Democratic party as a party. It is a mandate from the people, and woe be unto the leaders of this democracy if they falter in obedience to that mandate.

Not since 1872 has the country been swept by such an electoral plurality, nor does this apply alone to the head of the ticket, but to the control of Congress, which President-elect Wilson so much desired. That his wishes in this respect have been gratified is indicated by the returns, which up to midnight showed that he will go to the White House with both a Senate and House of Representatives that will be in sympathy with progressive ideals. In the Senate, which has been so evenly balanced between the Old Guard and the Progressives and Democrats that it has been impossible for months to elect a President pro tempore, the returns seem to show that enough legislative timber has been returned in crucial states to throw the balance of power to the Democrats, through the consequent elections of Progressives where the Old Guard held sway.

There is a strong probability that there will be an actual working Democratic majority in the Senate, although, as that factor of the situation depends upon the actions of the Legislatures just elected, and not yet altogether pledged, the accurate story cannot be told until the Legislatures themselves get into action.

Wilson's Message.

Princeton, N.J., Nov. 6.—Responding to a telegram from the Democratic national chairman, asserting that Governor Wilson unquestionably was elected, the Democratic candidate sent a despatch to Mr. McCombs as follows:

"I deeply appreciate your telegram and wish to extend to you and the members of the campaign committee my warm congratulations on the part you have played in the organization and conduct of a campaign fought out upon essential issues.

"A great cause has triumphed. Every Democrat, every true Progressive, of whatever alliance, must now lend his full force and enthusiasm to the fulfilment of the people's hope, the establishment of the people's right, so that justice and progress may go hand in hand."

This was Governor Wilson's first utterance of a public character following his reception of reports that he had been elected.

Strong Man Cyr Dying.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—Louis Cyr, "the strongest man in the world," is dying at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. Aumont, this city.

Louis Cyr, born at St. Cyprien, Que., is now 49 years old. He started his career in 1882, and in 1891 the millionaire sportsman, Richard Fox, took him under management and produced him in all the European capitals. In London Cyr established an unequalled record by lifting with his shoulders a platform weight of 3,635 pounds. In 1895 Cyr beat his own record in Boston by lifting a platform carrying eighteen men, weighing in all 4,300 pounds. Cyr retired in 1904 after having given exhibitions all over America.

THE STANDING AT NOON

Special To The Review.

New York, Nov. 6— At noon to-day, the States stand as follows— Taft has Idaho, Utah and Vermont, with a total of twelve electoral votes.

Roosevelt has Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Kansas and Washington, with ninety-nine votes. Five are doubtful, namely, New Hampshire, Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota and Wyoming, with 37 votes.

Wilson has the other thirty-five states with 381 votes.

Chicago, Nov. 6— With three-fifths of the Illinois vote counted Roosevelt's apparently sweeping plurality is repeatedly being cut down to a disappearing point, standing now only eight thousand over Wilson.

Dunn, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is elected with sixty thousand plurality, and the entire Republican state and Congressional ticket including the former speaker, Joe Cannon, is wiped out

New York, Nov. 6— The new house representatives stands — Democrats, 255; Republicans, 94; Progressives, 6; unreported, 80. Total, 435; thus indicating a sure large Democratic majority.

New York, Nov. 6— Later returns transfer New Hampshire from the doubtful to the Wilson column. Of the four remaining doubtful States, Wilson is leading in Iowa, Minnesota and Wyoming and Roosevelt in South Dakota.

PRESIDENT TAFT.

TORONTO MEN WILL STRIKE

C.P.R. Clerks and Freight Handlers Decide by Vote.

Mosher Says Strikers Will Win the Fight.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Before to-night most of the C.P.R. freight clerks employed at West Toronto, Parkdale, North Toronto and Simcoe street, all members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Employes, will be out on strike. This action was decided upon at the mass meeting held last night in Occident Hall.

J. D. Sullivan, general organizer, addressed the meeting dealing with the question of clerical and freight-handling systems. "Other classes of railroad men have been receiving increases through unionism. We, on the other hand, who up to the present time have not been organized have been getting nothing," he said.

"A few months ago a schedule showing the demands of the employes was presented to the C.P.R. for their consideration. This they saw fit to ignore. The brotherhood then appealed to the Minister of Labor for a settlement of their grievances. At first he told them to leave the matter in his hands and that he would affect a settlement with the C.P.R. Until a few days ago the brotherhood was led to believe that the Minister of Labor was entirely in sympathy with them, but then for some unknown reason he took a directly opposite stand, and refused to grant a board of conciliation. The Minister of Labor has not done his duty to the public, much less to the Brotherhood of Railroad Employes," said Mr. Sullivan.

"The Minister of Labor has said that it is not possible to arrange such a schedule as the employes submitted to the C.P.R., but," said Mr. Sullivan, "this was done in another department of the Government, namely, the Intercolonial Railway, the employes of which submitted just such a schedule and had their grievances adjusted satisfactorily. If this could be done in one department of the Government, why could it not be done by the Department of Labor, which is supposed to deal with such cases?" he asked.

Says Strikers Will Win.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, declared yesterday that he was more than satisfied with the progress of the strike.

His information was that 2,000 were out, and he predicted than 6,000 will be out by the end of the week.

"The company is simply bluffing," said Mr. Mosher, "in saying that they have plenty of men to fill the vacant positions. They also say we cannot hold out on account of lack of funds. We have funds for six months, and can get backing for longer if necessary."

Fill Places at Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—The Canadian Pacific officials profess to look upon the strike now as practically a thing of the past. It is stated that nearly all of the men who went out Monday morning had been replaced, some of them permanently, and only a few were now out at Ottawa and Smith's Falls.

SIGN WITH THE HYDRO ELECTRIC

Brantford and Paris Sign the Power Contracts.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Brantford and Paris have signed contracts with the Hydro-Electric Commission for supplies of power. The municipalities of Simcoe, Waterford and Burford are now negotiating with the commission, and engineers representing the latter are ascertaining what power requirements exist there. Brantford's decision to take Hydro has made it possible for these smaller municipalities to secure a supply. The line supplying them will be built from Brantford.

WOODROW WILSON, PRESIDENT
THOMAS R. MARSHALL, VICE PRESIDENT

DIVORCE CASES FOR THE HOUSE

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—From present indications, there will not be a particularly heavy list of private bills at the forthcoming session of Parliament.

An exception, however, is the divorce cases, which number 30, so far, and thus exceed all records.

The country is now covered with blanket railway charters, but while a large number of the concerns will seek time extensions, new lines are in prospect.

What may be lacking in private legistation, however, will be more than made up by the extensive list of Government bills. The Bank Act is now being fully revised and along with it a bill for the regulation of savings banks.

An expert board to advise the Marine and Fisheries Department regarding the fishing industry generally is being considered by the Minister. The idea is to have all branches of the fishing industry — deep seas, coastal and lakes and rivers—represented on an advisory board which would meet regularly and deal first hand with questions affecting the fisheries.

Must Be Real Good, Or—

St. Catharines, Nov. 6.—Jas. Logue, the Merritton man, who was convicted on the charge of attempting an indecent assault upon a thirteen-year-old girl, was allowed out on his personal recognizance of $500 yesterday.

County Judge Carman, after reminding Logue of the enormity of his crime, told him he must appear on March 1st, and if he had not kept completely from liquor, he will then be sentenced to a term with lashes. Judge Carman took into consideration the delicate condition of the prisoner's wife, and the fact that he was under the influence of liquor when the crime was committed.

TURKISH GOVERNMENT TO PRESERVE ORDER IN CAPITAL

Many Families Leaving Constantinople While Suburban Residents Are Seeking Refuge in the City—Bulgarians Said to Have Begun Attacks on Tchatalija — Turkey Appeals Again in Vain.

Special To The Review.

Constantinople, Nov. 6.—The Turkish Governments seems able to control the situation in the Capital, and vigorous measures have been taked for the preservation of order. Nevertheless numerous families continue to leave for abroad and many suburban residents are seeking refuge in the city.

London, Nov. 6.—If, as reported, the Bulgarian attack on Tchatalja forts has already begun, no details have yet been received. Doubtless the Turks may be fighting small engagements with a view to delaying the Bulgarian advance, but it is hardly likely that the Bulgarian army has sufficiently recovered after recent exertions to undertake a sustained battle. The Bulgarians are now a long distance from their base of supplies, and the four days' battle must have necessitated a renewal of the supplies of food and ammunition.

The fact that the Servian army has been called to the aid of the Bulgarians is held by some to indicate that the Bulgarians realize that it will be no easy task to reduce Constantinople. The report that the Constantinople water supply has been cut off is not confirmed. Derkos, where the cutting is alleged to have occurred, is within the Tchatalja lines.

The Porte is redoubling its efforts to save the capital, and has made a second appeal to France for mediation. But there is no sign that the powers will move in the matter unless the allied states make a similar application, which is exceedingly unlikely.

In the meantime the Turks continue mobilising at Tchatalja. Constantinople is quiet, but the embassies have applied to the Porte for permission for the passage of a second cruiser of each power through the Dardanelles.

Scutari and Adrianople still hold out, and there is no important news from the field of operations in other directions.

In reply to the Turkish request for mediation, the Russian Government informed the Turkish ambassador that Russia was willing to mediate in cooperation with the other powers, provided they were given "pliens pouvoirs" (full powers).

Turkey Again Appeals.

Paris, Nov. 6.—The Turkish ambassador, Rifaat Pasha, presented to M. Poincare, the Premier and Foreign Minister, last evening the request of the Turkish Government for mediation, and the Foreign Office immediately took steps to acquaint the other powers with the new Ottoman proposal. The Turkish note says:

"The Ottoman Government requests the great powers to undertake collective mediation, with a view to the immediate cessation of hostilities and the determination of conditions of peace."

Before undertaking to act, M. Poincare emphasized the fact that it must be clearly understood that all idea of exercising pressure was excluded and that the powers could not undertake the task unless all the belligerents were agreeable.

On Rifaat Pasha signifying his agreement with this view, M. Poincare notified all the powers that France was ready to join with them in the action requested by Turkey.

Austria to Make Concessions.

Budapest, Nov. 6.—The Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count von Berchthold, in a statement yesterday to the Foreign Affairs committee of the Austrian delegation on the situation in the Balkans, after referring to the exchange of views by the powers and expressing the hope that this could result in extinguishing the conflagration as soon as possible, said:

"Whereas the Balkan states originally demanded administrative reforms for the improvement of the condition of their race brethren in Turkey, the successes they have gained in the war have considerably enlarged their aspirations, which no longer are consistent with the principle of the integrity of Turkey. While the policy of Austria is not influenced by any tendency toward expansion, our guiding care must be to combine, according to the need, the maintenance of peace with the supreme duty imposed upon us of defending the interests of the monarchy from any impairment. * * * That we can make our voice heard we do not doubt, and that we may be able to do so without coming into conflict with the rightful claim of others, we are prepared to make large allowance for the new situation created by the victories of the Balkan states, and thus lay the foundation of a lasting and friendly understanding with them.

"On the other hand, we have the right to demand that the legitimate interests of the monarchy suffer no harm from the new settlement of things."

DISCOURAGES THE CONTEST

Laurier Advises Hochelaga Liberals to go Slowly.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—There will be no contest in Hochelaga unless the Nationalists make a fight. Sir Wilfrid Laurier wrote to the local executive yesterday, strongly urging them not to make a fight in this division on the naval policy of the Government until that policy has been announced, and his advice will, of course, be acted upon. The letter Sir Wilfrid sent is, in part, as follows:

"Before his departure for London, and since his return to Canada, the Prime Minister has declared that, after consultation with the Admiralty, he would make known his naval policy to the people of Canada.

"We do not know as yet in what this policy consists, and notwithstanding the resignation of one of his colleagues, we do not know more than imperfectly the real cause of this disagreement. The session will open in a few days, and the Government will have to acquaint us with the negotiations that have been had with the Imperial authorities, the program agreed upon and the divergence of opinion between the Minister who has resigned and his colleagues.

"I recognise the desire of the Liberals of Hochelaga to oppose the candidature of the new Minister and to show once more their allegiance to the Liberal cause. Our naval policy is known. It has not changed since March 29, 1909, but would it be opportune to take up the fight before knowing what is the new policy of the Government? I have said many times since the last conference at London that I would await the explanations of the Government before discussing their naval policy.

"It is before Parliament that the naval policy may be announced, and in my opinion it is there that it must be judged on its merits and combatted if there is need."

Rev. J. J. MacNeill Silent.

London, Nov. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Regarding Rev. J. J. MacNeil's call to Toronto, the minister warns his Liverpool congregation not to be influenced by anything in the newspapers. The presbytery would not meet until the 11th inst., and he was unable to say anything until afterwards.

THE HELP GIVEN TO EDUCATION

Is Referred to in Opening of Quebec Legislature.

Quebec, Nov. 6.—Lieutenant-Governor Langelier, in the course of his address in opening the Legislature yesterday, referred to the work of the Government in advancing the spread of education and the establishment of two normal schools, one at St. Hyacinthe and the other at Joliette in this connection. Over forty schools, he said, had shared in the appropriations voted in favor of those municipalities establishing commercial academies.

The encouragement given to municipalities which increased the salaries of teachers, was also bearing fruit.

His honor said that the Government was going to take steps to render the lessons of the child's welfare exhibition held in Montreal as effective as possible. A revision of the municipal code along lines laid down by a commission which inquired into this subject, was also promised.

His honor said that as considerable damage was done every year by fire in small towns and villages a bill would be submitted to facilitate a system of fire protection in such municipalities. A law to protect forests against fires started by imprudent people would also be introduced.

Bills would also be introduced to provide for the administration of Ungava, the further development of the good roads movement, and the establishment of a bureau of statistics.

Y.M.C.A.'s New Activity.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—A strong movement is on foot here under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. to fight the evils of the employment agencies, which, it is claimed, play upon young men coming into the city in search of work. The number of cases in which youths from rural Ontario have been deprived of their small supply of cash by unscrupulous agents has resulted in the appointment of E. F. Trimble, formerly in the city's agency, to take charge of the work for the Central Y.M.C.A., while H. A. Pearson and E. W. Cameron will conduct the West End and Broadview Association work respectively. SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. O. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

The victory of Woodrow Wilson is so decisive as to leave out of question all doubt, but that it is the result of the distinct will of the people. Mr. Roosevelt claimed to have seriously damaged the Republican party, as a unit, and the statement seems to be a correct one. To President Taft the result must be almost humiliating. He sought in various ways the good for his country but popular approval of his actions and course was not forthcoming.

The campaign as carried out was a three-cornered fight, and the verdict of the people is as decisive and pronounced as was that of the Canadian voters in September, 1911.

Our news columns give details of the contest, and it will be many a day yet before argument ceases and the inevitable is accepted. The distinct split in the Republican party is a matter that will require a long time to close, and an entirely new man must come to the surface to effect it. It is to the credit of the States that the community turned its face against approval of such a campaign as he mapped out and its subsequent results had he been elected.

RUSSIA SEES OPPORTUNITY

In the coming slicing up of Turkey Russia sees her opportunity. For decades Russia has longed for a free entrance and exit from and to the Black Sea. Turkey has ruled the Dardanelles, the only Strait of communication. Only recently has Turkey permitted the entrance of war ships of other nations, and even then only as a protective measure to the citizens domiciled in Constantinople.

In the division of spoils Russia will be arbitrary, and will insist on getting what may be considered a fair portion. While she may claim much territory, this claim may be modified in favor of a free passage to and from the Black Sea. It would realize her ambitions, form a safe training water and headquarters for fleet and navy. The Baltic is too far away from the Mediterranean even to be widely utilized. With the Black Sea open to Russia and closed to other powers, Russia would have an immense advantage. It is this advantage the other powers wish to minimize to as low a degree as possible. With Austria and Italy anxious to annex Albania and Germany behind them the expectations of a general war may be realized.

THE POWER AND LIGHT SITUATION

The result of the visit of the civic deputation of members of the City Council to Toronto, to interview Mr. Beck and the Hydro-Electric, with regard to the merits of the proposition submitted by the Electric Power Co. will be that a by-law will be submitted to the electors at the January elections, and the electors will decide if they prefer municipal power or the alternative, an arrangement with the present holders and supply of electrical energy.

A formal report will be made to the Council, and when this is before the ratepayers the facts in the case can be determined.

There is the relative value of the two propositions, and these will no doubt be set out at length by the interests concerned on one side, and by the municipality on the other.

The approximate cost of a new and modern distribution line, sufficiently ample for the needs of the city, is placed at $118,000.

As a source of immediate supply of energy, Dam No. 5, and the Otonabee system coupled with Dam No. 4, is held in view, giving about 3,500 h.p.

It will be for the citizens to decide and the opportunity will be provided, after discussion on and full information has been afforded.

Zam-Buck Cured His Sores

Cures Also Chapped Hands and Chilblains.

Mr Chas. Hardy, of 538 Home Home street, Winnipeg, says— "My eldest son has proved the value of Zam-Buk and we would not be without a supply in the house. He had both ears so badly frozen that we became alarmed for fear they should have to be amputated. His ears were swollen to several times their usual size, and were very much discolored. Large blisters formed, and then these burst and painful sores on both ears resulted. The sores mattered, scales formed and the boy suffered terribly.

"The preparations which we at first used were found next to useless, in fact, the wounds grew steadily worse, so we then tried Zam-Buk and found a great improvement in one or two applications

"We continued with this herbal balm until the scales and foul matter were cleared away thoroughly, and healing began. In a week from first using this excellent balm the lad's ears were almost well again In three weeks you would never have known his ears had been frozen, so well had Zam-Buk brought about healing."

Here is but one illustration out of scores how superior Zam-Buk is to other salves. It also cures chapped hands, chilblains, piles, inflamed sores, eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. On account of its purity and its herbal composition, it is the ideal balm for babies and young children

Winnipeg, Jan. 6th.

About the latter part of April, I met your Mr. Hill and mentioned my complaint to him. He advised me to take GIN PILLS. I have been taking them at intervals during the early part of the present winter, and up to date have had no return of my old trouble—in fact, I feel better than I have for years and think that my old enemy has vanished for good and all." FEEDING THE HUNGRY ON A MODERN FARM

Eating on a train is now a necessity. Some years ago it was a luxury, and some years previous to that it was a privilege, but as to the latter, it is also a privilege nowadays. Sometimes a privilege not easily secured. But people must eat whether they be on land or at sea, at home or abroad, in a train or in a hotel—they must eat. This no doubt when the days of long travel started, gave the various transportation companies the idea of dining cars, as before they had discovered that the traveller became weary and needed sleep, and they provided sleeping cars. It would be hard to estimate how many hundreds of thousands of meals are served on the various dining cars of the many railways in America in one month, and a difficult task would be to count the hundreds of thousands of people who in a month's time eat on railway trains in Canada alone. One has but to board a popular train in a busy time and his hunger will make him think that everybody else in the train is eating but himself while all the time he sees ahead of him a line of people who think they are twice as hungry as he is. But to give the railways credit, everybody is generally well looked after, and a happy and well-fed crowd get off at the end of the trip. Few travellers, however, have the slightest conception of how so many people can be fed, and, if an ordinary traveller were told that on the Canadian Pacific Railway trains alone 300,000 people were served every month in the year he would be inclined to look with suspicion on the statement. Such, however, is the case, and on the authority of no less a person than Mr. W. A. Cooper, general superintendent of the C.P.R. dining and sleeping car service. Mr. Cooper the other day had occasion to speak of the way chefs and other employees are engaged on the C.P.R. The man aspiring to be a cook with the C.P.R. must fill out an application blank which asks a lot of personal questions. If his application is approved he has obtained a foothold, but he must then pass muster at the school car, a training system inaugurated by Mr. Cooper. There the text of his ability is made under the watchful eye of experts in the culinary art.

At the school dining car the cooks prepare meals under competent instructors with as much care as if they were catering to first-class passengers. The men who are learning to be waiters are shown how to give the acme of service in the quickest way. Every day a number of meals are prepared in the school car, then sold to the employes in the yards, where the car is located at a nominal price, which pays for the cost of the goods used. Before a porter or conductor is put on to a sleeping car he must graduate from the school car. Everything about the car is explained from the wheels to the lamp on the tail-end. The student is taught how to act when everything is running smoothly, and also how to act in case of emergency. No cook, waiter, sleeping car conductor or porter is put on a C.P.R. train without graduating with honors from the college of instruction. 1d

Up to Date Blacksmith.

At a concert for charity in a country town Miss Carter obliged by reciting "The Village Blacksmith." At the conclusion of her recital the rural audience cheered.

"Ancower!" they cried. "Ancower!"

Miss Carter was about to grant the request when a burly fellow very much out of breath tapped her on the shoulder.

"I've just come round from in front," whispered the man excitedly. "I want yer to do me a favor."

"Well, what is it?" queried Miss Carter.

"It's this," whispered the intruder. "I happen to be the feller you've been talkin' about, and I want yer to put in a verse this time sayin' as how I let out bicycles."—Popular Mechanics.

"You are going to care for the widows?"

"Ah, yes, sah."

"You are going to pay your debts?"

"Sah, dat ain't 'ligion; dat's business."—Judge.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT By H. K. FLY CO

"Cigars. Do stay here till I come back. I have so much to say to you."

Miss Gattle shook her head in despair. She could understand a dozen heathen dialects better than the speech of so utter a foreigner as her fellow-countrywoman. Mrs. Jimmie hastened away, rather pleased at the shocks she had administered. She enjoyed her own electricity.

In the corridor she administered another thrill—this time to a tall young man—a stranger, as alert for flirtation as a weasel for mischief. He huddled himself and his suitcases into as flat a space as possible, murmuring:

"These corridors are so narrow, aren't they?"

"Aren't they?" said Mrs. Jimmie. "So sorry to trouble you."

"Don't mention it."

She passed on, their glances fencing like playful foils. Then she paused:

"Excuse me. Could you lend me a match? They never have matches in the Women's Room."

He succeeded in producing a box after much shifting of burdens, and he was rewarded with a look and a phrase:

"You have saved my life."

He started to repeat his "Don't mention it," but it seemed inappropriate, so he said nothing, and she vanished behind a door. He turned away, saying to himself that it promised to be a pleasant journey. He was halted by another voice—another woman's voice:

"Pardon me, but is this the car for Reno?"

He turned to smile, "I believe so!" Then his eyes widened as he recognized the speaker.

"Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb!"

It promised to be a curious journey.

CHAPTER VI.

A Conspiracy in Satin.

The tall man emptied one hand of its suitcase to clasp the hand the newcomer granted him. He held it fast as he exclaimed: "Don't tell me that you are bound for Reno!" She whimpered: "I'm afraid so, Mr. Ashton."

He put down everything to take her other hand, and tuned his voice to condolence: "Why, I thought you and Sam Whitcomb were—"

"Oh, we were until that shameless Mrs. Wellington—"

"Mrs. Wellington? Don't believe I know her."

"I thought everybody had heard of Mrs. Jimmie Wellington."

"Mrs. Jimmie—oh, yes, I've heard of her!" Everybody seemed to have heard of Mrs. Jimmie Wellington.

"What a dance she has led her poor husband!" Mrs. Whitcomb said. "And my poor Sammy fell into her trap too."

Ashton, zealous comforter, took a wrathful tone: "I always thought your husband was the most unmitigated—" But Mrs. Whitcomb bridled at once. "How dare you criticize Sammy! He's the nicest boy in the world."

Ashton recovered quickly. "That's what I started to say. Will he contest the—divorce?"

"Of course not," she beamed. "The dear fellow would never deny me anything. Sammy offered to get it himself, but I told him he'd better stay in Chicago and stick to business. I shall need such a lot of alimony."

"Too bad he couldn't have come along," Ashton insinuated.

But the irony was wasted, for she sighed: "Yes, I shall miss him terribly. But we feared that if he were with me it might hamper me in getting a divorce on the ground of desertion."

She was trying to look earnest and thoughtful and heartbroken, but the result was hardly plausible, for Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb could not possibly have been really earnest or really thoughtful; and her heart was quite too elastic to break. She proved it instantly, for when she heard behind her the voice of a young man asking her to let him pass, she turned to protest, but seeing that he was a handsome young man, her starch was instantly changed to sugar. And she rewarded his good looks with a smile, as he rewarded hers with another.

Then Ashton intervened like a dog in the manger and dragged her off to her seat, leaving the young man to exclaim:

"Some tamarind, that!"

Another young man behind him growled: "Cut out the tamarinds and get to business. Mallory will be here any minute."

"I hate to think what he'll do to us when he sees what we've done to him."

"Oh, he won't dare to fight in the presence of his little bridey-widey. Do you see the porter in there?"

"Yes, suppose he objects."

"Well, we have the tickets. We'll claim it's our section till Mallory and Mrs. Mallory come."

They moved on into the car, where the porter confronted them. When he saw that they were loaded with bundles of all shapes and sizes, he waved them away with scorn:

"The emigrant sleeps runs only Toosdays and Thuzzdays."

From behind the first mass of packages came a brisk military answer:

"You black hound! About face—forward march! Section number one."

The porter retreated down the aisle, apologizing glibly. "'Scuse me for questioning' you, but you-all's baggage looked kind o' eccentric at first."

The two young men dumped their parcels on the seats and began to unwrap them hastily.

"If Mallory catches us, he'll kill us," said Lieutenant Shaw. Lieutenant Hudson only laughed and drew out a long streamer of white satin ribbon. Its glimmer, and the glimmering eyes of the young man excited Mrs. Whitcomb so much that after a little hesitance she moved forward, followed by the jealous Ashton.

"Oh, what's up?" she ventured. "It looks like something bridal."

"Talk about womanly intuition!" said Lieutenant Hudson, with an ingratiating salaam.

And then they explained to her that their classmate at West Point, being ordered suddenly to the Philippines, had arranged to elope with his beloved Marjorie Newton; had asked them to get the tickets and check the baggage while he stopped at a minister's to "get spliced and hike for Manila by this train."

Having recounted this plan in the full belief that it was even at that moment being carried out successfully, Lieutenant Hudson, with a ghoulish smile, explained:

"Being old friends of the bride and groom, we want to fix their section up in style and make them truly comfortable."

"Delicious!" gushed Mrs. Whitcomb. "But you ought to have some rice and old shoes."

"Here's the rice," said Hudson.

"Here's the old shoes," said Shaw.

"Lovely!" cried Mrs. Whitcomb, but then she grew soberer. "I should think, though, that they—the young couple—would have preferred a stateroom."

"Of course," said Hudson, almost blushing, "but it was taken. This was the best we could do for them."

"That's why we want to make it nice and bride-like," said Shaw. "Perhaps you could help us—a woman's touch—"

"Oh, I'd love to," she glowed, hastening into the section among the young men and the bundles. The unusual stir attracted the porter's suspicions. He came forward with a look of authority:

"'Scuse me, but wha—what's all this?"

"Vanish—get out," said Hudson, poking a coin at him. As he turned to obey, Mrs. Whitcomb checked him with: "Oh, Porter, could you get us a hammer and some nails?"

The porter almost blanched: "Good Lawd, Miss, you ain't allowin' to drive nails in that woodwork, is you?" That woodwork was to him what the altar is to the priest.

But Hudson, resorting to heroic measures, hypnotized him with a two-dollar bill: "Here, take this and see nothing, hear nothing, say nothing." The porter caressed it and chuckled: "I'm blind, deaf and speechless." He turned away, only to come back at once with a timid "'Scuse me!"

"You here yet?" growled Hudson.

Anxiously the porter pleaded: "I just want to ast one question. Is you all fixin' up for a bridal couple?"

"Foolish question, number eight million, forty-three," said Shaw. "Answer, no, we are."

The porter's face glistened like fresh stove polish as he gloated over the prospect. "I tell you, it'll be mahty refreshin' to have a bridal couple on bode! This dog-on Reno train don't carry nothin' much but divorcees. I'm just nachally hongry for a bridal couple."

"Brile coup-hic-le?" came a voice, like an echo that had somehow become intoxicated in transit. It was Little Jimmie Wellington looking for more sympathy. "Whass als about brile couple?"

"Why, here's Little Buttercup!" sang out young Hudson, looking at him in amazed amusement.

"Did I un'stan' somebody say you're preparing for brile coupl'?"

Lieutenant Shaw grinned. "I don't know what you understood, but that's what we're doing."

Immediately Wellington's great face began to churn and work like a big eddy in a river. Suddenly he was weeping. "Excuse these tears, shentlemen, but I once—I was once a b-b-bride myself."

"EXTENDING" CREDIT.

A Kind of Banking That Didn't Appeal to the Grocer.

A grocer, who contemplated starting a branch store, spent a day in the store of the man whom he expected to buy out, investigating neighborhood conditions. In came a little girl for two pounds of sugar, a package of starch, some flour, salt and coffee. Her purchases came to 87 cents.

"Mother will have a dollar tomorrow," she said, "and she will pay you then."

The grocer nodded "all right."

"And she wants the change now," the child added. "She needs money to buy thread."

Unhesitatingly he counted 13 cents.

The visiting grocer was amazed.

"Is that the way you do business down here?" he asked.

"Have to," said the neighborhood tradesman. "Can't get along any other way. You have to know the people you can safely extend credit to, but the judgment and the will to carry on a limited banking business without interest is the basis of every grocer's success in this part of town."

The grocer abandoned the new enterprise.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Freed!

The man threw out his clutch and pulled in his horns, or he threw in his clutch and threw out his chest, whichever is technically correct. For the thousandth time he proposed to the sweet young thing who was sitting beside him in the automobile. And for the thousandth time she answered him thus:

"No, Lionel. I love you dearly, but I shall never marry a man who has a shameful burden of debt upon his shoulders. Free yourself and I will be only too glad to be yours."

A happy smile illuminated the features of the driver, and he manipulated the doo-dad that makes the car run at third speed.

"Darling," be cried, "you are mine at last! Yes, the debts are no more. Once again I can face the world an honest man. My debts are"—

"Paid?"

"Better—outlawed!"

She would have fallen into his arms had they not just then been negotiating a perilous hairpin turn.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

London's Musical Training.

Jack London when on a recent visit to New York was introduced to a musician in one of the popular Broadway cafes.

"I am a musician in a small way," said London. "My musical talent was once the means of saving my life."

The musician was at once very much interested.

"How was that?" he asked.

"There was a great flood in the town of my boyhood," explained London. "When the water struck our house my father got on a bed and floated with the stream until be was rescued."

"And you?" queried the musician.

"Well," smiled London, "I accompanied him on the piano."—Judge.

A Misunderstanding.

"And how did you get into this place, my poor man?" asked the female investigator, as she paused in front of cell 5,324.

"Through misunderstanding a prescription," replied the occupant.

"What do you mean?" asked the visitor.

"My doctor advised me to take something before going to bed," said 5,324.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Good Form

Mourning Stationery.

The formal woman is particular about her mourning stationery and visiting cards. She decreases the width of the border on her letter paper as she lightens her crape, also regulates it by her degree of relationship to the deceased.

The broadest border, a full half inch, is used by a widow as long as she wears unrelieved crape. When she permits herself a touch of white the stationery is bordered by three-eighths of an inch of black, lessened by prescribed degrees until in second mourning, when lavender or gray is appearing in costumes, a mere thread of black is used.

For a parent or child the border starts at a quarter of an inch and is lessened after six months to an eighth of an inch and at the end of a year reduced to a slender line. Borders on visiting cards correspond with those on writing paper.

The average person chooses her mourning borders by individual taste rather than by rule and rarely changes the width until in second mourning.

Good taste avoids the flaunting of grief and rarely countenances a border wider than a quarter of an inch, even for a widow. Even this is a trifle wide. Three-sixteenths of an inch is a better width for widows, parents or children and an eighth of an inch for a sister or brother.

The paper used is dead white linen of plain weave and lusterless. It is bad form to have a mourning border on striped or fancy paper, even though the color is kept white. Where a transparent paper is liked, as for foreign correspondence or to save postage, besides the border there is a separate lining of black tissue paper for each envelope.

Addresses and monograms are often stamped in unrelieved black. Some persons prefer them embossed in relief without color, especially if there be telephone and telegram numbers in addition to the address. When these are all in black they look less overpowering if a miniature receiver and telegraph pole and lines are used instead of the word telephone or telegram.

As mourning borders are expensive, the stationery of grief is costly. It can rarely be had by the pound, as other papers, but sometimes is cheaper by the box, containing several quires. As there is usually a reduction for getting a large quantity, it pays to lay in a supply.

Correspondence cards carry the same borders as writing paper. When there are no engraved acknowledgments these cards are quite large enough for a few words of appreciation. Sometimes a sentence is written across the top of the visiting card.

Black bordered envelopes to fit the visiting card should be bought by the hundred, as the card will do social duty during the entire period of mourning.

Art of Conversation.

The art of polite conversation seems to be a lost one, yet there is not anything in the line of etiquette that so surely betrays breeding.

To interrupt is to be rude, no matter how much one knows or how badly one wishes to say it. To carry on a perfectly well bred conversation with some sort of meaning in the words is a proof that one has been taught politeness.

It has been said, and possibly with a great grain of truth, that a roomful of women will all talk at once, yet there is nobody to set them a better example, as men are worse. With raucous voice and many times a lot of perfectly useless adjectives they take many a precious moment to say what could be said with a great deal less noise and a great deal more dignity.

Of course to converse does not mean just talking. It means saying something well worth while, and this really is the test. A hostess has a right to expect her guests to "make conversation," it is true, but a babel of sound is not at all desirable. This is where the low voice and soft expression have their proper belonging, yet where too often both are lost in the desire to make oneself heard above all others.

Current topics of the day are always safe subjects. Best let personal matters alone. It is better taste and therefore better breeding unless one is well acquainted with one's neighbor and can say anything without fear of repetition making mischief. To talk only of fashions is a mistake. To talk of music to a musician may be also a mistake unless one is fully acquainted with the subject. To talk of history to a historian will not do; he knows a great deal more than can be told him. In fact, to talk "shop," as the saying goes, is rarely advisable where a company is gathered together for entertainment.

Books are always safe. Discussions may end do arise. Sometimes heated arguments for and against attract and make an hour pass pleasantly. The weather is a very obliging subject. It cannot talk back, is always just the thing one does not particularly like and can come in for any amount of blame without making anybody present feel cross. So it seems that to converse well in a general way one should avoid a great many subjects and go warily about others. Any discussion may be heated without anger, and this means the etiquette of conversation.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?
There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.
SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

GUY FAWKES DAY

Largely Attended Celebration at Downers Corners

Last night, November 5th, as Guy Fawkes night, was celebrated by Orangemen far and near, in the L O L. No. 321 Hall, at Downer's Corners. A substantial supper was partaken of, and speeches were made by Chairman Arthur Holden, County Secretary George Bartly and Rev. Mr. Keith. AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION

The Canadian Club Heard Interesting Address by Dr. Creelman, President of Ontario Agricultural College —Field Crops of Ontario Excell Those in the West.

A representative gathering of the Canadian Club listened with delight last night to an address on "Agricultural Education," delivered by Dr. G. C. Creelman, president of Guelph Agricultural College. He made a decidedly good impression and probably few persons were better qualified to handle the agricultural question than he.

The attendance pretty well equalled that of the first Club gathering this year, and the bill-of-fare provided by Messrs. Coleman Bros., was if anything, superior.

Dr. Creelman, who is an extremely rapid, versatile speaker, commenced his address at seven-fifteen. He extended the greetings of the Canadian Club of Guelph, of which he was the first president, to the Canadian Club of Peterborough. Also he brought the greetings of the Ontario Agricultural College. In speaking of the College, Dr. Creelman referred to the cosmopolitan student body assembled there, all eagerly learningl the science of agriculture.

Representatives of twenty-two countries could be found there, men from South Africa, New Zealand, Mexico, Agentine Republic, Australia, Japan and so on.

Referring to Ontario, Dr. Creelman thought that sometimes, residents of the province were slow in appreciating its wonderful advantages.

"The time was never more ripe for a booming of Ontario," he remarked, justifying his contention his contention with the statement that the field crops of Ontario yielded 62 p.c. more than all the crops from Winnipeg to the Pacific coast.

Speaking on the question of the retired farmer, the speaker raised the question as to whether they were happy living in the city. In his opinion, they were not, and he made the suggestion that retired farmers would render the country a great service, if instead of moving to the city, they would build a house at one end of their farm, and assist their son, or son-in-law as the case might be, in agriculture.

The retired farmer, in this way, would be able to take up schemes for the promotion of agriculture, and having had the experience would be better able to give the advice necessary.

Dr. Creelman spoke on the question of city vs. country life, and also dwelt on some of the problems the farmers are facing, and the work the college was doing. Reference was made to the rapid strides being made in the draining. Men engaged in this work were hard at work but could not keep up with the applications being received for the work.

Taking up the question of potatoes, Dr Creelman stated that Ontario was not raising as many as needed for her own consumption. Toronto alone required from three to four thousand bags per day, and they secured their supply chiefly from New Brunswick. The chief reason for the scarcity was blight, and mixed varieties.

The cheese trade was also referred to. Canada furnished seventy per cent of the cheese for Great Britain and it was necessary to keep this trade. Cheese was regarded as the standard dairy product.

Dr. Creelman spoke of the men going about giving the farmers instructions as "doctors of agriculture" and stated that their work was bearing fruit. Every attention was being paid to crop disease.

The speaker put forth a strong appeal for the teaching of agriculture in the township schools. Everything possible must be done to keep the boys and girls on the farm. The rising generation should be taught the common things, which would lead them to think. All this would go to make them better Canadians.

Dr Creelman touched on many other points of interest, and his address which was not concluded until two o'clock, was listened to very attentively.

Dr. Creelman was warmly applauded as he concluded his address. President Morris conveyed to him the thanks of the Club for the excellent and entertaining address and thanked him for the sacrificing spirit he had shown in coming all the way from Guelph.

The gathering broke up by singing the National Anthem.

TRIAL BEFORE JUDGE HUYCKE

Wm. Fallon and Albert Wright Committed on Theft Charge

The adjourned preliminary hearing of a charge of theft against William Fallon and Albert Wright was resumed at four o'clock yesterday afternoon, resulting in both being committed for trial before His Honor Judge Huycke. The complainant is a farm laborer named Kennedy, who alleges that he was pushed into a Hunter street lane-way on the night of Thanksgiving Day and there choked and relieved of $7.00. He admitted being "pretty full" at the time and had but a haizy remembrance of the events of the night.

The evidence produced in court was fairly strong against the two young men who answered closely a description given by complainant of his assailants. It was sufficient in His Worship's estimation to warrant the commitment.

GREATEST FRAUD THAT EVER STRUCK CANADA

Says Trowern in Speaking of Co-Operative Stores

Wear a False Face

Retail Association a Force in the Community

"The co-operative movement is the greatest fraud that ever struck Canada," said Secretray Trowern, at the annual dinner of the Peterborough Retail Association, last night, in the Hotel National.

The stores, he said, were wearing nothing but a false face. Down beneath it was the greatest fraudulent scheme ever perpretated on the public.

He told of the introduction of the stores into Toronto and of the action by the Dominion Association. Now, he said, you couldn't start a co-operative store in Toronto.

His address was in his usual vigorous style and the forty or more retailers heard many points discussed.

President T. Barrie was chairman and in the elections which afterwards took place was the unanimous choice for another term.

"Patronize your own merchants. They sell as cheap and give you as good value as anyone. Boost for your own town."

This was the admonition displayed on a large canvas hanger. Mine Host Denison provided a most enjoyable menu and altogether, the meeting was a big success.

"If you took the Retail Merchants out of Peterborough I wouldn't give you much for Peterborough," said the speaker. "You will never be able to do away with the Retail Association. We have elevated the word. You have it on the statutes of Ontario and you have it on the Do-Dominion statutes."

It was for the retailers to co-operate with one another. "You can't help yourself without helping the other fellow, and you can't help the other fellow without helping yourself."

Speaking of the accusations against the retailers regarding high prices, Mr. Trowern held that if the people did business with an honest merchant they would be protected.

What was wanted was legislation, by which the dealer who was guilty of crooked advertising, would be punished.

In his opinion, the high cost of living cry was mostly a bubble. Many things could be bought cheaper now than when he was a boy.

The speaker was very bitter towards the co-operative scheme, and stated that it was impossible to operate a co-operative store without defrauding the public.

For the troubles which confronted the retailers, he said they were alone responsible and his appeal throughout the course of his address was for the retailers to work together, build up their local Association and give their assistance to the work being carried on by the Dominion Association.

Officers elected for the year are:
President—Thomas Barrie
1st Vice-President—R. P. Morgan.
2nd Vice-President—R. C. Braund.
Treasurer—J. H. Connal.
Secretary—N. C. Cameron.

The C.P.R. officials have consented, after two years' persistent effort on the part of the Locust Hill citizens, to make Locust Hill a flag station for the Ottawa express.

"In that case," sighed the old man, "I don't believe you will ever attract any attention politically." — Washington Herald.

MR. BECK TELLS COUNCIL TO GO AHEAD WITH CITY POWER

Deputation Met the Minister of Power and Discussed the Electric Power Company's Proposition—City to Build Destubution System and Take Power From Hydro Electric

The propositions of the Electric Power Company have been practically turned down by the City Council and that body will deal with the Hydro Electric Commission for a supply of power.

In all probability, a by-law authorizing the issuing of debentures for $118,000, to pay for a distribution system, will be submitted to the ratepayers at the January election.

This is the cost as estimated by the Commission's engineers for the work.

The Commission would supply the power. They can buy out the Otonabee Power Company (dam No. 5,) and can also develop power at dam No. 4, the Commission having received a letter stating that the Government hand over this dam to the Commission.

The city would not bear any of the cost of development and it is here that the Commission acts as trustees for the municipality and is protected by the city taking the power.

A Sinking Fund would be formed into which would be paid sufficient to pay the interest on construction and development and retire debentures. With these paid off, the city would own the lines and plant and could then determine the lowest cost at which power and light can be supplied.

With the exception of Mayor Bradburn, all the members of the Power Committee returned from Toronto last night, where they interviewed Hon. Adam Beck in connection with the proposal of the Electric Power Company's offer to consolidate all public utilities in Peterborough and supply power to the city.

The outcome of the interview was practically to disregard the latter offer and to submit a by-law authorizing an expenditure of $118,000 for the acquisition of Hydro-Electric for the city, the proposed by-law to be voted upon in January, 1913.

The Power Committee saw Mr Beck at noon and submitted their proposition. This was a by-law authorizing the expenditure of $118,000, of which amount $30,000 was to be devoted to the laying of an underground system.

The deputation consisted of Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Johnston, Gillespie Duncan, Gordon, Duffus, Morgan and Graham, City Solicitor Hall and City Clerk Armstrong.

Alderman Buller, when seen today said that the Power Committee had decided to throw out the Electric Power Company's proposition and deal only with the Hydro-Electric people. In his opinion the interview with the Hydro Commission had been very satisfactory.

Peterborough, Oct. 12th, 1912

W. H. HILL, Esq.,
Agent, General Accident Insurance Co.
Peterborough.

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,
T. W. H. YOUNG, Major

DR ROLLER TO MEET CAZEAUX

Seattle Matman Wants Chance to Meet LeMarin

Ottawa, Noc. 6—Raymond Cazeaux who was defeated by Constant Le Marin, after a sensational bout at the Arena last week, is coming back on Friday of this week, when his opponent will be none other than Dr. Ben Roller, whom he defeated here last spring. The match between Roller and "Cazooks" was never finished, Roller injuring himself and making a feeble attempt to win the second fall. The Seattle physician has recovered, however, and will make a big effort to down Cazeaux. They have been matched for the best two matches out of three. The first will take place at Montreal Wednesday and the second at the Laurier Avenue Arena, Friday. Should a bout be necessary it will be held at Buffalo next Monday night. Cazeaux is still a big drawing card and his bout with Roller should be a hummer. If Roller wins he will get a chance against Le Marin.

MANY OFFERS TO WALTER MILLER

But Peterboro Graduate Will Remain With Wanderers

Montreal, Nov. 6— President Emmett Quinn of the N. H. A. has returned from Toronto, well satisfied with the progress made by the Toronto Hockey teams.

Mr. Lichtenhein has received a letter from Walter Miller in which the latter tells him that he has had several offers from other clubs but intends to remain true to the Wanderers.

Although the annual meeting of the N. H. A. is not till a week from to-day, the schedule is pretty well advanced, and Canadians will have the honor of opening the season at the Montreal Arena on the first Saturday after Christmas, December 28.

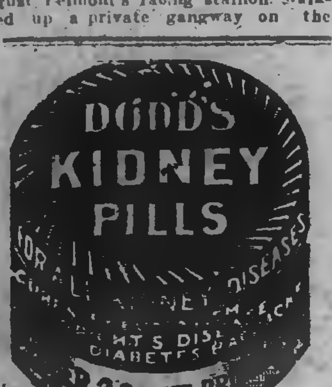
Wanderers will have their first match in the middle of the next week about New Year's time, and this has put Mr. Lichtenhein in a quandary, for he is debating in his mind as to whether it would be better to have this match on New Year's Eve, or on New Year's night.

It is indeed a difficult thing to decide whether people would be more inclined to spend the early part of New Year's Eve, when there is really little to do at the Arena, and then go to the now celebrated New Year's supper afterwards, or would be more likely to patronize the rink after an enjoyable series of New Year's calls.

THE TURF

New York, Nov. 6—Rock Sand, August Belmont's racing stallion, walked up a private gangway on the steamship Minnewaska, entered a padded box stall, large and roomy and sailed for London. Mr. Belmont, who sold Rock Sand to a French syndicate of sportsmen for $150,000, was at the pier to bid his pet farewell.

Rock Sand came to New York in regal style from Mr. Belmont's Kentucky estate, in a special steel car, draped with American and French flags.



A SOLDIER OF THE LEGION.

A soldier of the Legion
  Lay dying at Monroe (Conn.).
There was lack of woman's nursing,
  There was dearth of woman's woe,
Because the man was doing
  The annual army stunt
And was not actually dying,
  But constructively was so—

[Having been constructively shot
  Fatally in a sham battle between
The reds and the blues, armed with Real guns loaded with paper wads
And producing more noise than fatalities.
  However, pardon the digression.]

But a comrade stood beside him
  While his lifeblood ebbed away
And bent, with pitying glances,
  To hear what he might say.
The dying soldier faltered
  As he took that comrade's hand,
And he said: "Old Top, pray, listen.
  Do I rightly understand
That constructively my widow
  Gets a pension, or does she
Get the real stuff that's useful
  To increase prosperity?
Because, old Top, a pension
  That's straight," he caught his breath,
"Has got the snide constructive
  Kind of pension skinned to death,
And if we get the money
  You'll hear our auto honks
About our home at Bronxville,
  Fair Bronxville by the Bronx!"
—W. J. Lampton in New York Times.

A Dangerous Occupation.

Of all occupations dangerous to life the most hazardous is that of life savers in the United States bureau of mines. The annual mortality among them is at the rate of eighty a thousand. In the first year two sacrificed their lives out of a force of eighty, while seven others fell unconscious in the poisonous vapors of mines, but were rescued by their companions. And yet there is no difficulty in finding heroic men ready to undertake the duty.

Under Suspicion.

President Taft rarely says unkind things about the men with whom he comes in contact in public life. But when he does unlimber for a bombardment he generally puts in a center shot —hot and irresistible.

Not long ago he was talking about an officeholder whom he had discharged for the good of the service.

"He was a bad one," criticised Taft. "He had a bad streak all through him. He had the distinction of putting into my mind an idea which nobody else had been able to suggest to me. When he was turned out of his job I felt that it would be wise to employ an art expert to see whether he had substituted fakes for the oil paintings on the walls of the public buildings in which he had worked."—Popular Magazine.

His Sarcasm.

"You have a lovely complexion," began the lover.

"Thank you," answered his fiancee suspiciously. "Why speak of it?"

"It's so smooth and white and—er—natural"—

"It is. But you don't talk straight. Don't you believe that my complexion is my own?"

"Why, certainly, my own!"

"Then why refer to it at all?"

"I—I just wondered why it was that every time I leave you at night and go to the club the fellows all say that I've been eating marshmallows."

That's the real reason the engagement was broken.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

IT IS BOUND TO COME

LORD ROBERTS FORESEES AN ANGLO-GERMAN CLASH.

Britain Is Unfit and Heedless, Declares the Hero of Kandahar, While the German Empire Is Ready and Efficient — Must Maintain Traditions of Religions and Political Freedom of the Race.

Lord Roberts, field marshal of Great Britain, in a recent article had the following to say regarding the war situation:

Great Britain is as absolutely unfitted and unprepared for war now as she was at the time of the Boer war.

No voluntary system could produce an efficient army for home defence. Great Britain has attained the limits of her Territorial expansion. She neither requires nor seeks another square yard of dominions. Her object ought to be to develop the resources of her people commercially, industrially and socially and to maintain the traditions of religious and political freedom, which are in the main the cause of her greatness.

LORD ROBERTS.

At the same time there is Germany, a great homogeneous nation, with a population of sixty millions, which is aiming at becoming a great and wealthy power. This nation has already built in a marvelously short space of time the second largest navy in the world and not scattered over seventy-seven seas, but concentrated like a clinched mailed fist in the German ocean.

Who is there with any knowledge of the history of nations or of the trend of European politics but must see in these plain facts a danger of collision?

No one can say when it will come, but it will be within the period of time indicated by the convergence of the lines of destiny, which may at any moment be accelerated by some misunderstanding or by some conflict with the friend or ally of either country.

Dublin's Irish Festival.

There is a time every year when Dublin returns to her old traditions. For one short space the Irish capital is given over to Irish Ireland, and the alien culture of some 700 years seems to vanish. In the streets the tongue of the Gael is heard continuously, the Irish kilt is worn by many Gaelic men, and a yearly increasing number of Gaelic women clothe themselves in the beautiful costume evolved from that once worn by the "Ban na-h-Eireann" and so much praised long ago by foreign writers.

This transformation of the Anglo-Irish city is a very tangible object lesson, showing the result achieved by nearly two decades of strenuous effort. The chief part of this annual gathering is undoubtedly the Ard-Theis, or Gaelic Parliament—delegates of the Gaelic League branches from all corners of the country, from England and Scotland and wherever a branch exists are summoned together to discuss the questions that have been brought forward.

There is a prize for the best Irish play, for the best novel, for the best story. Examinations in the language are gone through and competitions between families and groups of classes in conversation. History, too, occupies a large part on the program. Thus every section of Gaelic culture is encouraged. But the material side is not neglected, and an exhibition of home manufactured goods is arranged. Sometimes there is also an art exhibition for painting, statuary, book binding.

Fatal to the Piano.

Unless well seasoned beforehand, a piano, however well made, will go all to pieces in the tropics. At one of the largest London piano houses there is a special room kept heated to a high temperature, in which instruments intended for hot climates are baked for about a month before being sent abroad.

Insects do much damage to pianos in tropical countries. To keep away ants the castors of the piano are placed in little metal saucers filled with water. But unless this is often renewed, the persistent ant waits until dust has collected on the surface and walks across on this.

The "carpenter worm" is another foe. Starting to work on a piano, he, by some subtle instinct, is able to bore a way in a direct line for the nice juicy sounding-board, which he soon tunnels out.

He Understood.

"Do you understand," asked the Sabbath school teacher, "what is meant when we say that time shall be no more?"

"Yes'm," answered Tommy. "It means when the clock stops."

Asiatic Squirrels.

An Asiatic squirrel climbs a tree like a telegraph pole climber. It has large horny scales on its tail for the purpose.

NO INCREASE IN CARTAGE RATES

New Rates Cannot Be Put in Force Next Week

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Railroad cartage companies in Eastern Canada will not be allowed to raise their rates from five to ten cents per ton on November 11 as they intended.

The Railway Commission yesterday afternoon ordered that the new schedule of tariffs be set aside until judgment has been passed upon them. The case will come up again for hearing on December 17.

The case came before the board towards the end of the day and when it was called the strongest array of legal counsel, representing railroad and cartage companies, Boards of Trade in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa, filed up to the commissioners' bench to argue for and against the proposed increase.

Col. Stark of Montreal, representing the Dominion Transport Co., told the board that during the last few years the company has been seriously affected by the increase in the cost of living. Wages to teamsters have advanced as much as 25 per cent.

Chief Davis May Retire.

Lethbridge, Alta., Nov. 6.—That Chief Davis will resign if not given a five years' contract is rumored persistently to-day. The new chief claims he came to Lethbridge believing the police were controlled by a police commission. Now, to assure the permanency of his job, he wants a contract for a term of years. If some solution of the difficulty is not found by the council it is believed he will immediately resign, as two other cities have tendered him flattering offers. Some action will be taken at the City Council meeting this afternoon.

Diamond Second To the Cullinan.

Johannesburg, Nov. 6.—A diamond weighing 1,649 carats has been discovered in the Premier mine. This is the largest diamond in the world. The famous Cullinan diamond, which was found in the same mine in 1905, weighed 3,024 carats, but was cut into eleven separate stones.

The diamond just found, when cut, may not prove to be as large as the Cullinan diamond.

Englishman Slashes Bulgarian.

Kingston, Nov. 6.—Joseph Foster, an Englishman, is under arest, charged with stabbing a Bulgarian. The two were employed on some new buildings, and boarded together in a house provided by the contractor. Foster was frying bacon when he had an altercation with the Bulgarian, and drawing a knife slashed the latter's arm.

Its Office.

"Oh, Willie, Willie," cried a teacher to a hopelessly dull pupil, "whatever do you think your head is for?" Willie, who evidently thought this another of the troublesome questions that teachers were always asking, pondered it deeply. "Please, miss," he replied at last, "to keep my collar on."—Youth's Companion.

Two Conservatives Running.

Bracebridge, Nov. 6.—At the nomination held here yesterday for the legislature to fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of A. A. Mahaffy to the position of district judge for Muskoka, Wm. Lowe, inspector of government roads of the Township of Ryde, and S. H. Armstrong of Bracebridge. Both Conservatives were nominated to contest the election. The latter is running in opposition to the regular party candidate.

Marconi Contract Made.

London, Nov. 6.—The Marconi Company announced last night that they have signed a contract with the Canadian Government for operation and maintenance of nine additional stations on the great lakes in Canada. When the stations are completed, the company will receive an additional subsidy from the Government of $31,500 per annum. The agreement is for nineteen years.

French-Canadian Demonstration.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—French-Canadians of the city, members of the Garde Champlain and Ste. Jean Baptiste Society, are preparing for a three days demonstration here next summer to mark the sixtieth anniversary of the formation of the society. They will ask the Duke of Connaught to inspect the uniformed Gardes after a parade in which they expect 15,000 will participate.

W. K. George on Tariff.

London, Nov. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Under the presidency of Lord Desborough, chairman of the London Chamber of Commerce, W. K. George of Toronto, former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, gave an address yesterday on "Empire Unity in Commerce." The meeting was convened by the imperial mission, rather a law tariff organization, in which certain younger Unionist Parliamentarians are the moving spirits, which seeks among other things to show that the Motherland ought to buy food within the Empire.

Mr. George, at the outset, declared that Britain must settle her fiscal policy herself. The adoption of any policy detrimental to home interests in order to get ideas from other parts of the Empire would be fatal to Imperial aspiration.

Having made this preface, Mr. George frankly confessed his own faith in a protective policy.

'Tis the last fly of summer that flits on the wing,
And my heart almost bleeds for the lonesome young thing.
No mate of his old age, no comrade has he,
To stick in the jelly or drown in the tea.

I know if I spare him he'll frisk on my nose
Or, perched on my bald spot, disturb my repose.
Bereft of his vigor and shorn of his pride,
I'll send him to rest where the good flies reside.

So (swat!) let me finish his earthly career,
Then (bing!) goes a globe from my best chandelier,
And (smash!) my screen swatter is dashed at his head;
But, gosh, 'twas a finger bowl shattered instead!

Well (biff!), ain't it awful? I've missed him once more!
And (bang!) this destruction is making me sore.
So kindly let's gather the wreckage away
And hope that we land him on some other day.

Three Pomegranate Trees

They Were Interlaced With His Future

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"It means something!" insisted Paul Bellaires, staring at the floor.

"Still at your Persian rug puzzle?" asked Denton, lazily blowing more smoke into the hazy atmosphere of Paul's room.

"Yes; so would you be puzzled if you had to live with the confounded thing."

"Why live with it? Sell it to the junk man."

"Junk? Dan," said Paul solemnly, "that rug is priceless."

Denton blew more smoke and grinned at his friend. "If it is priceless, how came you by it, old man?"

"Luck—sheer luck," cried Paul enthusiastically. "One day when I was in Ispahan"—

"I protest!" interrupted Denton. "I emphatically decline to listen to the story of how a wily old Persian hoodwinked you into buying that moth eaten bit of carpet under the thin pretense that as an astrologist he could read in the stars that the possession of this particular rug would influence your life to an astonishing degree. So far as I can see, the only influence its possession has exerted on you is to make you more abstracted than ever. You are everlastingly trying to solve the puzzle of those hieroglyphics on the rug."

"They do puzzle me," confessed Paul, quite unabashed by his friend's outburst. "What do they look like to you, Dan?"

Denton tossed his cigar into the fire and, leaning forward, gazed down at the ancient carpet spread under his feet. It was a rich maze of faded blues and reds and golds with dim traces of some pattern showing here and there.

HE PAUSED THERE FOR AN INSTANT.

"Well," asked Paul expectantly, "what do you make out of it?"

"Same as usual," announced Denton dubiously—"three drunken pomegranate trees sheltering a probably once beautiful damsel who appears to be leaves remain, and it is easy to see—its tail!"

Paul made no immediate reply. He sat and stared at the closely woven pattern faded almost to obliteration by years of wear. The same motif was repeated in various stages of clearness all over the rug. What Denton had frivolously described really were groups of three conventionalized pomegranate trees. To one of Paul Bellaires' imaginative temperament the prediction of the old Persian, wily imposter though he undoubtedly was, could not help having its effect.

All at once Paul looked up and met Denton's amused gaze. "Laugh if you want to, Dan. Some day I shall expect you to apologize for your skepticism."

"I'll do that cheerfully when the occasion arises. I'll even admit the fish is a rose, if I am convinced it is."

"I won't forget to remind you of it when it happens," said Paul, and so the conversation ended.

The next day Paul Bellaires fell in love.

It happened so quickly and so unexpectedly that he was unprepared for the attack. He had never cared much about women. He had been more interested in the marvels of the old world—in the wonders of the far east—history. Art and literature of all times possessed more charm for him than did the loveliest woman.

He was entering an art gallery one afternoon just as the doors pushed outward, and two women emerged. One was stout and elderly and prosaic looking. The other was a goddess. Paul had a vision of graceful figure gowned in dark velvet, trimmed with fur, a perfect complexion, deep blue eyes fixed on his for one startled moment, red hair sweeping up to be concealed beneath a black velvet hat, and she was gone, leaving the fragrance of fresh violets worn at her breast.

Paul turned and stared after her. He saw a handsome motorcar at the curb, saw the chauffeur open the door, saw them enter and roll away. Then he turned away from the picture gallery and went back to his office.

He entered his private office, flung his overcoat on a chair, and with hat pushed to the back of his head, he sat and stared at the waste paper basket. Denton, coming in to consult him, found him in this attitude.

"Good heaven, man," he cried, "what's the matter? Moths eaten up the rest of the heaven sent Persian rug?"

Paul looked up and shook his head dazedly. "Dan," he asked, "would you recognize a girl from a mere description?"

Denton was plainly interested. He seated himself on the table and lighted a cigar.

"That is a lucid question," he jeered. "Would I recognize a girl from a mere description? Answer: I might if I knew the girl."

"Oh!" said Paul blankly.

"It's a serious matter," observed Denton, "when you inquire so solicitously concerning a lady. May I ask if you are in love?"

"I don't know," returned the inexperienced one frankly. "I've seen the most—the most—Dan, she is perfect!"

"Then you are!"

"Are what?"

"In love."

"I can't be when I don't even know her name."

"At least you may discover whether it is written in the stars that she is to be yours. Did she carry a pomegranate tree along?"

"No. Let me describe her in a few words. She may be among your acquaintances." Paul was serious.

Thereupon Paul proceeded to describe his meeting with the beautiful stranger in so many words and with such vivid word painting that Dan Denton at last called a halt.

"Enough!" he cried in desperation. "If that's what you call a few words protect me from what you'd describe as a short conversation!"

"Do you recognize her?" asked Paul eagerly.

"Your description sounds like a half dozen perfect girls rolled into one. Come to that little dance at my sister's tonight. She might be there."

"Really, do you think there's a chance?"

"Why not? No harm in coming. You've a better chance if you are properly introduced to her than if you walk the streets looking for her."

"That is very true," said Paul. "I'll come, thank you."

"Good for you," chuckled Dan, slipping down from the table, "and now I think I'll trot along home. See you later." He closed his own desk, put on his hat and overcoat and went down into the street, good nature irradiating from his round face.

He rode uptown, chuckling all the way, and when he went into a fashionable florist shop he was literally shaking with some inward amusement. When he emerged he was laughing outright.

While Paul was dressing to go out that evening he suddenly glanced down at the Persian rug under his feet. "I wonder," he mused—"I wonder if meeting that girl was written in the stars, I'd like to know where the pomegranates come in. Perhaps it means a journey to a foreign country. A wedding trip, eh?"

"Haven't seen any goddesses that came up to the one you described, old man," was Denton's greeting, later on, when he arrived at Mrs. Margrave's dance. "We've blonds and brunettes and all the types that come between, but I'm afraid you're bound to be disappointed."

Paul looked disappointed, but he bore it with good grace and went to talk to the few people whom he knew there. Later on he wandered about, looking for Denton, who had disappeared. The Margrave house was a large and rather rambling structure, but Paul was quite familiar with its byways, for he was often a guest there. He knew that the last alcove of the conservatory was a quiet nook where he might indulge in a smoke, for Mrs. Margrave always kept the little glass doors closed from the other alcoves of the long stretch of conservatory.

The conservatory was practically deserted as he walked down the tesselated floor. There was a strong lure for the dancers in the sweet, wild music of a Hungarian orchestra in the distant rooms, and it seemed as though he had the place to himself.

The little glass doors into the last alcove were wide open, and he paused there for an instant, halted by the picture before him.

Against a dense background of tall green plants stood three pomegranate trees in full bloom, the rich scarlet of their flower petals flaring out with startling beauty and unexpectedness to one who had seen them only in distant lands.

That was not the strangest sight. In front of the potted trees was a semicircular marble bench. On the bench sat Dan Denton in the very act of offering the girl a rose. The girl was the red haired beauty Paul had seen that afternoon. She was lovelier than ever in a simple white satin gown with pearls.

Denton looked up, saw Paul and smiled. He was on his feet at once. "Come on in, Paul," he said cordially. "I want to introduce you to Miss Ewing," and when the introduction had been made he excused himself and went away, casting one backward glance at the absorbed couple on the bench.

"After all my trouble in setting that pomegranate scene I don't believe he saw anything except the girl. Oh, I say, Paul," he called back, "it wasn't a fish after all!"

But Paul never heard him. He cared nothing for astrologers or what was written in the stars or in his Persian rug.

He was looking into a pair of wonderful dark blue eyes.

Climbing Tie-Pin.

An unusual method of robbery in a music hall is described by the London correspondent of The Sheffield Daily Telegraph. A visitor standing at the back of the stalls saw the diamond pin in the cravat of a man in the stalls suddenly begin to climb, apparently of its own accord, in a series of jerks. The man who owned it had his hands in his pockets, and on each side a man in evening dress was smoking a cigarette. The next jerk came just at the moment when these two men with wonderful precision put their cigarettes to their mouths. A word to an attendant was enough. The two "gentlemen" in evening clothes went quietly. My friend later picked up the long horsehair that had stretched from the little finger of one to the little finger of the other.

ELIJAH OPENED A GREAT PRODUCTION

All citizens who wish to hear a magnificent presentation of the world famous "Elijah" should attend the Grand on Monday evening. The company presenting, are the finest on the road and all of Metropolitan renowned. Of the performance the Montreal Herald says:

Ester Adaberto has a ringing, dramatic voice which carried brilliantly, the tone of the chorus was clear and brisk. Mr. Gwilym Miles lived up to his reputation as an interpreter of the role of the Prophet, and the orchestra was larger and much better than is usually heard with a road company. Dressed for the stage, "Elijah" is such a novelty that a large audience was looked for on the ground of curiosity alone. The principals were thoroughly in earnest, and Signor Arturo Bovi, who conducted, took infinite pains to realize the beauty of the score.

There are few chances for acting in "Elijah," but plenty of opportunities for effective singing, and the principal artists were wise in not rushing about and gesticulating wildly, as less sensible singers might have been tempted to do. The opera represents a sequence of pictures, plausibly connected and presented with the greatest faithfulness. The raising of the widow's son, the contest between Elijah and the priests of Baal, and the machinations of Ahab and Jezebel, are included, and the commentary songs such as "Hear Ye, Israel," and "O Rest in the Lord," are allotted to different members of the Israelites throng. The most impressive scenes were the great "Baal" chorus, with the divine consummation of the sacrifice (cleverly arranged,) the quartette, "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord," and the opening passages assigned to the widow. "What have I to do with Thee, O Man of God?"

Mr. Miles was especially successful in the "Lord God of Abraham" air, and in the short recitative which preceeds the descent of the fire from heaven, although his reading of the immortal cry, "It is enough," was not less sincere. Mr. Pilade Sinagra, the tenor, showed an excellent voice, and won a round of applause for "It with all your Hearts." The scenery is adequate and the stage management so good that waits between acts are short, and the final cutrain comes down before eleven o'clock. By all means hear "Elijah." 1d

NEWS FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence

Mrs. Porter of Sturgeon stret, is visiting with friends out of town.

Schools re-opened on Tuesday, after the holiday, with a full attendance.

Mr. J. A. Wylie returned to Toronto on Saturday evening, after a very pleasant visit with his mother and many other relatives.

The gunmen who were down the river last week report the duck victims as far below their sanguine expectations. Our deer hunters will now have an innings.

Our boys were very good on Hallowe'en. There were a few portions of sidewalk overturned but not much damage done. The majority seemed to be content with Hallowe'en parties and inside games. We congratulate our young people on the mark of a higher citizenship.

Omemee, Nov. 6—The Presbyterians held a fowl supper on Monday evening, in connection with their anniversary. There was a monster attendance to partake of the good things provided by the ladies, and when Dr. Nugent began his lecture "How to Get There," the auditorium of the church was packed to its capacity, even standing room being at a premium. The lecturer's topic might be translated "How to achieve success," and was divided into six headings, each of which, the speaker developed in their logical order, interspersing his remarks with flashes of humor, reaching his conclusion and climax with the topic "piety." It was a masterly effort, and coming from one of our native sons, its effect was more marked and pleasing than it would have been from a stranger. The anniversary was a grand financial success, the Sunday collections, combined with the proceeds of the supper and lecture of Monday, aggregating a handsome sum of over 200 dollars.

It was ardently wished that the visit of Miss Etta Scott to the Northwest last summer, would so recuperate her as to dispel all anxiety about her health. On her return, it was noticed that she looked much improved, and her weight had increased. Her parents and friends were buoyed up with expectations, 'till some three or four weeks ago, when she suffered a relapse, and despite all that loving hands could do and the best of medical attention, she passed peacefully away to her rest on Sunday Oct. 27, in the tearful company of her parents and other close friends. She was just budding into womanhood, being 21 years of age. Etta, as she was familiarly known, was a young woman of high Christian morals, was very popular in town and her pathetic death came as an awful shock to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott, of King street, and to her many friends in and about town. The funeral services, on Tuesday, from her father's residence, were conducted by the Rev W. F. Chapman of the Methodist church, of which she was a member, and of the choir also. Interment took place at the Emily Necropolis. Universally sincere condolences are felt for the grief-stricken parents and for the other near relatives.

A PRESENTATION

Mrs. J. Morrison, of King street has gone to Peterborough, where she intends to reside indefinitely. Before her departure, the ladies of the congregation of the Presbyterian church wishing to express, in a more tangible form than words, appreciation of her active service in the different branches of church work, invited Mrs. Morrison to the Manse, where she was made the recipient of a flattering address and of a very pretty watch fob. Although taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Morrison made a suitable reply in which she thanked the donors for the beautiful gift and for the honor accorded her.

Messrs. Pogue and C. Banks have returned from the West where they spent the summer. They are looking their very best.

Mr. Jas. Wilson, formerly proprietor of our barber shop, has spent the last few months in the West. He was in Omemee last week on business.

L.O.L. No. 113 has secured Jimmy Fax, of Toronto, and a number of other high class artists for their big annual entertainment on the evening of Christmas Day in Coronation Hall.

Mr. J. A. Peacock, who is a representative of the Cleveland Fencing Co., and whose headquarters are in the metropolis of Ohio, spent the week end at his home here.

Mr. C. R. Courtney of Mount Pleasant, made a business call on Saturday.

Mrs. W. J. McLean Miss Pearl McLean and Mr. J. R. McLean, of Toronto, returned home on Wednesday, after having been the guests of their friends for Thanksgiving.

Saturday night brought our first snow-fall of the season, after a very cold day. The subsequent frigid conditions have not been congenial nor comforting under a coal shortage.

The automobile is a hummer all right, but what about the other fellow who has a pair of high-spirited, nervous horses and meets the "Honk! Honk!" on a narrow road?

Mr. L. Wilson was the successful tenderer for the rural daily mail route which serves Bethel, Frank Hill and intermediate points. The farmers have erected the regulation letter-boxes at the entrance to their homes. These boxes are very serviceable and natty for the postal interchange.

Mr. N. Brown is assistant tonsorial artist in the shop of Mr. Geo. Wilson.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.F.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church was held at the residence of Mrs. T. W. McLean on Wednesday afternoon.

Anniversary services were held in Christ Church on Sunday, excellent sermons being delivered at each of the services by Rev. C. V. Pitcher, M.A., B.D., of St James' Cathedral, Toronto. On Monday evening the ladies entertained to a fowl supper and a musical recital which was largely patronised.

ALICE LLOYD IN "LITTLE MISS FIX-IT"

Alice Lloyd, with her pretty dimples and fascinating ways, whos scored a coast to coast triumph last season in "Little Miss Fix-It," will be seen at the Grand Monday, Nov. 11. This charming star has simply duplicated in the western hemisphere her success abroad, where her saucy songs have been heard from London to Cape Town.

English theatre-goers enthusiastically chose her as the most popular of all its sweet-singing comediennes and her coming to this city gives promise of one of the most delightful threats of the year.

In the sparkling comedy with music "Little Miss Fix-It," Werba and Luescher have sent forth a piece that ranks with their other famous successes, "The Spring Maid" and "The Rose Maid," which half the world is singing.

In "Little Miss Fix-It," Miss Lloyd plays a role that resembles her leading parts in the important Christmas pantomines of old England "Cinderella," Goody Two Shoes" and "Little Red Riding Hood" and gives to it a fine merry mischievousness that made her England's idol.

Of course she will be heard in her famous song hits including the burlesque song of fashions, "The Hobble Promenade," the coquettish "Master Cupid," the rollicking "Ship Ahoy," and the fascinating 'Splash Me," without which an audience is rarely willing to allow her to stop. In "Little Miss Fix-It" also will be seen "The Turkey Trot," the most discussed dance of the world of fashion and which Miss Lloyd is said to dance with much charm.

The company to be seen here will be the same that took Boston by storm for two months at the close of the past season. It includes Lionel Walsh in the quaint role that was a tremendous hit in New York and which has resulted in Werba and Luscher signing a contract to star him at the close of Miss Lloyd's tour.

Dairy meetings for the farmers of Victoria County will be held in Bobcaygeon on Tuesday, November 19. District Dairy Instructor Jamieson, of Peterborough, will give a report of the season's work.

Ottoman Court is Ready to Move Over Into Asia.

CANADIAN PRESS

Paris, Nov. 7.—Turkey has decided to give the powers complete liberty of action in arranging conditions of peace according to a despatch from Constantinople.

London, Nov. 7.—The Turkish garrison has been withdrawn from Saloniki after destroying a number of bridges forming the approaches to the city, according to news agency despatches from Athens.

Cologne, Germany, Nov. 7. — The Turks are reported to have been decisively beaten by Bulgarians and driven in disorder from their positions at Tcha-tajla forts in front of Constantinople according to despatches from Sofia to the Cologne Gazette. The fighting was very severe and lasted two days.

London, Nov. 7—Bulgarian troops advancing on Constantinople to-day occupied several villages in the vicinity of the line of Turkish forts at Tchatalja, according to news agency despatch from Sofia.

London, Nov. 7.—Bulgaria is giving the broken Turkish army no time to recuperate. In accordance with the tactics adopted throughout the war, the Bulgarians are following up the defeated Turks with extraordinary energy. Flying columns are pushing along the sea coast towards the Tchatalja lines, and it is believed that the main attack will be delivered to-day or to-morrow.

Constantinople appears to have lost hope of stemming the victorious advance even at Tchatalja, and the Turkish court is ready to cross into Asia. Apparently, however, the Bulgarian Government has no aspirations on Constantinople itself, and would be ready to conclude peace provided Turkey will agree to surrender Adrianople and some other positions in the western theatre of war and give a guarantee to bring no more reinforcements from Asia.

The Porte shows no disposition as yet to treat for peace direct with the allies and until the big Tchatalja battle has been fought the diplomatic situation is not likely to be changed. What will happen then it is impossible to foresee, the only thing certain being that the European concert, which is not too harmonious, will be faced by the most difficult and thorny task of settling the rival claims of the many aspirants for Turkish territory.

Albania forms the crux of the position. It is stated that an attempt by Servia to encroach on Albania will be regarded by Austria as a casus belli. On the other hand Servia declares that a port on the Adriatic is a matter of life and death for her, and she fails to see why her presence there should be detrimental to the interests of any other power. Further, Servia argues that she would only be regaining possession of what belonged to her before the downfall of the Servian Empire, when Adriatic seaports were flourishing Servian towns. Nothing yet is known of Roumania's position in the new deal. The British Minister at Bucharest had a three hours' conference with the Russian Minister yesterday on the subject.

The fall of Monastir is not confirmed, but is considered not improbable. The Greeks are crossing the Vardar river, and the fall of Saloniki is reported imminent.

To Prosecute War.

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—It is reported that the Cabinet has decided to prosecute the war after making a change in a number of important commands in the eastern army. Gen. Mahmout Mukhtar, who has arrived from army headquarters yesterday, told Kiamil Pasha, the grand vizier, that the Porte's demand for mediation had produced the worst possible effect in the army.

Heavy Turkish Losses.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 7.—The Turkish losses in killed and wounded during the five days' fighting in the vicinity of Lule Burgas and Bunarhissar are estimated at 25,000 men. The Bulgarian troops captured 37 batteries of quick-firing guns and took 2,000 prisoners. They also seized four locomotives and 243 railroad cars.

Regular communication has been restored between Lule Burgas and Kirk-Kilisseh by the railroad.

The Bulgarian army in Macedonia is advancing rapidly down the valley of the Struma. The troops have occupied the Rupel Pass and are continuing their march upon the town of Serres.

Saloniki May Surrender.

Athens, Nov. 7.—A Greek naval squadron yesterday occupied the Turkish island of Tenedos near the entrance to the Dardanelles. The Greek army operating in the vicinity of Saloniki has almost accomplished its object as the investment of the fortress is nearly complete.

Negotiations for the surrender of Saloniki were opened on Friday last between the foreign consuls and the military authorities, but the Turkish commander demanded that his troops be allowed to march out with their arms and with all the honors of war, so that negotiations fell through. The civil governor is said to have committed suicide.

The Greek newspapers in discussing the proposed armistice say it can only be accepted on condition that the Turkish throne be transferred to Asia Minor and that reforms for the benefit of the Christian population there must also be introduced.

King Nicholas Is Pacific.

Vienna, Nov. 7.—King Nicholas of Montenegro discussed the intentions of the Balkan allies yesterday in the course of an interview with a correspondent of The Vienna Tagblatt. His Majesty said:

"While the Balkan nations will settle their affairs for themselves, their victories have not made them so daring as to forget to accommodate their wishes to the general situation in Europe."

Servians Are Brave.

Uskup, Turkey, Nov. 7.—The Turkish army defeated by the Servians at Kumanova and Kuprili, took up positions in the mountainous districts between Kuprili and Perlepe, where the roads are practically impassable.

As the Servian artillery was unable to follow them, the infantry was ordered to advance, and in spite of a murderous artillery fire from the Turks took position after position. The last ones were carried at the point of the bayonet.

The Servian troops have occupied Demir-kapu Pass to the southeast of Istip, where they found the big railway bridge intact. The Montenegrin and Servian armies have joined hands at Ipek.

Dumfounded by Defeats.

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—The public is astonished and dumfounded at the repeated Turkish reverses. It is now recognized on all sides that the end has come.

The Mussulman population of the towns along the Dardanelles, although depressed, maintains calm. Some anti-Greek incidents of small importance are reported to have occurred in the outlying villages.

TWO STREET CARS IN COLLISION

Sixteen People Were Injured—Some are Seriously Hurt

Vandal Robbed Girl of Purse and Engagement Ring

Canadian Press.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Sixteen people were injured, some seriously, in a collision between two street cars at the corner of St. Lawrence and Ontario streets, this morning.

Nine of the victims were taken to the hospital. While Miss Laub, one of those seriously injured, was lying on the ground in an unconscious condition, some vandal stole her purse containing ten dollars, and also took the engagement ring from her finger.

TWO FAMILIES DIVIDE $13,000

Chinese Merchant Found to Have Had Two Wives.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Tug Quong, the Chinese Queen street merchant, who died on Sept. 2, had drawn up a brief and businesslike will for the disposition of his estate of $13,000. The document, which was filed in the Surrogate Court yesterday, read: "I give and bequeath to my wife in China, named Chu Shee, and two sons in China, named Sing Hing and Sing Ghear, and my wife in Toronto, named Chummy Shee, and my son in Toronto, Sing Shirly Lung, all my estate, both real and personal, to be divided equally among them."

PROVINCE'S GOOD YEAR

Revenue in Two Departments is Announced.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—The revenue for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, in two departments of the Ontario Government, was announced yesterday. Succession duties, which were estimated in Hon. A. G. Matheson's last budget as $700,000, realized but little over half that amount, the official figures being $378,881. A year ago the succession duties totaled over a million dollars.

The Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, for which an estimate of $2,800,000 was given, have exceeded that amount, the returns from lands and timber being $2,843,695, and from the mines $645,676.

It was also announced yesterday that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has paid over to the Government $184,707, being the interest on the money advanced for the construction of the transmission line.

Will Operate Transcontinental.

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—The Transcontinental Railway commissioner has decided in the public interest to operate the completed line of the National Transcontinental Railway in New Brunswick temporarily, or until such time as the G.T.P. has applied for, and been granted a lease of this section of the line, under the terms of the National Transcontinental Railway Act.

THE RESULT AND SENATORIAL PROSPECTS CAUSE TALK

Woman's Suffrage Carries in Four of Five States—Taft Will Have Only Twelve Votes.

New York, Nov. 7.—Only the uncertainty of a few close states, whose electoral vote in no way can affect the election of Wilson and Marshall, speculation over the popular vote of the three Presidential candidates and the complexion of Legislatures that will name United States Senators, held interest last night in the final returns of the general election.

The total of the Republican electoral column apparently was fixed at the 12 votes of Idaho, Utah and Vermont, but the footing of the Wilson and Roosevelt columns flickered alternately during the afternoon and night as late returns from Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, South Dakota and Wyoming gave indications of change from the results accepted Tuesday's night.

On the basis of the latest returns early in the evening, with the vote of Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, South Dakota and Wyoming placed in the "doubtful" column, President-elect Wilson had 387 certain votes in the electoral college; Col. Roosevelt 80, and President Taft 12. All of the doubtful states, except South Dakota, gave more or less certain indications during the night of landing in the list of Wilson electors; while South Dakota's returns showed a general trend toward a Roosevelt plurality.

A by-phrase of the general election that became known yesterday was the success of woman's suffrage in four of the five states where constitutional amendments were submitted to the people. The victory of the women was complete in Kansas, Arizona, and Michigan, while late returns from Oregon indicated they had succeeded there also. From Wisconsin came returns showing the decisive defeat of the equal suffrage proposal.

Estimates of the popular vote polled by Governor Wilson ranged through many millions during the day. It was found impossible to compute with any accuracy the popular vote of any of the Presidential candidates; and it will be a number of days until the counting of the three-cornered contest in the different states is concluded and an accurate tabulation of the popular vote made possible.

Assertions were made yesterday from several quarters where no effort had been made to gather preliminary popular vote figures, that Governor Wilson had not secured a majority of the votes cast throughout the country. Estimates ranged from a small majority of all votes, to figures nearly 1,000,000 below a majority. The popular votes, however, would in no way affect his election, or his complete control of the electoral college, should it show his total to be less than that of the combined vote for Roosevelt and Taft.

The New York Press, commenting on the election says: "Theodore Roosevelt emerges from a brilliantly fought battle with honors merely the portion of a losing leader. While the voters have rejected him as President, they have commissioned him as the leader of the party in opposition. The Republican party, which deserved destruction, has been abolished. In place of the departed Republican party the anti-Democratic voters have erected a new and animate organization. The Progressive party is no longer a name, but an American Governmental institution that will long endure."

Assures Business Man.

Princeton, N.J., Nov. 7.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson sent replies yesterday to the congratulatory telegrams of President Taft and Col. Roosevelt and issued a statement in which he declared that "there is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business men of the country to fear" from the Democratic administration.

To President Taft at Washington be sent the following telegram: "I warmly appreciate your kind message and wish to express my sincere personal regards."

Mr. Wilson sent to Roosevelt at Oyster Bay the following telegram: "My sincerest thanks for your kind message. Pray accept my cordial good wishes."

Governor Wilson made the following statement in the afternoon: "The result fills me with the hope that the thoughtful Progressive forces of the nation may now at last unite to give the country freedom of enterprise and a Government released from all corporate and private influences, devoted to justice and progress. There is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business men of the country to fear.

"No man whose business is conducted without violation of the rights of free competition and without such private understandings and secret alliances as violate the principle of our law and the policy of all wholesome commerce and enterprise need fear either interference or embarrassment from the administration."

WILSON WILL NOT DEFINE ATTIUDE

Will Take Time Before Making Any Statements

Canadian Press.

Princeton, N.J., Nov. 7.—"I think my right course just now is to hear everybody and that I should not make any statements." This was the answer made by President elect Woodrow Wilson to-day to a series of requests for his attitude on national and international questions.

ROBERTS SAYS HE IS ONLY POINTING OUT THE DANGER

Would Impress Upon His Countrymen the Danger Involved in Present Situation.

London, Nov. 7.—Lord Roberts breaks the silence he has maintained since his famous Manchester speech by a vigorous letter to The Manchester Guardian yesterday. He explains he is not much accustomed to adverse criticism in efforts to arouse the nation to a sense of its unpreparedness for war, or to resent in any way the attacks of opponents, but, nevertheless, he feels bound to answer what he describes as a complete misconstruction by The Guardian of a salient passage in his speech.

"It is true I pointed out the striking process by which Germany developed from a voice conglomerate petty federated states to a united empire which arouses the admiration of the world to-day, but to suggest I was urging upon England that it should be her policy first to arm herself better than Germany, and then make war on Germany with or without just cause or even quarrel, simply because England thinks herself at that moment able to win a war, is a suggestion so strange and so repugnant to my mind that I am utterly at a loss to understand how it could be attributed to me or elicited from my speech.

"My whole speech was directed, as are all my efforts, to impressing upon my fellow countrymen the terrible danger involved in the present situation, in which we find ourselves as a nation, untrained, unorganized and unarmed, amid a Europe in which every people—not only great powers like Russia, Germany and France, but smaller states like Bulgaria, Servia, Greece, Norway, Sweden and Denmark—stand as armed nations, providing a balance of forces which, while it strengthens each one of them physically, industrially makes for peace with honor or for the triumph of right."

Two German Airmen Killed.

Halberstadt, Germany, Nov. 7.—Two more German airmen were killed here yesterday. Lieut. Altrichter was making a flight in a biplane in which he carried an engineer named Meyer as a passenger, when the motor suddenly stopped and the aeroplane plunged to the ground from a height of sixty feet. The two airmen were found dead in the shattered machine.

CREMATED IN WRECK FIRE

Body so Badly Charred Identification is Impossible

Freight Train Crashed into Caboose of Cattle Train

Canadian Press.

Brandon, Man., Nov. 7.—One man, whose identity is unknown, was killed, and another is believed to have been cremated in a collision between a freight train and the caboose of a cattle train in the C. P.R. yards here last night. A fire, which followed the crash, consumed most of the wreckage. The body was found so badly charred that identification is not possible. Several valuable cattle were burned up also. It is believed that the owner of the cattle, and the brakeman of the cattle train were in the caboose at the time.

ONE OF THREE INJURED MAY DIE

Scaffold Collapsed and Men Fell to Tracks.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—While at work on some scaffolding above the tracks at Dowling avenue, Parkdale, yesterday afternoon, three of the workmen fell through to the tracks below and one of them is so seriously injured that he may die.

The men are Peter Miller, aged 24, living at 23 Pape avenue; W. Eakins, whose home is in Barre, and B. Zant, of Teraulay street.

Miller is the most seriously hurt, his head being badly injured, and it is thought he is internally injured.

Eakins broke his right leg and Zant was slightly cut and bruised. The police ambulance was called and took the men to Grace Hospital. The doctors cannot say yet whether Miller will recover.

How the accident happened is not known, but in some way the scaffold collapsed and threw the men to the tracks several feet below.

SPEED OF ROYAL GEORGE FASTER THAN WARRANTED

Speed For Safety at This Time of Year Under Five Miles But it is Claimed Liner Was Travelling at Eighteen Knots—Many Steerage Passengers Still on Board.

Canadian Press.

Quebec, No. 7—About four hundred passengers from the C. N. R. Liner, "Royal George," which went ashore one mile east of point St. Lawrence on the Isle of Orleans last night, arrived here on board a tender this morning and were sent to Montreal by special train. Capt. Belanger of the steamer "Savory" who passed the stranded liner this morning, says he does not think her position dangerous, as she is ashore on a bottom of sand and gravel and is in no danger of breaking in two. Several hundred steerage passengers are still on board and waves are breaking so high that it is dangerous for steamers and tugs which came to her assistance to come alongside. Hydrographic maps give the speed for safety at this time of the year at four and a half miles an hour, but it is claimed the Royal George was running at eighteen knots when she struck.

Montreal, Nov. 7— A wireless message from the Royal George, this afternoon, says the vessel is in the same position as when stranded. It was the intention to float her to-day but a high wind rendered it difficult to lighten her.

Quebec, Nov. 7.—The Canadian Northern royal mail steamer Royal George, from Bristol to Quebec, with 901 passengers and a general cargo for Quebec and Montreal, ran on the rocks at high water at 5.10 yesterday afternoon, one mile east of Point St. Lawrence, Island of Orleans, and is now resting on the rocks in a precarious condition. The news of the accident was flashed over the Marconi wireless system to Quebec a short time after the vessel struck, and received with amazement by the Quebec officials of the C.N.R. steamship service.

The Royal George sailed from Bristol, Eng., on Wednesday, Oct. 30, to make her last trip in the St. Lawrence trade this season. She reached the Grosse Isle quarantine station yesterday afternoon, and at 4.10 started for the port of Quebec, having a distance of 37 miles to cover before she could reach her moorings at the Louise docks, and in order to reach port in time to allow a landing of her steerage passengers in compliance with the immigration regulations, came up the river at full speed.

The river was veiled with a thin fog at the time. Nevertheless, the old and reliable pilot in charge of the steamer, who is supposed to know every inch of the river, felt sure of his bearings, and allowed the big passenger liner with its living freight on board to forge ahead at the limit of its speed capacity.

The Royal George was feeling its way with a rush, and the passengers, in anticipation of soon reaching the end of their voyage, were busy packing their belongings, when suddenly the big ship was heard to crush her bottom on the rocks, and suddenly came to a stop on the north side of the south channel, when all was confusion, not at the thought of danger, but the suddenness of the mishap in a location where no man on board the ship suspected lurked the least menace of danger.

As soon as the news of the accident reached Quebec the officials of the company lost no time in preparing for means of relief to be sent down the river to the scene of the accident. Several local tugs were despatched at 7 o'clock, and the services of the wrecking steamer Lord Strathcona requisitioned.

The Lord Strathcona, after coaling, departed for the scene of the accident at 8 p.m. The old steamer South of the Quebec and Levis Ferry Co. was also chartered to go down the river and take off the passengers from the Royal George and bring them to Quebec, which sailed at 8.30 o'clock, and the C.P.R. tug Cruiser followed at 10 o'clock.

In the meantime J. P. Stafford, acting immigration agent, recognizing the serious condition of things, made arrangements for the reception of the steerage passengers when they arrived and besides instructing every man in connection with the service to remain on duty all night, if necessary, also instructed the caterer to have everything in readiness to supply meals to the passengers if they needed them.

BAD GANG IS ROUNDED UP

Police Think They Have Authors of Recent Robberies.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—With the arrests of George and Lillian White, both colored, at 125 Duchess street, about 4.15 yesterday afternoon, the city detectives believe they have rounded up the principal members of a gang of thieves, robbers, safe blowers and "dope" fiends who have become notorious throughout the country for their depredations. The other men in custody are Mike Lafferty, alias James Smith, George Gayden, William Turner, William McMahon and Mike Tearney.

When Detectives Taylor, Murray and Young called at the Duchess street house they found White in bed with Harry Whitesides, aged about 22, a young lad from the east end of the city. Both were smoking opium.

A complete opium outfit, with the lamp, pipe, trays, etc., and about $16 of the drug were seized by the police, who placed the two men and the woman under arrest on charges of vagrancy. When he appears in the police court the crown will likely prosecute White for running an opium joint, and the others as frequenters.

All the men arrested showed the marks of the hypodermic syringe on their arms.

Under examination the prisoners betrayed themselves sufficiently to give the detectives their cue, and the raid of the Duchess street house resulted.

Sergeant of Detectives Mackie believes that they are the gang who have been operating throughout the small towns and villages blowing safes, robbing postoffices and small country places in general.

THURSDAo, NOV. 7, 1912.

CANADA MAY PROFIT

While it is acceded that President Wilson is a "minority" president, he is elected by less than a majority of the individual votes of the people, he is, none the less, the ruler. His very manner of election increases his responsibility. With a Democratic President, House of Representatives and possibly Senate, some distinct changes are looked for in the tariff. There may not be a radical pulling down of the walls, but some judicious lessening, that was promised, in the interests of the "cost of living."

The Toronto News makes pertinent remark along this line and adds:

"Perhaps it may even be brought down to near the level of the Canadian tariff. Possibly we shall secure concessions in the United States market without having to make such national sacrifices as were involved in the Washington trade agreement so wisely rejected by the Canadian people thirteen months ago. This country will await with interest the new President's first utterance on the Panama canal question. If he is true to his high reputation as an honorable gentleman he will strive to find some way of having his country live up to its treaty obligations. As for the future it looks as if the Republican party had lived out its life, and as if the contest of 1916 will be fought between the Democrats and the Progressives.

DO THEY ENDORSE IT

The Christian Guardian prints the following paragraph, which has appeared in many papers during the last couple of months:

> "A few months ago the Western Watchman, the organ of the Roman Catholic church, published a sermon preached in St Louis by Archbishop Phelan. The following passages in the sermon have attracted a great deal of most unfavorable comment. He said: "Tell us that we think more of the Church than we do of the United States; of course we do. Tell us we are Catholics first and American or Englishmen afterwards; of course we are. Tell us, in the conflict between the Church and the civil government we take the side of the Church; of course we do. Why, if the government of the United States were at war with the Church we would say to-morrow, to hell with the government of the United States; and if the Church and all the governments of the world were at war, we would say, to hell with all the governments of the world. They say we are Catholics first and Americans decidedly afterward. There is no doubt about it. We are Catholics first and we love the Church more than we love any and all the governments of the world. Let the governments of the world steer clear of the Catholic Church." And yet they wonder why Protestants hesitate about placing Roman Catholics in positions of great public responsibility."

It is assumed that the report is correct, and that the statement was so made it is just such utterances as serve to keep alive the flame of discord. We do not believe that it in any way represents the view and feeling of the average Catholic citizen.

The trouble with this whole thing is that the Church speaks, but the citizen does not, and the citizen should not have to bear the innuendo, implied, that he endorses and sustains such statements.

Consider where one would be as a nation if Protestant clergymen were to incite such statements. Why should not the Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians proclaim their fealty to their faiths and practically defy all order and government. They do not, for they, though their congregations are of the people, making Canada a nation, a country where any man may live, practice his vocation, enjoy liberty of speech and thought, and action, so long as he does not infringe the rights of others.

THE TIDES OF THE BAY OF FUNDY

The Celebrated Ebb and Flow Is Famous the World Over.

Something there is in the tidal rise-and-fall of the Bay of Fundy so suggestive that verse-writers have made rhymes about it; so unusual that sightseers have marveled at it; so tremendous, that practical men have talked of making power out of it; so so perennial that history has come from it. All the world, or thereabouts knows of the Fundy tides, and even yet people come to see them. They are inseparably connected with the yesterday and to-day of the two Maritime Provinces whose coasts they wash twice daily.

It is by no means a matter of mere form, this filling and emptying of the funnel-shaped bay. It does more, too, than make a world's record for itself. Artistic effects and economic benefits have been left by it, and are being fostered or added to every day: for instance, the long stretches of marsh-land that it has built up on either shore. Poetry has been written about these, and from them came every year substantial crops of hay. First cause of both is the tide.

Other than Nova Scotians have felt the peculiar charm that lies, close and real, over the marshes of Grand Pre and Tantremar. All that has been sung of them, of grace and beauty, and loyal fervor, is rightly theirs; and such as they are, the tide has made them.

Less known to literary fame, but their equal in age, and made after the same fashion, are many other smaller marshes along the tidal coast. Of such is the Belle Isle marsh on the Annapolis River, a tract of about a thousand acres, known to the earliest settlers as "The Great Meadow," and to this day farmed as hay land. Belle Isle marsh may fairly be called historic. It formed a part of the old seigniory of Port Royal, belonging to D'Aulnay de Charnisay, and when that autocratic gentleman fell upon troublous times financially it, along with other lands, was seized by his creditor, Le Borgne. The son of the new owner assumed the title of Sieur de Bellisle, and from himself the name passed on to his land. There was some settlement on it as early, at least, as 1679, for there are records of a conveyance in that year from Sieur de Bellisle to one Martin, who was already an occupant and farmer upon the "great meadow." There are not many tracts of land in Canada that have been farmed for two and a third centuries.

At the time of the Acadian expulsion there were grain fields on a part of the great meadow, and these, according to local history, made fierce burning when the English torches were set to them.

The Belle Isle marsh of to-day is protected from the tides by a circling dyke, inside of which is fertile meadow that was originally built up by those same tides. Outside of the dyke is a winding belt of salt marsh, and then the long, low flats of red mud, up which, then down again, the river flows and ebbs.

Handiwork of a very different kind is that which the tides have done on one particular river of the Fundy system. The bay narrows greatly at its head, and its tidal waters pass through Chignecto and Shepody Bays into the Petitcodiac River, with a force that might be expected from such extreme compression. Half-way up the river, before the much-famed Bore at Moncton is reached the furious tides have cut a two-mile stretch of cliffs into a natural gallery of strange and ponderous sculpture. The cliffs, which are mostly perpendicular, and from fifty to eighty feet high, have, by the long-continued wearing and pounding of the tides, been hewn and hollowed into columns, arches and caves of many shapes and sizes. This cutting is sometimes wondrously smooth and even; elsewhere it is rough and jagged. The cliffs at Hopewell form one of the best examples of water erosion in all Canada, and incidentally they are eloquent of the Fundy's tidal force.—Aubrey Fullerton in Toronto Globe.

Can Write Anywhere.

Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian novelist, has something like twenty-five books to his credit, and several of his novels have achieved great popularity. One of them, "The Seats of the Mighty," was presented in dramatic form by Sir Herbert Tree. Sir Gilbert Parker is one of those fortunate authors who can write anywhere, and under any conditions. "There are," he asserts, "times when absolute silence is painful, and then a hand organ under the window is a positive relief. Usually I write with comparative ease and facility, and if a thing does not seize me I drop it for a time. Once absorbed in a novel, and I can write under almost any circumstances. One of the concluding chapters of 'The Trail of the Sword' I wrote in a railway train; two chapters of 'The Translation of a Savage' I wrote between London and New York. Some of my short stories have been written among crowds of people; one was written at a railway station when I was waiting for a train."

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

Pruning Knife That Cut Pretty Deep Both Ways.

"It is this way," said Mr. Piety Hill. "We have simply got to cut down expenses. There are no two ways about it. I was running over my bank account last night, and it begins to look like an unexpected event that forgot to happen. We have got to cut out a lot of monkey business. There are your bridge parties, f'rinstance."

"All right," agreed Mrs. Hill. "I'll cut them out absolutely. Anything else?"

"Yes; those little pink teas you give every week or so set me back about $15 a throw."

"All right. No more pink teas. Anything else?"

"Don't you suppose you can cut down on your dressmaker's bills?"

"Yes; I will buy a fifteen dollar hand-me-down suit, and I won't have a dress made all winter. Anything else?"

"Your hats"—

"I'll make over my old ones. Is that all?"

"All that I think of at present. I am glad to see you are sensible about it."

"Well, then, of course you will cut out those two for a quarter cigars of yours. Ten or twelve of those a day count up."

"I really hadn't thought of stopping smoking."

"Well, I guess you'll have to. And then those dollar lunches that you buy downtown every noon—of course you will stop that and come home to lunch. We'll have codfish."

"Oh, really, now, you are a bit unreasonable, my dear."

"You will also have to cut out your tailor and buy ready made clothes. You will also have to stop having those cute little poker parties here. Your friends come and win your money, smoke your cigars and drink your whisky. That must be stopped. It is too expensive."

"But I have got to have that relaxation from business cares."

"You can relax in the future by playing dominos with me. We will entertain each other and save a lot of money, and that goes too. It's the one best bet."

"Well," said Mr. Piety Hill, "after thinking the whole matter over carefully I have come to the conclusion that we had better let things run along as they are for awhile. Perhaps we can manage it somehow."

"I thought we could," replied Mrs. Hill.—Richmond Dispatch.

Should Salute the Flag.

A patriotic suggestion in connection with the public schools of Ontario was made by Dr. James L. Hughes at the Brock celebration recently. He called attention to the pride in the Stars and Stripes which the people of the United States instil in their school children. To do this the American flag flies over the schoolhouse every school day in the year. He considered that Ontario could do even better than this. To fly the flag every day made it seem an unimportant matter. What should be done, however, was to gather the scholars in the schoolyard on anniversaries of Canada's victories and after explaining to them the nature of the event commemorated have the flag raised while the pupils stand at salute.

The Salmon Pack.

Nearly 6,000,000 cases of forty-eight pounds each of salmon were canned last year in the northwest Pacific.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Altho wheat prices today touched a new low record for the season, Dec. at 87 3-4c, the market closed strong, 3-8c to 1-2c above Monday night. Scantiness of increase in the world's available supply formed the main reason for the upturn. Corn finished unchanged to 1-4c higher, oats varying from the same as the previous close to 1-8c to 1-4c gain, and provisions either not altered or with advances ranging from a shade to 12 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅝c to 1⅛c lower than Monday on wheat, and ¼c to ½c lower on corn. Antwerp wheat was ⅝c lower, Berlin ½c lower, and Budapest ⅜c lower.

Winnipeg Grain Market.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 6.—Following a steady decline for some days, prices reacted sharply, in spite of lower cables and heavy receipts. The advance here was attributed to an oversold condition on Tuesday, and partly sentiment. The cash demand was good and offerings were limited. Export houses were all active buyers, and there was a heavy demand to fill space. Oats and flax shared in the reaction in prices, and advanced ⅝c to ⅝c for oats, and 3c to 3½ for flax.

Receipts continue heavy, Tuesday's inspection showing a total of 1134 cars, and 1000 in sight for inspection.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—There was an active demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, there being bids in the market for over 500,000 bushels; but owing to the sharp advance in prices in Winnipeg few of the orders could be accepted. A fair business continues to be done in Manitoba barley at 27s 6d for No. 3, and 27s for No. 4, for shipment to Glasgow. The trade in coarse grains is quiet. EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT, 1911, by H. K. FLY CO.

"He looks like a whole wedding party," was Ashton's only comment on the copious grief. It was poor Wellington's fate to hunt as vainly for sympathy as Diogenes for honesty. The decorators either ignored him or shunted him aside. They were interested in a strange contrivance of ribbons and a box that Shaw produced.

"That," Hudson explained, "is a little rice trap. We hang that up there and when the bridal couple sit down—biff! a shower of rice all over them. It's bad, eh?"

Everybody agreed that it was a happy thought, and even Jimmie Wellington, like a great baby, bounding from tears to laughter on the instant, was chortling: "A rishe trap? That's absolootly splendid—greates' invensh' modern times. I must stick around and see her when she flops." And then he lurched forward like a too obliging elephant. "Let me help you."

Mrs. Whitcomb, who had now mounted a step ladder and poised herself as gracefully as possible, shrieked with alarm, as she saw Wellington's bulk rolling toward her frail support.

If Hudson and Shaw had not been football veterans at West Point and had not known just what to do when the center rush comes bucking the line, they could never have blocked that flying wedge. But they checked him and impelled him backward through his own curtains into his own berth.

Finding himself on his back, he decided to remain there. And there he remained, oblivious of the carnival preparations going on just outside his canopy.

CHAPTER VII.

The Masked Minister.

Being an angel must have this great advantage at least, that one may sit in the grandstand overlooking the earth and enjoy the ludicrous blunder of that great blind man's buff we call life.

This night, if any angels were watching Chicago, the Mallory mix-up must have given them a good laugh, or a good cry—according to their natures.

Here were Mallory and Marjorie, still merely engaged, bitterly regretting their inability to get married and to continue their journey together. There in the car were the giggling conspirators preparing a bridal mockery for their sweet confusion.

Then the angels might have nudged one another and said:

"Oh, it's all right now. There goes the minister hurrying to their very car. Mallory has the license in his pocket, and here comes the parson. Hooray!"

And then the angelic cheer must have died out as the one great hurrah of a crowded ball-ground is quenched in air when the home team's vitally needed home run swerves outside the line and drops useless as a stupid foul ball.

In a shabby old hack, were two of the happiest runaways that ever sought a train. They were not miserable like the young couple in the taxicab. They were white-haired both. They had been married for thirty years. Yet this was their real honeymoon, their real elopement.

The little woman in the timid gray bonnet clapped her hands and tittered like a schoolgirl.

"Oh, Walter, I can't believe we're really going to leave Ypsilanti for a while. Oh, but you've earned it after thirty years of being a preacher."

"Hush. Don't let me hear you say the awful word," said the little old man in the little black hat and the close-fitting black bib. "I'm so tired of it, Sally, I don't want anybody on the train to know it."

"They can't help guessing it, with your collar buttoned behind."

And then the amazing minister actually dared to say, "Here's where I change it around." What's more, he actually did it. Actually took off his collar and buttoned it to the front. The old carriage seemed almost to rock with the earthquake of the deed.

"Why, Walter Temple!" his wife exclaimed. "What would they say in Ypsilanti?"

"They'll never know," he answered, defiantly.

"But your bib?" she said.

"I've thought of that, too," he cried, as he whipped it off and stuffed it into a handbag. "Look, what I've bought." And he dangled before her startled eyes a long affair which the sudden light from a passing lamp-post revealed to be nothing less than a flaring red tie.

The old lady touched it to make sure she was not dreaming it. Then, omitting further parley with fate, she snatched it away, put it round his neck, and, since her arms were embracing him, kissed him twice before she knotted the ribbon into a flaming bow. She sat back and regarded the vision a moment, then flung her arms round him and hugged him till he gasped:

Mrs. Walter Temple.

"Watch out—watch out. Don't crush my cigars."

"Cigars! Cigars!" she echoed, in a daze.

And then the astounding husband produced them in proof.

"Genuine Lillian Russells—five cents straight."

"But I never saw you smoke."

"Haven't taken a puff since I was a young fellow," he grinned, wagging his head. "But now it's my vacation, and I'm going to smoke up."

She squeezed his hand with an earlier ardor: "Now you're the old Walter Temple I used to know."

"Sally," he said, "I've been traveling through life on a half-fare ticket. Now I'm going to have my little fling. And you brace up, too, and be the old mischievous Sally I used to know. Aren't you glad to be away from those sewing circles and gossip-bees, and —"

"Ugh! Don't ever mention them," she shuddered. Then she, too, felt a tinge of recurring springtide. "If you start to smoking, I think I'll take up flirting once more."

He pinched her cheek and laughed. "As the saying is, go as far as you desire and I'll leave the coast clear."

He kept his promise, too, for they were no sooner on the train and snugly bestowed in section five, than he was up and off.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"To the smoking-room," he swaggered, brandishing a dangerous looking cigar.

"Oh, Walter," she snickered, "I feel like a young runaway."

"You look like one. Be careful not to let anybody know that you're a"—he lowered his voice—"an old preacher's wife."

"I'm as ashamed of it as you are," she whispered. Then he threw her a kiss and a wink. She threw him a kiss and winked too. And he went along the aisle eyeing his cigar gloatingly. As he entered the smoking-room, lighted the weed and blew out a great puff with a sigh of rapture, who could have taken him, with his feet cocked up, and his red tie rakishly askew, for a minister?

And Sally herself was busy disguising herself, loosening up her hair coquettishly, smiling the primness out of the set corners of her mouth and even—let the truth be told at all costs—even passing a pink-powdered puff over her pale cheeks with guilty surreptition.

Thus arrayed she was soon joining the conspirators bedecking the bower for the expected bride and groom. She was the youngest and most mischievous of the lot. She felt herself a bride again, and vowed to protect this timid little wife to come from too much hilarity at the hands of the conspirators.

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORRIN, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STEWART, 299 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Finding Patients For Doctors.

A curious occupation has sprung up in Paris. Several doctors have received a circular from a newly formed agency, which offers to find patients for them. The fees are rather high. They vary from $20 to $100. On receipt of the fee the doctor is assured a list of twenty consumptives, twenty epileptics, twenty people suffering from cancer, and so forth. He is then at liberty to call and offer his services. The agency's circular declares that the lists of patients are compiled from absolutely certain sources and that the money will be returned if there are more than three mistakes in each list. This is rather a grim proviso.—New York Tribune.

Kaiser's Use of English Language.

English is said to have been the language employed at the recent interview between the German emperor and the czar. The kaiser has more than once shown his preference for English as a means of communication in circumstances where German cannot be employed. At a banquet given on the occasion of his first state visit to The Hague the admiral at the head of the Dutch navy addressed the imperial guest in French. The kaiser replied in English, observing that he was a British admiral and that English was the most appropriate language for seamen to employ.—London Chronicle.

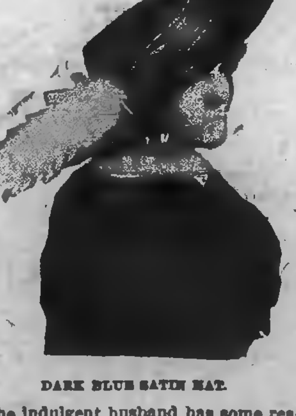
RAINY DAY SAILOR.

Would You Pay $110 For This Creation?



DARK BLUE SATIN HAT.

The indulgent husband has some reason for being discouraged at the steadily increasing prices of feminine headgear. Most men who have means will gladly pay fifty or a hundred dollars for a stunning hat for their wives, a creation loaded perhaps with ostrich feathers, real lace bows and the like, but when it comes to a three figure price for a simple little rainy day sailor, made of a handful of silk, a yard of ribbon and fancy feather, things are different.

The hat pictured is a Paris creation and is made of dark blue satin over a sailor frame. Blue and white ribbons and a wired white fox brush trim the hat in a smart and simple style.

Home Massage.

Probably there are more queries as to the use of massage at home and what it can do than any other process in connection with the care of the face, so that a few words on the subject may not be out of place.

In the first place, it is difficult to set a limit as to the powers of face massage when employed by skilled and properly trained people. One hears of really remarkable achievements in muscle building and facial restoration by its means, and sees the results, too, while as an ordinary means of toning up the skin and improving the surface circulation its benefits are manifested daily.

Home massage does not always meet with success. Caution is most necessary. It is only too easy to do considerable harm to the skin by the casual rubbing it about, which is as a rule the process untrained hands perform, for wrinkles are deliberately induced by this treatment, and other blemishes, too. Therefore the best advice is as a rule to leave massage alone altogether, save in specific cases, for which proper instructions can be obtained.

But there are a few ends which can safely be attained by faithful persistence at home, and for these a few suggestions may be useful. To begin with, much can be done to maintain the contour of the face, and this is perhaps one of the most important things, for it is the almost imperceptible change in this which marks the passage of years most distinctly.

Every one who has any care uses face cream or skin food for cleansing and nourishing her skin, and this can be so applied that the desirable end is encompassed. When once extreme youth is passed, slight sagging of the face commences, and to guard against this is easy enough in the majority of cases.

Beauty Tips.

Flesh color is the best powder tint for most complexions. A plain rice powder can be bought for 25 cents a box. It is generally pure and sticks to the skin better than ordinary talcum powder.

Miniature silk roses, perfumed with any desired sachet powder, come all ready to sew in the top of the corset, within the top of a sleeve or anywhere where a bit of perfume may be concealed to lend its sweetness to the costume. These little sachet roses come in white and in pink, and a set of them make a charming gift for a dainty girl.

Peroxide of hydrogen, combined with salt, is a powerful bleach, but should be used only in extreme cases. Wet the brush with peroxide and sprinkle on a little dry salt. Do not use this bleach oftener that necessity demands. Powdered charcoal is not so powerful, but is much safer.

The Small Waist.

Unusual and constant pressure on the stomach is certain to bring on dangerous attacks of indigestion by crowding the gases up into the lungs.

All of these ills are so many enemies to a clear skin, bright eyes and vivacious manner. The chronic sufferer from indigestion is often dull in mind and body. Sick headaches rob the cheeks of their natural color and hysteria draws deep lines into the pliable muscles of the face.

Fortunately the day is past when my lady beautiful boasts of a waist no larger than the hands can span. Abrupt curves of the hips have given place to the straight lined figure, which, contrary to former belief, give a much more slender effect than the wasp waist. Moreover they are more youthful.

Preventing Sunburn.

The best way to protect the face from tan and sunburn is through applying cold cream, over which is put a generous coating of powder. If one is careful to wipe off the excess cream and to rub the powder into the skin smoothly it will not show. Always do this before going out into the sun and wind and especially if going to a trip on the water. Remember that it is much easier to prevent tan and sunburn than it is to get rid of them after they are once acquired.

Liquid Powder.

While the effect of the constant use of liquid powder is often extremely unpleasant it may be used at intervals without fear of injury to the skin. One of the best pearl white liquids is made by combining 1½ ounces of bismuth subcarbonate with enough water to make six ounces in all. Rain water should be used if possible. The bottle must always be shaken well before applying the powder. Be careful not to apply it too generously or it will give the effect of facial enamel.

Shaping a Nose.

Massage will help very largely to improve the shape of the nose. This is done with the thumb and forefinger applied to each side of the nose. Begin at the bridge and work down to the end of the nose with gentle pressure and a rotary motion. Let the finger work carefully into the seams formed where the nose joins the face. In this way the wings of the nose can be shaped by the fingers and wonderfully narrowed if persisted in every day for some months.

Colored people in the Union of South Africa outnumber the whites by nearly four to one.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

Saskatoon, Sask., Nov. 7.—Rev. E. C. The church was well filled with babes but after his remarks quiet reigned for the balance of the sermon.

The scholarships for Faculty Entrance 1 and 2, and Honor Matriculation are $20 each; the Normal Entrance and Junior Matriculation, $15 each.

The letter from the Deputy Minister is as follows—

Middle School, Normal entrance — Wilma O. Dobbin.

Junior Matriculation — Letitia Shearer.

The report was inadvertently omitted from the general account of the meeting.

INCREASING THE SERVICE OF RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Four New Routes To Be Served Probably This Week

Mail Collected In Centre Of The City Six Times Daily

Arrangements have been made for the introduction of rural mail delivery on four new routes from the Peterborough Post Office. Notification from the Inspector to commence delivery is expected at any time. No. 6 route will go through McMartinville, Stewart's Hall, Downer's Corners, Graystock and Smith Bank.

Residents adjacent to the Norwood Road, and Lang, Jermyn, Downer's Corners and Drummond Station, will be served by route No. 7, while route No. 8 will give a delivery to the River Road by the locks bridge and to within three miles of Keene. Route No. 8 will give a service to a section of Douro, touching at Douro P. O., and Guerin P. O.

The new regulations calling for couriers to stamps and orders are now in force.

LOCAL SERVICE—

Mail is now gathered from boxes in the centre of the city, six times a day, this district being between McDonnel and Dalhousie streets and Water and Aylmer streets. Three collections are made with the rig and the extra three by a foot collector, who takes the mail at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Tenders are asked for the conveyance of mail for Campbellcroft and over a route from Millbrook to Cavanville and South Monaghan.

MEN RETURN TO THEIR WORK

Toronto Men Change Their Minds About Going Out.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—In spite of the fact that practically a unanimous vote in favor of a strike was passed by the local members of the Brotherhood of Railway Employes on Tuesday night, the men held another meeting yesterday morning at 9.30, and as a result the clerks, with the exception of two, who were strong enough to stand by their decision of the night previous, went back to their work.

Before ten o'clock District Superintendent Coulter brought a small army of men over from the Union Station offices and had them ready to go to work the minute the men walked out. It seems that this fact alone prompted the men to reverse their decision.

Places Filled, Say Officials.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Windsor street station reports last night that the C.P.R. is not further considering the Brotherhood strike; that at the isolated places where a few hands had gone out all had returned where their places had not been permanently filled.

According to C.P.R. reports, merely a few hundred vacancies exist on the entire system. The 3,000 claimed to have been called out never even reached one-third of that number, it is claimed, and of these many were of that class whose absence from work would not interfere with traffic.

KINGS DAUGHTERS DOING GOOD WORK

Mrs. Hazen Ritchie is Elected to the Presidency

The annual meeting of the Kings Daughters was held yesterday when the following officers were elected—

President—Mrs. Hazen Ritchie.

Sec.-Treas.—Miss Margaret English.

Hospital Committee—Mrs. Travers and Miss Pearce.

House Committee — Mrs. Harvey and Miss Munroe.

The Secretary reported that over 50 orders for groceries had been given out besides 74 baskets of Christmas cheer and that 70 visits had been paid by the different members. Beside their usual work, the Circle this year furnished a room at the new Protestant Home.

The Treasurer's reports showed total receipts for the year to be $258.33 and the expenditures $244.55 leaving a balance of $13.68.

In order to augment their funds the Circle decided to hold an entertainment on the evening of the 13th inst., at which Mr. Dobbin has kindly consented to repeat his talk on "Early Days in Peterborough."

It is hoped that this will be largely patronized by the friends of the Society.

ASTRONOMY

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville this morning received the following telegram:

Bulletin No. 508—

A cablegram has been received from Professor Kobold, of Kiel, announcing the discovery of a comet by Professor Borrelly, of Marseilles, in the following position:—Nov. 2, right ascension 17 inches, 47 degrees; declination plus 38 inches 57 degrees. The comet was visible from a small telescope. It was travelling in a south-easterly direction.

NEW DROP CURTAIN AT THE GRAND

First Floor of Theatre Has Also Been Re-carpeted.

Patrons of the Grand Opera House who attend the presentation of "Elijah" to-night will be pleased with a new drop curtain on which appears a British dreadnaught represented as passing Gibraltar, the Union Jack, the Dominion Ensign and the Canadian Coat of Arms.

The painter's brush has brought about what is a very beautiful and realistic piece of work, and the same, as a local product, reflects credit on that department of J. J. Turner & Sons.

The management has also re-carpeted the first floor of the theatre.

VOTING HISTORY

The last Democratic president of the United States was the late Grover Cleveland elected in 1892. In 1896 he was succeeded by the late President McKinley, who was assassinated during his second term, which was finished out by Vice-President Roosevelt. Roosevelt was returned as president in 1904 and stepped aside for Wm. H. Taft in 1908. Woodrow Wilson thus brings the Democrats back to power after a lapse of sixteen years.

The electoral vote back to 1896 has stood:

1908—Taft 321; Bryan 162.
1904—Roosevelt 336, Parker 140.
1900—McKinley 292, Bryan, 155.
1896—McKinley 271, Bryan, 149.

The difference between the electoral college vote and the popular vote in the United States elections furnishes an interesting study. The electoral vote is representation in the different states based on voting population but it has sometimes been the case that when a candidate has received a majority in the electoral college his popular vote has been less than his opponent's.

Grover Cleveland received 5,538,233 votes in 1888 to Benjamin Harrison's 5,440,216, a popular plurality of 98,017, yet Harrison was elected.

In 1876 Tilden's popular plurality over Hayes was 250,935 yet Hayes served a term as president, while Tilden was defeated.

In 1880 Garfield's plurality over Hancock was only 7,018 in a popular vote of 8,318,835. McKinley's popular plurality over Bryan in 1900 was 849,790. In 1896 it was 601,854.

The popular pluralities of some other presidents were as follows:—Cleveland, 1892, 380,810; Cleveland, 1888, 98,017, Grant, 1872, 762,991; Grant, 1868, 305,456; Lincoln, 1864, 407,342.

EPIDEMIC OF WHOOPING COUGH

About Two Hundred Pupils Are at Home.

London, Ont., Nov. 7.—An epidemic of whooping cough has broken out in the public schools of the city, and about two hundred of the pupils are confined to their homes suffering from the disease.

Twice that number of children are being kept home by their parents for fear of them contracting it and as a result the school attendance is very low.

It is reported that the medical officer of health may order some schools closed in the city, and about two hundred cases have been reported to the medical officer.

One physician is attending seven members of one family who are suffering from the same disease.

ENRICHMENT OF CHURCH SERVICE

Interesting Discussion on Passages From Dr. Jowetts Book

Some striking passages from Dr Jowett's recent remarkable book, "The Enrichment of Church Service," were quoted by Rev. J. R. Webb last evening at the mid-week service in Murray Street Baptist church. The doctrines contained therein and the practices which Dr Jowett advocates have been in a large degree responsible for his wonderful success in theological circles, and the reason for the immense audiences that crowd his church in New York City.

An open discussion on the teachings of the noted divine followed the quotations, in which representatives of various denominations participated. They were productive of much food for mental reflection, and awakened a most gratifying amount of interest.

Mrs T. F. Matthews, who was in the audience, was fortunate enough to have heard Dr Jowett during a visit to New York, when she in company with others attended a service in his Fifth Avenue church. She related in a most interesting manner her impressions on that occasion. She stated that his church is invariably crowded long before the service commences. It is necessary to reach there fully a half hour before the beginning of the worship in order to be assured of accommodation. The edifice of which Dr. Jowett is pastor is capable of seating approximately five thousand. Police officers are always present to ensure the aisles being kept clear.

Mrs Matthews described the famous preacher as a man of medium height, fair and slightly built. His voice was the most remarkable part of his personality, being low, musical and far reaching. Never once during an entire discourse did he allow it to rise above a well pitched key. Yet his words were plainly audible in every part of the church. His preaching was very simple, but powerful through its very simplicity. It was marked by an extreme earnestness that was most impressive.

WILL GET MEDAL FOR SAVING LIFE

Gallant Action of Young Man to be Recognized

Mr Fred. Chase of Belmont is to be publicly presented with the bronze medal of the Royal Canadian Humane Association for his heroic conduct in saving the life of Mr. Geo. Varty of Belmont, at Belmont Lake in July last.

Young Chase, who is a son of Mr. Jos. Chase, and who is about 2 years of age, was in swimming with a number of other lads, among whom was Varty, at Belmont Lake on July 7th, when the latter gentleman got out of his depth and had gone down for the last time, Chase diving for him in ten feet of water and bringing him safe to shore where he was brought to consciousness after hard work on the part of his fellow swimmers.

LOCAL SUPPLY OF APPLES NOT LARGE

Responsibie to Some Extent to Lack of Care of Orchards

Enquiries at several fruit stores to-day revealed the fact that the apple yield around Peterborough has not been very large. Dealers have had to depend largely upon getting their supply from more productive orchards in other parts of Ontario, particularly in the Niagara district. One merchant explained the reason for the shortage as being due to the lack of care given orchards by the majority of farmers around here. Wherever orchards receive proper attention there is always a good yield. There need be, however, no fear that the demand for apples will not be supplied this year as all the dealers interviewed stated that they were in a position to fill any orders. Apples also are selling cheaper than last year good eating apples being sold for $2.50 and $3.00 per bbl. Last year purchasers paid $3.50 and $4.00.

The quality of the apples this year are also reported to be fully as good as in other seasons.

Hamilton is not the only city where citizens are expected by the police to make complaints about offences which it is plainly the duty of the police to make.

HAS WEEK TO PAY HIS FINE

Counsel Asked for Clemency in Case of Theft

John Dougherty, a lumberman, charged with the theft of a $40.00 overcoat from a room-mate named Ralph McQuade, was in court again this morning. Mr. O'Connell acting for prisoner asked the court for clemency in his case, on the ground that he was not a man of criminal habits. The stolen apparel had been recovered through the prisoner's admission of the name of the purchaser. Mr O'Connell said that the theft was committed when the prisoner was under the influence of liquor. The man also has a mother to support and has respectable, well-to-do relatives in Hastings.

Magistrate Dumble enlarged the case for one week for the prisoner to arrange the payment of a fine of $5.00 and costs.

ANOTHER COMET

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 7.—The discovery of a new comet by Astronomer Borrelly, of Marseilles, France, is announced by the Harvard College observatory from Professor Kobold, of Kiel, Germany. The position of the comet is given on November 2, 3044, G.M.T., as right ascension, 16 hours 47 minutes; declension, plus 38 degrees, 57 minutes. The comet is reported to have been visible in a small telescope, and to be moving southeast.

WINTER QUARTERS FOR THE POULTRY

Most poultry breeders are thinking just now of making things snug for the winter that is looming before us, and in most cases our ambition is to keep our fowls so cosy and comfortable that they will defy the cold and lay all winter. A great deal naturally depends upon the available accommodation, and there can be no doubt that the amateur with a small sheltered run in his backyard or garden has an even better chance of producing a regular supply of winter eggs than the more extensive breeder, whose fowls are kept in larger and more exposed runs. Only keep the birds healthy by giving them plenty of scratching exercise, and feed well, but judiciously on a moderating stimulating diet and the hens are pretty certain to lay. But beware of the artificially heated hen-house. This is not comfort but coddling, and birds kept in such places are more liable to take a chill when they go out into the cold air. If hens cannot be induced to lay in roomy, sheltered scratching sheds, with good food and management, it is pretty certain that artificial warmth at night will not do them any good.

Alberta Enthusiastic.

The province of Alberta is enthusiastically taking to the single-tax idea, and many agricultural communities in the province will be organized this year under the rural municipality act, passed by the last Legislature and effective in 1913. The new system provides that taxes shall be levied equally upon all taxable land in the municipality, according to the assessed value of such land. The assessment plan is based upon the following provision in the rural municipality act:

"Land shall be assessed at its actual cash value as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, exclusive from the value of any building erected thereon or of other increase of value caused by any other expenditure of labor or capital thereon."

The question of taxation is dealt with entirely by the council of the rural municipality. The new act fixes the limit to taxation for municipal purposes at 10 mills on the dollar. It is not expected that a rate will be levied to exceed $8 per 160 acres, and in many cases the rate levied will not exceed $3 or $4.

The act provides that every municipality shall, in so far as it is possible, comprise an area of 18 miles square, or 324 square miles, and all municipalities shall be laid out on a uniform plan, as the conditions of the system of the Dominion land survey and the physical features of the province will allow.

Flowers In the Snow.

Snowstorms during the summer months are of frequent occurrence in the Canadian Rocky mountain region at an elevation of 10,000 feet and upward, sometimes covering the ground to a depth of several inches.

The flowers at this elevation are usually small, of delicate tints and very beautiful, but lacking in fragrance. Owing to the absence of moisture in the atmosphere freezing does not affect vegetation at this altitude as it does nearer sea level. The flowers, after having been completely covered with snow for a day or two, will regain their former vigor after the snow departs, although they will appear slightly wilted for a few days after their snow bath.

There is a tiny little flower of four petals which follows the receding snows far above timber line, which is usually about 11,500 feet above sea level. So closely does it follow the melting snows that it is often possible to stand on one spot, pluck flowers with the right hand and make snowballs with the left.

FINES OF $4.60 WERE IMPOSED

Hallowe'en Rowdies Made to Pay for Their Actions

Fairly stiff fines were imposed this morning upon a number of youngsters, who were convicted of acting in a disorderly manner on Hallowe'en night. The mischief-makers ranged from a lanky young fellow to a very small boy in knickers, but they all had to take their medicine in the shape of a $4.60 fine. Those who failed to produce the forfeit were granted ten days in which to make up the deficiency.

Three young girls, who were also out for some frolicking on that night, confronted the Magistrate, and their evidence served to clear the three boys alleged to have torn up a set of verandah steps. They were all honorably acquitted.

NEWS OF SPORTDOM

Battling Nelson to Quit

THE HARDY BATTLER MAY BE ASKED TO PASS UP THE RING

Boxing Commission Fear Nelson Will Hurt the Sport if Allowed to Continue.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Oscar Battling Nelson, durable Dane, and but recently the lightweight fighting champion of the world, may be forced to retire from the ring in case the boxing clubs of the country follow the action contemplated by the Cincinnati Boxing Commissions. This may be a bit of news to the iron man of the ring, who is now preparing for a ten round bout with Tommy Gary, billed to take place at Cincinnati Monday night, Nov. 11.

"The question is simply this," said the head of the commission. "All of us know that Nelson is one of the best lightweights the country ever saw. He never had any cleverness, but he was always able to take punishment and keep on until he had worn his opponents to the floor. He fought his way to the championship by beating the best of the white men and then beating Joe Gans, one of the cleverest men ever in the game, white or black. All this shows Nelson was a real champion.

"The question now, however, is whether Nelson is fit to keep on fighting the gruelling battles that he has been used to. He insists upon going against rugged young fighters and sooner or later something may happen to him. There have been accidents in the ring, and every one has been a setback to the game. Just now it looks as if there was a chance to revise the sport all over the country, but if any serious accident should happen to a boy so well known and popular as the former lightweight champion. It might stop all chance of holding boxing contests in more than one community."

TOUGH ON THE DANE.

Nelson could not be found to give his views on the matter, and the news undoubtedly will be a severe blow to the fighting Dane, who still thinks he has a chance with the best of the men in his class.

It is possible that the action taken by the Cincinnati commissioners may not prove adverse to the ambitions of the old-time fighter to keep on in the game, but they are taking no chances and it may be that some substitute match will have to be put on to fill the advertised date.

COLLEGIATES WON IN THE RAIN FROM PORT HOPE FOURTEEN

Collegiates won in the rain.

The local Collegiate Institute first team defeated the Trinity College School second team at Riverside Park, yesterday afternoon, by 19-7. The rain was pouring down and the ground was very muddy, causing many falls and slides, and making it very difficult to run. Nevertheless the game was well played and very interesting. Hill, as usual, played a star game for the local fourteen, making some splendid runs and three touch downs, which aggregated most of the scores of the P. C. I. team, practically winning the game for them.

The T. C. S. team played a splendid game although they failed to handle the Collegiate team as well as they did at Port Hope. The score was 19-7 in favor of P. C. I.

OTTAWA HOPES TO DEFEAT THE ARGOS

Will Have Big Following of Rooters at Toronto

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—Despite the poor showing against the Oarsmen last Saturday, the Ottawa players are fully convinced that they can come through next Saturday. If Gerrard was fit and ready Ottawa betting folks would almost be tempted to take even money on the game. With Williams well warmed up, Argonauts' back field will not have the cinch they did last Saturday. The famous kicker was sent in cold, and not till too late to get his toe working properly.

Among the arguments advanced regarding Ottawa's unexpected defeat last Saturday is that they were outroughed at the start. It requires clean playing to win football games nowadays, but the "Galvanites" will not be lacking in aggressiveness next Saturday. They were caught flat-footed last week, when Argos secured such a jump, and they never recovered their balance till after the game was lost.

A special train carrying the team and two or three hundred supporters will leave Ottawa at 10 o'clock Friday night. It was intended to carry a band but as finances do not look so rosy now as they did last week, that expense has been cut out. Ottawa is satisfied with the appointment of Ben Simpson as referee, even though he is a Western man.

The Toronto Arena will be opened December 21, with an exhibition game between Montreal Wanderers and the Canadiens.

The National Hockey Association meets Saturday night, to decide whether the clubs will play six or seven men.

There is a great speculation as to the outcome of the final scheduled match of the Intercollegiate Union between Varsity and Queen's at Kingston next Saturday. If the Toronto students are successful, it will put them on even terms with McGill and there will have to be a play off to decide the championship. On the other hand, if Queen's win it will give the Intercollegiate honors to McGill, and they will meet the Argos or Ottawa in the first of the two matches for the Dominion championship.

Fred Davy has been presented with a new megaphone to replace that which Cazeaux demolished in last Friday's bout, but it will be made of steel with iron rivets and if Cazeaux succeeds in eating it, as he tried to do with the cardboard announcer, he is likely to suffer from indigestion.—Ottawa Citizen.

Skinner Poulin, the speedy forward of last year's Victoria team, has come to terms with Lester Patrick and will again wear a Capital City uniform. With the signing of Poulin, the Victoria team is now complete and will line up something like this—Goal, Lindsay; point, L. Patrick; coverpoint, W. Small; rover, Dunderdale; forwards, Poulin, Rowe, Smith.

The Toronto ball club is already completing arrangements and making plans for next year. It is proposed to have the men report for the trip to Macon, Ga., on March 10—three days later than last spring. President McCaffery has decided to take all his young blood down for a good trial—Pitchers Kubat and Herbert, of Ottawa; Pitcher Hearn, of the Central League; Catcher Trout, of Peterborough, and Third Baseman Isaacs, of Guelph.

There is little chance of any of these boys, excepting Herbert, making the Toronto team next year, and they will find a developing place at Binghampton, whither also goes Jim McGinley.

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Dr. Benjamin Roller, the Seattle physician-wrestler, last night defeated Raymond Cazeaux, the Bordeaux heavyweight, in straight falls after a fast catch-as-catch-can exhibition. Roller secured the first fall in four minutes from a body hold, and the second in 41 minutes, also from a body hold.

Pacific Ocean Currents.

Reports received by the French government from its consular officers in Hawaii throw light, it is thought, on certain problems of ethnography. Not very long ago a little schooner, dismantled and with its rudder gone as the result of a tempest, was drifted by winds and ocean currents from Tahiti to Hawaii after eighty-one days. Hawaiian traditions declare that in ancient days people came from Tahiti, drifting with the currents, and settled the islands. The adventure of the dismantled schooner seems to prove the possibility of such a migration, and it is suggested that the currents of the Pacific, which have not yet been sufficiently studied, may throw much light on the distribution of the native races among the island groups.—Harper's Weekly.

RE-ENACTING HISTORY

DOLLARD'S BATTLE FOUGHT OVER AGAIN AT LONG SAULT.

Moving Picture Artists Have Spent the Summer Reconstructing Scenes From Canadian History and Have Leased the Place With a View to Returning Next Year—Story of Dollard Is Their First Effort.

Down on the St. Lawrence River—at Lake St. Joseph—a staff of moving picture actors and operators are engaged on a work which is of interest to all Canadians, and particularly to students of Canadian history. They are reconstructing for generations to come, scenes from the early days of the French in the new world. This summer has been spent on the story of Dollard and his fight at the Long Sault.

The south shore of Lake St. Louis, which is an expansion of the St. Lawrence river, two miles above the Indian village of Caughnawaga, is in a state of nature—a woodland with open glades here and there, bordered by haw-trees red with ripe fruit, and occasionally a butternut and maple converted into natural arbors by the trailing vines of the wild grape, from which the fruit hangs in purple clusters. A little bay sets in. The water is shallow, and on the sand bars rushes bend before the current. The bank is sandy, but a maple grove of second growth comes down almost to the water. This is the natural stage on which Dollard's heroic deeds are being "acted" for the benefit, not of spectators on the spot, but for the wonderful camera that catches the views for the motion picture show.

Back a little distance are the cottage-like buildings erected for the use of the permanent staff—for the company has leased the shore for a number of years, and will use it summer after summer as a stage on which to reproduce dramatic scenes from our early history. These modern habitations, of course, never appear in the pictures.

Excluding these buildings of raw, new lumber, the remainder of the camp makes it easy for the visitor to imagine that he is back in early times, when at any moment a blood thirsty Iroquois was likely to spring from behind a tree with tomahawk or scalping knife in hand. Here is a cluster of tepees, or lodges of bark and skin, each bearing the outline of the totem of its occupants, but the whole discolored by smoke and dirt. These are the lodges of Dollard's Huron allies. A few yards distant, but somewhat nearer the shore, are ledges of rushes ingeniously woven, the whole capped by comical-shaped roofs of birch-bark. These most picturesque but equally uncomfortable dwellings housed the Algonquin warriors, who, be it said to their credit, stood more loyally by Dollard than did the Hurons, who went over to the enemy.

In another part of the camp is a log building, constructed exactly as were the buildings of the first settlers. The logs are joined together and the crevices are filled with moss and clay, and clay is the mortar that holds together the rough stone of which the chimney is built. No iron is used in the structure. The hinges on the doors and windows are of wood, and so too, are the latches.

Not far away is the altar, at which Dollard and his companions received the sacrament before setting out on their expedition; and back in the woods is the stockade around which the fight raged and in which Dollard and his companies were slain.

Such is the stage. For actors the dramatic profession and the Indians of the Caughnawaga reservation, only two miles distant, were drawn upon, and whites and redmen, when they "acted" the famous fight were in every sense dressed as were the white men and redmen who fought and died at the Long Sault two and a half centuries ago.

When all this is depicted by motion pictures the spectators will see the famous fight as complete in every detail as it is possible to make it.

Such pictures should certainly possess the power to thrill, and possibly they will do more. They should not fail to stimulate an interest in history, and especially in the history of those early days so filled with the stories of heroism and self-sacrifice, of those times Dollard and his men were worthy representatives.

It is not necessary here to recount the thrilling story of Dollard's memorable feat of heroism; but its essential facts may be briefly enumerated. The drama may be said to open with the scene in the church in Montreal, in which Dollard and his French-Canadian associates received the sacrament before setting out on their quest of a large band of Iroquois, known to have wintered in the Ottawa Valley in order that with the oncoming of spring they may strike New France a fatal blow by capturing the western outpost of Ville Marie, or Montreal, then only eight years old.

Then follows the voyage in canoes from Lachine up the western arm of Lake St. Louis, through the Lake of Two Mountains to its head, where the lake contracts and the great watercourse becomes the Ottawa river.

Here, at the foot of the Long Sault they land, and near the landing place they find the ruins of a rude stockade used by the Algonquins a few seasons before in a fight with the Iroquois, the common enemy of Algonquins, Hurons, and French. On the bank of the river they pitch their tents, swing their kettles and set about preparing a meal. The Iroquois shoot the rapids and build a camp nearby. Then follow the bloody scenes of the drama. Again and again the Iroquois attack Dollard's stockade, but as often as they attack they are driven back with heavy losses. Reinforcements arrive, and at last the Frenchmen are wiped out.

"Virginia of Washington"

And the Man Who Made a Fight For Her.

By ELEANOR AUSTIN HARRIS.

"Hasn't he nice blue eyes?" said Miss Dressel.

"Horrors, child! Don't you say such things out loud! What if he should understand English?"

"Impossible, Aunt Ellen. German blondness, reading a German paper, traveling in a German train with baggage marked 'A. von S., Bremen.'"

"Virginia! What does possess you? I never heard you talk so."

Miss Dressel laughed a hearty American laugh. "I am so glad to shake the dust of Europe off my feet that I can't keep it in. I'm so glad we're headed for Hamburg, the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, America and Washington that—that—well, honestly I should like to kick the epaulets off the guard's gorgeous blue and gold uniform. Don't faint, Aunt Ellen. I'll stop and not say another word for an hour."

For an hour and five minutes Miss Dressel sat silent, ostensibly watching the valleys, the German gables, the green of meadows and forests, as they swept by. For an hour and five minutes their young German fellow traveler read his German paper, and for an hour and five minutes Miss Ellen Vanstrum enjoyed perfect peace of mind. Then Miss Dressel coughed, and Miss Vanstrum inwardly caught her breath.

"Aunt Ellen," said Miss Dressel, lazily waving her hand toward the scenery as if she were discussing it—"Aunt Ellen, do you know that young man has a dreadfully nice face, even if he is a German. Oh, don't look shocked. Just gaze out the window as if I were talking about the scenery, and he will never know the difference. I've been looking at him off and on for the last hour. Just see what a nice firm mouth he has. He's so well groomed too. Just look at his finger nails. Oh, Aunt Ellen, I wish you wouldn't gasp so. I like his looks better than any foreigner I have seen in the five years we have spent in Europe. Really, I shouldn't mind being married if I could get such a handsome, well groomed man as he is."

"Virginia, oh, Virginia!" groaned Mrs. Vanstrum. "It's—it's indecent to talk about a man like that when he can't understand."

"Don't jiggle your pompadour crooked, Aunt Ellen," said Miss Dressel calmly. "Don't worry. If he understood English he would have betrayed himself long ago. He might be a chunk of pink and white and yellow taffy for all he understands of the English language. Thank goodness, Aunt Ellen, here we are almost at Hamburg. Here, let me tie your veil. You are getting it on crooked. No, let me carry the suit case. It's a young house. Now for my last fee—almost—on foreign soil."

The train had hardly come to a long screeching stop in the great station at Hamburg when the door of the carriage was jerked violently open and a young man pulled the German out with a hearty grip, exclaiming in English:

"We're in luck. There was a stateroom unengaged on the Kaiser Wilhelm, and we can sail four days earlier than we expected. Good luck, man! Why don't you say something instead of looking at me like a dazed idiot?"

The German pulled himself together with a noticeable effort and began to stammer out something in German, when the other interrupted him impatiently.

"Aw, cut that out! You know perfectly well I can't understand a word of German. Never mind; come along!"

The young German flushed red, and with one appealing look straight into the eyes of the astonished Miss Dressel he picked up his suit case and was soon lost to view in the hurrying throng.

Miss Dressel silently picked up her luggage, carefully avoiding her aunt's eye, and for a minute after leaving the carriage she looked helplessly about her. Then the label "Berlin" on a carriage caught her eye, and without a word to her puzzled relative she took her by the arm, raced her across the station and pushed her in, stumbling in herself, just as the guard put his hand on the door to close it.

"Why — what — where"— said Miss Vanstrum.

"I don't know," said her niece desperately, "but most anywhere out of Hamburg."

"But our steamer!" gasped Miss Vanstrum.

"What's losing a steamer, Aunt Ellen, compared with my peace of mind? I'd no more sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm now than I'd fly. Aunt Ellen, you're a jewel not to say, 'I told you so,' nor even to look it."

"You haven't given me time," laughed Miss Vanstrum, "but I must say I certainly think it. There, I'm glad we're off at last. I don't think I myself care to come face to face with that young fellow again."

* * * * * * * *

It was the evening of the last musicale of the season at the White House, and an unwonted air of anticipation pervaded the brilliant throng as it gathered in the great east room.

"They say she has one of the finest voices ever heard off the stage," said the wife of a South American diplomat. "But the family is one of the kind they call here 'F. F. V.' and will not let her accept any of the offers she has had for grand opera. This is her only appearance in public since she returned from Europe. There's Anton von Stosch. Did you ever see any one so eager to go everywhere as that man is? He's simply crazy about meeting Americans."

"American women strangers, you should say," laughed a man wearing the cross of the Legion of Honor. "You can get Tony von Stosch to go anywhere just by hinting that some 'new girls' will be there."

"They say at the German legation that by actual count Tony von Stosch has met 800 'new girls' since the season opened. And he's still going."

As the ripple of merriment greeting this expression of the well known foible of the popular Anton von Stosch died away some one said: "Hush! The program begins."

For some time Anton von Stosch watched the artists come and go, his face wearing an unwonted look of weariness and discouragement. For months he had sought diligently for the two American women who called Washington their home, who had been his fellow travelers from Berlin to Hamburg on that fateful August day. More than once he had followed a lithe, active girl with glinting chestnut hair, only to find it was a stranger instead of "Virginia of Washington," as he had come to call her. Day after day, night after night, he had followed the whirl of the social wheel, but never had he found a clew to their identity. He had spent hours poring over the city directory, but never a young Virginia nor an elderly Ellen proved to be the first bearers of the names he had met so oddly.

As a ripple of enthusiastic applause greeted the appearance of the star of the evening Anton von Stosch raised his eyes and then grew rigid as he saw "Virginia of Washington" in the flesh, smiling acknowledgment to the enthusiasm. One long look to assure himself it was really she, and Anton von Stosch sat back in his chair with folded arms and a look of content upon his face such as it had not worn in all the months since he had arrived at the German legation. No sooner was the program ended than he made his way to the blue room where Miss Dressel was holding court and without delay sought an introduction.

"Oh!" said Miss Dressel, her hand poised halfway toward his. "Why—oh, I'm glad to meet you, I'm sure," she ended lamely as she saw her exclamation and gesture had attracted attention. Anton von Stosch looked straight into her eyes as he took her hand.

"I am glad to meet you—again," he said quietly. "I have hunted this town over to find you. May I call tomorrow?"

"I—I—oh, I really don't know," said Miss Dressel. Then she began to laugh almost hysterically. "It's all too absurd—and I can't talk about it now—and please don't get offended, but I was so surprised and"—

"I'll wait," said Anton von Stosch, quietly falling back. "It is quite enough to know that I have found you at last."

Though he spoke no more to her that evening, Miss Dressel was well aware that he followed her from group to group and from room to room, as if fearful of losing sight of her. As the door of her carriage was snapped shut his face appeared in the opening, and he said quietly, but firmly:

"I shall do myself the honor to call upon you tomorrow afternoon."

Had Anton von Stosch been less eager or determined he would have waited until the conventional hour of calling and possibly have missed Miss Dressel for his conventionality, but as it was he arrived so early and unexpectedly upon the scene that he was ushered into the library, where she sat.

"I don't know how they do things in America," he said after the first greetings, "but I'm not going to lose any more time. I desire much that you should be my wife," he said simply, dropping unconsciously into the German idiom.

Miss Dressel had seen the night before just what the intentions of Anton von Stosch were, and she had been trying to make up her mind whether to let the affair run its course or to evade the issue by another flight. She was taken wholly unawares by the expeditiousness of his attack.

"But I've only seen you three times in my life!" she gasped. "I can't consider anything of the kind from a man I know so little as that."

"You don't love another?" said Anton von Stosch, growing pale.

"No," said Miss Dressel, "but"—

"Then I'll make my fight," said Anton von Stosch, "and I mean to win. It's life or death to me, and no man who is a man will give up his life without a struggle."

That was the beginning of one of the prettiest courtships that ever crossed the horizon of Washington life, and since Anton von Stosch was a gentleman as well as a man of promise in his chosen career the June wedding bells rang merrily over smiles and happiness and genuine good wishes.

Mixed Identity.

Here is a case of mixed identity—two Dromios who recently were of the dramatis personnae in a Berlin criminal court. Two men, Frey and Fritsch, friends, bore a confusing resemblance to each other. Frey, for some offense, had been sentenced to three months' imprisonment. He was engaged to be married, and Fritsch, passing himself off as the culprit, served the sentence. Then things went wrong between Frey and his sweetheart, Fraulein Borck. She told the authorities of the trick, and now Fritsch has been sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment on his own account.

Proved His Common Sense.

The candidate for the president of Jerkwater college wore a benignant smile and an air of superiority as he faced the board of trustees, composed of farmers. The smile broadened when the chairman of the board announced that there would be an examination.

The professor still remembered his Greek and geometry, he had always been a good speller, and he had but recently completed an extensive course in agriculture. Therefore he had no fears.

"We have no doubt of your learning," explained the chairman, "so we shall not try to trip you up on technicalities. We simply want to get a line on your common sense. Here are the three questions:

"'What is love?'

"'What is poetry?'

"'What is electricity?'"

The professor turned pale. He moistened his lips and hesitated, for he needed the job. After a moment's pause he picked up his hat and turned to depart.

"What's the matter?" asked the chairman, while the rest of the trustees pricked up their ears.

"I can't answer these questions, because I don't know," declared the professor, with a defiant air, from the door.

"Come back!" shouted the chairman. "You have proved your common sense. The job is yours."—Roy R. Atkinson in Puck.

Telephone For Deaf Mutes.

An electrical device called a "deaf mutes' telephone" has been invented to enable those who cannot speak or hear to communicate rapidly with each other. The "phone" comprises an electrical keyboard, somewhat like that of a typewriter. This keyboard is connected by wire with an electric signal board, which is the "talking machine" proper, and consists of thirty-six incandescent light globes, each with a large letter of the alphabet or one of the nine numerals painted on the end of the bulb. The person who wishes to talk presses the key, spelling out the words as on a typewriter, the other person reading off the letters as they flash on the lamps.—London Globe.

ALPINE LIGHTNING.

The Brand of Aerial Fireworks They Get on Mont Blanc.

Nowhere else do the electrical discharges of the atmosphere assume so intense and terrifying a character as on the summits of high mountains. In August of last year the laboratory of the Society of Observatories, built on the summit of Mont Blanc, was struck by lightning, with fatal results to one of its occupants. This building is of wood, roofed with sheets of copper, and is not provided with lightning rods. It was practically buried in snow at the time of the disaster.

The famous Janssen observatory on Mont Blanc was repeatedly struck, although it bore numerous lightning rods, connected by cables to some rocks a few hundred feet distant. This building was of wood and was built on the snow. The effects of the lightning were extraordinary and appalling. The metal tableware was frequently melted or perforated. The bolts and nuts in the walls were melted, the woodwork charred, and the metal cap of the large telescope was pierced with holes.

In 1903 a guide, one Felix Bozon, witnessed a brilliant electrical discharge in the form of ribbons of fire which for two hours and a half continued to play across the interior of the building, proceeding from one of the cables connected with the lightning rods. In 1902 a ball of fire as large as a pigeon's egg was seen to move slowly across the room, then retreat for a distance and explode, giving a violent shock to the persons present.

In 1907 a series of lightning strokes occurred one evening at nearly regular intervals of a few minutes. Each stroke produced a deafening noise and was attended by sparks like fiery serpents, which shot through the observatory in all directions. This process continued nearly an hour.—Chicago News.

THE SPREAD OF ALFALFA.

History of One of the Oldest of All Cultivated Forage Plants.

Alfalfa, perhaps the oldest of all cultivated forage or hay plants, has had a history scarcely less interesting than that of the many nations which have utilized it. Those nations have prospered almost in direct proportion to the extent to which they have used it. The name "alfalfa" comes from the Arabs and means "the best fodder," and in fact it appears to have originated in Media or in some adjacent country, as the folklore tales from lands on different sides of this area point toward Media as the place whence it came.

The wars of the Persian invasion of Greece took the plant to the latter country about 590 B. C., it being the custom for the advance emissaries to precede the army and to plant fields for the sustenance of the herds which helped support the invading hosts. From Greece it advanced to Italy and Spain by successive stages and was taken to Old Mexico by the Spaniards about 1519 A. D.

From there it was carried to South America and later (1854) entered California through the Golden Gate at the time of the activities incident to the discovery of gold in that state. Thence it spread over the irrigated sections and more recently has continued its march eastward until now it is by far the most important forage crop of such states as Nebraska and Kansas.—Chicago News.

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

ROGUISH EYES SWEET VOICES

Alice Lloyd, whose remarkable trip across America last year as the star of the joyous musical gaiety, "Little Miss Fix-It" made it evident that she could fascinate theatre-goers on this side of the seas with her coquetry, roguish eyes and sweet voice as she had in England, will pay her first visit as a star to this city on Monday, Nov. 11. "Little Miss Fix-It" is presented by Werba and Luescher, who also are sponsors for those famous successes, "The Spring Maid," and "The Rose Maid." The organization presenting "Little Miss Fix-It" is the same that was so greatly praised during the long season last year, and Miss Lloyd is announced to sing the joyous songs which made her famous an dalso take part in the lively whirl of "The Texas Tommy," the music of which resounded across the continent from Newport to San Francisco in record-making time.

IS LIKENED TO DREYFUS

Mrs. Becker Declares Her Husband Has Been the Victim of Conspiracy.

New York, Nov. 6— Mrs. Helen Lynch Becker, wife of the former police lieutenant, who is now in the condemned cells at Sing Sing, characterizes the conviction of her husband as a most infamous conspiracy. She declares it is even far worse than the Dreyfus case, which in the eyes of the whole civilized world besmirched the fair name of France. Public clamor, Mrs. Becker says, demanded that her husband pay the penalty for the crime of those he had formerly brought to justice in the discharge of his official duties.

CAN'T GET FAIR TRIAL.

"The American public's antipathy toward the police," declares Mrs. Becker, makes it impossible for his trial in our courts.

"I want you and the public to understand that these men responsible for my husband's predicament were not my husband's associates. They were not his social equals. They were not his friends. They were not in his confidence. They were purely business tools used in the aid of the public welfare and interest. I mean by that it was necessary to use them as informers against law-breakers, in whose confidence they were, and whom [illegible] was my husband's sworn du[illegible] detect.

LONG FOR A ZOLA.

"If any person in the world knows of his guilt or innocence I would be that person. And you may rest assured if he were guilty I would not be standing by him in his fight for life—that is not a woman's nature.

"Is there not an Emile Zola in this American country of freedom to come to my husband's defence? It cannot be, it seems unbelievable. The conviction of my husband is far more atrocious than the murder of poor Herman Rosenthal.

"There is not a woman in the whole world who thinks more highly of her husband than I do of mine. My seven years of married life have been seven years of happiness and bliss. Mr. Becker's only concern now is not for himself but for me in my coming event."

ASKS NO FAVORS

"No, I am not going to see Charlie on any other but the regular visiting day. I do not intend to ask for any special privileges, nor will he. We both are good soldiers. We know orders when we see them and have always submitted to them."

Mrs. Becker, at times, during the interview, pointed to a suspended bird cage. "We were Charlie's pets," she said referring to the bird, who was silent. "Dearie has not sung once since Charlie has been away. Our sorrow is its sorrow."

When the Duke of Connaught was in Kamloops he reviewed the old soldiers who lined up to bid him welcome. He asked one old veteran where he had served last. "In Kamloops," was the reply. The old soldier had just got out of jail in that town, and the Duke laughed an hour over the incident.

With reference to Mr. S. W. Hughson I am pleased to state that the optical work done in my store the last time he was here was entirely satisfactory to my customers. Moreover, at that time certain low advertising matter appeared, such as an unscrupulous person would naturally use, and such as no responsible business man should use. Full of [illegible] insinuations which could not be made personal without prosecutions for libel. The public were evidently not impressed by this scurrilous matter, as the business would show, and no doubt consider "from where it came" and "the reason why."

I can recommend Mr. Hughson as a first-class optician, with wide experience, and giving the best value possible for the money.

GALE PREVENTS RELEASING OF THE ROYAL GEORGE

All the Passengers Are Now Safe on Shore.

Canadian Press.

Quebec, Nov. 8.—All the passengers are now off the stranded liner, Royal George, the last coming in on a ferry boat at 12.30 o'clock.

Quebec, Nov. 8.—The Canadian Northern steamer Royal George still rests firmly on the rocks one mile east of Point St. Lawrence, on the north side of the south channel with 500 steerage passengers and the members of the crew on board. The company's officials were fully convinced that the passengers could have been all removed from the steamer yesterday and brought to Quebec had not the elements interfered with their plans. Consequently, the people had to remain with the ship, as [illegible] to-day.

The condition of the steamer is practically the same as when she got all her course and was carried at full speed on the rocks, head on, and though her position is serious, experts have every confidence that she can be hauled off. Her No. 2 hold is full of water, but so far as can be learned, No. 1 hold is intact, likewise No. 3 and 4, stokehole and engineroom.

The steamer is caught on the rocks between her two funnels, and is so firmly seated that unless lightened of her cargo, at least in No. 1 hold, it would not be prudent to attempt to haul her off.

In the meantime the Government steamer Lady Grey, the wrecking steamer Lord Strathcona, the C.P.R. tug Cruiser, and the tug J. C. Gravel are alongside to render assistance, and take part in releasing the steamer from her present position when it is thought practicable to do so.

None of these vessels could make connection with the Royal George yesterday on account of the fury of the northeasterly gale and high sea that prevailed all day. The wind yesterday averaged a velocity of 50 miles an hour, with the indication of its continuing with rain to-day.

The remaining 500 steerage passengers and baggage on board the Royal George will be brought to Quebec today, where the passengers will be cared for by the immigration officials until they can be forwarded with all their personal effects to their respective destinations.

The first-class passengers who were taken off the ship early yesterday are still the company's guests at the Chateau Frontenac awaiting the arrival of their personal effects.

The bow of the steamer lies in a depth of six feet of water at low tide, and the after portion from where she is held is in twelve feet of water. She is so close into the Island of Orleans shore that the residents of the vicinity at low tide can walk out to within twenty feet of the ship and exchange words with the people on board.

Thorough Enquiry Promised.

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—Wreck Commissioner Lindsay of the Department of Marine and Fisheries has left for Quebec for the purpose of conducting a searching enquiry into the grounding of the Royal George. The investigation will be immediate and every attempt will be made to place the blame for the disaster.

The disaster is regarded as a most serious blow to the growing prestige of the St. Lawrence route for the safeguarding of which every effort has been made for the past ten years. The tendency here is to divide the blame between the pilot, the company and the immigration regulations.

Insurance on Royal George.

London, Nov. 8.—The Royal George was insured here for $875,000. This represents the value of the hull and machinery, but the total value is not far short of $1,250,000. The liner was originally built for the Egyptian trade between Marseilles and Alexandria, and was then named the Heliopolis.

WERE BUSY AT IT FOUR MONTHS

Labor Leaders Active Before Los Angeles Explosion.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Four months activity on the part of labor leaders on the Pacific coast preceded the fatal explosion in Los Angeles, Cal., according to letters and telegrams introduced by the Government at the trial of the 45 accused "dynamite plotters" yesterday.

From telegrams and letters read to the jury, the Government set forth this part of its contention as follows:

"Four months before The Los Angeles Times building was blown up, Eugene A. Clancy, a labor leader in San Francisco, who had been instructed to investigate labor conditions in Los Angeles, telegraphed to John J. McNamara, Indianapolis: 'The fight is on in Los Angeles. We are going to win. Send Hockin at once.'

"McNamara, after referring the request to Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, wired Clancy: 'Better get a man in Los Angeles to do the work. Hockin too busy in the east.'"

It was about this time, according to Ortie E. McManigal's confession, that Herbert S. Hockin was leader of the "dynamite crew."

Foster Champions Canada.

London, Nov. 8.—During yesterday's sittings of the Dominion Royal Commission a member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce stater that Australian wheat was by far the best in the world.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster immediately pounced upon him for proofs, with the remark, "How can you expect a Canadian to sit coolly and listen to such a statement unless you give up some proof." "You know," he added, "we've bolstered up ourselves in Canada with the idea that our Manitoba No. 1 is the best wheat on the earth's surface. Perhaps you'll modify your statement as to Australian wheat."

Sohier Acquitted In France.

Lille, France, Nov. 8.—Emil Sohier, former mayor of Houplines, in the department of the Nord, who recently returned to France from Detroit, Mich., to face a charge of embezzlement, was acquitted here yesterday and dischaged from custody.

President Fallieres signed a decree in March last removing Mayor Sohier, the alleged embezzlement of the town's funds being given as the grounds for the dismissal.

SETTLING DIFFERENCES

Pacific Coast Politicians Confer With Borden.

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, accompanied by Attorney-General Bowser, Mr. G. McRae, his private secretary; Neil McIntyre, assistant commissioner of fisheries for B. C.; and F. H. Cunningham, chief Dominion inspector of fisheries, arrived in Ottawa yesterday to hold the annual conference with the federal authorities in regard to general matters which had been the subject of negotiations for some time past.

Premier McBride and Attorney-General Bowser had a two hours' interview with Premier Borden in the morning, at which Hon. Martin Burrell was present. In the afternoon, Sir Richard saw Mr. Borden again, while Mr. Bowser saw Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Messrs. McIntyre and Cunningham were also busy with the officials of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. Sir Richard and Mr. Bowser were the guests of Premier Borden at the Rideau Club, and in the evening attended a dinner given in their honor by Hon. Martin Burrell at the Chateau Laurier.

It was stated last night that the negotiations had only reached the preliminary stage, but that the various matters under discussion would be gone into more thoroughly to-day. They include the question of the appointment of a royal commission to consider the question of better terms for British Columbia, the old dispute over the refusal of the Provincial Government to recognise the title of the Indians to the reservation lands and several matters pertaining to the administration of the fisheries laws.

Premier McBride is also pressing Mr. Borden for prompt action towards realizing the demands of British Columbians for naval protection for the Pacific coast. Sir Richard, it is understood, is not averse to Premier Borden's proposed emergency contribution this session, but he does not want it to delay the creation of a Canadian fleet unit with dockyards and shipbuilding equipment on the western coast.

Premier McBride expects to be through with his business in Ottawa by Saturday, when he will leave for the south on a holiday trip. Mr. Bowser will go to New Brunswick to visit his mother. On Wednesday next the party will leave again for the coast.

WHITEY LEWIS FOR TRIAL FIRST

Will Get His Hearing Before Justice Goff.

New York, Nov. 8.—Frank Muller, known as "Whitey Lewis," will be placed on trial to-day as the first of the four gangsters indicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal to face a jury. After "Whitey's" trial is over, the other three, "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood" and "Dago Frank," will be tried in turn.

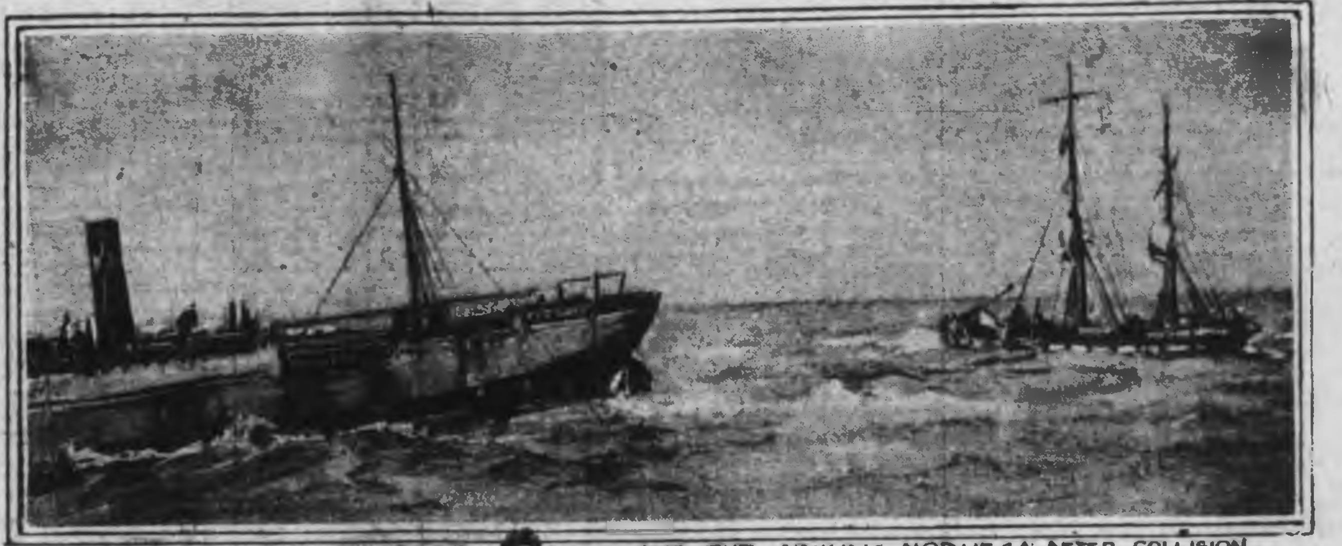
"Whitey" will appear before Justice Goff, who sentenced Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant to die in the electric chair for instigating the murder of the gambler.

NOT WANTED AT MIMICO

Authorities Not Satisfied With Conduct of Colored Inmate.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—John Fisher, a colored inmate of the Industrial School at Mimico, was committed for trial yesterday morning by County Magistrate Oley. Fisher robbed a residence some time ago after running away from the school, and when being brought back last Saturday jumped into the lake. The authorities at the institution sent a note to the magistrate saying that they did not want Fisher.

SCENE FOLLOWING THE COLLISION AT SEA OF TWO MONSTER VESSELS



THE DISABLED GLENLUI AND THE SINKING NORUEGA AFTER COLLISION.
REMARKABLE PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN IN FOG AND RAIN

Following a trail of large packing boxes bobbing around in the gale whipped ocean when the "S O S" wireless call for help had given only indefinite location the steamship Allianca, of the Panama line, which has arrived at New York, pounded into head seas and fog as hard as she could for sixty miles, found the steamship Noruega and the three master Glenlui, which had been in collision, and stood by for two hours giving assistance.

Both vessels were badly damaged in the accident, the steamship having had a great hole stove in her starboard bow and the sailing vessel losing her bowsprit and foremast.

WAR TO THE BITTER END INDICATIONS FROM TURKEY

Naxim Pasha Has Support of His Officers and the Ottoman Press---The Glory of Islam Must be Protected---Village Inhabitants Reported as Massacred.

Fall of Tchatalja Lacks Confirmation—Bulgars Lose 15,000 Men in Five Days Fighting—Turkish Casualties Exceeded 40,000.

Canadian Press.

Constantinople, Nov. 8— There is every indication here now, that war against the Balkan Allies will be continued to the bitter end as advised by Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Commander-in-Chief. Officers of the army join with the Turkish Press in applauding the determination of the Commander-in-Chief to continue the fight, and it is stated that the population of the Turkish Empire is ready to assist by every means in its power. At the same time, most Moslems are said to have sworn to sacrifice their lives in order to safeguard the glory of Islam.

REPORTED MASSACRES

Constantinople, Nov. 8— Fugitive Turkish soldiers are reported to have massacred many of the inhabitants of the village of Silivri, situated on the coast of the sea of Marmora to the southwest of Tchatalja forts. Fleeing soldiers in a state of semi-starvation and utterly demoralized, are said to have set fire to all houses in the village. Disease resembling cholera has broken out among the wounded Turkish soldiers arriving in Constantinople.

BULGARIA IS FIRM

Sofia, Nov. 8 — The Bulgarian Cabinet maintains the absolute necessity of any peace negotiations with Turkey being conducted directly with the Balkan nations, in order to ensure future position of the various states involved and to prevent danger of further conflict after war has ceased.

HEAVY FIGHTING

London, Nov. 8—A great battle is in progress between Bulgarians and Turks along the line of Tchatalja fortifications, only some twenty miles from Constantinople. It is generally believed that this will be the last of the series of combats going on for upwards of a fortnight. There is no fresh news to-day from Adrianople, which was reported last night to have fallen.

London, Nov. 8.—The Times prints the following despatch dated Sofia, Nov. 7, 11.20 p.m.:

"It is reported, but without official confirmation that the Bulgarian troops have occupied the Tchatalja lines."

The past twenty-four hours have brought little other news of importance from the seat of war. The report that Saloniki had been evacuated is premature, and a similar report concerning Monastir is still unconfirmed. There is no authentic news of the alleged defeat of the Turks before Tchatalja.

On the contrary a Constantinople despatch sets forth the Turkish claim that there are no Bulgarians before Tchatalja and that both armies are resting. The Turkish reports regarding the progress of the war, however, have been so consistently misleading as to have little value.

The present lull in news may mean that some important action is proceeding. In the meantime diplomatic efforts to end the war are making no progress and the European press is busy discussing all the aspects of the settlement of difficult questions. Everything tends to show that almost irreconcilable antagonisms will arise over the allocation of Turkish territory. Servia claims as her share a large part of Albania, including the Adriatic ports of Durazzo, Alessio and San Giovanni di Medua.

According to the Servian Premier's statement to The Paris Temps, the allies desire the partition of European Turkey, leaving the fate of Constantinople to the decision of the powers. According to reports current in Berlin the intention of the allies is to divide Albania between Servia and Greece, but an agreement already exists between Austria and Italy, which would be supported by Germany, guaranteeing the integrity and independence of Albania, and the Triple Alliance is determined to prevent Servia at all costs from reaching the Adriatic. It is even asserted that the Triple Alliance has agreed to make Albania independent with the Duke of Abruzzi as king.

Another important meeting occurred at Bucharest yesterday between the Roumanian Premier and the Russian and Austrian Ministers. It is reported that the powers will communicate today to the Balkan states Turkey's request for mediation.

Bulgars Lost 15,000 Men.

Sofia, Nov. 8.—In the five days fighting along the line between Lule Burgas and Bunarhissar the Bulgarians, it was officially announced yesterday, lost 15,000 men killed or wounded. The Turkish casualties exceeded 40,000.

Allies Will Divide Turkey.

Paris, Nov. 8.—The Balkan allies will ask for the partition of European Turkey, leaving the fate of Constantinople to the decision of the European powers, according to Premier Pachitch of Servia, in an interview yesterday with the correspndent of The Temps in Belgrade. The Servian statesman continued:

"Servia wants the ports of St. Giovanna Di Medua, Alessio and Durazzo on the Adriatic Sea, which the Servian empire possessed in the middle ages, and by which she was territorially related to the rest of Europe."

Servia has not received any proposal from Austria, but assuming that Austria has no territorial designs Servia is quite willing to favor economic and commercial expansion for Austria.

The Premier concluded by saying that the Balkan allies desired Turkey to treat directly with them concerning peace and not through the powers.

May Enter Capital.

London, Nov. 8.—Only five little districts now remain in the possession of Turkey out of the vast territory in Europe which she has ruled for centuries. Even these five districts, comprising Constantinople, Adrianople, Saloniki, Monastir and Scutari are seriously menaced.

Commanders of the Bulgarian invaders are said to have fixed Sunday next as the day on which they will enter the Turkish capital with their troops and hold a service of thanksgiving in the mosque of St. Sophia.

Eight Hundred Bulgars Sail.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Eight hundred Bulgarians left here yesterday on the steamer Victorian for the Balkans.

Four hundred more Bulgarians will, it is expected, leave for the scene of the war in a couple of days by the steamer Grampian.

Turkey Wants Chile's Warships.

Valparaiso, Chili, Nov. 8—The Turkish Government has made a proposal to Chile to purchase the battleship and torpedo boat destroyers now being built in England for this country. The Chilean Government, it is reported, will decline to sell the warships.

Opposed to Peace.

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—Public opinion in Constantinople is strongly opposed to the idea of seeking mediation of peace. Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, has reported to the Government that the army is determined to fight until victorious or absolutely defeated. He regards the reverses sustained as unfortunate, but says that the brave Ottoman army is confident of ultimate success and that the whole corps of officers are unanimously in favor of continuing the war.

Canadian Press.

To authorize payment, annually from the imperial fund of any sums for payment of which into the Irish exchequer provision is made under the present measure.

Secondly, to authorize such customs duties to be charged on articles brought into Great Britain from Ireland, or vice versa, as may be provided for.

GRAND RIVER ON RAMPAGE

Flood is Higher Than Ever Known Before.

Galt, Nov. 8.—The Grand River is again on the rampage and the oldest inhabitants declare the stream is higher now than ever before known except at spring freshet time. A roaring torrent is rising rapidly and water is backing into cellars and sweeping away boathouses and wharves. If the rain continues it is likely to do more serious damage. Owners of several gasoline launches have removed their boats from the river.

Reports from Paris and Brantford last night indicate considerable anxiety is felt as to the recurrence of floods.

Bourassa at McGill.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Before a crowd, mainly composed of McGill students, Henri Bourassa expressed his views on the naval policy and defended his attitude of opposition towards any Canadian contribution to the Imperial authorities. The occasion was the re-organization of the McGill Canadian Club, and the speaker pleaded with his hearers for the development of a greater spirit of Canadian unity rather than the following of those who fanned the flames of what he termed "false sentiment" for their own ends.

STATE RESULTS ARE UNDECIDED

Belated Returns From Illinois and California Cause Uncertainty

New York, Nov. 8.—Uncertainty as to the electoral choice of California and Illinois, as developed by belated returns from both states, was the chief point of interest yesterday, although counting of the ballots in several doubtful states still was under way.

That Illinois was safely in the Wilson column was indicated early in the evening, but California, which had been claimed by the Democrats shortly after the closing of the polls, wavered toward the Progressive ranks.

EXPLANATION BY CROTHER

Will Not Recede From Po tion He Now Holds.

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—Whatever the ou come of the strike of the Brother of Railway Employes along the C.P. systems, Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minis of Labor, will not recede from t position which he now holds. Wh Mr. Crothers gave no official sta ment he made it plain in an interv yesterday afternoon that no concil tion board will be granted. The Mi ister of Labor made the point that board had been refused because t act did not apply to the peculiar c ditions attached to the claims involv in the dispute.

He maintains that to have appoi ed a conciliation board would be defeat the very ends which the m and the Department are seeking attain.

"I have been negotiating with th C.P.R.," he said, "for some mont in an effort to secure better terms a conditions for the men. The compa met me in a sympathetic way, a has already given material increas to some of the men. The appointme of a conciliation board could only ha resulted in the company refusing grant the increases and terms th they were already considering fav ably, and the men would as a cons quence be deprived of their increas at least until a board could repo on the whole question."

An investigation, he said, would r quire sitting by the board in eve province in the Dominion, with e quiries into the cost of living in va ous towns and cities along the syste as well as a number of other matte which would necessarily have to probed if an intelligent and fair awa was to be given. This would result a tremendous cost to the country, si ply to obtain a result which the D parment was already in a fair way obtain and in a very short period time.

Galt, Nov. 8.—To fill the places of dozen men on strike at the C.P. freight depot, members of the staff the Toronto department are now e gaged. JOHNSON CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF MANN ACT

Is Indicted on Four Count and Released on Bail—Cameron Girl Held a Witness

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Jack Johnson, champion negro pugilist, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday, charged with violation of the Mann Act against the transportation of women from one state to another for immoral purposes. Johnson was indicted on four counts and his bail fixed at $30,000 by U. S. Judge Landis.

Federal officers were instructed to arrest Johnson, who could not be found all day yesterday. The search for him extended to various quarters of the city.

He was arrested late at night, however. Federal officers searched the south side several hours before Johnson was found in an hotel surrounded by four negro guards.

An attempt was at first made by the guards to prevent the officers from entering Johnson's rooms, but they were pushed aside and the Government warrant served on the prizefighter without serious difficulty.

At the federal building tears came to his eyes as the officers put handcuffs on his wrists.

"You don't have to do this; I am not going to run away," he said. "I'm square; you ought to know that."

He was later released on bail.

The specific case upon which the indictment against Johnson was based was that of Belle Schriber of Pittsburg (white), whom Johnson was charged with bringing to Chicago in August, 1910.

The jury, however, heard the testimony of Lucille Cameron of Minneapolis, whose mother charged Johnson with abduction, and she was held as a witness in $15,000 bail.

THE POWER SITUATION

There will be a money by-law submitted to the rate-payers of Peterborough at the January elections to raise $118,000 for Hydro-Electric power and lighting. If the vote in favor of the introduction of Hydro-Electric power, cast as an expression of opinion fairly expressed the sentiment of Peterborough it surely is not likely that at this late day, there will be a reversal of that opinion. If Peterborough does not want to have its real progress clogged, it ought to have public power. There is no objection particularly to the method in which the existing companies have handled the power situation in Peterborough. Their prices have not been extortionate. In fact, considering the consumption, they were quite fair. But if Peterborough were to decline the opportunity to become master of its own power situation it would fifty years hence be in just as dependent a position as it is to-day. It is not the question of the benefits that will accrue next year, or the year after, which ought to be considered as what effect the possession of Hydro-Electric power will have on the Peterborough of ten and twenty years hence. It is almost the invariable rule of private companies, to raise prices for power when they are able to do so, and retain their business. They, like the railroads, believe in charging all the traffic will bear. That is no discredit to them, as they are in business for themselves, to make money out of power. But it is the duty of every municipality to protect itself against the possible advance of prices to a burdensome scale. In a power franchise in existence in Peterborough, there are restrictions which give the city a certain measure of control over the advance of power prices. But the possession of public-owned and operated power and distributing plants is the key to the city's permanent interest, and as such the opportunity ought not to be neglected.

VOTES FOR TENANTS

The short-term mayor of Toronto, Mr. Hocken, has again brought forward a resolution to extend to all householders the franchise on money by-laws. This is the second time he has made this revolutionary proposal. It means that the tenant who does not own a dollar worth of actual property, will have as much voice in how the taxes of the city shall be spent as the man who has possibly worked and saved for years to get that property paid for. It is true that tenants pay rent, and high rent, and that this rent is so fixed that it pays the taxes on the property and an interest on the investment. The tenants contribute as much toward the revenue of the city as the property owners. But the principle of allowing them votes on money by-laws is too radical for hurried adoption. If there was manhood franchise for money by-laws, municipalities would be introduced to orgies of expenditure on useless projects. Peterborough would under such a system not be at all chary in bonusing a rubber tire or auto manufacturing company. There would not be such difficulty in having the Hydro-Electric by-law passed. Taxes would be higher, but rents might not advance. The tenant would be voting instead of the property which pays the money. In Toronto, the city is within a few million dollars of the maximum borrowing power allowed by law. It takes as much to run the city affairs as it does to run the provincial machinery of Ontario. The representation given to tenants by this syetm would introduce a most dangerous irresponsibility into the electoral decisions on large debenture issues. It is a matter to be handled with care.

THE CAUSE OF POVERTY

Toronto News.

An investigation into the circumstances of nearly 7,000 dependent families in New York showed that in 40 per cent. of the cases poverty was caused by illness. Most of the sickness was attributed to the conditions under which the victims live. Those who may be described as the "near-poor," persons whose employment is irregular or whose wages are low, find themselves unable to pay for suitable homes. They herd with others of the same class in tenements, or worse still, in one or two rooms of an ordinary house, which is filled with similar families. Illness results from such unhealthful surroundings, and then follows dependence on charity. Once a family has sunk to the pauper class, the climb back to independence is difficult. Sociologists contend that a man with a family should not spend more than one-fifth of his income or rent. In New York the "near poor" have to spend about a third of their incomes for very bad accommodation. Can a casual laborer secure suitable quarters for his family in Toronto for one-third or even one-half of his income?

Large areas of slum dwellings and overcrowded houses in Toronto are forming a pauper class. Wages are good, but rents are so high that any man whose work is irregular, if he has a family to support, must be content with one or two rooms in the congested district. Even here he must pay in rent what would amount to at least one-third of his income if he could secure work on every week-day throughout the year. In this manner an appreciable proportion of the unskilled workers in the city are kept on the verge of poverty by high charges of rent, and the health of these men is being undermined by unsanitary surroundings. To permit the continuance of such conditions is a policy of madness which can result only in the development of a pauper problem here similar to those which burden the industrial centres of England and the United States. We can offer plenty of work at good wages. Why should this advantage be used to undermine the health and pauperise family men who start with independence and energy?

So grave is the situation that one might expect the authorities to welcome any effort which would tend to improve housing conditions in Toronto. A company has been formed to build and manage a settlement on the co-partnership principle. Instead of the enterprise receiving encouragement, we find that its plans are opposed and delayed at every turn. Although the possible profits of the company are limited by its own rules to six per cent., members of Council have not hesitated to liken him to a greedy corporation against which the citizens may be protected. It is time the general public realized that this company, by experimenting on a small scale, is rendering a great service to the community. Before long the housing problem will have to be taken in hand. There are hardly any members of Council with even the most rudimentary knowledge of the subject. Thousands of citizens are living under conditions which are disastrous to their physical and moral welfare, and their children are growing up amid degrading surroundings. A Council whose whole soul seems wrapped up in the rent of a shack on the market cannot be expected to understand this intricate problem. But at least the members might encourage those who appreciate the need for reform and who are willing to risk money and sacrifice time in trying to find the best solution of a growing evil.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Mixed Pickle.

Mrs. Whitcomb had almost blushed when she had murmured to Lieutenant Hudson:

"I should think the young couple would have preferred a stateroom."

And Mr. Hudson had flinched a little as he explained:

"Yes, of course. We tried to get it, but it was gone."

It was during the excitement over the decoration of the bridal section, that the stateroom-tenants slipped in unobserved.

First came a fluttering woman whose youthful beauty had a certain hue of experience, saddening and wisering. The porter brought her in from the station-platform, led her to the stateroom's concave door and passed in with her luggage. But she lingered without, a Peri at the gate of Paradise. When the porter returned to bow her in, she shivered and hesitated, and then demanded:

"Oh, porter, are you sure there's nobody else in there?"

The porter chuckled, but humored her panic.

"I ain't seen nobody. Shall I look under the seat?"

To his dismay, she nodded her head violently. He rolled his eyes in wonderment, but returned to the stateroom, made a pretense of examination and came back with a face full of reassurance. "No'm, they's nobody there. Take a mighty small-size burglar to squeeze unda that bald—er—berth. No'm, nobody there."

"Oh!"

The gasp was so equivocal that he made bold to ask:

"Is you pleased or disappointed?"

The mysterious young woman was too much agitated to rebuke the impudence. She merely sighed: "Oh, porter, I'm so anxious."

"I'm not—now," he muttered, for she handed him a coin.

"Porter, have you seen anybody on board that looks suspicious?"

"Evvabody looks suspicious to me, Missy. But what was you expecting—especial?"

"Oh, porter, have you seen anybody that looks like a detective in disguise?"

"Well, they's one man looks 's if he was disguised as a balloon, but I don't believe he's no slooch-hound."

"Well, if you see anybody that looks like a detective and he asks for Mrs. Fosdick—"

"Mrs. What-dick?"

"Mrs. Fosdick! You tell him I'm not on board." And she gave him another coin.

"Yassum," said the porter, lingering willingly on such fertile soil. "I'll tell him Mrs. Fosdick done give me her word she wasn't on bode."

"Yes!—and if a woman should ask you."

"What kind of a woman?"

"The hideous kind that men call handsome."

"Oh, ain't they hideous, them handsome women?"

"Well, if such a woman asks for Mrs. Fosdick—she's my husband's first wife—but of course that doesn't interest you."

"No'm—yes'm."

"If she comes—tell her—tell her—oh, what shall we tell her?"

The porter rubbed his thick skull: "Lemme see—we might say you—I tell you what we'll tell her: we'll tell her you took the train for New York; and if she runs mighty fast she can just about ketch it."

"Fine, fine!" And she rewarded his genius with another coin. "And, porter." He had not budged. "Porter, if a very handsome man with luscious eyes and a soulful smile asks for me—"

"I'll th'ow him off the train!"

"Oh, no—no!—that's my husband—my present husband. You may let him in. Now is it all perfectly clear, porter?"

"Oh, yassum, clear as clear." Thus guaranteed she entered the stateroom, leaving the porter alone with his problem. He tried to work it out in a semi-audible mumble: "Lemme see! If your present husband's absent wife gits on bode disguised as a handsome hideous woman I'm to throw him—her—off the train and let her—him—come in—oh, yassum, you may rely on me." He bowed and held out his hand. But she was gone. He shuffled on into the car.

He had hardly left the little space before the stateroom when a handsome man with luscious eyes, but without any smile at all, came slinking along the corridor and tapped cautiously on the door. Silence alone answered him at first, then when he had rapped again, he heard a muffled:

"Go away. I'm not in."

He put his lips close and softly called: "Edith!"

At this Sesame the door opened a trifle, but when he tried to enter, a hand thrust him back and a voice again warned him off. "You musn't come in."

"But I'm your husband."

"That's just why you musn't come in." The door opened a little wider to give him a view of a down-cast beauty moaning:

"Oh, Arthur, I'm so afraid."

"Afraid?" he sniffed. "With your husband here?"

"That's the trouble, Arthur. What if your former wife should find us together?"

"But she and I are divorced."

"In some states, yes—but other states don't acknowledge the divorce. That former wife of yours is a fiend to pursue us this way."

"She's no worse than your former husband. He's pursuing us, too. My divorce was as good as yours, my dear."

"Yes, and no better."

The angels looking on might have judged from the ready tempers of the newly married and not entirely unmarried twain that their new alliance promised to be as exciting as their previous estates. Perhaps the man subtly felt the presence of those eternal eavesdroppers, for he tried to end the love-duel in the corridor with an appeasing caress and a tender appeal: "But let's not start our honeymoon with a quarrel."

His partial wife returned the caress and tried to explain: "I'm not quarreling with you, dear heart, but with the horrid divorce laws. Why, oh, why did we ever interfere with them?"

He made a brave effort with: "We ended two unhappy marriages, Edith, to make one happy one."

"But I'm so unhappy, Arthur, and so afraid."

He seemed a trifle afraid himself and his gaze was askance as he urged: "But the train will start soon, Edith—and then we shall be safe."

Mrs. Fosdick had a genius for inventing unpleasant possibilities. "But what if your former wife or my former husband should have a detective on board?"

"A detective?—poof!" He snapped his fingers in bravado. "You are with your husband, aren't you?"

"In Illinois, yes," she admitted, very dolefully. "But when we come to Iowa, I'm a bigamist, and when we come to Nebraska, you're a bigamist, and when we come to Wyoming, we're not married at all."

It was certainly a tangled web they had woven, but a ray of light shot through it into his bewildered soul. "But we're all right in Utah. Come, dearest."

He took her by the elbow to escort her into their sanctuary, but still she hung back.

"On one condition, Arthur—that you leave me as soon as we cross the Iowa state line, and not come back till we get to Utah. Remember, the Iowa state line!"

"Oh, all right," he smiled. And seeing the porter, beckoned him close and asked with careless indifference: "Oh, porter, what time do we reach the Iowa state line?"

"Two fifty-five in the mawning, sah."

"Two fifty-five a. m.?" the wretch exclaimed.

"Two fifty-five a. m., yassah," the porter repeated, and wondered why this excerpt from the time-table should exert such a dramatic effect on the luscious-eyed Fosdick.

He had small time to meditate the puzzle, for the train was about to be launched upon its long voyage. He went out to the platform, and watched a couple making that way. As their only luggage was a dog-basket he supposed that they were simply come to bid some of his passengers good-bye. No tips were to be expected from such transients, so he allowed them to help themselves up the steps.

To be continued

Faster Than Sound.

A railroad man was boasting about the speed of the trains on his line.

"We go so fast," he said, "that bells and whistles are no use—the train keeps ahead of the sound.

"Once four miles away, on a straight stretch, an engineer of ours saw a wagon. He whistled and rang and yelled, but it was useless. The next instant we were on the wagon—crash, bang—a derailment and the engine overturned.

"The engineer, poor fellow, was killed. But the ghastly thing about the accident was this: As the engineer lay dead on the roadside his voice caught him up. Yes, sir, there he lay, dead, and all around him sounded in chorus his own yells that he had used—just a minute before—to clear the track."—Boston Traveler.

DO YOU KNOW —
That when you put a salve onto your child's skin, it passes through the pores and enters the blood, just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach?
You would not put a coarse mass of animal fat, colored by various mineral poisons (such as many crude salves are) into your child's blood by way of the stomach? Then why do so by way of the pores?
Take no risk. Use always the pure herbal essences provided in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal oil or fat, and no poisonous mineral coloring matter. From start to finish it is purely herbal.
It will heal sores, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, varicose ulcers, cuts, burns and bruises more quickly than any other known preparation. Several concrete buildings are to be erected at once at the mines. These mines are situated about three miles from Ingonish town and the company have built a highway three miles in length. Ore is being extracted from three tunnels each about 250 feet in length, driven in the side of the mountain, and two shafts which have been sunk 50 feet. Silver fox, so beautiful in itself that it needs no embellishment, shows to the utmost advantage in this fur set of medium size. The scarf is frankly the entire little animal. AMERICAN HOMES.

What the English Author, Arnold Bennett, Has to Say About Them.

When I began to make the acquaintance of the American private house I felt like one who, son of an exiled mother, had been born abroad and had at length entered his real country. That is to say, I felt at home. I felt that all this practical comfort and myself had been specially destined for each other since the beginning of time and that fate was at last being fulfilled. Freely I admit that until I reached America I had not understood what real domestic comfort, generously conceived, could be. I had always in this particular sided with my own country, whose average notion of comfort still is to leave the drawing room (temperature 70 degrees—near the fire) at midnight, pass by a wind swept hall and staircase (temperature 55 degrees) to a bedroom full of fine fresh air (temperature 50 to 40 degrees) and in that chamber, having removed piece by piece every bit of warm clothing, to slip imperfectly protected between icy sheets and wait for sleep. Certainly I had always contested the joyfulness of that particular process, but my imagination had fallen short of the delicious innumerable realities of comfort in an American home.

Now, having regained the "barbaric seats" whence I came, I read with a peculiar expression the advertisements of fashionable country and town residences to rent or for sale, such as "Choice residence; five reception rooms, sixteen bedrooms, bathroom," or, "Thoroughly up to date mansion; six reception rooms, splendid hall, billiard room, twenty-four bedrooms, two bathrooms." I read this literature (to be discovered textually every week in the best illustrated weeklies), and I smile. Also I wonder, faintly blushing, what Americans do think of the residential aspects of European house property when they first see it. And I wonder, without blushing, to what miraculous degree of perfected comfort Americans would raise all their urban traffic if only they cared enough to keep the professional politician out of their streets as strictly as they keep him out of their houses.—Arnold Bennett in Harper's Magazine.

What She Really Wanted.

They looked like newly married folk, but evidently were not on their honeymoon. The woman laid down a newspaper she had been reading and said to her husband:

"Do you know, I wish I had one of these affinities. Oh, I think it would be just g-r-a-n-d to sit on a rock with somebody and have him rave about the incomparable golden color of my hair and tell me that my eyes were the most beautiful in the whole world and"—

"Uh, huh!" said the husband, yawning.

"And that the delicate pink of my cheeks had been painted there by the angels and that he couldn't live without me. O-oh, I think an affinity like that would be"—

"'Tisn't an affinity you want," interrupted the husband. "What you seem to want is a plain, old fashioned liar."

When One Travels.

To find a novelty which one may give for a "bon voyage" present is always a satisfaction, for any gift which is out of the ordinary expresses more thoughtfulness than the conventional, and hence is always more welcome and appreciated. The latest gift of this kind is a wee wicker basket, or, rather, hamper, decorated with a sprig of artificial flowers or fruit and holding within it a bottle of imported perfume. Some of these hampers contain a bottle of perfume and a cake of imported soap.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?
There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.
SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

HAPPY THOUGHT

How You Can Roast Well and Save Fuel
A range may be a good baker, and still not be a good roaster.
Roasting is one of the most expensive processes of cooking—more fuel is used in proportion to the result than in almost any other cooking operation. So fuel economy is worth careful watching.
"Happy Thought" Ranges are constructed to give concentrated heat efficiency in the oven.
You know how necessary this is to proper roasting.
But the "Happy Thought" has this further advantage—oven heat is controlled entirely by the size and strength of your fire. So that a small, lazy fire gives a slow cooking heat, and a hot blazing fire gives a quick intense heat.
The same firebox construction of the "Happy Thought" enables you to perfectly control your fire and, therefore, your oven heat.
The point is, you get a direct value in oven heat from every ounce of fuel.
Over a Quarter Million Canadian women, who know this from experience, use the "Happy Thought" every day.

Its appalling the number of people we have call on us every week who are wearing wrongly fitted glasses. Glasses that have been fitted by some peddler or travelling fakir.

Some people put very small value on their Eyesight to allow such people to tamper with their eyes.

To those who are wearing wrongly fitted glasses, or who expect eye trouble in any way, all we ask is for you to call and let us examine your Eyesight, if we charge you more or fail to give you better glasses at as low a price as you can get elsewhere we will refund your money.

Nowhere can you get higher quality nor lower prices than we give.

Our personal guarantee goes with every pair of glasses sold, or money refunded,

PREPARING FOR THE POULTRY SHOW

Seven New Classes Added to the Long Prize List

Usually as the time draws near for their annual show the members of the Peterborough Poultry Association become more enthusiastic, and the regular monthly meeting held last night proved to be no exception to the rule. There was a large attendance to hear the reports of the committees appointed to arrange details for the show in January. The prize list has been revised and seven new classes added, and the prize money on turkeys and geese has also been increased. A number of applications have been received from various sections of the province for prize lists, which will be in the printers' hands shortly. The Special Prize and Donation Committee reported that success was being met with. It was also announced that arrangements had been made for the appearance of Miss Yeates of the Guelph College, to give two lectures and two demonstrations on the 7th and 8th of January, the two first days of the annual show. Her subjects will be "How to get Winter Eggs," "The Keeping of Poultry on Small City Lots," "The Trussing and Preparing of Fowl for Table," and will also demonstrate the art of "Carving a Bird."

The following gentlemen were appointed delegates to the meeting of the Federation of Poultry Associations to be held at Guelph during the week of the Ontario Winter Show:—Delegates, Messrs. Joe. Kelly and Geo. McClennan; alternates, Messrs. H. Lush and A. Breault.

There were about 30 birds on exhibition last night, the varieties represented being Columbian, White and Black Wyandottes; Houdans; Buff Orpingtons; White Plymouth Rocks, and White Cochin Bantams. [illegible] were Messrs. Lowes, Grose, McClennan, Kelly, Breault, Snedmore and Paxman. The birds were all in grand condition and were fine specimens, showing a marked improvement in all classes. The Houdans shown by Mr. Snedmore were good, and the Black Wyandottes, bred by Wm. Grose were the best ever shown here. Mr. Breault is the proud possessor of a very fine bunch of White Cochin Bants.

Space will not permit of a further summarization of the birds shown, but suffice to say they were a grand lot.

FREIGHT BLOCKED THE PASSENGERS

Car Was Derailed This Side of Claremont

Traffic on the C.P.R. between Peterborough and Toronto was held up for twelve or more hours last night as the result of an accident nine miles this side of Claremont. Attached to a freight train travelling east, about five o'clock last evening was a car loaded with a steam shovel. When it reached the point where the G.T.R. bridge passes over the C.P.R., the shovel, which was too high to pass safely under, struck the bridge and derailed the car, making a very effectual blockade. The auxiliary arrived on the scene about six o'clock and worked hard to get the track clear as soon as possible. This was accomplished at 6 o'clock this morning. Meanwhile a procession of passenger trains going east and west had gathered on either side of the wreck. The local from Toronto waited at Claremont for twelve hours, the passengers travelling to Peterborough on the first midnight train, which reached here at 7.30 o'clock this morning.

FIFTY YEARS IN CHURCH SERVICE

Rev. Dr. Robinson of Hamilton Tenders His Resignation

Is Brother of Mr. T. W. Robinson of Weller Street

Hamilton, No. 8— After serving in the active work of the Methodist ministry for nearly fifty years, Rev. J. H. Robinson, D.D., the present pastor of Simcoe street Methodist church, this city, at a meeting of the church board tendered his resignation to take effect at the end of the present conference year, at which time he will ask for superannuation. Mr. Robinson was pastor of Emerald street Methodist church Hamilton, for four years, and has been three years in his present pastorate at Simcoe street church. During his ministry he has been located at Niagara Falls, Oakville, Simcoe, Tillsonburg, Norwich, Palmerston and several other places. He held the position of district chairman for fourteen years, and is an ex-president of the Hamilton conference. He entered the ministry just forty-eight years ago last June, and has always been known as an able speaker and excellent pastor. He was born in Peterboro, Ont., and was married in 1874 to Miss M. Culham, daughter of the late John Culham of Oakville, who, during all their married life and up to the present time has always been an interested co-worker with him.

The following resolution was passed by the Board of the Simcoe street church.

"Having learned from our pastor, Rev. J. H. Robinson, D.D., of his decision to ask for superannuation next conference, we as a board desire to express our highest esteem of him. We will feel his loss very much, and regret that he is about to retire from active work of the ministry. We pray that after his many years of toil and usefulness he may have a very pleasant and happy time for the remainder of his life, and our best wishes as a board will ever follow him."

It was also decided at this meeting to extend a call to Rev. Edward Sheppard of Lynden, as successor to Mr. Robinson.

BOARD OF WORKS' RECOMMENDATIONS

No Action will be Taken in Mr. Nixon's Case

Among recommendations passed by the Board of Works last night was one that Princess street be graded and another, that tenders be asked for snow ploughing.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Graham, a concrete crossing will be laid across George street at the Dennistoun property.

Mr. F. Adams, Robinson street, was granted permission to cut down three trees opposite his property, under the supervision of the city engineer.

Mr F. J. R. Mitchell of London street, will also be allowed to remove three trees, under the engineer's supervision.

The sidewalk, north side Dublin east of Water street will, on motion of Ald. Graham and Johnston, be attended to.

Mr. Chas. Nixon's threat to sue the city unless the water be diverted from off his property on Bolivar was received and no action taken. The city engineer reported that the water is only in evidence in spring and fall, and runs in its natural channel.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, the city will purchase the necessary quantity of 24 inch pipe with which to lay a drain beneath the G. T. R. tracks at Romaine street, the railway's men to do this work as proffered by the company.

The Bell Telephone Company's request for permission to erect poles on the north side of Smith street was granted.

Repairs will be made to the sidewalk on James street between the track and Maria street and to the sidewalk on Bethune street, between Perry and Lake streets, while a temporary walk will be constructed near Mr. Elliott's double house on Rink street.

The Chairman reported that he had agreed to repairing the boundary road of Otonabee, east of Downer's Corners, near the Burnham property, at a cost of $100; the township to pay half of the expenditure.

The Board received from the C. P. R., an agreement allowing for the extension of Simcoe street across their tracks and giving the city sufficient railway land to provide for a 66 feet highway from the present end of Simcoe street eastward to the city's water front property, and a 66 feet highway from the present end of Simcoe street eastward to the city's water front property, and a 66 feet highway southward along the river's edge. This agreement was accepted.

J. T. Chapman's petition that crossings on Downie, Smith and Downie and Dublin street need repairing was referred to the city Engineer for immediate attention.

The engineer reported that the provision of drainage across George street south from Overend property, petitioned for by R. Cassell, is not practicable at present. This matter was referred back to the engineer for further investigation.

COUNTY POLICE COURT CASE

Belmont Farmer to Face Charge Made By His Wife

Another Move on the Recent Assault Case

In Police Magistrate Edmison's court to-morrow morning, a Belmont township farmer, named John Stewart will be charged with being insane on information laid by his wife. His hearing will take place at eleven o'clock. County Constable Williams brought the man to Peterborough, and he is at present lodged in the county gaol. The case will be an interesting one as there appear to be a great disparity in the ages of the accused and his better half. He is over thirty years her senior. Constable Williams did not consider him to be in any way mentally unbalanced, and it is said the accusation has arisen from family differences of opinion or family quarrels.

An assault case involving two pro- which was aired in city police court this week, has been taken by the defendant into Magistrate Edmison's Court, as the assault is alleged to have occurred in the township of Smith, and therefore, outside of Magistrate Dumble's jurisdiction. The defendant in police court announced his intention to proceed against his complainant on the ground that the latter had been the aggressor.

Mr. G. N. Gordon will appear for the complainant in this case.

The hearing will commence at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

LOCAL PEOPLE SPENT THE NIGHT ON STALLED TRAIN

Quite a number of prominent local people spent a most unenviable and dreary time on the C.P.R. local train last evening, when it was held up for twelve hours by a blockade of the track near Claremont. Some of them were Dr. Marsh, of Springville; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mr. T. E Bradburn, Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Rev. J. H. Keith and Mr. J. Hopwood. The train was cold and uninviting, and their uncomfortable position was increased by an absence of food. Those who went foraging around were afraid to venture away from the train for fear it would pull out without warning. The blockade lasted from 6 o'clock last evening till 6 o'clock this morning. The auxiliary which was sent out from North Toronto, was unable to clear the obstruction, and then long wait ensued until the auxiliary from Havelock arrived. None of the passengers felt like sleeping, and they were all tired and worn out on their arrival at Peterborough this morning.

The Government will operate the completed section of the N.T. Ry. in New Brunswick until the G.T.P. is ready to take it over.

CAZOOKS BROUGHT ON DEFEAT BY WILD RUSHES

Dr. Roller Had Rather Easy Time Doing Away With the French Champion, Getting the First Fall by Taking Advantage of an Argument With Referee by Cazeaux.

Eastern wrestling enthusiasts are taking considerable interest in the performances of Cazeaux and Le Marin, who are in the limelight these days. Le Marin has made Cazooks taste defeat several times, so by way of a change, Dr. Roller appears on the scene.

The Seattle man and the Frenchman came together at Montreal Wednesday night and the following is an account of the meeting—

Dr. Roller weighed ten pounds less than his opponent, but in spite of this handicap and the fact that he appeared in scarcely as good training as Cazeaux, during the three-quarters of an hour the men wrestled the Seattle physician had easily the best of the exchanges. As in previous bouts, Roller set out to infuriate the Bordelais and his methods again proved successful, both falls being the immediate outcome of frantic rushes on the part of Cazeaux.

At the very outset Cazeaux set the pace, but no matter what move he made Roller was always ready with a counter, the Bordelais finally rushing for his opponent's legs who, ducking, brought the Frenchman hard to the mat. Cazeaux was up in an instant and tried the same tactics, once more coming into hard contact with the canvas. Getting up quickly he started an argument with Bourque, the referee, during which Roller, seeing his opportunity, seized the Bordelais round the legs, bringing him down on his back where he remained sufficiently long for the referee to award a fall.

Roller had ample opportunity to display his lightning-like agility and extraordinary cleverness during the second bout. Cazeaux, more than once appeared to be on the point of securing a fall, but at the critical moment, Roller would slip away in amazing fashion. Once, the Bordelais had both hands gripped on the Seattle man's right leg while Roller balanced himself on the other foot, but distracting the Frenchman's attention by a feint, he hopped to one side, slipping from Cazeaux' with ease. Shortly after, Roller brought his man to the floor with a trip. In fact, during the entire forty minutes the men occupied the centre of the mat. Roller made rings round his opponent, the coup de grace coming after Cazeaux made a wild rush, falling over Roller's doubled-up body, while the Seattle man took the opportunity to twist him on his back by means of his legs. Cazeaux ended up with both shoulders on the mat, but bridged immediately. Roller, however, broke the bridge and, using his entire weight, brought the Frenchman's shoulders plump on the canvas again securing the fall.

Though Cazeaux put up a strong argument in the second bout, the decided superiority of his opponent at the American style proved too much for him. Cazeaux on the whole kept his temper in better check than usual, but it is significant that the two falls against him were agin caused by his impetuousness.

NEW CLASSES AND WEIGHTS FOR PADDED MIT ARTISTS

For the first time in the history of boxing in the United States, an official attempt will be made by the New York State Athletic Commission to fix an international standard of weights to govern championship bouts in the various classes. The commission hopes to get its schedule recognized by the authorities governing the sport in England, France and Australia. The following weight scale, drawn up by the New York Commission, is now on its way to the governing bodies in the three countries named, and is expected to receive their approval:

Paperweight, 108 pounds.
Bantamweight, 115 pounds.
Featherweight, 125 pounds.
Lightweight, 135 pounds.
Welterweight, 145 pounds.
Middleweight, 158 pounds.
Light heavyweight, or commission weight, 175 pounds.
Heavyweight, 175 pounds and over.

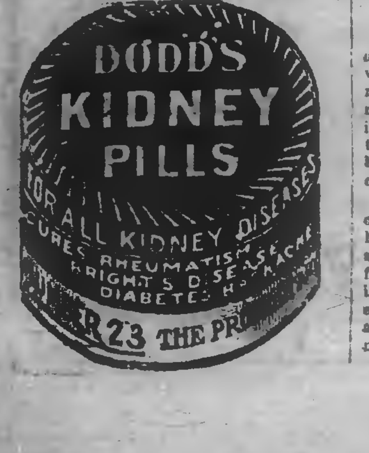
The present classes and weight limits are:

Bantamweight, 115 pounds.
Featherweight 122 pounds.
Lightweight, 133 pounds.
Welterweight, 142 pounds.
Middleweight, 158 pounds (ringside.)
Heavyweight, 158 pounds.
Heavyweight, over 158 pounds.

The commission, in fixing the scale, also stipulated that the various weight limits should be made at the ringside. Ringside weighing has many opponents in this country, and it is believed that a modification of this rule will be agreed upon later by the international bodies concerned.

The commission's schedule calls for a new class to include boxers too heavy to make 158 pounds ringside, yet too light to compete as full-fledged heavyweights. The idea is to do away with contests in which a man weighing 165 pounds meets an opponent carrying 200 pounds or more.

In addition to the weights program, the commission has entered into an agreement with English, French and Australian promoters by which uniform rules and penalties will be mutually recognized.



FRYER TO PLAY WITH TORONTO

Collingwood Forward Will Work for Manager Nicholson

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Manager Billy Nicholson of the Tecumsehs National Hockey Association club, is still hustling for players, and has now secured the contracts of two first-class men in Billy Field, of Winnipeg, who plays cover point, and Fryer, a forward, from the Collingwood club. This makes a likely pair and will greatly add to the strength of the team.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Jim Sutherland will be in Kingston to coach the Frontenanc during the coming winter. The announcement will be the matter of the greatest satisfaction to hockey fans, and is in itself an assurance that Kingston will be well represented in the O. H. A. this coming season.

"What kind of a senior team do you expect to have," was asked the genial "Jim" by the Standard.

"We'll have a team all right," he answered "and a good one." I expect that several old stars will re-enter the game and indications are that we will make a good bid for final honors."

There is great speculation as to the outcome of the final scheduled match of the Intercollegiate Rugby union between Varsity and Queens at Kingston, next Saturday. If the Toronto students are successful, it will put them on even terms with McGill and there will have to be a play-off to decide the championship. On the other hand, if Queen's win it will give the intercollegiate honors to McGill, and it will meet the Alerts in the first of the two matches for the Dominion championship.

The Varsity Athletic Association refunded $133 to dissatisfied season ticket holers, which means that about 175 people received their 75 cents back. As the trip to Ottawa cost the Varsity Club nearly $700 one can see that the default of Ottawa College has cost Varsity close to $800.

The team this season will be fast and strong and will be quite as good if not better than last year's. The five members of last season's team who will again be on the line-up the coming winter include Norman Ken Macnab, Quinn Butterfield Love Pupp and Pete Thornton These players will all be better this year than ever. For the two vacancies caused by the retirement of Ralph Cooke and Herb. Mohan, there are several first-class aspirants including Lionel Hinds, Andy Tudhope Dawson Parks, Albert Ied and Donald Knox. — Orillia News Letter.

GRIDIRON HERO IS TOO ATHLETIC

Wife Who Wants Divorce Says He Was Cruel

Pittsburg, Pa. November 8.—Faultlessly gowned, Mrs. Edna McKay McMahon went upon the stand in the divorce court before Judge Cohen to give her testimony in her suit for divorce against William McMahon, the former football player and oarsman.

The grounds upon which Mrs. McMahon bases her suit for divorce are cruel and barbarous treatment, indignity, non-support and adultery

The court room was filled with fashionably dressed society women from the West End The wealth and social prominence of the plaintiff, her husband's former prestige as an athlete at Yale and the romantic elopement of the couple on March 18, 1904, all added interest to the proceedings.

Mrs McMahon testified that she not live with her husband after her marriage until June 25, 1904. At the Hotel Walcott, New York, she said, their marriage troubles began two nights later

On that night, when she upbraided him for some action, he broke up the furniture, struck her and choked her into unconsciousness. Mrs. McMahon declared that on several occasions her husband had called her vile names Once, in New York, while they were dining at the Clermont, on Riverside Drive, McMahon criticized a woman who was sitting at another table.

When she chided her husband and said he was mistaken, he flew into a towering rage.

On another occasion at New London Mrs. McMahon declared her husband had cursed her and called her vile names in the presence of friends She declared that the ex-hero of the gridiron had never contributed a penny toward her support, but that she furnished him with all the money he ever had while they lived together.

Mrs McMahon declared that she finally became a nervous wreck as the result of her husband's ill-treatment

A special cable despatch to the Toronto Globe from London, gives the following—

"Charles E. Hands, the special correspondent of The London Daily Mail, telegraphs from Bucharest the following—

"I have just arrived from Sofia and have grounds for believing that Adrianople has fallen, but the Bulgarians are concealing the fact as the powers, realizing that a decisive point had been reached in the war, should intervene before the capture of Constantinople.

"Extraordinary endeavors have been made since Monday to prevent the news from getting out. Nothing has been issued officially from Sofia except casualties. The censorship has extended to all letters.

Mr. Andrew Laidlaw Fractures Left Knee Cap

Mr. Andrew Laidlaw, the Hunter street merchant, met with a bad accident last night in East City. Mr. Laidlaw, with a friend, was leaving the residence of Mr. Alex Fitzgerald of Hunter street, at about 8 o'clock, when the accident happened. The sidewalk leading from the house is lower than the public walk and, in the dark, Mr. Laidlaw, not noticing the difference in height, fell on his left knee, breaking the knee cap. Dr. Malcolm McCulloch was called and reduced the fracture. He was taken in Comstock's ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital where he is progressing favorably.

It seems perfectly natural for some women to be artificial.

THE QUESTION OF FERTILITY

Poultry keepers who are anxious to produce some chickens for the early trade will do well to pay extra attention to the condition of their breeding stock, in view of the character of the rearing season, and the varied influences to which their stock birds have been exposed this year. It is useless to attempt the hatching of a large number of chickens, unless reasonably assured of the suitability of the parents and their preparedness for the production of strongly fertilized eggs at a trying period. It would be far better to delay matters for a few weeks, and there is no great gain for the general purpose in having many newly-hatched birds about until the turn of the year. The running of breeding stock in large flocks is never to be commended, although it is often much more successful than might be expected; but this year the general backwardness of stock suggests the advisability of strictly limiting the numbers of the hens or pullets mated with each male—and the latter must be carefully selected.

CITY PAID $953 FOR PAVING OF CHAMBERS STREET

The City Engineer reports the cost of paving Chambers street to be 97 7-9 cents per square yard for a total of $953.

For macadamizing this street during the past twelve years the cost was from 45 to 65 cents per square yard. Real macadam work, however costs $1.75 per square yard.

4 O'CLOCK PAPER

It is the desire of the management of The Daily Review to have the paper delivered to the homes of subscribers and for sale on the streets at an hour or so earlier than has been the custom. To do this the co-operation of the advertiser is needed—matter must be sent in early. Copy for large display ads, calling for proofs, should be at this office by ONE o'clock on the day previous to publication.

An earlier paper will be appreciated by the reading public and be more beneficial to the advertisers.

A CELEBRATED CANADIAN PAINTER

J. Colin Forbes, R.C.A., Is at Work on "Christ and Barabbas."

Mr. J. Colin Forbes, R.C.A., the Canadian, who has painted more public men than perhaps any other artist, and whose portrait of Gladstone is frequently called the best ever done of that statesman, is engaged in the execution of an ambitious canvas called "Christ and Barabbas." In his studio the other day he was good enough to talk about the difficulties of conceiving such a work.

"I do not remember 'Barabbas' being used in painting as a foil to Christ," he said. "Even in literature the only book with this subject as its motif that comes to my mind is Marie Corelli's, considered by many to be one of the finest word paintings we have.

"There are, of course, difficulties which every painter meets in portraying an Oriental picture —atmosphere, for instance, and for my picture I have secured all the costumes and paraphernalia from Palestine; but the outstanding difficulty, I find, is to mould the face of Christ. Many of the painters who have attempted this subject have confessed their dissatisfaction with the results achieved, and you will not have failed to note that most of them have been influenced by the type of face of their country."

J. Colin Forbes numbers among the famous men who have sat to him, the Earl of Dufferin, Sir John Macdonald, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the Hon. Edward Blake, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the late President Harrison of the U.S.A., and Prof. Schurman of Cornell University. His painting of Gladstone in the National Liberal Club is "not to be surpassed as a truthful and effective portrait," according to one critic. What many considered to be a better effort is that painted by Mr. Forbes at Mr. Gladstone's home. Of this he says:

"I stayed for a considerable time at Hawarden studying him both in private and public life. He would sit in one corner of his study writing and Mrs. Gladstone in another, and I can still clearly recall to mind the strong, deeply-lined face of the great man as he sat at his table, writing, writing, writing, as if he never would stop. He used a very old quill pen, which he would stick into a potato on the table when he stopped writing.

"I made a careful study of him when speaking in public. I remember on one occasion, at a public meeting, his cravat became disarranged, and was hanging down the back of his coat, but when Mr. Gladstone became eloquent he lost all thought of his attire. Mrs. Gladstone was on the platform on this occasion, and crossing over to her husband she put her hand on his shoulder and just said, 'William.' Mr. Gladstone stopped speaking at once and simply said, 'Yes, dear,' and then continued his discourse in a more modulated voice, but the tie still remained hanging down."

Mr. Forbes' pictures of King Edward and Queen Alexandra are, of course, familiar to Canadians who have been in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa.

"King Edward," said Mr. Forbes, was a King without effort. He was kindness itself with regard to sittings, and scarcely a day passed while I was at work on the portraits that some act of courtesy did not testify as to his Majesty's thoughtfulness. The Queen, too, was exceedingly gracious. She did not readily consent to be painted, but directly she acceded to the petition she seemed interested, and did all in her power to assist me."—Star Weekly.

Buying Band Instruments.

With the ever increasing tide of immigration from all parts of the world the small goods trade, which includes band instruments, stringed instruments, accordions, etc., has profited to a great extent in Canada. The new towns and cities of the West have been filled up wih adventurous spirits. Great Britain being the home of many of them. As every village and hamlet of the old land has some musical organization or other the newcomers emulate conditions that they knew at home, immediately start to organize a band, an orchestra, and, of course, a choir, or choirs, which later often evolve themselves into a choral society.

While we import band instruments from England, France, Germany and Austria, very little comes in from the United States. The leading makers are English and French. We manufacture to some extent here in Canada. Stringed instruments for the most part come from Germany, as do most of the smaller instruments. Several Canadian houses make an exclusive business of band and orchestral instruments and music, and the trade is growing rapidly.

Football Box Score.

The Rev. Father Stanton of Ottawa College favors keeping a record of what the players accomplish in the Rugby football games in which they play, similar to the baseball box score. If a player made a tackle possibly he would be shown with a perfect 1,000 percentage. Also the scoring would show how many times [illegible] received the ball and what he did with it when he got it.

The kicks to the halves and their disposal of the sphere would also be carefully jotted down and averages made up on them. At the end of each story of the game he would have a summary showing the record of each player.

Canada's Water Power.

It is estimated that the available water power in Canada is 17,000,000 horse-power. That developed in 1910 amounted to 1,016,521 horse-power, of which 742,966 horse-power was for electrical energy, 158,051 for the paper and pulp industries, and 115,515 for other industries.

The possession of immense water power in the Province of Quebec, in which industrial activity was greatest, makes still greater development in manufacturing in that province probable in the near future.

SOME FEATURES OF THE GREAT PANAMA CANAL

The construction of the Panama canal is going to cost the United States $400,000,000—which is just the sum it cost Russia to build her trans-Siberian railway, says a special writer in the London Daily Mail.

Some miles of the canal track is navigable, and the great Gatun Lake, with an area of 161 square miles, is gradually coming into existence. Lock building is proceeding apace. By September of next year Colonel Goethals hopes to take a boat through from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

That does not mean the canal will be finished before the appointed time. Much will remain to be done, including dredging to a considerable extent, before the world's commerce will be invited to pay its money and take the short cut.

MUCH OF MAN'S WORK HIDDEN

People comfortably seated in deck chairs on fine ships sailing over the smooth waters of the island-studded lakes and between the rock-breasted cuts, and lifted by three locks to a stretch of over thirty miles above level and lowered again through three locks, will be legitimately enthusiastic. But most of the hard work, the results of twentieth-century engineering, the triumph of puny man over Nature—and many a time Nature has deliberately resented this carving through the spine of the hills, and has smashed the work of months—will be hidden beneath placid water.

The difference between this canal and other canals of less importance on rivers where the drop is all in one direction is that the vessels will be lifted into a hilly country, where there are no navigable streams and then lowered on the other side of the range. This is being accomplished by impounding the waters of the Chagres River and its tributaries. The Chagres is a turbulent river born in the unexplored region of South-east Panama, and drains an area of some thirteen hundred square miles.

CAPTURE OF A RIVER

This river is being captured. Its way to the Atlantic is stopped by the Gatun Dam and it is filling the Gatun Valley. When the Americans have imprisoned as much water as they require, at an elevation of 85 feet above sea level, Gatun Lake will cover 164 square miles.

Gatun Dam—with three descending locks toward the Atlantic, together with the "spillway" into the tail of the Chagres—is built right across the valley, a mile and a half, and is buttressed at either end by the hills. The immensity of the dam, half a mile wide at its base and 100 feet wide at its crest, does not strike one at first, the slope of the bank away from the lake is so gradual. Rock, sand and clay steam-shovelled from excavations and dredged from pits, form the bank.

Now, to reach Gatun Lake from the Atlantic, or to descend from it to the Atlantic, there are three flights of double locks, each 1,000 feet long, so that vessels can be lowered while others are being raised; indeed, to economize water a full lock can transfer much of its supply into the basin of its neighbor. The width of each lock is 110 feet. Beyond the gates of the lower lock and the upper lock are long walls to which ships can moor while waiting their turn to pass through.

IMMENSE STEEL GATES.

All the locks, which are in the breast of the dam, are of concrete, and all the manufacture has been carried on in one of the basins of the locks. A tremendous distance had to be sunk in the soil to reach a foundation of rock. Each lock will at the lowest point have a draught of 40 feet sea water. The steel gates are colossal; you could drive a motor car on the top. They are 7 feet thick, 65 feet long, and from 47 to 82 feet high. In weight they vary from 300 to 600 tons. The 92 leaves needed for the entire canal will weigh 57,000 tons.

PARTLY AIR-TIGHT

At the upper end of each lock the gates are double, as a guard against accident. The lower half of each gate is composed of air-tight compartments, so that in swinging it will partly float and relieve some of the pressure on the machinery working it. In the middle of each lock are supplementary lock gates. Generally it will be vessels of 600 feet or less which will pass through, and it would be a waste to fill a thousand-feet length of lock. The side walls are 50 feet through at the base, rise perpendicular on the water face, and are 8 feet wide at the top.

WILL BE TOWED ALONG.

Once a vessel approaches a lock it will cease to use its own steam, but will be towed through by electric locomotives running on cog rails on the top of the lock walls. Four engines will take charge of each ship. It is reckoned it will take about fifteen minutes to fill a lock, and about three hours will be occupied to pass through the six locks—the three at Gatun I am describing, and the three locks on the Pacific side. To go from ocean to ocean will probably take from 10 to 12 hours.

ALD. BULLER WOULD CHARGE THE REPAIRS TO MR. CHIPMAN

Troubles of City From the Romaine Street Sewer Are Attributed to Faulty Construction—City Engineer Makes His Report.

The report of the City Engineer on the Romaine street sewer and the pumping station caused some interesting discussion last night. In part his report read that last spring the sewer was obstructed by sand, and that there were leaks in four manholes. Sand could not be removed owing to the sinking of the manhole at Aylmer street, and open joints. Pipes were found with open joints letting in sand. It was found necessary to construct three new hole. Rods and ropes with chains were dragged through, and all pipes found open laid in cement and leaks in manholes stopped. The sand was not entirely removed, but a fair run of water is now passing through. It is now found only necessary to operate the pumping station for an hour or two a day. It would be advisable next season to remove the mainder of the sand and also some 30 feet of jointed roads which were left in the sewer and could not be removed. All repairs have been done in a substantial manner, and Mr. Hay expressed confidence that the parts repaired will not give further trouble.

To Ald. Buller, the City Engineer considered the trouble with Romaine street sewer had been caused by faulty construction; continuous pumping forced out the caskers, thus opening the pipe joints, letting in sand. The Aylmer street manhole sank for want of a substantial base.

Ald. Johnston thought it queer that Engineer Chipman could not have laid the sewer as substantially as it had been repaired.

Ald Buller said that the Aylmer street manhole had been badly constructed. Sand taken out of the sewer excavation had been mixed with the cement used in the building of this manhole. Such sand is too fine and has no binding qualities.

According to Ald. Buller, the experts sent here by Mr. Chipman to supervise the work were college men taking advantage of their holidays to gain experience in sewer construction.

To Ald. Johnston, Ald. Buller replied that in his opinion the poor construction of Romaine street street sewer was due to carelessness. Mr. Chipman may be conversant with sewer work himself, but the men he sent us knew very little about it. It had been distinctly understood in this connection, that Mr. Chipman wanted no interference on the city's part, and that he was to be held responsible for laying the Romaine street sewer. Last spring, however, Mr. Chipman tried to shoulder the responsibility for the sinking of the Alymer street manhole on the City Engineer and Street Commissioner, when his own man was at fault in leaving the work in an unfinished condition. Then Mr. Pardoe, Mr. Chipman's man, had accused the city foreman, Mr. Neary, of breaking a pipe when putting in the protective sheeting. Finally, however, Mr. Pardoe admitted that he was to blame himself. Ald. Buller regretted the unfairness of Mr. Chipman in saddling local men with his own responsibilities, and offered that Mr. Chipman should be compelled to pay the cost incurred by this city in repairing the faulty construction of Romaine street sewer.

The contention of Ald Buller is that two men should be employed to give attention to flushing out of pipe and other necessary work.

ANGLICANS AND CHURCH UNION

An Appeal on Behalf of Christian Unity

A movement that may result in the Church of England taking up the question of Church union is under way in Canada. Thirty prominent members of the Anglican communion have attached their signatures to an "appeal on behalf of Christian unity" and have forwarded it to every Anglican clergyman in Canada with the request that if they approve the principles and the practical propositions set forth they sign and return it to Rev. A. P. Shatford of Montreal, Acting Secretary of the movement.

Among the signatures are those of Rev. Dr. Symonds, Archdeacon Warren and Canon Marsh.

FATHER OF REV. DR. MARSH DEAD

Word was received in the city this afternoon of the death, this morning of the father of Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, at the advanced age of 93 years. Further reference will be made in another issue.

THEATRICAL

"ELIJAH"

The large and cultured audience that witnessed the powerful scenic opera "Elijah," Mendelssohn's immortal composition, at the Grand Opera House last night, were deeply impressed and greatly delighted with the excellence and vastness of the great religious presentation.

One particularly enjoyable feature adding much to the audience's capacity for appreciating the play was its entire rendering in English. The most inexperienced follower of Grand Opera was enabled to trace the evolution of the characters and the story, without one bit of difficulty.

The drama received a most enthusiastic reception. The gorgeous scale on which it is planned, the rugged Oriental scenery, the rich and accurate costuming, and above all the wonderful electrical effects combined to make the presentation truly impressive and rare.

There are over one hundred voices in the company, every one splendidly trained. The cast of characters is exceedingly strong, and contains some exceptionally good lyric and dramatic vocalists.

The production is in three acts, each one elaborately staged. The first scene in Act I, representing a plain of Gilead, was one of the most striking and effective of the entire play.

The raising of the widow's son at Zarepath, in the third scene of Act I, was also splendidly depicted.

In order that the continuity of the musical accompaniments might be preserved, no encores were allowed. The applause, however, could not be limited and was freely awarded at the conclusion of some particularly sublime passage.

The concluding act, in which the prophet Elijah is represented disappearing in a chariot of fire elicited unstinted applause.

The thirty piece symphony orchestra provided the most acceptable and harmonious music, their playing alone, being of that high order to warrant a capacity house.

The new drop curtain brought forth many exclamations of admiration as the work was revealed when the asbestos.

MISS ALICE LLOYD

The Celebrated English Singing Comedienne

Alice Lloyd, whose fame as a singing comedienne has made her name almost a household word on both sides the Atlantic as well as the only box-office rival of Harry Lauder among the many importations from the London music halls, will make her appearance at the Grand next Monday, Nov. 11th., in the kind of role in which she made her greatest success in London and the British provinces.

For "Little Miss Fix-It," a merry comedy with music, Werba and Luescher seem to have provided a production that rivals their famous presentations of "The Spring Maid" and "The Rose Maid." Miss Lloyd, as a charming star, has a part calling for the same sort of mischievous comedy that made her so great a favorite in the big Christmas pantomimes of England. She has played Cinderella eight times in various parts of England, and played the important title role in the well-remembered productions of "Little Red Riding Hood" "Goody Two Shoes" and other famous dramatizations of fairy lore.

During the action of the play, Miss Lloyd will sing all her latest songs. She will also take part in the sensational society dance craze, "The Texas Tommy." 1d

British Battleships Now on Their Way to the Far East.

Terrible Scenes Are Reported---Turks Glad to be Taken Prisoners.

Canadian Press.

Malta, Nov. 9—The British battleships, Hibernia, Britiania, Commonwealth and Dominion, as well as the British cruiser Black Prince, left here to-day for the far east. They sailed within two hours of the receipt of orders from the British Admiralty.

SERVIA DISREGARDS

London, Nov. 9—The correspondent of the Times at Uskup, wires that several columns operating in Monastir and Ochirda districts have Durazzo as their objective. This advance by Servia, indicates her determination to disregard Austria's warning, and that it will accentuate the difficulties between Dreibund and Triple entente.

TURKISH ARMY DEMORALIZED

London, Nov. 9—Despatches received here and credited to the correspondent of the Vienne Reichspost, describes the Turkish army as utterly demoralized. Whole detachments slink along unarmed, tattered and hungry, and glad to be taken prisoners so that they may hope for a meal. The whole country, at the scene of fighting is strewn with abandoned guns, war material and military debris.

LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES

Uskop, Turkey, Nov. 9—The battle which resulted in the capture of the Turkish city of Prilip (or Perlepe) by the Servian troops, was one of the most severe that has been fought on this side of the Balkan peninsula. Servians lost 2500 killed and wounded, while the Turks suffered six thousand casualties. The battlefield is still covered with corpses.

BULGARIANS AT ADRIANOPLE

Sofia, Nov. 9— The Bulgarian army besieging Adrianople to-day, captured Kartaltepi and Papaztepe. Two of the outer line of forts defending the city were taken after a desperate artillery duel between the besiegers and defenders. Bulgarian troops suffered a large number of casualties.

Sofia, Nov. 9.—News of the retreat of the Turkish army on Constantinople is expected hourly.

The feeling in the Bulgarian headquarters favors the Bulgarian army marching into Constantinople accompanied by the Servian forces operating in Thrace and a Greek force, which will land in the Gulf of Xeros, near the Dardanelles.

The Servian and Greek crown princes probably will be present and the cross will be carried in triumph into the mosque of St. Sophia.

Premier Gutchkoff in a newspaper interview says the allies have agreed in a general way on the settlement of territorial questions, but their policy, the liberation of Macedonia, has not been decided in all its details. Common action between the states, he declares, will not cease with the war, and Europe may count upon seeing a most cordial union between the states. The Premier says he anticipates no unfriendly action from Roumania. He insists that the allies will submit to no coercion from the powers but on the contrary would rather fight to the bitter end.

Questioned with reference to the future status of Constantinople and Salonika, M. Gutchkoff replied that it was impossible to answer until the war had ended. He added that the question of referring territorial and other matters to a European conference must be decided later.

In conclusion, he said that the Balkan states were resolved to follow an equally friendly policy towards both Austria and Russia.

Occupation of Saloniki.

London, Nov. 9.—An uncensored despatch received by The Daily Chronicle from Constantinople says:

"Friday: Salonika has been occupied by the Greek troops. Their approach was attended by awful scenes Before the Greeks entered the town the elements of disorder broke loose and a terrible massacre of the non-Moslem population took place. Shooting and looting were general. When the Greeks took possession they imprisoned all the Turkish officials. The Turks in captivity in Saloniki number 27,000."

Army Now Rabble.

Constantinople, Nov. 9.—(By way of Kustendje, Roumania.)—Stories of the distress which prevails among the Turkish troops, after the panic seized upon various bodies of the men and, what is worse, tales of pillage, rapine and massacre, continue to come in from various points. It is reported that Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, has decided to send to their homes several thousand of his men who have shown the white feather on the field of battle, but logic would suggest that they deserved more serious punishment.

Reports of the excesses of the fleeing Turkish troops in the town of Silivri, a port on the Sea of Marmora, southwest of the Tchatalja line, apparently are authentic. Many of the inhabitants are said to have been massacred, and the town almost completely burned. The population of Silivri was mostly Greek.

Such stories as these do not tend to reassure the minds of the dwellers in Constantinople, where a sufficiently panicky feeling already prevails.

Pitiful scenes continued to be witnessed daily with the arrival of trainloads of wounded from the front. It is a significant fact that most of the men are slightly injured, which would indicate that the badly wounded have small chance of being picked up. Almost without exception the wounded are on the verge of collapse from exhaustion. Many have been without attention for days, and a majority of them without food or water for twenty-four hours.

The hospitals already are overcrowded and symptoms resembling cholera have appeared. Those suspected of having the disease are isolated in a special shed.

If the dreaded scourge should come to Constantinople, where already there is so much distress and suffering among the wounded and the refugees, the consequences are too horrible to contemplate.

It is impossible, even roughly to estimate the number of refugees in the capital. There are fresh arrivals in each day, and every mosque in Stamboul and the suburbs is crowded. Families from various villages and districts are striving as much as possible to keep together. All the refugees seem resigned to their fate and anxious to go to Asia Minor, where they say the Government has promised to give them land.

Their long string of carts with their children and household effects in them, give the appearance of an exodus of the Turkish race from Europe.

Steamer Stalled In Ice.

Dawson, Alaska, Nov. 9—The steamer Vidette, which left here four days ago with 100 passengers for White Horse, ran into heavy ice on Indian River and is now stalled.

The passengers, including ten women, started back over shore ice twenty-eight miles.

Among the passengers is Dr. Alfred Thompson, M.P., who was racing to reach Ottawa in time for the opening of Parliament.

Wordless Play Permitted.

London, Nov. 9.—The Lord Chamberlain yesterday withdrew the prohibition of the censor of plays to the production of Max Reinhardt's wordless play, "A Venetian Night," and granted a license for it.

BOY NEED NOT SALUTE THE FLAG

Expelled Youth Can Return to Cedar Grove School

He Says He Acted Under His Father's Instructions

Newark, N.J., Nov. 9.—J. B. Betts, assistant state commissioner of education, upheld yesterday the refusal of Leofric Temple, formerly a pupil at Cedar Grave public school, to swear allegiance to the American flag and ordered that young Temple be received back in the school from which he was recently expelled.

Young Temple said he was acting under his father's instructions in refusing to swear allegiance to the flag. The boy's father, Frederick Temple, is a resident of St. John, N.B., and for some years was manager of an insurance company in Montreal. He was at the same time an officer in the artillery branch of the Canadian militia.

"The salute to the flag and the pledge at the school assemblies are not mandatory by law," the assistant commissioner said, "therefore, the boy breaks no law. Of course, the board of education of Cedar Grove has the right to pass rules for its schools. But such rules must not infringe upon anyone's rights. The boy's citizenship must follow his parents until he is of age to choose for himself.

"It is within the boy's rights to refuse to pledge allegiance to any other flag or Government but his own."

ELOPED WITH SAME GIRL

Young Married Chaffeur in Trouble Again

Canadian Press.

North Bay, Nov. 9.—Fred Haggerty, a young Ottawa chauffeur and a married man, who was acquitted by a jury for enticing a North Bay girl under twenty years of age, from terday arrested at a farm house 20 miles from here with the same girl, with whom he had eloped. He was committed for trial on a similar charge.

FORGET'S BANK IS ABSORBED

Home Bank Takes Over the Internationale

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Another bank merger was practically completed yesterday, when the Home Bank of Canada, head office Toronto, absorbed the Internationale Bank of Canada, head office Montreal. According to the arrangements made, the Internationale Bank will be taken over by the Toronto institution. The Home Bank will take over all branches, assets, liabilities, etc., of the Internationale Bank.

The capital of the Internationale Bank will be reduced from ten million dollars to one million three hundred thousand dollars. The French shareholders will not be called upon to pay any further levy, and will receive back 60 per cent. of what they paid in. This merger was largely brought about through the Canada Securities Corporation.

The acquisition by the Home Bank of Canada of the assets and property of the Internationale Bank of Canada is a logical business arrangement, as the Home Bank has no branches outside the English-speaking provinces, and it is known that the management has been anxious to extend its branches eastward as well as in the west. There are therefore no branches of the Internationale Bank opened at any points where there are already branches of the Home Bank, and the process of amalgamation may be accomplished without the Home Bank resigning any established office where it has been carrying on a banking business with the Internationale Bank.

The La Banque Internationale de Canada, organized Oct. 17, 1911, by Sir Rodolphe Forget and other Montreal capitalists, with the money and financial interests of Paris, France, chiefly concerned, opened at Montreal with $10,000,000 of authorized capital. Of this $7,675,000 was taken up in France and $2,325,000 in Canada, and $1,000,000 of this paid up.

The present Home Bank of Canada has been a financial institution in Toronto since 1854. From that time until 1872 it was known as the Toronto Savings Bank, and from 1872 to 1902 it was the Home Savings & Loan Co. Two years ago the name of the institution was changed to that of the Home Bank of Canada.

At the present time the Home Bank has thirty-seven branches, seven of which are in Toronto.

GETTING JURY FOR GUNMEN

Five of the Twelve Men Have Been Chosen

New York, Nov. 9.—Five of the twelve jurors for the trial of the four "gunmen" accused of the actual killing of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, had been [illegible] ing day's [illegible] journed last evening.

The four prisoners, "Dago Frank," "Whitey" Lewis, "Lefty Louis," and "Gyp the Blood," were summoned before Justice Goff in extraordinary term of the Supreme Court in the middle of the afternoon when another murder case in which the justice had been sitting was concluded. Dressed faultlessly, clean shaven and holding their heads high, they walked briskly to their places without heeding the spectators who crowded the courtroom and stared at them.

Suffragettes Were Ejected.

London, Nov. 9.—A number of suffragettes last night made a demonstration in order to prevent John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, making a speech at Battersea. The police were called in, however, and ejected a dozen of the women, and the meeting proceeded.

MARRIAGE OF DEFECTIVES

Ontario Government Will be Asked to Prohibit Such

CRUSADE PLANNED

Establish Homes And Take Census of the Insane

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Following an exhaustive discussion of the feeble-minded as a human and economic problem in Ontario, the conference of the municipalities of the province, which was opened by Mayor Hocken in the council chamber at the City Hall yesterday morning decided in a series of resolutions passed by the unanimous vote of the delegates to ask the Government for the amendment of the Marriage Act to prevent the marriage of any mental defective, that the Provincial Government be asked to build and establish institutions adequate for the training and care of the feeble-minded until they attain their majority, the individual cases to be supported in such institutions by the municipalities from which they come, that a comprehensive census of the feeble-minded in the province be taken. A strong and representative executive was chosen to press for the realization of these objects and to remain in existence to keep in touch with all problems which may hereafter arise from the question of dealing with this class.

Nearly two hundred delegates were registered from more than a score of municipalities, representing the municipal governing bodies, the school boards and the medical profession and charities executives from end to end of the province.

The original proposal was to build institutions for the feeble-minded during that period while they may profit by special educative courses provided for the municipalities in groups, as is done in Philadelphia. This resolution was amended to provide for the care of these subjects in institutions to be built and operated by the province, but supported on a pro rata of inmates by the various municipalities.

Addresses were delivered in the morning by Dr. Helen MacMurchy and Juvenile Court Commissioner Starr of Toronto, President Scott of the Children's Aid Society at Ottawa, Miss Brooking, superintendent of the Alexandra Industrial School for Girls and J. P. Downey, superintendent of the Hospital for the Feeble-Minded at Orillia.

A luncheon was given by the mayor and corporation at noon, and the business of the conference resumed at two o'clock, When Dr. C. J. Hodgetts, chief medical adviser to the Conservation Commission of Canada, delivered an address, in which he pointed out the crying need for the prevention of the marriage of those who could be shown to be feeble-minded. It was then moved by Dr. Hodgetts, seconded by Supt. Scott: "That in the opinion of this conference the issuing of marriage licenses should be confined to a municipal officer, for instance, the municipal clerk. That in the opinion of this conference it is desirable that the Marriage Act should be amended in such a manner as will prevent the marriage of a mental defective. That in the opinion of the permanent organization of this conference the permanent executive be instructed to press on the Government the desirability of introducing such legislation."

It was moved by Ald. Perney of Ottawa and seconded by Ald. Dr. Davey of Hamilton: "That the Legislature be memorialized to provide institutions for the care of the feeble-minded in Ontario, and that municipalities of the province be required to pay for the maintenance of their wards up to the age of 21 years if necessary, after which, if unable to take care of themselves, they shall become wards of the Government."

A permanent executive was then appointed with instructions to move for the carrying out of the propaganda outlined in the foregoing resolutions and to urge for the taking of a census of the feeble-minded in the province.

Bail was fixed at $4,000, the accused on his own recognizance of $2,000, and two sureties of $1,000 each.

Bonar Law Points Moral of the Balkan War

London, Nov. 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The hopes of Conservative Unionists that Bonar Law would somewhat amend his tariff program in his speech at Liverpool in the heart of free trade Lancashire have been severely shattered. A pronouncement was also looked for supporting the policy of conscription as recently voiced by "Bobs."

In point of fact, he said nothing particularly new except promising that the next Unionist Government would introduce a redistribution bill giving Ireland its proper proportion of members in the Imperial Parliament. The leader of the Opposition referred at length to the Balkan situation and declared: "The lesson for England of the rapid and unexpected display of military force and efficiency on the part of the Balkan states is, in my opinion, one of the most memorable events in history and until peace is secured the atmosphere is charged with electricity. No man can foretell when or where the thunderbolt might fall.

"I am not by nature an alarmist. I believe that all great powers of Europe desire peace, but this war has brought to the front again questions which affect vitally the national interests and aspirations not of the day, but cherished for centuries of some of the great powers, such a condition of things is dangerous.

"The war carries a lesson and serious lesson for us. On the one side there was courage and military efficiency, and on the other, courage no less great without military efficiency, and you have seen the result. We, as a nation, have courage in plenty, but compared with the great European powers, we have not, and no one can pretend that we have, military efficiency." (Hear, hear.)

"For us, therefore, our navy is not only our first line of defence, it is our only defence. (Hear, hear.) Is it adequate to the time?" (Cries of "No.")

The present First Lord of the Admiralty has shown that he understands the position of this question, he concluded.

Immigration Association of Minnesota is Formed

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 9.—An organisation, the prime object of which will be to encourage immigration to Minnesota and discourage emigration, especially to Canada, was launched in Minneapolis yesterday when representative business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis formed the nucleus of the Immigration Association of Minnesota. Heretofore the city and state have worked separately for the same purpose that the association will work for.

A statement sent out by Louis Hill of the Great Northern declared that during the last five months 75,000 people have emigrated to Canada from the United States, taking with them $110,000,000 worth of household goods and machinery.

FOUR MILLIONS LAPPED OFF CANADA'S LIABILITIES

National Debt Has Been Reduced to the Extent of $4,022,098.20.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—The total gross debt of the Dominion at the present time is $489,447,695.13, according to returns furnished the Department of Finance up till Oct. 31. On Oct. 31, 1911, the debt stood at $478,099,290.93. Assets, however, including sinking funds, province accounts, miscellaneous and banking accounts represent up till Oct. 31 a total of $179,961,407.09, as against $159,505,366.73, which shows that during the past year the national debt has been reduced to the extent of $4,022,098.29.

Last year the assets were slightly greater and the decrease of the total debt amounted to $5,344,844.59.

The total revenue up till Oct. 31, 1912, was $96,137,597.50, while the expenditure on account of consolidated fund was $51,275,393.

The revenue for the same period last year amounted to only $76,291,178.

Expenditure on capital account for the year up till Oct. 31, 1912, including public works, railways and canals, railway subsidies, totaled $15,064,978, as against $14,889,839.43 for the corresponding period last year.

The statement, as can be seen from the above figures, shows an unprecedented increase in revenue for the year, also a considerable increase in expenditures.

Got Hockin's Photograph.

Indianapolis, Nov. 9.—"I enclose a photograph which I took from the gallery." That was the way Edward Smythe, secretary of an Ironworkers' Union at Peoria, Ill., sent to the union's international headquarters at Indianapolis, a photograph of Herbert S. Hockin, member of the executive board, which had been taken from the rogue's gallery in the police department, according to letters produced by the Government at the trial of the accused "dynamite conspirators" yesterday.

John J. McNamara's reply to Smythe as read was: "That was not the way to send that photograph. Hereafter when you find photographs of members of the executive board in the rogue's gallery put them in a separate envelope and mark them 'personal.' President Ryan was present when your letter came, and I told him he had a fine executive board."

Hocken, accused by Ortie E. McManigal, was the director of the "flying squad of dynamiters," and now successor to McNamara, was said by the Government to have been photographed in Detroit, where he formerly lived.

Notice of the application is made by the Bicknell-Bain firm of the city of Toronto.

Hon. Dr. Pyne Opens School.

Belleville, Nov. 9.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, was in the city yesterday and formally opened two fine and commodious public schools erected in this city this year. The schools were by the Minister named Alexandra and Victoria. Flag-raising exercises were also conducted in connection with the exercises.

Citizens by the hundreds attended the proceedings, which were most interesting. These schools are up to date in every respect, being among the finest in the province. Many prominent persons were at the function which took place in the morning and afternoon. At noon the Minister was entertained at Hotel Quinte by the Board of Education.

SWINGS AS ON PIVOT

Royal George Still in Precarious Condition

Quebec, Nov. 9.—The Royal George changed her position through the force of the wind, from west, northwest to northeast, which shows that the vessel is caught amidships, and is swinging on a kind of pivot. She made a good deal of water yesterday. No. 2 hold being full and No. 1 hold and stokehold leaking. Pumps were being placed in No. 2 hold, and will start work to-day. At 6 p.m., when it is pumped out, an attempt will be made to pull the steamer off.

A startling report was circulated last night that the Royal Georges bottom had suffered more damage, and that George Davie, who had come ashore, had been called back aboard, but the report was not confirmed.

All the passengers from the Royal George are now safe in port.

The ferry Pilot and the C.P.R. tug Cruiser brought up about 300 each, including several of the ship's stewards and part of the baggage. The balance of the baggage will come up this morning.

No hardships were endured by passengers, and there was no difficulty transferring them from the ship to the tenders.

Dissatisfied Couples.

London, Ont., Nov. 9.—In the nineteen months that Magistrate Judd has been on the bench he has had three hundred couples up before him dissatisfied with their marital relations, and to many of them he has granted separation. The cause of most of the trouble is laid to liquor, the husbands neglecting their wives and spending their wages in drink.

Acute Dyspepsia

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep, and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE ROYAL GEORGE WRECK

The wreck of the Royal George in the St. Lawrence river, ten miles below Quebec, is a most regrettable affair. The insurance on the hull and machinery was $750,000, while the vessel was worth a million. But the monetary loss to the Canadian Northern Railway is not to be counted in some respects, with the serious damage done to the cause of lower insurance rates for the St. Lawrence route. The underwriters at Lloyds have time and again based a refusal to lower the rates on the plea that the frequent fogs, and narrow and shallow channel, make risk too constant for any recession in rates. It was argued that there had been few wrecks there, but the underwriters have said that no matter how much Canada spends on the route, whether the amount be $5,000,000 or $500,000,000, the rates will be the same, as they are enforced by physical conditions over which man has no control.

But the Dominion Government was anxious to remove the discrimination against the route, as compared with New York, and failing to get satisfaction at London, offered to subsidise any Canadian shipping body or marine association that would undercut Lloyds rates. The negotiations seemed to be heading for success, and now comes the wreck of one of the largest and finest vessels on the route to knock the proposition flat again. There was a fog, and the vessel traveled at full speed. Surely in the St. Lawrence this was dangerous, a reckless defiance of the ordinary rules of precaution. The wreck occurred in a part of the river ordinarily supposed to be quite safe. If it had occurred between Quebec and Montreal, there would not have been much cause for wonder. However, the accident has happened, fortunately without loss of life so far and the best must be made of it. But it is certainly hard luck that the old world marine underwriting association should have placed in their hands by this wreck a very apt illustration of what they say as to the ever present dangers of the St. Lawrence route.

WILSON'S VICTORY

There does not seem to be much excitement over the Wilson victory, so far as Canada is concerned. It was expected by most people well in touch with the political situation in the United States that the Democrats would have a big victory over the Republicans and Progressives, for the old adage of a house divided not being able to stand, was borne in mind. It is likely, now that Woodrow Wilson will be in a position to carry into effect his policies without hindrance from either House, that there will be immediate reductions in the tariff. Especially as against Canada will the tariff be affected. Canada will probably get for nothing some of the principal advantages that the reciprocity agreement was to have gained for us, and without any quid pro quo from Canada. If as a matter of fact, the United States is nearing the day when it must have Canadian wheat to help support its population as some of the pact-pushers were wont to say, Woodrow Wilson will be able to see that the duty is lowered sufficiently to admit Canadian wheat. There will not be a duty of 25 cents a bushel on it any longer. Likewise with other natural products, if the people of the United States must have Canadian agricultural stuff to keep from starving. But there is no doubt that the United States tariff is much too high, that it could be lowered in most cases with positive benefit to the country. There is no more sense in erecting a tariff wall as high as Haman's gallows as there is in excluding goods needed by the people and not produced at home. It is quite true that if the tariff is excessively high, manufacturers at home will take advantage of the fact to raise the price of their products to a level only sufficient to keep out the foreign stuff. They abuse the protective principle. Sir John Macdonald put the protective principle into force with the provision that the application was only for infant industry. The moderate scale of protection which Canada enjoys is, on the whole, well suited for the encouragement of home industry, without the creation of piratical trade combinations at home. But if Woodrow Wilson thinks that if he reduces the high United States tariff as applied to Canada he can get a reduction of 10 per cent. from the Canadian moderate tariff, he is much mistaken. It is the Democratic turn to do the giving.

BOURASSA'S CHANCE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said that the Liberals should not put up a candidate in Hochelaga, to oppose the return of Hon. Louis Coderre as a Cabinet Minister in the Borden administration. So it may be taken for granted that the field will be left open for Mr. Bourassa to step in. This was very polite of the Liberals, indeed, but it is questionable if even Mr. Bourassa wants to take advantage of the opening. In deciding to let Mr. Bourassa have the honor and glory of being a candidate, Sir Wilfrid doubtless figured that he could kill two birds with one stone. Either he would induce Friend Bourassa to take up the fight, or make Mr. Bourassa show the white feather. He knew that in any event Hon. Mr. Coderre would be re-elected, and he thought that if Mr. Bourassa could be induced to become a sacrifice, his object in trying to oppose the Government with the most effective material would be achieved, while the Nationalists would be forced into some alliance with the Liberals. However, it seems that Mr. Bourassa is disposed to confine his disapproval of the Borden Government and its naval policy to a running fire in his newspaper, "Le Devoir." He calls Mr. Coderre a sneak, says that he licked the boots of the Borden ministers. That sort of tactics will not do much harm to the new minister, or anyone else besides Mr. Bourassa. The Nationalist leader has utterly failed in exerting influence on the Government's course, and is bitterly disappointed. He had better go back to his old time friends, the Liberals, since they have a naval policy even more suited to his views than have the Conservatives. The Examiner would not object at all to giving Bourassa a warm welcome, if we are any judge of the condition of affairs. It wants to see the Liberals back in power and who could help better than Mr. Bourassa?

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

One Good Turn Deserves Another.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—"One good turn deserves another." Detective Jarvis did not forget this old proverb in the police court yesterday morning when the magistrate sentenced John Hynes, a painter to seven days in jail for selling a ladder belonging to Wm. Smith. The officer stepped forward and told the magistrate that Hynes had once helped him when he was attacked by four men at the market. The colonel allowed the painter to go on condition he pay back twice the sum he received for the ladder.

NAPANEE, Nov. 8.—One hundred and eighty white and 1063 colored cheese boarded; white sold at 12 cents and colored at 12⅜ cents.

CORNWALL, Nov. 8.—The offerings on the Cornwall Cheese Board this afternoon were 65 white and 1024 colored. The white sold at 12⅛ cents and the colored at 12⅜ cents.

IROQUOIS, Nov. 8.—The regular meeting of the Iroquois Cheese Board was held here today, but the number of cheese registered was small, two hundred colored being boarded and all sold at 12⅛ cents.

VANKLEEK HILL, Nov. 8.—There were 1392 boxes white and 255 boxes colored cheese boarded on Vankleek Hill Cheese Board here today. Price of white was 12⅛ cents and 12 3-16 cents, and at above prices all white was sold on board except 850 boxes. Price offered for colored was 12⅛ cents, and all sold on board at that price; five buyers present.

Zavitz Provincial Forester.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Prof. Zavitz of the reforestation station in Norfolk County and lecturer at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, has been appointed provincial forester by the Government. This appointment in all likelihood means the establishment of a forestry branch in connection with the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines with Prof. Zavitz as its head.

Prof. Zavitz is probably without a peer as an expert in forestation and conservation. He will take over all questions relating to forestry when he undertakes his new position. The greater part of his work will be in the wooded lands of New Ontario. He will not leave his present position until a man is secured to replace him.

More Nets Seized.

Belleville, Nov. 9.—Yesterday the Provincial Government patrol boat Navarch arrived here having on board a thousand yards of nets which were found in the Bay of Quinte near Glen Island. These nets are of a small mesh variety, the use of which is strictly contrary to law. No young bass, pickerel or other fish have a chance to escape should they be caught in the net.

Every effort is being made to stop illegal fishing in these waters.

Mariners Hard to Get.

Kingston, Nov. 9.—The securing of help is giving lake vessels great trouble. The steamer Prince Rupert was held here fifteen hours just because the captain could not get a crew. Captains say they never experienced such hard luck.

To Oppose Coderre.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Arthur Ecrement, ex-M.P., sprang a surprise on the public yesterday by announcing that he would run in Hochelaga as an Independent Liberal.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 By H. K. FLY CO.

Mallory and his Marjorie had tried to kiss the farewell or farewells half a dozen times, but she could not let him go at the gate. She asked the guard to let her through, and her beauty was bribe enough.

Again and again, she and Mallory paused. He wanted to take her back to the taxicab, but she would not be so dismissed. She must spend the last available second with him.

"I'll go as far as the steps of the car," she said. When they were arrived there, two porters, a sleeping car conductor and several smoking saunterers profaned the tryst. So she whispered that she would come aboard, for the corridor would be a quiet lane for the last rites.

And now that he had her actually on the train, Mallory's whole soul revolted against letting her go. The vision of her standing on the platform sad-eyed and lorn, while the train swept him off into space was unendurable. He shut his eyes against it, but it glowed inside the lids.

And then temptation whispered him its old "Why not?" While it was working in his soul like a fermenting yeast, he was saying:

"To think that we should owe all our misfortune to an infernal taxicab's break-down."

Out of the anguish of her loneliness crept one little complaint:

"If you had really wanted me, you'd have had two taxicabs."

"Oh, how can you say that? I had the license bought and the minister waiting."

"He's waiting yet."

"And the ring—there's the ring." He fished it out of his waistcoat pocket and held it before her as a golden amulet.

"A lot of good it does now," said Marjorie. "You won't even wait over till the next train."

"I've told you a thousand times, my love," he protested, desperately, "if I don't catch the transport, I'll be court-martialed. If this train is late, I'm lost. If you really loved me you'd come along with me."

Rev. Walter Temple.

Her very eyes gasped at this astounding proposal.

"Why, Harry Mallory, you know it's impossible."

Like a sort of benevolent Satan, he laid the ground for his abduction: "You'll leave me, then, to spend three years without you—out among those Manila women."

She shook her head in terror at this vision. "It would be too horrible for words to have you marry one of those mahogany sirens."

He held out the apple. "Better come along, then."

"But how can I? We're not married."

He answered airily: "Oh, I'm sure there's a minister on board."

"But it would be too awful to be married with all the passengers gawking. No, I couldn't face it. Good-bye, honey."

She turned away, but he caught her arm: "Don't you love me?"

"To distraction. I'll wait for you, too."

"Three years is a long wait."

"But I'll wait, if you will."

With such devotion he could not tamper. It was too beautiful to risk or endanger or besmirch with any danger of scandal. He gave up his fantastic project and gathered her into his arms, crowded her into his very soul, as he vowed: "I'll wait for you forever and ever and ever."

Her arms swept around his neck, and she gave herself up as an exile from happiness, a prisoner of a far-off love:

"Good-bye, my husband-to-be.

"Good-bye my wife-that-was-to-have-been-and-will-be-maybe."

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

"Good-bye."

"I must go."

"Yes, you must."

"One last kiss."

"One more—one long last kiss."

And there, entwined in each other's arms, with lips wedded and eyelids clinched, they clung together, forgetting everything past, future or present. Love's anguish made them blind, mute and deaf.

They did not hear the conductor crying his "All Aboard!" down the long wall of the train. They did not hear the far-off knell of the bell. They did not hear the porters banging the vestibules shut. They did not feel the floor sliding out with them.

And so the porter found them, engulfed in one embrace, swaying and swaying, and no more aware of the increasing rush of the train than we other passengers on the earth-express are aware of its speed through the ether-routes on its ancient schedule.

The porter stood with his box-step in his hand, and blinked and wondered. And they did not even know they were observed.

CHAPTER IX.

All Aboard!

The starting of the train surprised the ironical decorators in the last stages of their work. Their smiles died out in a sudden shame, as it came over them that the joke had recoiled on their own heads. They had done their best to carry out the time-honored rite of making a newly married couple as miserable as possible—and the newly married couple had failed to do its share.

The two lieutenants glared at each other in mutual contempt. They had studied much at West Point about ambushes, and how to avoid them. Could Mallory have escaped the pit they had digged for him? They looked at their handiwork in disgust. The cosy-corner effect of white ribbons and orange flowers, gracefully masking the concealed rice-trap, had seemed the wittiest thing ever devised. Now it looked the silliest.

GROWING GIRLS AND ALL WOMEN

Should Keep Their Blood Supply Rich, Red and Pure.

On every hand you see women and growing girls in the deadly clutches of anaemia. Slowly but surely a pallor as of death, settles on their cheeks; their eyes grow dull; their appetite fickle; their steps languid. Daily they are being robbed of all vitality and brightness. The trouble, if neglected, becomes more acute until the signs of early consumption become apparent. What women and young girls in this condition need is new, rich, red blood, and there is no other medicine can do the work of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, in making this new, good blood. These Pills make girls and women well, and bring back the charm and brightness of perfect regular health. Here is a bit of proof. Miss Lillie O'Carroll, Norwood, Ont., says:—"About two years ago my health began to fail. I was weak, run down and had no ambition for anything. I had frequent headaches would be completely tired out after the least exertion, and had little or no appetite. A doctor who was giving me medicine finally told me he feared I was going into consumption, which, of course made me very much down-hearted. As the medicine I was taking was not doing me any good I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I shall ever feel grateful that I did so. My story may be summed up in the words 'nine boxes of the Pills fully restored my health,—perhaps saved my life, and I am now as strong and healthy as any girl."

Every anaemic sufferer can obtain equally good results through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tunnel Work Going On.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—The rumor of a cessation of work on the Canadian Northern tunnel was officially denied yesterday.

"So far from the work being shut down, it has never proceeded at a faster pace than at present," declared a prominent official of the C.N.R. to a press representative.

Working from both ends and the middle, a total bore of 2,380 feet has been completed, and with this rate maintained the working crews will meet in September next, and show a clear way from the entrance at the back of Mount Royal to the station site on Dorchester and Lagauchetiere streets.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Mrs. Stuart Finally Saved By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Story Interesting.

Elmo, Mo.—"I think your Vegetable Compound is wonderful for it has helped me. I had four doctors and they said I had female troubles and a tumor and nothing but an operation would help me. I could not sit still long enough to eat, and could sleep hardly any I was in so much misery with pains in my side and back.

"A year ago last spring my doctor gave me up, and he was surprised to see me this spring and to see my condition. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise wherever I go for I know I would not be here today or have our fine baby boy if I had not taken it." —Mrs. SARAH J. STUART, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16, Elmo, Mo.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Cars Crashed; Nine Hurt.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—With the motorman hanging out of the vestibule shrieking a vain warning, a single truck train car whizzed down a five per cent. grade on St. Lawrence boulevard yesterday morning and smashed into another car standing at the corner of Ontario street. Nine people were taken to hospitals, of whom two are seriously injured. A score were badly shaken up. Both cars were crowded, and that many were not killed is regarded by eye-witnesses as nothing short of a miracle.

The severely injured are: Bessie Lamb and Max Bernstein, who are suffering from cuts on the head and injuries. The other people in the wreck were treated in the hospitals from cuts from flying glass and sent home.

While Miss Lamb was lying on the ground some one stole her purse with $10 in it and her engagement ring.

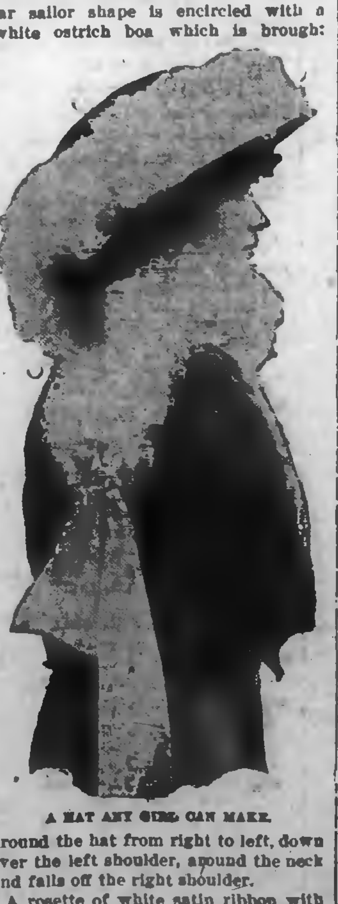
MILLINERY FAD.

The Boa Hat an Innovation of the Season.

New to the millinery world is this hat, which is a hat and neckpiece combined. A black velvet hat in the popular sailor shape is encircled with a white ostrich boa which is brought around the hat from right to left, down over the left shoulder, around the neck and falls off the right shoulder.



A HAT ANY GIRL CAN MAKE.

A rosette of white satin ribbon with long ends adds a dainty finish to this simple novelty. It is an arrangement that any girl can make for herself if she only selects a becoming shape to start the good work.

Miss Holliday—Weren't you in when George called on you on the 'phone and proposed?

Miss Winn—No; but when I did get in I returned his ring.—Chicago News.

COME AND LET US RETURN.

—No. 10—Isaiah 5:7-16.—

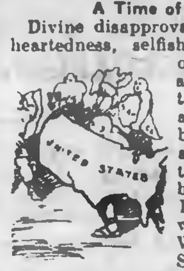
> "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that tarry late into the night, till wine inflame."—Vs. 11.

TO-DAY'S lesson had its primary force in connection with the affairs of natural Israel in the days of the Prophet. But when we remember that Natural Israel types Christendom, we find a value to this lesson very pertinent to our time. "And He looked for judgment (justice) but, behold, oppression; for righteousness (equity) and, behold, a cry "of distress." As to the national cry and the reason for it, see verse eight, which reads: "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth!" Here we perceive that a spirit of selfishness prevailed in Isaiah's day, as it does to-day; as then property was disposed to accumulate in the hands of the more successful, so it is to-day. As then landlordism took possession of vast areas, neglectful of the fact that "the earth hath the Lord given unto the children of men," and not merely to a few of them, so is it to-day.

We are not to overlook the fact that there are many noble, generous souls amongst the rich, as well as amongst the poor; we are merely calling attention to the parallelism between the conditions in Israel and the conditions here, in our day.

A Time of Trouble.

Divine disapproval of human hard-heartedness, selfishness and neglect of poorer brethren, and forgetfulness of the fact that we are all children of one blood and amenable to the laws of the same Creator, brought upon the Israelites the Divine judgments. We believe that the Scriptures with equal clearness tell of a great "time of trouble" now impending over the world, especially over Christendom—a time particularly mentioned by St. James, saying, "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for the misery that shall come upon you."



"Corporations have grasped land."

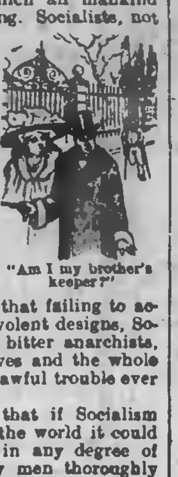
This trouble is mentioned in to-day's study, verse 9: "The Lord of Hosts said in my hearing, Of a truth many houses shall be desolate, even great and fair (houses and families), without inhabitant." If we rightly appreciate what the Scriptures foresaw respecting times not far ahead of us, we will see that many of the great and rich will be in a sad plight in their countryside homes, as will be some of the poorer in the congested cities, for the time of trouble, it is declared, will be upon all.

Music, Revelry, Intoxication.

The text given us for to-day's lesson comes next in our study. In the days of Isaiah's prophecy many of the rich indulged themselves in intoxicating liquors, music, revelry, etc., to their own injury as well as to the neglect of their responsibilities to God. They asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" even as Cain asked this question. By their accumulated wealth they had more than heart could wish, while others were needy.

And how about to-day, is it the same? We answer, Yes, and no. With many it is the same exactly, but with a considerable number of the wealthy of our day it is very different, we are glad to say. Continually we have evidences that some of the wealthy consider their possessions as a trust from the Almighty to be used in His service, to be used for the sake of humanity. But, alas, these are comparatively few. The majority of the rich, like the majority of the poor, are selfish to the core. When the selfish rich and the selfish poor shall join issue in a great struggle, as the Bible clearly declares they will do, then the world will see the time of trouble prophesied—"such as never was since there was a nation"—a time of trouble which Jesus declares will never be again, because following that great trouble, upon the ashes of the present civilization, Messiah will establish the Kingdom of God under the whole heavens, for the blessing of all the families of the earth—the rich, the poor.

Thus Socialism, according to the Bible, will be the ultimate condition of the earth, in which all mankind will receive a blessing. Socialists, not aware of this teaching of God's Word, or if aware of it doubting it, propose to take over in the interest of all mankind the great blessings which are now in hands of the comparatively few. To us their schemes appear dangerous, impractical. To us it appears as the Scriptures indicate, that failing to accomplish their benevolent designs, Socialists will become bitter anarchists, and plunge themselves and the whole world into the most awful trouble ever known.



"Am I my brother's keeper?"

We must admit, that if Socialism were established in the world it could not be maintained in any degree of perfection except by men thoroughly converted to God—men who would feel their responsibility to God and to men. What we need is the conversion of the world, not merely to an outward bowing of the knee but to heart-harmony with God and the principles of righteousness.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOL after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

THE LOCAL OPTION FIGHT

Temperance Enthusiastics in the South Ward Organizing for the Campaign—Rousing Meeting Held Last Night for That Purpose

Anyone who thinks that the South Ward may not vote in favor of Local Option at the approaching contest next January, would have found reason to change their views had they been present at the meeting held last night in Knox church by the Temperance Advocates for organization purposes. About fifty were present including a few from other wards, who were prepared to render assistance. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. Keith, with him on the platform being Rev. Mr. Grobb of All Saints church, Rev. Mr. Clarry of St. James' church, Rev. Mr. Riddiford of Park street Baptist church, and Rev. Mr. Pogue of St. Paul's church. Others on the platform were Mr. H. B. Cowan of the Central Committee, Mr. Shine the chairman of the Ward and Mr. W. S. Robinson.

The principal speaker was Rev. Mr. Pogue, who showed from medical records the disastrous effects that follow indulgence in liquor as shown by the records of the descendants of two families, one of which had been addicted to liquor and the other not. He showed also that drink is an enemy of labor and called on Christian men to arise and banish the traffic from Peterboro as well as from the country at large.

Possibly the strongest speech of the evening was made by Rev. Mr. Grobb, who stated that the opinion against the liquor traffic is becoming so overwhelming it has become an easy matter for a man to take a stand on the temperance side. The liquor traffic has no rights except those given them by the people, and the people who confer these rights have the right to withdraw them whenever they so desire. The question has become one where it may well be inferred that he, who is not against the traffic is for it and therefore men should let it be known where they stand. The traffic causes and increases the crime of to-day. The greatest danger to Local Option is not its active antagonists but those who should join in the fight against it, but do not.

Rev. Mr. Clarry gave various reasons as to why he is opposed to the traffic and was followed by Rev. Mr. Riddiford, who mentioned young men known to some of those who were present, who had died as a result of indulgence in liquor since the last Local Option vote was taken in Peterborough. He charged their deaths against the open bars of the city.

Mr. Cowan stated that in the fight this year the Citizens' Committee that is conducting it were receiving much more general support than was the case three years ago, and that already the various polling sub-divisions are pretty well organized, and that victory for the temperance cause next January is practically assured.

Mr. Robinson gave the workers advice in regard to organisation, dwelling especially on the importance of thoroughness in the work of canvassing.

After the meeting a number of those present handed in their names and were assigned to various polling sub-division committees, which are to meet shortly and proceed with the work or organization. There seems to be no lack of workers on the temperance side in the South Ward.

MURDEROUS ATTACK MADE ON BULGARIAN, WHO WAS ALSO RELIEVED OF ALL HIS MONEY

A murderous attack was made by a fellow Bularian upon one of his countrymen about five o'clock this morning at a point near Grass Hill station, on the Georgian Bay and Seabord Line.

The facts of the case as gleaned by a Warder reporter are to the effect that a party of Bulgarians, who are employed by the Toronto Construction Company, near Grass Hill, concluded they would return to their native country to give battle to the Turks, and accordingly drew the amount of money due them by the company. They were to leave for Toronto to-day, where they would join a contingent going from that city.

Early this morning the victim of the assault arose and went outside the shack. He was quickly followed by his assailant who attacked him with a huge carving knife, splitting open the back of his neck and carving his skull with several desperate plunges of the long knife.

The victim fought hopelessly with his murderous companion, who next drove the knife into his side, but struck one of his ribs or it would have certainly penetrated his heart. After this thrust the victim fell unconscious, while his attempted murderer went through his pockets, robbing him of $135.00

The assailant at once disappeared leaving his man half dead in the rear of the camp, who revived sufficiently after some time to drag himself to the shack covered with blood and in a weakened condition.

Medical aid was at once summoned, and it is expected that the badly mutilated Bulgarian will recover. His assailant is still at large, having made good his escape before any report reached camp of the occurrence. The latter is lame, and it is stated that he was without boots, coat or hat, but it is supposed he will receive clothing from the farmers in the vicinity, who are not likely to be apprized of the assault.

County Constable Thornbury left this morning to arrest the Bulgarian, whom he expects to find in the vicinity.

The constable was well armed, as he knows the class of a man he will be forced to place under arrest. —Lindsay Warder.

Judge Roger went to Cobourg today.

You'll Sleep More Soundly
If You Keep Healthy With Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Insomnia goes with indigestion.

The man or woman with a good appetite, sound digestion, and bowels and kidneys working right, is never troubled much with sleeplessness. It is when the bowels become constipated and the liver and kidneys sluggish that the trouble begins.

Lazy liver and constipated bowels quickly bring on billiousness, indigestion and sick headaches, making a sound, refreshing night's sleep impossible. Or the inactive kidneys allow the blood to becomes loaded with uric acid, which causes rheumatism, with all its sleep-destroying tortures.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, taken regularly, induce sweet and dreamless sleep by keeping all these organs active and regular. The headaches disappear, the digestion becomes good again, the blood is purified and perfect health returns.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been a favorite household remedy in Canada for over half a century, and they are in daily use throughout the world. Being purely vegetable they are safe for young and old. Made by W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., Brockville, Ont., and sold by all dealers at 25c. a box. 9

SOME RUMORS DISCUSSED ON THE STREETS

Many rumors are being heard on the streets these days. Some relate to the municipal elections in January; others to the location of industries in Peterborough and building operations. Invariably when confirmation is sought the answer is "there's nothing in it."

GRAND TRUNK STATION.

This is the case of the reported new station for the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Sandy local Station Agent, is authority for the statement that there is no intention on the part of the company to erect a new station.

Why should they? It is true that the company is preparing plans for improvements to their property about the station. [illegible] sheds are contemplated [illegible] are to be laid.

THAT [illegible]

Another report is [illegible] monster factory which would employ 1,000 hands is coming to Peterborough. Such may be the case but not just at present.

One gentleman who heard a report to this effect called at the Review office this week.

"Did we hear anything?"

"We did and we did not."

"Well," said he, "I'd give $500 if a factory like that came to Peterborough."

It has been said that the Fair Grounds have been purchased, but such is not so.

MUNICIPAL TOPICS.

The rumors affecting the Municipal elections are quite interesting. One is that Ald Graham is retiring and that ex-Ald. Kerneghan and Mr. Wm. Langford will be candidates in the north ward. Another connects Ald. Gillespie's name with a Mayorality contest. Still another suggests that Mr. Geo. Leader who has been more or less active and is conversant with municipal affairs might offer himself as an aldermanic candidate.

The question of Hydro-Electric power for Peterborough is one that is frequently discussed on the streets and there is an unquestionable expression on the part of citizens in favor of Hon. Adam Beck.

A Chicago policeman is quoted as saying: "I believe the spell is brogen." Incorrect. It is "broken."

DOES IT PAY TO BUY IN TORONTO

The other day a man came into a local store to buy a saw. He saw the kind he wanted and asked the price. It was $1.65 the dealer said.

"Good gracious," said the man, "I can get the same saw at a mail order house in Toronto for $1.27.

"That's less than it costs me, but I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order houses," said the dealer.

"All right," said the customer, "You can send it along and charge it to my account."

"Not on your life," replied the dealer, "no charge accounts; you can do no business with the mailing house that way. Fork over the cash."

The customer complied.

"Now two cents for postage and three cents for money order."

"What—!"

"Certainly, you have to send a letter and a money order to the mail order house, you know."

"Now 35 cents for expressage."

"Well, I'll be—," he said, but he paid it, saying "Now hand me the saw and I'll take it home myself and be rid of this foolery."

"Hand it to you? Where do you think you are? You're in this town and I'm in Toronto, and you'll have to wait a week for that saw."

Whereupon the dealer hung up the saw and put the money in the cash drawer.

"That makes $1.67. It has cost you two cents more and taken you a week longer to get it than if you had paid me the price in the first place."—Ex.

$10,000 FOR INCINERATOR

Suggested Location Near the Outfall Sewer

SOME COMPLAINTS

Against Methods Used by Garbage Collecter Downer

The advisability of establishing a garbage incinerating plant in Peterborough, was the principal question dealt with by the City Property Committee last evening. Definite action was taken, when the committee unanimously endorsed a motion for the preparation of a by-law to authorize the issuing of debentures for $10,000 for the acquisition of an incinerating outfit.

Messrs. Reid and Brown of Toronto communicated with the Committee, enclosing a blue print plan and a description of an incinerator, which they would sell for $8,500. They claimed that a plant such as they described was easily operated, and that it offered the only satisfactory solution to the garbage disposal problem. The letter stated that the firm were in receipt of many communications from various Boards of Health inquiring about their incinerators, and offered to send a representative from the firm to furnish the committee with thorough information.

Ald Duncan asked if there would be much odor from an incinerator.

"It would not be as bad as the packing-house," replied Alderman Graham, laughing.

In raising the question of submitting a by-law Chairman Duncan asked if the committee thought it a wise move.

Major Bradburn stated that the sum which is being paid now—$150—as rent for the dumping ground, equalled the interest for one year on $10,000 in debentures, which would be necessary to issue for purchasing an incinerator.

It was decided that the locality of of the outfall sewer in the south end would answer all requirements most satisfactorily, if the incinerator should eventually be purchased. As to the time for submitting the bylaw, no action was taken. The suggestion that it go the people with the other by-laws in January, was not enthusiastically received. It was contended that the placing several by-laws calling for heavy outlay all at one time would not be favorably received by the people.

Mayor Bradburn, however, held that all the by-laws called for absolutely urgent needs, and that if the people turned any of them down it was their own loss, as the Council then had the satisfaction of the knowledge that they had done all in their power.

ASKS REIMBURSEMENT.

Alex Walker communicated with the committee asking for some reimbursement for the expense incurred by him in the construction of Mr. Scriver's garbage boxes. He claims to be $110.00 "in the hole" because of Scriver's backing out of the job.

No action will be taken until some permanent system of garbage collecting has been arranged, which will likely be known after the incinerator by-law is voted upon.

F. Q. Quartermaine requested the committee to have some of the lights changed in his office to afford better lighting. No action was taken.

The chairman however, was authorized to renovate the committee room wall papering, and put it in good order.

GARBAGE COMPLAINTS.

Sanitary Inspector Spence was heard in reference to complaints about the negligent methods of Mr. Downer, the garbage collector. It appears that the collector has been failing to remove ash barrels and his excuse has been that the barrels are too heavy for one man.

Ald. Duncan—"Perhaps he should have more men."

Inspector Spence—"That's just it, Mr. Downer seems to think that under the by-law he is only required to take receptacles that one man can lift.

Ald. Duncan said that he did not wish to see the collector imposed upon, but he must be made to fulfil his contract or else it would be a case of "no pay."

It seems that other complaints have been received about Mr. Downer not returning emptied receptacles to their proper places. Mr. Downer was also said to have the habit of overlooking ashes, but he always takes away the peelings and refuse that made good feed for hogs.

On motion the matter was left in the hands of the chairman and the Sanitary Inspector to notify the collector that he must live up to his agreement and in the event of failure the City Solicitor will notify him and the City Treasurer authorized to withhold payments.

THE ORIGIN OF THE ENGLISH PALE

Rev. Father O'Sullivan Lectured in St. Alphonsus Lyceum

The second of the series of lectures on Irish subjects was given in St. Alphonsus Lyceum last night. Before the lecture a short program was carried out as follows:

Instrumental—Miss Bernice Giroux.
Song—Miss Mollie Young.
Duet—Misses Connor and McDonald.

The Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of Port Hope, was the lecturer and gave an excellent talk on "The Origin of the English Pale in Ireland." Father O'Sullivan described the events leading up to the time when Henry II. came over to Ireland in 1172 and conquered the first land for England. He spoke of the position of the pale, or dividing line, and how it came to be. The lecture was intensely interesting and very instructive, and was greatly enjoyed. A large number were present, as there always is at these fortnightly talks.

The next lecture will be given on Friday, Nov. 22. Mr. McElderry will be the lecturer.

HELPING THE HIGH PRICES

The Modern House Wife Buys Well But Not Wisely

The statemnet is frequently made that people themselves are largely responsible for the high cost of living. There seems to be some grounds for the statement when one investigates the meat question in its relation to household expenses. For some time past people have been buying steaks and choice cuts at very high prices when they could have purchased the front quarter cuts quite reasonably. Many families make a practice of this when they can ill afford it. As one leading meat dealer said to-day, it is simply a case of people failing to realize that the fronts of beef are equally as nouring for ordinary purposes as the more expensive cuts and steaks.

Years ago when front quarters sold for 5 cents per pound, the shoulder roasts were 8 cents per pound, and to-day they are only 12 cents per pound. Yet people pay the highest price for other cuts and they will continue to, as long as they insist upon having their choice. Some people are beginning to see their mistake and fronts are selling more freely on the market. The meat is just as nourishing and even more so when properly cooked, but house wives don't realize this. There are only a certain number of steaks on a beast and as the meat dealer stated, when everybody buys steaks then the price simply has to remain up.

A report from Chicago states that beef prices in the United States were due to come down owing to the immense corn crop, and that prices of beef on the hoof both in the States and Canada were likely to decline.

SPORTY BARBER KEEPS RACE HORSES BUT DOES NOT BET

London, Nov. 9.—A. J. Chamberlain, a Wolverhampton barber, is owner, trainer and rider for one of the most unique training stables in the world, which is situated just back of his shop. There is a certain amount of "class" to his stable, too, for he won a race at a recent meeting of the Dunstall Park Club.

A steep passage at the side of the barber's shop leads into the long and narrow back yard, at each end of which is a stable. In one is Relish, a good-looking chestnut, which won at Dunstall, and in the other Mark Twain, who has also won a steeplechase.

The barber explains that he always wanted to be with horses, but was apprenticed to a barber, and it was years before he bought his first horse. This cost him $10 and an old bicycle. At different times he has owned quite a string. Some of them he admits were failures, but he has never been able to afford a really likely animal. Can't Sing was his greatest extravagance, costing $268.

Keeping up his stable means all sorts of sacrifices for him, and he has often gone short himself, so that Mark Twain should have the best oats procurable. He gets up at six in the morning to exercise and feed his horses, for the earnings of the barber's shop do not run to a stable lad of any sort.

He exercises his string on the roads round Wolverhampton, riding one and leading the other. For jumping practice he has rigged up a jump with an old scaffold in the back yard. The barber is a qualified gentleman rider, his racing colors are old gold and black, and he has never had a bet on a horse in his life.

HOCKEY

A meeting of the Hockey Club was held in the Curling rink when the Club was reorganized for the coming year. The president, S. J. Moore, occupied the chair. The attendance was large and if the enthusiasm displayed is any indication of the interest to be taken in the game this season we can look for good sport. The financial affairs for the coming season look easy, as the sum of $104 was subscribed by the boys at the meeting. The new officers elected were as follows:

Past President—S. J. Moore.
President—C. Davidson.
Vice-President—R. Lunnon.
Secretary—H. B. R. Dryden.
Treasurer—Ed. Weston.
Rink Manager—R. Cole.

MATTY WORTH OVER $250,000

One of the Few Great Pitchers to Save Money

New York, Nov. 8— Christy Mathewson, hero of the 1912 world series, can well afford to retire from baseball.

Matty has many friends in New York, and he has received many safe tips on the stock market. A year ago an intimate friend declared that Matty has accumulated well over $250,000 so it looks as if "Big Six," one of the greatest twirlers that ever wore toeplates, will be able to retire on his pile and live in comfort. He is one of the few great pitchers who saved his money.

BALL PLAYER IN ROLE OF HERO

Glad. Graney Can Also Catch Runaway Horses

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. [illegible]— Jack Gladstone Graney, of the Cleveland American League Ball Club, was the hero of a runaway accident here. A horse attached to a rig conveying Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Welter, became frightened at a passing street car and dashed down the main street. The bit broke, and Mr. Welter lost complete control of the reins. The horse took the sidewalk for about two blocks, when it collided with an automobile just as it was about to turn into the roadway again. The collision with the car through the animal out of its stride momentarily, when Graney leaped forward and caught the horse by the neck, and after being dragged a block, succeeded in stopping its mad rush. The occupants escaped with a few bruises and a bad shaking up.

Frightened Horse in Path of Street Car

A rapidly moving street car and a spirited horse almost caused a bad accident this morning on George street. A horse with a rig containing a woman and a small child was standing beside the pavement. The woman had the child in her arms and was also holding the reins, the approaching car came close, the spirited animal became frantic and backed out directly onto the track. Only the swift action of Mr. Whitcroft, who was passing, and who ran out and caught the animal at the head, backing it off the track, prevented a catastrophe.

Winnipeg Railway May Sell.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—Rumors are again current in the city that E. B. Reese and his associates are once more on the point of closing out their proposed purchase of the Winnipeg Electric Railway Co. and all its holdings.

It is stated that on his recent visit to the city Mr Reese renewed negotiations for the purchase, and he is said to have made it known that he had practically completed the financial arrangements.

Mr. Holt on Feminine Thrift.

Mr. H. S. Holt, the Montreal bank and power man, has increased confidence in women as financiers since his recent trip abroad. Interviewed in his office, the other day, the magnate talked of his stay in France. He traveled through the rural districts and was much impressed by the fact that the women of the households administered the family exchequer; mere man had to account to his wife for expenditures.

Mr. Holt judges from this that women in general possess the virtue of thriftiness to a greater degree than men.

By the way, Mr. Holt did not give any Canadian illustrations.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more or less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

A NEGLECTED GENIUS

W. H. C. NATION SPENDS FORTUNE ON WORTHLESS PLAYS.

Eccentric Englishman Has Wasted $300,000 Producing Dramas of His Own Composition Which Nobody Ever Sees But the Ushers and Himself—Takes Big London Theatres In the Summer Time.

Art is long, said a philosopher, and one W. H. C. Nation has found it at least 48 years long. For this length of time an eccentric Englishman has been producing plays that the public of London and several other English cities refuses to witness. He has spent about $300,000 in his optimistic effort to interest playgoers, and they have failed to respond, but the cheerful Nation at the end of a season that will set him back another $15,000 announces his intention of returning to the assault again next year.

Whether he believes that people will ever patronize his theatre he does not say; and probably he is indifferent. He has been so long used to being the sole audience, that he might resent the intrusion of others. London regards him as a joke, and once a year remembers to laugh at him.

Then it forgets him until the theatrical season has ended and Nation's season has begun. His only opportunity to manage a first-class theatre is for the few weeks that the regular manager is away on his holidays and the actors and actresses are resting. Then Nation steps in, hires the theatre, and runs for a few weeks in midsummer.

Nation is a country squire and is credited with an income of $250,000 a year. He is now 69 years old, and has been indulging his taste for the theatre ever since he came of age and was in the possession of sufficient funds to carry out his plans. In 188[illegible] he became manager of the Sadler's Well's Theatre.

W. H. C. NATION.

The season was a failure. Next year he was at Astley's. That was a failure too. Since then he has had a season at nearly all the big theatres in London, each season becoming a rather more costly affair than the previous one.

He is now closing an engagement at Wyndham's, one of the most magnificent of modern theatres, situated in the very heart of London. It is as well known to the London theatregoer as is the Tower itself but unfortunately for the season, his plays are said to be about the poorest stuff ever written. His companies are beneath criticism.

This year's production is said to be the worst of his career, and to be worthy of such players as the Cherry Sisters. It is divided into two parts, the first being a two-act drama translated from the French; the second a three-act musical comedy. The first is said to consist wholly of dialogue in which an interminable procession of people appear on the stage for a few moments, deliver themselves of a few monotonous remarks, and then disappear.

It is almost impossible to follow the story, but this may be the fault of the man whom Nation hired to do the translating. The manager admits that after the work was placed in his hands he "added a bit here and there;" so it is really difficult to place the blame. The musical comedy has a cast of five persons and a chorus of the same number. The scene is laid in a court which it is hard to identify, and the scenery is baffling, since it is made up of a Moorish interior through which one gets a glimpse of a Venetian canal, a newly harvested wheat field, and Luna Park, or some other playground.

Night after night, through the heat of London, these two pieces are presented to empty seats, the only audience being the staff of ushers and attendants, who applaud perfunctorily and then doze off again, since there is no audience to be waited upon. There is a full orchestra, too, and all the paraphernalia of a first-class theatre except the audience.

The lack of audience does not trouble him. "Of course," he says, "I like to make money, but then I would not produce a play I did not like simply because I thought it might be a moneymaker. For instance, I would not produce a play that these modern sex and problem dramas.

"I would rather offer the innocent fun to be found in the popular plays of 30 or 40 years ago. My plays are what might be called Mid-Victorian in their humor. The trouble seems to be that the taste of the theatregoing public has changed in the last generation."

Extending Compulsory Education.

London, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Adolescence Act, making provision for the extension of the age of compulsory education, was adopted by the Board of Education at a special session yesterday afternoon. No opposition has been shown during the time the issue has been under discussion. Henceforth children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years must attend educational classes of day or night schools.

Beyond Him.

In a north of England town there was a shiftless man who would never accept gifts outright, although he was always depending on charity, says Al Priddy in his book, "Through the Mill."

He painted landscapes, and my aunt, when benevolently inclined, would hire him to decorate our walls with rural scenes, highly colored in daring tints, as if nature had turned color blind. There were cows in every scene, and Aunt Millie noticed that all the cows were up to their knees in water. Not one stood clear on the vivid green hills.

"Jorvey," she remarked to the old man, "why do you always put the cows in the water?"

"It's this way, Mrs. Brindin," the old artist responded. "You see, ma'am, I never learned to paint 'oofs."

THE MARTYRS TO DIABETES

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the business men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely, but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and heedlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they were piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far-off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES (in the United States EXPURGO-ANTI-DIABETES), which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of various cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg Man. The remedy is for sale by McDermid & Jury, Peterborough. Price $2.00 per bottle.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

ARE THE GREATEST IMPROVEMENT MADE TO RANGES IN A DECADE.

The greatly increased radiating surface provided by these Corrugated Plates adds more than one-third to the heating capacity of the oven.

By raising the cooking vessel off the flat surface, they allow the air to circulate under it, which adds immeasurably to the ability to do fine work.

The corrugated oven is one of the many patented features of the HAPPY THOUGHT. It can be found on no other range.

Skin Sufferers' Doubt Is Removed

Many eczema sufferers have failed so utterly with salves and other "discoveries" that even the assurance of the physicians or druggists cannot induce them to invest another dollar in any remedy.

It is to these discouraged sufferers in particular that we now offer, at only 25 cents, a trial bottle of the accepted standard eczema remedy, a simple wash of oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine, as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

Hundreds of cures have convinced us and we know you can prove instantly with the first application of D.D.D. Prescription that it takes away the itch at once. You save only to spend a quarter to get instant relief. Isn't it worth while? McDermid & Jury and F. L. Payne, Druggists.

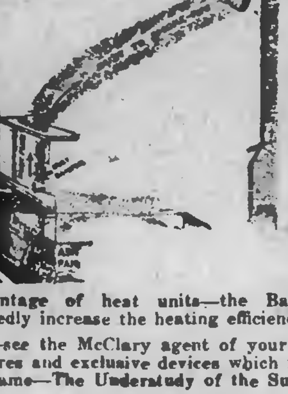
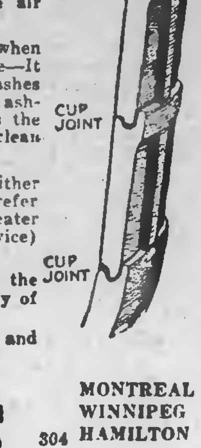
More Facts About McClary's
"Sunshine" Furnace
—The Understudy of the Sun—

There's no dust nuisance about the "Sunshine"—when you rock down the ashes the dust is drawn up dust-flue then directly across to smoke-pipe where it belongs. Look at the illustration and remember to open both "Dust" and "Direct Draft" dampers—these simple devices make the "Sunshine" the cleanest furnace for the home.



See the famous "cup joints" here—the frame of the ash pit—the two sections of the fire-pot and the dome all jointed together by our "cup joint."



There's a layer of asbestos cement in each joint—this unites all sections in a permanent way, yet leaves room for the expansion and contraction of the metal.

No wonder that this "Understudy of the Sun" is called the "Sunshine" furnace—Since it diffuses pure warm June air throughout the house.

You don't have to wear overalls when attending to the "Sunshine" furnace—It has a big roomy ash-pan. All the ashes are guided directly into the pan by ash-chutes. A minute or two performs the job. Yes, the "Sunshine" is the clean furnace.

The "Sunshine" Furnace burns either wood or coal. Coke, too, if you prefer it. The "Sunshine" distributes a greater percentage of heat units—the Baffle plates (a new McClary device) decidedly increase the heating efficiency of the furnace.

But—see the McClary agent of your locality. Ask him to show you all the features and exclusive devices which make the "Sunshine" Furnace worthy of the name—The Understudy of the Sun.

If you do not know the McClary Agent, write us at our nearest address and we'll forward you a letter of introduction by return.

Music and Drama

Miss Alice Yorke and Arthur Deagon, both Canadians, have been engaged to appear in the new comic opera by Walter Damrosch. Miss Yorke will appear in a suffragette role and Mr. Deagon as a belligerent Irish peace commissioner.

Joseph M. Gaites has secured from the Tolstoi family the English-speaking rights to the novelist's last drama, "The Living Death," Some of the scenes are laid in Russian gypsy camps, and a gypsy composer has composed the music for the incidental ballet effects.

Fritzie Von Busing and Forrest Huff, who are now singing two of the leading roles at the Casino, New York, last week celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary. These two singers enjoy the reputation of practically never having played an engagement apart in all the nine years of their married life, and have never been separated more than four weeks during that time.

Madame Simone has just begun rehearsals of a new play written for her by Louis N. Parker, the author of "Disraeli" and "Pomander Walk" Madame Simone, on her arrival in New York, reiterated her promise to divide the time she spends on the stage equally between French engagements at the national theatres in Paris, and English-speaking tours of America. She brought over with her twenty-two trunks full of new gowns.

The tides of time bring their changes in the affairs of man as well as in those of the drama. Many such are impending just now. The final performance of Frances Starr in "The Case of Becky," is scheduled for December 21 and that of "The Governess Lady," for January 4. Of much shorter duration was "The New Sin," at Wallack's, in New York, for by the time this appears in print, it will be off and "The Yellow Jacket," by George C. Hazleton and Harry Benrimo, will take its place. The short career of "The New Sin," is rather surprising. It is one of the best plays of the season, but it has no sex problem, and not even a woman in the cast.

Persistent rumors that Ethel Barrymore would leave Charles Frohman and devote herself to vaudeville for the rest of her career were set at rest this week by the announcement from the Frohman offices that Miss Barrymore will be seen in a comedy by Haddon Chambers, author of Capt. Swift, Passers By, and other well-known plays. The author is to come to America about December 3. Rehearsals will begin soon after that. Miss Barrymore will play J. M. Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look" is vaudeville until that time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—The editorial in Thursday's issue of your valuable paper, in which there appears the statement that Archbishop Phelan of St. Louis said that if necessary Catholics would say, "To hell with the government of the U.S." in order to support the Church of Rome, was timely. You are a little late in the day, but not too late. You are taking up what others have taken up in defence of the State and the liberty of the people. The archbishop did not say that for fun. He said it in order to give his people notice of what is coming, viz., a world-wide fight between the authority of the people—that is Democracy—and the authority of a few, that is the hierarchy of Rome. France has gone back into the arms of the church in a way that is calculated to "stagger humanity." The priests are far more numerous and powerful there now than before the row. The church has been assailed before, but has outlived it all. Will she attack the State and modern democracy successfully, or will they outlive her?

Yours, etc.,
READER.

BAD FLOODS IN THE WEST

Peterboro is Singularly Privileged to Have None of This Trouble

Strathroy, Ont., Nov. 9.—The worst flood in years covers the lowlands through which the Sydenham River flows.

The river has been unusually high all the fall and the heavy rain of yesterday was all that was needed to make the stream overflow its banks.

The abutments on the second Caradoc street bridge and on one of the Head street bridges have been washed out and these leading roads have been closed by Commissioner Folkes. A large number of cattle and horses which were pasturing on the flats, had to be removed to higher ground. One odd sight was a cow that was forced to take refuge on a little knoll while the flood raged all around.

St. Mary's, Ont., Nov. 9.—The heavy downpour of rain yesterday afternoon and last night has caused the River Thames to rise up to spring flood proportions, and it is feared serious damage will result.

Galt, Ont., Nov. 9.—The Grand River is to-day at the highest it has ever been, except in flood time, say old residents along the river valley. The heavy rains of the last couple of days have caused the level of the river to rise suddenly. Wharfs at the boathouses at the dam have been washed away and a lot of driftwood has passed down the river.

London, Ont., Nov. 9.—Not since December, 1883, has there been such a severe fall or winter flood of the Thames as the freshet caused by the recent rains. The river rose six feet during last night, but the water is going down to-day, though the current has been between six and seven miles an hour. Motor boat owners had an anxious time, but practically all the boats were saved. The West London embankment is in a bad condition. Sixty feet of it caved in last month, and the wall is defective in other places.

Peterborough and other towns and villages along the Trent Valley Waterway are to be congratulated. Whilst we have had the same amount of rain fall as they have had in the West during the last month, the management of the water on the Trent Canal has been such, that nobody has been inconvenienced in any way. The fact is, that the great interest that the Hon. Frank Cochrane has taken in conserving and regulating the waters since he took over the Department of Railways and Canals, reflects greatly to his judgment, and the people of this whole section certainly are greatly indebted to him for not only having had the water so regulated that we have had a continuous flow for navigation and power purposes, but we are also protected from damages to our property by floods in the spring and fall.

It was not always this way in Peterborough, and in other sections along the Trent Waterway.

The Late Mrs. Cree

PASSING OF JOHN MARSH

At Age of 92 Years He Answered the Call After An Active Life

Resigned and fully prepared for the summons that he felt was near at hand, John S. Marsh, passed away yesterday at the home of his son, Rev. Dr. Marsh, Springville.

On Thursday, he had dinner and supper with the family and as he was ascending the stairs, to retire after the evening meal said, "I think this is about the last time." He was conscious to within one hour of his death and retained full possession of all his faculties.

The late John Marsh was aged ninety-two years and ten months. Born in the State of Vermont, he left his native town at the age of fifteen and spent a few years with his uncle, William Marsh, of Port Hope, after which he decided to return to Vermont. When nineteen years of age, he began what proved to be an active life. With the confidence of youth he walked the long distance from Vermont to Collingwood and in the township of Vincent, thirty-two miles north of Collingwood, he decided to settle. Of his experiences during the thirty-two years spent in that section of the country, he often told to the interest of his friends and the wonder of young people. Those were days when one depended largely on his own resources. His first house was two trees placed across a cradle knoll and covered with leaves and bark. Here he made his bed for twelve months, spending the long hours of light in an endeavour to transform a small part of the wilds with a view to cultivation of the soil, for John Marsh had set his heart on becoming a successful farmer.

Often the bears would visit his rude home and steal his meat and oftimes he slept during the first summer, guarded by a contrivance brought about by tieing a piece of meat to his gun in such a manner that visiting animals would on biting at the meat, discharge the gun. There he labored for thirty-two years and then went to the North-west and realized his ambition to win success as an agriculturist.

Some years ago, he left the West and joined Rev. Dr. Marsh in Hamilton, living there for three years, after which he returned to the West. In May of last year, although in his ninety-second year, he travelled alone from the West to Springville to spend his remaining days with his son.

Free from habits liable to make him susceptible to sickness, he lived and enjoyed the best of health. His passing was that of a man who had lived right and feared not the end. He was twice married. His first wife, Mary Douglas, bore him two sons and four daughters, and his second wife, three sons and two daughters, Rev. Dr. Marsh being the eldest of the three. All the sons and four of the six daughters survive him. In religion he was Presbyterian, and as a Reformer in politics, he had read the Toronto Globe since childhood.

The funeral services will be held at the 11 o'clock regular morning service in Springville Presbyterian church to-morrow. The remains will be taken to Meaford on Monday morning for interment.

The coal you save

DO you think a cheap range an economy? It may appear so when buying it.

But when you see it eating up the coal—When the oven is slow in heating—When first one part then another requires renewing—Then your cheap range is not an economy, but the very opposite. Then you will see that it wastes enough coal to pay for a good range.

The Peerless Range is a well-designed, strongly constructed range—designed for economy of fuel—constructed for durability and wear. Ask your neighbor what she thinks of her Peerless. Get her opinion of it as a coal-saver and a baker. You will find that your cheap stove has actually cost more than your neighbor's well-designed, economical, and convenient Peerless.

FIRST NEWS FROM ADRIANOPLE SAYS TURKS CLAIM VICTORY

City is Placarded Announcing Defeat of the Bulgarians Today ---Relentless Attack Kept up on Tchalaja.

Canadian Press.

Adrianople, Nov. 11—The bombardment of this city by Bulgarians began again yesterday and continued to-day from the south and west. In the afternoon it stopped and Shukri Pasha, the military commandant had placards posted all over the city, announcing the victory of the garrison which had repulsed the Bulgarian attacking force around Maras and had driven the besiegers a considerable distance into the surrounding country. This is the first despatch from the beleagured city by any correspondent.

AUSTRIA AND SERVIA

Vienne, Nov. 11—There is much excitement here over the possibility of trouble between Austria and Servis which is talked of. Reports to date that mobolization is imminent, is, however, officially denied. On the contrary, it is said that Austria will wait until the war is ended before opening formal negotiations with Servia.

ADVANCE ON DURAZZO.

London, Nov. 11—The van guard of the third Servian army has joined hands with the Montenegros in the valley of Drin River according to a Belgrade despatch. Both armies are now advancing along the sea coast to Durazzo.

TRY TO PLEASE BOTH

London, Nov. 11—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail learns that the threads of Austrian-Servian crisis are now in the hands of the German Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Herr Von Kiderlen--Waechter, who is working on a formula designed to appease both Austria and Servia.

London, Nov. 11.—The Bulgarian attack on the Tchatalja lines goes on unrelentingly. According to a correspondent at the front further Turkish positions have been captured, but their location has not been indicated, in accordance with the variable Bulgarian plan never to reveal information to the enemy. There is another unconfirmed report that Monastir had been captured. This and the capture of Dibra, an important town in Albania, by the Servians after heavy fighting, constitute all the military news of importance since Saturday.

Some idea of the bloody nature of this war may be formed from the fact that it is now estimated that 150,000 men have been put out of action on both sides since the opening of hostilities. The Turkish Government clearly has little hope of holding the Tchatalja lines. The despatch of 100 Ulemas to the front with the avowed intention to stir up religious fanaticism in the army is interpreted as the counsel of despair.

There is no confirmation of the report that the Turkish Government has opened direct negotiations with the allies. Turkey's immediate object appears to be to gain time, hoping for something from the rivalries of the European powers. She is also making urgent diplomatic efforts to prevent the Bulgarian troops from entering Constantinople. In this connection there is an idea prevalent in Sofia that some important diplomatic action is on foot to this end.

With regard to the difficulty between Servia and Austria, the Vienna Reichspost, in denying that any common action by the Triple Alliance in Belgrade is intended, says that Austria has no egotistical plans regarding Albania, but is only anxious to preserve Albanian national and political freedom and, in this object, has the support of Germany and Italy. But, the paper adds, the mere assurance by Servia that she would not fortify her harbor on the Adriatic would give little security and her passage through Albania cannot be conceded.

According to an inspired statement, the view of the Balkan allies is that an autonomous Albania, instead of contributing to the peace of the Balkans, would be a source of perpetual trouble and disorder among the Albanian people themselves, who have never been independent, have no national feelings and have various religious faiths and nationalities with no common language, not even a common alphabet, and do not form a homogeneous unit. These orders, it is understood, would inevitably spread to the surrounding states and instead of a permanent settlement, Europe would be left with a troublesome Albanian question on her hands.

Servian Army Advanceng.

Belgrade, Nov. 11.—Dibra, 45 miles southwest of Prisrend, in Albania, was taken by the Servians Saturday after severe fighting, according to private advices. The remnants of the Turkish Macedonia army had assembled there. The same reports say that Monastir has surrendered. Maj. Popovich, in command of the Servian cavalry, has captured Dajran.

The third Servian army is well on its way towards the Adriatic, but progress is slow on account of the bad roads. It is expected that Durazzo will be taken in a day or two. Durazzo is one of the ports which Servia has announced her intention of seizing and holding.

Hopeful of Settlement.

Paris, Nov. 11.—"Dangerous, but not hopeless," is the way the political plight in which Europe finds herself is summed up in official circles in Paris. The diplomatic controversy between Austria and Servia over the question of Servia's access to the Adriatic has the centre of the stage, overshadowing all else, even the war itself.

Efforts at mediation have been postponed because of this, as the complication retards the attempts to bring the powers into accord. A hopeful feature in the situation lies in the knowledge that powerful influence is at work on both sides to induce the disputants to find a compromise for the vexatious question.

Should this fail, Europe would find herself threatened by a deadlock between the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente—Austria, Germany and Italy as opposed to Great Britain, France and Russia—full of possible complications.

Discussing the complexities of the situation a prominent diplomat said:

"I think we should not be too pessimistic. It is almost certain that we shall pass through difficult and dangerous chapters before the gloom is dissipated, but I think that we can reasonably expect that Austria and Servia will eventually settle their differences in an amicable way."

EVERYTHING IS ALTERED

European Politics Changed by War Says Asquith.

London, Nov. 11.—(Via Reuters' Ottawa Agency).—The Guild Hall banquet held Saturday evening, was as usual a brilliant function. Those present included Cabinet Ministers, peers, members of the House of Commons, distinguished officers of the army and navy, dignitaries of the church and representatives of the city corporation. The Rt. Hon. Herbert Asquith, the Prime Minister, made an important pronouncement upon foreign affairs in responding to the toast of His Majesty's Ministers.

"We are living in anxious times and are spectators of great and moving events," he said. "The Balkan armies are in effective possession of Macedonia and Thrace. Saloniki, the gateway through which Christianity first entered Europe, is occupied by the Greeks, and we may by moment hear of the fall of Constantinople itself.

"It is a satisfaction to be able to assure you that, so far as this country is concerned, its relations with other powers, without a single exception, were never more friendly and cordial. The great powers are working together with a closeness of touch and a frankness and freedom of communication and discussion which are remarkable, and which may seem almost unintelligible to those who believe that since for certain purposes, the powers have been and are ranged in different groups, there must therefore in a time of European crisis, be arrayed in opposite camps.

"Nothing is further from the fact. The powers have been blamed in some quarters because they did not succeed in averting the war. They sought, and sought honestly and earnestly by diplomatic pressure and without resort to force to secure conditions of order and good government in the European provinces of the Ottoman Empire.

"But forces were at work beyond the control of any diplomatic manipulation. The Balkan states having matured their plans, perfected their equipment and co-ordinated their reciprocal action, decided that force was the only effectual remedy, and that they and they alone were prepared to use it. They took the matter in their own hands.

"Things can never be again as they were; and it is the business of statesmen everywhere to recognize and accept the accomplished fact. When Pitt, mortally stricken by the news of Austerlitz, came home to die, he told those about him to roll up the map of Europe which hung on the wall. But even the campaign of Austerlitz did not produce changes so suddenly and so startling and overwhelmingly complete, as those which during the past month have been wrought by the Balkan confederacy. The map of eastern Europe has been recast, and in the process it may be that ideas, preconceptions and policies which were born in what is now a bygone era, will have to be modified, reconstructed or even go altogether by the board. Upon one thing I believe the general opinion of Europe to be unanimous, namely that the victors are not to be robbed of the fruits which cost them, so dear.

"So far as I know there is no disposition anywhere to belittle the magnitude of the struggle or to dispute the decisiveness of the result. We in this country have no direct interest in the exact form which consequent political and territorial redistributions may ultimately take.

"It is at the moment the first and greatest of European interests to circumscribe its scope. For that object the great powers have labored as with one will. So far they have labored successfully, and it is our hope and belief that they will continue to labor to the end."

CLERGYMAN MET DEATH FROM KICK

Rev. T. N. Shearer Instantly Killed At His Home.

Canadian Press.

Camlachie, Ont., Nov. 11.—Rev. T. N. Shearer, who came to Lambton to assume charge of the village church here two years ago, was instantly killed in his yard this morning by a kick on the head from a mare on which he was attempting to place a halter. He leaves a widow and five children. He came here from Melbourne, Middlesex County, two years ago, and was born in Ottawa fifty years ago.

STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD DEAD

Survived His Mother-in-Law Only One Day.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Grieved over the illness of her son-in-law, Mrs. Odile Desroches fell dead at the bedside of the sick man, Louis Cyr, the famous strong man.

Mrs. Desroches came to Montreal five days ago from her home in Joliette in aid in nursing the dying man. In spite of her advanced age of 72, she had performed her duties with activity.

The woman, however, evidently taxed all her strength, and Saturday morning, immediately after entering Mr. Cyr's bedroom, she collapsed.

Cyr himself only survived her by a day. The athlete succumbed to chronic nephritis, from which he had been suffering for the past twelve years. He was 49 years of age.

LINDSAY MAN IS KILLED WHILE DUCK SHOOTING

His Foot Slipped in Boat and Gun Was Discharged—He Died Before Reaching Land.

Lindsay, Nov. 11.—Thomas Hunter, a larrigan maker in the R. M. Beal Leather Co. factory, was fatally injured yesterday while duck shooting. Hunter left Lindsay accompanied by a boy named Cleveland in a rowboat yesterday morning. A double-barrelled shotgun was placed in the bottom of the boat with both hammers cocked to be in readiness in case a flock of ducks were seen. While rowing the craft Hunter's foot slipped and struck one of the hammers, discharging the shot into his thigh. The accident occurred at Green's Point, a few miles north of the town.

Cleveland wound a piece of rope around Hunters thigh in an effort to stay the flow of blood. Then the boy rowed the boat toward the town. After going half a mile a passing motor boat was hailed, but Hunter died before reaching the wharf from loss of blood, the discharge evidently having cut several blood vessels. He was just two years out from Scotland, was 35 years old, and leaves a wife and five children.

Phones For Train Despatching.

Guelph, Nov. 11.—The installation of an independent telephone system for use in connection with the despatching of trains on the C.P.R. Guelph-Goderich division was completed this week. It is expected that by the end of the present month things will be in shape so that all despatching may be done from London by phone.

FOUND DYING IN BEDROOM

Man in Ill-Health Resorted to the Gas Jet.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Wm. J. Adams, aged 63, 238 Hallam street, was found in an unconscious condition in his bedroom yesterday at noon by his wife, and died shortly after. Dr. W. J. Duffries was called. The jet in the room was turned on, and the fumes of the escaping gas were very strong. Mr. Adams had been in ill-health for some time.

Coroner Dr. John J. Thompson will open an inquest at the morgue this afternoon.

THIRTY LIVES BLOTTED OUT

Passenger Train Was Struck By Freight — Over Fifty Injured.

Canadian Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 11. — Slowing down while approaching a charp curve, near Mozart, La. soon after midnight this morning, an excursion train laden with passengers who spent Sunday in New Orleans and were returning to Woodville, Miss., was hit by a freight train, and thirty passengers were killed and more than fifty injured. The scene of the wreck is twenty seven miles north of New Orleans.

TO TAKE UP LITERATURE

Ambassador Bryce to be Succeeded by Sir Cecil Arthur Spring Rice

Canadian Press,

London, Nov. 11.—The Washington correspondent to the Post says Ambassador Bryce has informed president Taft that he will retire shortly and devote himself to literature. Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, now British Minister at Stockholm will succeed Mr. Bryce. The fact that Bryce would resign has been known in London for sometime.

Washington, Nov. 11.—James Bryce, the British ambassador to the U. S., has tendered his resignation and will return to England. There has been no official announcement of the resignation, and the embassy will make no statement, but it was learned last night on high authority that Mr. Bryce informed President Taft of his action at the White House Saturday.

HON. JAMES BRYCE.

Hon. James Bryce went to Washington five years ago as British ambassador and, save for his connection more or less intimate, with the reciprocity pact, his diplomatic service has earned nothing but highest encomiums. The Unionist press and speakers of Britain assailed the ambassador with considerable vigor for the part he was alleged to have played in seeking to draw Canada away from the Mother Country, but such criticisms seemed to fall lightly from his shoulders, he answering them with the statement that he merely discharged his formal duties. He returned only a few months ago from a trip to Australia, and expressed at that time no intention whatever of soon leaving Washington.

It became known last night that Mr. Bryce's main, and perhaps his sole, reason for his intention to leave the service of the British Government and retire to private life, was that he felt that advancing years entitled him to give up the burden of a public career. He is 74 years old, but to all appearances is still hale and hearty. He has been in Washington as British Ambassador since 1907.

Bourassa Not Running.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Henri Bourassa, who was mentioned as a probable candidate against Hon. Louis Coderre in Hochelaga, announces that he will not be a candidate, taking occasion at the same time to make some very strong charges against both parties. He did not accept a nomination, he says, because of the complicity of the two party leaders to ensure the election of Mr. Coderre, although he allowed the opinion to prevail for several days in order to verify his suspicions as to the real complicity of both parties in this grave question of contribution to the Imperial navy.

NO HARM DONE BY PLAIN SPEECH

Says Churchill in Declaring That the Navy is Growing.

London, Nov. 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Winston Churchill, who responded for the naval forces at the Guild Hall banquet, said: "The year has witnessed important naval developments. The fleet has been reorganized upon a complete symmetrical plan. An entire new squadron of very powerful ships have been placed in full commission; we have recruited the largest number of sailors and stokers of any year in modern times, and nearly three times as many men have been recruited in each month upon the average of the present year. Before the end of the session I shall submit to Parliament proposals for improving the pay of officers and men of the royal navy. This, it may be hoped, will further stimulate our already buoyant recruiting." (Cheers.)

"We had not proposed last year to create a sixth battle squadron until 1915, but by various administrative arrangements it will be possible to bring that squadron into existence, fully manned, on mobilization with active service ratings. This will increase the margin of security to which I have on several occasions referred in the Commons." (Cheers.)

"No harm has been done during the year by plain speaking on naval questions. On the contrary, the effect has been extremely good. The Germans are a nation with robust minds and a high sense of honor and fair play. They look at affairs in a practical, military spirit. They like to have facts put fairly and squarely before them.

"But, after all, what has made this year memorable in the history of the navy has been the spontaneous, simultaneous movement of the great dominions of the crown towards effective participation in imperial naval defence." (Applause.)

Sheriff Cooper in proposing this toast referred to the hopes he cherished of union between the English-speaking peoples for the purpose of mutual defence. He outlined the course of colonial participation in defence and concluded: "And in a few days when the Canadian Parliament meets, we may except an announcement of a naval policy worthy of the power and loyalty of that great dominion, and of immense consequence to the needs of the Empire as a whole."

IN HANDS OF UNDERWRITERS

Fears Expressed That Liner Will Sink if Taken Off Rocks.

Canadian Press.

Toronto, Nov. 11. — The Canadian Northern Railway liner Royal George, has been abandoned to the underwriters. The vessel is still in the same position on the rocks one mile east of Point St. Lawrence, and the owners, preparing for the worst, have notified the insurance companies that the vessel is now on their hands. The message was cabled to London yesterday by Vice-President D. B. Hanna, who has charge of the steamship department.

Quebec, Nov. 11.—The Canadian Northern Railway liner Royal George is still in the same position on the rocks, one mile east of Point St. Lawrence, and is likely to remain there until the next high tides, which do not take place until Nov. 26.

No effort was made to pull the vessel from her position on Saturday or Sunday, which goes to prove the seriousness of her position, and the fear that should she be hauled off she would go to the bottom on account of the condition of her bottom. The condition of the steamer is considered so serious that yesterday a rumor was current that the company had come to the conclusion to abandon her to the underwriters.

On making enquiries in this regard the Canadian Press was informed that such a proposition had been made by a party from the west, representing the company, but it was not likely that the advice would be entertained for the reason that no owner or owners of ships in difficulty could abandon their property to the underwriters until they can prove that they have done everything possible to save the property concerned.

Shipping experts interested in the release of the Royal George do not deny that the task of hauling the ship off the rock is a serious problem, but do not give up their hope for ultimately succeeding.

Rumors say that the Royal George, while running off her course, and too near the shore in the vicinity of Madam Island, grounded and injured her bottom to such an extent that it was later found necessary to beach the liner below St. Lawrence and this was responsible for her present position. Enquires were made to learn the truth of this rumor, which brought forth an emphatic denial. Besides, if such were the case there would be no reason to deny the facts, as they would be bound to come out in evidence at the forthcoming marine investigation to learn all particulars and fix the responsibility for the accident.

At the present time the chief point about the grounding of the Royal George off the Isle of Orleans, which is interesting the minds of the maritime community here, after, of course, the subject as to whether she will become a total wreck or not, is how the liner managed to get out of the channel. Nothing official on the subject has been forthcoming from the pilot, and there is little likelihood of his saying anything until he makes his statement before the wreck commissioners.

It has been said that he was misled by the light of a schooner. A passenger named William McKenna, interviewed here, said that the Royal George was following a vessel, and it is presumed that the liner went too close to the shore in trying to go round her.

DEFEAT OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT ON HOME RULE BILL IN COMMITTEE OF WHOLE

Canadian Press.

London, Eng., Nov. 11—By 228 to 206 the Cabinet was today defeated in Committee on the Home Rule Bill. The Government does not necessarily have to resign, and is unlikely to do so in the face of the international crisis.

London, Nov. 11.—The government has three alternates. It can resign. It can drop the Home Rule Bill, or bring forward a motion to recommend the Bill and obtain an opinion of the full house on the vote, which was taken Sunday afternoon. This the Government has given due notice of its intention to do so. Snap decisions of this nature are not an unusual thing but this is the first experience of its kind for the present government.

The British Government introduced not long ago its famous Home Rule Bill. The first reading of a bill goes as a matter of course. The second reading involves full discussion and if necessary amendment in Committee by the whole House. If government suggestions are defeated, the reporting of the bill to the House will be that it was not agreed to. This means the government has lost the confidence and support of the House. No doubt it will resign unless it is restrained for the moment by the Opposition leaders, who are in dred of injuring Britain's position in Europe at the present moment.

OTTAWA MAN ON HIS DEATH BED

Wm. Ogilvie Is Suffering From Septic Poisoning.

FRENZIED WITH WHISKEY PASSENGER RAN AMUCK

Escaped From Train as it Travelled Fifty Miles an Hour.

North Bay, Nov. 11.—Considerable excitement was caused on the C.P.R. passenger train east of North Bay by a man becoming insane and running amuck, threatening the passengers.

The man rushed up and down the car yelling and acting in an irresponsible manner. The train crew were summoned and locked him in the lavatory.

He was traveling east with his wife and seven children, and, according to the wife's story, had been an abstainer for many years, but after he got on the train a fellow passenger had treated him to whisky and the mania resulted.

After a time his ravings ceased and the lavatory was found to be empty. A broken window showed that the man had escaped from the train, which was going at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

At the next station the wife and children left the train. An hour or so later the man turned up at the station. His clothing was in ribbons and he was covered with mud, but beyond a few bruises he was not seriously injured, and with his senses restored by his sensational experience he was able to continue with his family on the next train.

Sprinkler Does $1,000 Damage.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Fire which started in a heap of rubbish on the Randell flat in the Bond Building, at Wellington and Simcoe streets, on Saturday morning led to damage amounting to $1,000, when the automatic sprinkler system was set off on the flats occupied by the Randell & Johnston Co. and Dilchinoff & Co. The fire was put out without an alarm being sent in.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause. Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it siezes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cure Kidneys and Liver

A FEDERAL HEALTH DEPARTMENT

The new Dominion Medical Health Council will ask the Dominion Government to establish a department of public health. The proposition will not be a new one to the Canadian parliament, which has had the question presented at various times, but there will be no more likelihood of it being carried out at the present time.

The various provinces have such departments now, that of Ontario being recently re-organized as being increasingly effective, but it is not difficult to see how the work of the provinces could be materially assisted by a Federal Department. In the matter of immigration there is much work to be done, since all the provinces are affected by the class of immigrants received. In the matter of prevention of disease being carried to Canada there is also a field that is certainly wider in its jurisdiction than any provincial department can be made.

In public health work much depends upon co-operation and uniformity of effort at a given time. Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, may all be doing effective work in their own line, but fail when called upon to deal with one common question. This is the point where a larger body, wider in its outlook and in jurisdiction and powers, could step in, if necessary, and make scattered efforts effective.

There never was any serious objection to the proposal for such a department when the question was before the Commons in years past. It was usually a field day for the doctors in the Commons when the matter came up, for they were as one man in its support. The Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier never opposed the idea, but simply let it drop. If Borden's Government decides to take up the measure they should find little difficulty in making it an effective addition in the great fight against disease.

THE STAR AND THE PLUTOCRATS

The Toronto Star varies its tune on the navy by complaining that the state secrets are for millionaires. It says that Mr. Kemp and Mr. Osler, two wealthy members of Parliament, have been told the policy which Mr. Borden will propose to Parliament in respect of the Canadian contribution to the British navy. It wants to know if the information has been imparted to all the members of Parliament, and if not, how rich must a Member of Parliament be in order to acquire information in advance of the general body? What is the money qualification for the knowledge of state secrets? It wants to know if there are any railway magnates or bank magnates who know all about this dread secret which the ordinary elector must not know.

All this, of course, is beside the question. The Star merely uses the incident that if Mr. Osler and Mr. Kemp, being very wealthy, are also members of the Borden cabinet, and therefore possess knowledge of the cabinet matters, to convey the impression that the Borden Government is a millionaire concern. It is unfortunately too true that the Borden Government possess a full share of millionaires. But Mr. Borden has sufficient strength, the party in the House has sufficient strength to keep down any element in the millionaire membership that may be inimical to the best welfare of the country. Let Canada be run for the benefit of Canadians, of the common people. We may have plutocrats in this country, but certainly we will not have a "dynasty of dollars" if we can prevent it. Too much wealth, concentrated into the hands of a few people, is certainly against the best interests of any country. But the fear of the Toronto Star that the Borden naval policy is liable to be tarnished because the two Toronto members of the cabinet know o' it ought not to keep it awake o' nights.

SANE HOME RULE

The Canadian Gazette, of London England, believes that the political situation in Great Britain is moving towards a Round Table conference on the Home Rule question that will include representatives of Canada, Australia, and other oversea portions of the Empire, as well as delegates from England, Scotland Wales and Ireland. "Devolution is absolutely necessary to relieve the paralysis of congestion to which the Parliament at Westminster is condemned, but it must be a devolution which can be applied equally to English, Scottish and Welsh affairs, and it is futile to expect to bring peace to the United Kingdom by granting to Ireland financial customs, postal and other concessions which must be denied to the substantial purseholder in the partnership, England, and to Scotland and Wales."

What is needed is a scheme that will relieve the mother Parliament of the burden of local legislation, set up truly provincial legislatures in each part of the United Kingdom and lay the foundation for a constitution fitted to the Imperial needs of the Empire in the years to come. The Gazette has been inspired to suggest a Round Table Conference by Mr. A. J. McMillan's letter to The London Times setting forth the objections of foremost Canadians most of them Imperial Liberals, to the present dangerous Home Rule measure. Mr. McMillan's informants include: 1—A judge of the Supreme Court of Canada; 2—a member of the Dominion Cabinet; 3—the Chief Justice of one of the Canadian courts; 4—a gentleman who for some years has been Governor of a Canadian Province; 5—one of the best known railway and bank directors in Canada; 6—one of the most influential members of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's late Cabinet. All of them regard the Asquith Bill as fatal to the Empire if adopted, all of them believe it a subordinate provincial legislature for Ireland such as Ontario possesses, and all hope that a fundamentally federal plan with similar legislatures for England and Scotland may yet be worked out. The News is convinced that the great majority of those Canadians, who understand the situation hold similar views. — Toronto News.

Twin Cities' Railway Dispute.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—The town of Waterloo will proceed at once to apply to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to adjudicate the differences between that municipality and the city of Berlin regarding the profits of the Berlin Street Railway earnings, of which Waterloo asserts it is not receiving its proper share. At present Berlin taxes its street railway, which Waterloo claims it cannot legally do as it is a municipally owned railway.

SCIATICA

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 50 cents per bottle, trial size, 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Plants Which Look Like Stones.

In South Africa there is found a plant of the genus Mesembryanthemum growing on stony ground, which so closely resembles a pebble that it is invariably taken by the stranger to be a stone. Another species of the same plant produces two leaves about as large as ducks' eggs, having a surface resembling weathered stone of brownish gray color, tinged with green. These plants look like stones; but for a short time they put forth bright yellow flowers. Still another species of the same plant resembles the quartz pebbles among which it grows.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE.

COPYRIGHT 1911 By H. K. FLY CO.

The other passengers were equally downcast. Meanwhile the two lovers in the corridor were kissing good-byes as if they were hoping to store up honey enough to sustain their hearts for a three years' fast. And the porter was studying them with perplexity.

He was used, however, to waking people out of dreamland, and he began to fear that if he were discovered spying on the lovers, he might suffer. So he coughed discretely three or four times.

Since the increasing racket of the train made no effect on the two hearts beating as one, the small matter of a cough was as nothing.

Finally the porter was compelled to reach forward and tap Mallory's arm, and stutter:

"'Scuse me, but co-could I git b-by?"

The embrace was untied, and the lovers stared at him with a dazed, where-am-I? look. Marjorie was the first to realize what awakened them. She felt called upon to say something, so she said, as carelessly as if she had not just emerged from a young gentleman's arms:

"Oh, porter, how long before the train starts?"

"Train's done started, Missy."

This simple statement struck the wool from her eyes and the cotton from her ears, and she was wide enough awake when she cried: "Oh, stop it—stop it!"

"That's mo'n I can do, Missy," the porter expostulated.

"Then I'll jump off," Marjorie vowed, making a dash for the door.

But the porter filled the narrow path, and waved her back.

"Vestibule's done locked up—train's going lickety-split." Feeling that he had safely checkmated any rashness, the porter squeezed past the dumbfounded pair, and went to change his blue blouse for the white coat of his chambermaidenly duties. Mallory's first wondering thought was a rapturous feeling that circumstances had forced his dream into reality. He thrilled with triumph. "You've got to go with me now."

"Yes—I've got to go," Marjorie assented meekly; "then, sublimely, "It's fate. Kismet!"

They clutched each other again in a fiercely blissful hug. Marjorie came back to earth with a bump: "Are you really sure there's a minister on board?"

"Pretty sure," said Mallory, sobering a trifle.

"But you said you were sure?"

"Well, when you say you're sure that means you're not quite sure."

It was not an entirely satisfactory justification, and Marjorie began to quake with alarm: "Suppose there shouldn't be?"

"Oh, then," Mallory answered carelessly, "there's bound to be one tomorrow."

Marjorie realized at once the enormous abyss between then and the morrow, and she gasped: "Tomorrow! And no chaperon! Oh, I'll jump out of the window."

Mallory could prevent that, but when she pleaded, "What shall we do?" he had no solution to offer. Again it was she who received the first inspiration.

"I have it," she beamed.

"Yes, Marjorie?" he assented, dubiously.

"We'll pretend not to be married at all."

He seized the rescuing ladder: "That's it! Not married—just friends."

"Till we can get married—"

"Yes, and then we can stop being friends."

"My love—my friend!" They embraced in a most unfriendly manner.

An impatient yelp from the neglected dog-basket awoke them.

"Oh, Lord, we've brought Snoozleums."

"Of course we have." She took the dog from the prison, tucked him under her arm, and tried to compose her bridal face into a merely friendly countenance before they entered the car. But she must pause for one more kiss, one more of those bitter-sweet good-byes. And Mallory was nothing loath.

Hudson and Shaw were still glumly perplexed, when the porter returned in his white jacket.

"I bet they missed the train; all this work for nothing," Hudson grumbled. But Shaw, seeing the porter, caught a gleam of hope, and asked anxiously:

"Say, porter, have you seen anything anywhere that looks like a freshly married pair?"

"Well," and the porter rubbed his eyes with the back of his hand as he chuckled, "well, they's a mighty lovin' couple out theah in the corridor."

"That's them—they—it!"

Instantly everything was alive and in action. It was as if a bugle had shrilled in a dejected camp.

"Get ready!" Shaw commanded "Here's rice for everybody."

"Everybody take an old shoe," said Hudson. "You can't miss in this narrow car."

"There's a kazoo for everyone, too," said Shaw, as the outstretched hands were equipped with wedding ammunition. "Do you know the 'Wedding March'?"

"I ought to by this time," said Mrs. Whitcomb.

Right into the tangle of preparation, old Ira Lathrop stalked, on his way back to his seat to get more cigars.

"Have some rice for the bridal couple?" said Ashton, offering him of his own double-handful.

But Lathrop brushed him aside with a romance-hater's growl.

"Watch out for your head, then," cried Hudson, and Lathrop ducked just too late to escape a neck-filling, hair-filling shower. An old shoe took him a clip abaft the ear, and the old woman-hater dropped raging into the same berth where the spinster, Anne Gattie, was trying to dodge the same downpour.

Still there was enough of the shrapnel left to overwhelm the two young "friends," who marched into the aisle, trying to look indifferent and prepared for nothing on earth less than for a wedding charivari.

Mallory should have done better than to entrust his plans to fellows like Hudson and Shaw, whom he had known at West Point for diabolically joyous, hazers and practical jokers. Even as he sputtered rice and winced from the impact of flying footgear, he was cursing himself as a double-dyed idiot for asking such men to engage his berth for him. He had a sudden instinct that they had doubtless bedecked his trunk and Marjorie's with white satin furbelows and ludicrous labels. But he could not shelter himself from the white sleet and the black thumps. He could hardly shelter Marjorie, who cowered behind him and shrieked even louder than the romping tormentors.

When the assailants had exhausted the rice and shoes, they charged down the aisle for the privilege of kissing the bride. Mallory was dragged and punted and shunted here and there, and he had to fight his way back to Marjorie with might and main. He was tugging and striking like a demon, and yelling, "Stop it! stop it!"

Hudson took his punishment with uproarious good nature, laughing:

"Oh, shut up, or we'll kiss you!"

But Shaw was scrubbing his wry lips with a seasick wail of:

"Wow! I think I kissed the dog."

There was, of necessity, some pause for breath, and the combatants draped themselves limply about the seats. Mallory glared at the twin Benedict Arnolds and demanded:

"Are you two thugs going to San Francisco with me?"

"Don't worry," smiled Hudson, "we're only going as far as Kedzie avenue, just to start the honeymoon properly."

If either of the elopers had been calmer, the solution of the problem would have been simple. Marjorie could get off at this suburban station and drive home from there. But their wits were like pied type, and they were further jumbled, when Shaw broke in with a sudden: "Come, see the little dove-cote we fixed for you."

Before they knew it, they were both haled along the aisle to the white satin atrocity. "Love in a bungalow," said Hudson. "Sit down—make yourselves perfectly at home."

"No—never—oh, oh, oh!" cried Marjorie, darting away and throwing herself into the first empty seat—Ira Lathrop's berth. Mallory followed to console her with caresses and murmurs of, "There's there, don't cry, dearie!"

Hudson and Shaw followed close with mawkish mockery: "Don't cry, dearie."

And now Mrs. Temple intervened. She had enjoyed the initiation ceremony as well as anyone. But when the little bride began to cry, she remembered the pitiful terror and shy shame she had undergone as a girl-wife, and she hastened to Marjorie's side, brushing the men away like gnats.

"You poor thing," she comforted. "Come, my child, lean on me, and have a good cry."

Hudson grinned, and put out his own arms: "She can lean on me, if she'd rather."

Mrs. Temple glanced up with indignant rebuke: "Her mother is far away, and she wants a mother's breast to weep on. Here's mine, my dear."

The impudent Shaw tapped his own military chest: "She can use mine."

Infuriated at this bride-baiting Mallory rose and confronted the two imps with clenched fists: "You're a pretty pair of friends, you are!"

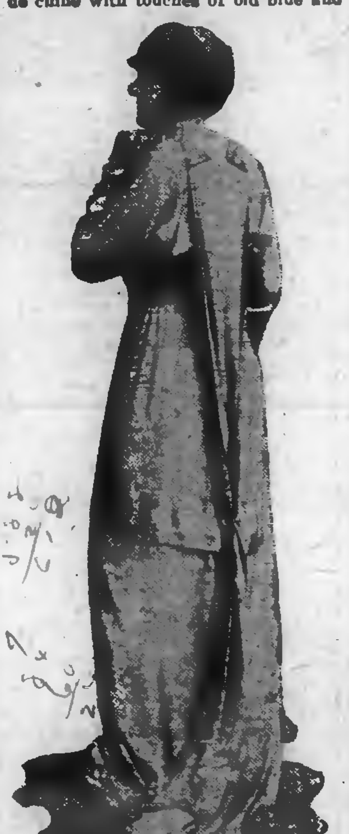
Here It Is, the Watteau Plait.

This gown is especially designed for a young girl. It has the clinging lines and graceful draperies that are so charming for indoor wear.

As pictured it is made of gray crepe de chine with touches of old blue and silver embroidery and a wide, draped sash of old blue silk.

The watteau panel at the back is knotted below the hips, the ends falling in sash effect over the train.



OF GRAY CREPE DE CHINE.

Make Your Own Tarragon Vinegar.

Now is the time to make tarragon vinegar. Strip three ounces of leaves from the branches of tarragon, put them into a quart fruit jar and fill with good vinegar. Close and let stand for about twenty days, then strain and bottle for use. The best vinegar to use for this purpose is white wine vinegar, but cider vinegar will answer. The amount of tarragon used costs 15 cents and the white wine vinegar 10 cents per quart. You will have an expensive vinegar at a small cost and free from adulteration. Dry stems flavor soup.

This vinegar is used for salads and snappy sauces.

Household Hints.

The way to launder a round centerpiece and keep it flat:

Wash it with white soap in the usual way, wring out the centerpiece, have a piece of white muslin or a sheet spread upon the carpet, then take the centerpiece and spread it on the sheet or muslin, which should be larger than the centerpiece, pin the centerpiece all around the edges and see that it is smooth. After it is pinned out put a cover over it to keep it clean while it is drying. This is an easier and better way than ironing. Be sure that the centerpiece is dry before taking it up.

The police often get those who help themselves.

FATAL CIVILIZATION.

The White Eskimos Will Soon Perish Under Its Ministrations.

It is with conflicting emotions that one hears of preparations already making to raise out of barbarism and paganism the white Eskimos discovered in the far north of Canada by Dr. Stefansson. Missionaries, unquestionably inspired by the highest motives and nobly prepared to encounter cruel hardship and even death for the good of this long-lost tribe, are planning to live with and teach them, and presumably fur dealers and other traders will be equally or more prompt in doing their part toward convincing the supposed descendants of Lief Ericson that Stone Age fashions are out of date.

Of course complaint about the inevitable is useless. The white Eskimos have been found. That means the end of their isolation, but it also means, almost certainly, their rapid destruction. No tribe or race as delicately adjusted to a peculiar environment as these Eskimos must be to have survived where they are, ever yet long withstood contact with a higher and stronger civilization. The common result of such contact has been a ruthless extermination of the weaker people, either by war or slavery. When the efforts have been made with the kindly intention of civilizing and elevating the barbarians the effects upon them have usually been equally disastrous.

While the inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego lived out of doors with no other protection, where it snows every month in the year, than a single skin slung over the windward shoulder, they were healthy and fully able with their rude implements to hold their own against their dreadful climate. When they were persuaded to wear clothes and live in real houses—and to struggle with the vices as well as the virtues of civilization—of course they could not do in a lifetime what it has taken us thousands of years to learn, and they proceeded to die off with great rapidity.

This experience has been repeated a hundred times on all of the out-of-the-way corners of the earth, and though the other Eskimos have not disappeared as fast as savages usually do under civilized tutors, yet their numbers have rapidly waned, as every traveler in their country has noted. And the other Eskimos were particularly fortunate in having tutors who did not try to do too much for them or to change their habits too speedily. The white tribe may be treated with equal discretion, but there is every probability that for them, too, the approach of civilization will be fatal.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?
There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.
SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

PLEA FOR COLLEGE ROOM.

Not Necessary That It Should Be a Junk Heap.

It has for a long time seemed necessary for the college girl's room to be a cross between a gymnasium and a junk-shop. This is altogether a fatal idea, not only from an artistic point of view, but from the point of view of the work to be done at college, play to be played at college and health to be maintained at college. It stands to reason that in a room which is insanely furnished concentration on anything—play or work—is bound to be more difficult to attain, and from this difficulty of attainment a strain naturally ensues.

Surely if there is anything to be avoided at college it is strain of any kind whatever. The sane room, then, is one answer to the question of how to overcome some of the nervous tension that seems to cause breakdowns and the relinquishing of college courses.

The sane room does not mean a colorless, prim or cold room. On the contrary, it means just the opposite. It means a room that is hospitable, warm in coloring (not hot) and consistent in design—a room, in other words, as conducive to rest and tranquility as it is to consistent, undiverted thought and to the most enjoyable type of camaraderie, room parties and the inevitable "eats."

If the inmate of a certain room is a clever athlete all the more reason why her trophies should be housed in her room in such a way as not to cause her eyes or thoughts to wander from the tasks in hand and also so that they will not fall every time she or some one else passes them. All the more, too, if she is athletic should she have—yes, should she need—a room which makes for repose and not unquiet. Far better is it for the "greasy grind" to have a hodgepodge room, for then her mind might be diverted reasonably from her overconscientiousness. But even for her this kind of a room is unwise, because with all the effort and strain needed for the closest kind of application to her work she should, even as the athlete, have a room that tends to organization rather than to disintegration. Otherwise her effort is the greater, with the consequent increase of strain to her body and mind.

A BIG CHANGE AT POLICE COURT

New Premises Likely to be Used This Week

The new addition and improvements to the police station are about completed, and Chief Thompson said to-day that he expected to hold court there some time this week. A big surprise awaits all who are unfamiliar with the change that has been wrought. Everything looks bright and new, from the varnished woodwork to the handsome new furniture and fixtures which have been installed. The court room is much larger than formerly and has taken on the aspect of a regular metropolitan court of justice. Directly in front of the Magisterial dais, is a long new table for the use of the legal men and the press. Behind this, at a convenient space, is the prisoner's dock. The railing separating the spectators from the court is just behind the dock.

To one side of the Magistrate's bench is a desk for the chief constable. All court requirements and stationary will be kept in a cabinet conveniently reached from the Chief's desk. All that remains yet to be done is the laying of matting on the floor.

A new desk has been installed in the Sergeant's office, and the guard room is furnished with new chairs.

COMMISSIONERS TO ACT ON REPORT OF THE ENGINEER

At a meeting of the Water Commissioners Saturday evening the secretary was instructed to see Samual Belcher and request him to furnish the Commissioners with all the information he had regarding the levels of the water in the river from Auburn to above the old pump house.

The John McDougall Company enclosed a copy of a letter they had sent to Mr. W. Kennedy regarding the pump furnished by them. The secretary was instructed to reply that the Commissioners can not see their way to do otherwise than abide by the report of Mr. Kennedy and they ask that his order of February 6th, 1912, that the pumping unit be removed be carried out forthwith. The secretary was also asked to inform the Auburn Power Company that Nov. 19th at 1.30 p.m., would suit the Commissioners for the conference regarding the level of the water in the river, which they suggested.

SUDDEN CALL TO CHAS. H. HINDLEY

Cold He Contracted, Developed into Pneumonia

Charles H. Hindley, representative of Messrs. Rylands and Sons, Limited, of Manchester, England, passed away at Nicholl's hospital this morning at seven o'clock from an attack of pneumonia, which developed from a cold in the chest, the late Mr. Hindley contracted previous to arriving in Peterborough last Wednesday night from Belleville. On Friday, when his condition showed no improvement, Dr. Young was called and Sunday morning, Mr. Hindley was removed to the hospital. A consultation between Drs. Young and Halliday was held last evening, when the case was pronounced as hopeless.

The late Mr. Hindley who was 35 years of age had been identified with Rylands and Sons Limited for the past twenty years, during which time he earned the reputation of one of the most valued and reliable employes of the firm. When the question of a successor to the late W. E. Williams of Manchester, arose Mr. Hindley's abilities won him the position and he entered on the field covered by the late Mr. Williams' for twenty years, and which included this district.

The late Mr. Hindley has been in Canada since September, his territory being from Quebec as far west as Bowmanville. He was a member of the A. F. & A. M., Caledonian lodge, No. 204, of Manchester. Surviving him in England are a widow and one child and a number of brothers and sisters in the vicinity of Manchester.

The firm's Western Ontario representative, Mr. Thos. Bilsbury and a close friend of the deceased came to the city on Saturday morning and remained in constant attendance on Mr. Hindley to the last.

Mr. Bilsbury who is a past Junior Warden of the lodge in Manchester will be assisted in the funeral arrangements by the Peterborough Masons when an answer is received to a cablegram sent to England this morning.

CITY OF CANTON IS FIRE SWEPT

Canton, Nov. 10.—A considerable area in Canton has been swept by a fire which began early this morning, and which is still burning. A few hours after it began the fire had destroyed 1,000 or more buildings. The general post office and many warehouses were among these. The fire has spread across the Chu Kiang to the Island of Honan one of the important suburbs.

The foreign settlement is on the Honan side of the river.

THE "FINIS" AT FERN.

Saying Farewell to Summer Is a Dreary Occupation.

Consider the case of Fern. Fern is just any Canadian summer resort. And the season is done. There will be a few straggling visitors for a month yet, but the gaiety of the place has departed. Just as it reached its height, the exodus began.

Over on the tennis court the net is hanging limp and lonely. A stray ball, with a gaping wound in its side, affords but sorry company. The marker has been overturned, and the spilled whiting leaves a splotch upon the grass. The lines have been dimmed by dew. There are no players. Only the pattering footsteps of the rain make music occasionally upon the deserted court.

Down near the little dock an all-summer tenter is pulling up his stakes. The dock itself is warped and twisted by the washing waves. The season has been a hard one—high water and many storms. They have left the little wharf in sinuous dilapidation. It has been battered by seas and bumped by boats. Its day is done. Next year, they tell you, they will have a bigger dock in a better place. And they will have a dining hall and goodness knows what else. One of the most melancholy features of the summer's end is that inevitably recurring promise of improvements—most of which never come.

The all-season tenter goes to the pavilion for a last look at his household goods. There, snuggled up to a fire, he finds a little company, a rump parliament of remnants, talking about the inclemency of the season, and the poor fishing, and next year—always next year. Here, at last, is the remnant of the summer's flock. The lawns, the tennis courts, the wharf, all are deserted. These few in the pavilion could disport themselves if they would, but they do not. An indefinable something broods over the place and puts a damper upon them all. Early in the season, in weather even less enjoyable, they would be out in the open, planning, playing, making cheerfulness. But now they gather around the fire.

Some one looks out the window and notes that a mist has hid the further islands. Dull clouds become duller. The latest arrivals (there are always those who come when all are going) stroll in from somewhere to escape the drizzle which has begun to fall. As they come, the group about the fire speculate idly as to their aloofness. There is a conjecture that these middle-aged people are newly-married, and that this is their honeymoon; a sudden silence as they enter.

From beyond the nearest island a lonely fisherman rows in disconsolately in the drifting rain.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Public Health Problems.

"Old political problems are being thrown into the scrap heap and peole are demanding new leaders capable of leading them to a solution of problems that count for more in the national welfare and whose solution will result in greater human efficiency."

These words of Dr. W. A. Evans at the convention of the Canadian Public Health Association should be pondered over by the young men who are growing up into the responsibilities of public life. The old ideals of facing death in battle and other military and naval ways are beginning to look rather crude beside the life and death struggles entailed by our changing social conditions. An epidemic often kills far more than a military campaign. Diseases like consumption, which carry off three thousand people in Ontario alone every year, are plagues far worse than the encroachments of alien nations. Pure water, clean milk, food free from germs are of vital importance to the people.

There has been a disposition on the part of some citizens to undervalue the work done for months past by Dr. Hastings in the city health department of Toronto, but the meeting of the health association should have the good effect of laying proper emphasis on the importance of their work, many features of which have hitherto been neglected.—Toronto World.

Grading Brings Results.

One important feature of the Nova Scotia apple business this year is the toning up of its quality by the good work United Fruit companies of Nova Scotia are doing. In the past it was impossible to get two uniform packs of apples from as many warehouses. This year all the co-operative pack, which will be fully half of the apples sent out of the Annapolis Valley, is being done under the supervision of instructors employed by the company giving a guaranteed standard from every warehouse under their control.

The co-operative companies have set a standard higher than the Fruit Mark Act calls for, which has enabled them to command an advance of at least 2 per cent. per barrel above the ordinary farmers' pack.

METEORITES

Subject of Address by Mr. H. B. Collier of Toronto

Notwithstanding inclement weather a large number attended the regular monthly meeting of the Hamilton Astronomical Association society held last night in the lecture room of the public library. H. B. Collier, of Toronto, addressed the meeting on the subject of Meteorites, his address being illustrated with interesting limelight views. William Bruce, chairman of the evening, in a brief opening address announced to the society that Rev. Dr. Marsh, who was to have addressed the meeting, was unable to be present, owing to the serious illness of his father, and that Mr. Collier had very kindly consented to take his place.

In the address given by Mr. Collier, he described meteorites as being missiles which speed through space as a fusillade till the positive air was reached. He estimated that as many as twenty million meteorites came in contact with the air at one time, the result of the contact being to check the advance of the missiles. Tests made on the ocean showed that the meteorites which circulated in those regions created a certain dust surface, the resulting particles forming a crystalized substance and might be construed as messages from other worlds. A century ago, scientists scoffed at the idea of meteorites, but to-day, wise men were giving it their serious consideration. The speaker said that the Victoria meteorite was regarded by the West Canadian Indians as a God, its peculiar information, which was like a stone, being their idea of such a being. In 1794, after the eruption of Vesuvius and only seventeen hours after, stones fell a distance of 250 miles from the centre of eruption. It was afterwards shown by examination that the outer surface of these stones had passed through extreme heat, while it was also shown that the inner portions were not so affected.—Hamilton Spectator.

To Cure Brittle Nails

Brittleness of the nails is caused by a weakened physical condition. Then again if you do your own housework the strong soap which you probably use for cleaning purposes will make your nails brittle.

Twice a day hold the tips of your fingers for five minutes in a vessel containing enough olive oil to cover the nails. At night before retiring dip the fingers into cold cream and let the tips take up as much as they will retain. After this dip them into talcum powder.

Never polish the nails too vigorously, as this beats them and increases their dryness.

CONVENTION ON WEDNESDAY

Rev. R. B. McAmmond to Speak in George Street Church

The district convention of the Methodist Church will be held in George Street Methodist Church, on Wednesday, Nov, 13th, afternoon and evening.

Rev. R. B. McAmmond, returned missionary, will deliver an address on West China. He is an eloquent and effective speaker. Of the causes leading up to the last rebellion and also the results, he is thoroughly conversant, as he was engaged in the work when the rebellion broke out.

The public is cordially invited to attend both sessions.

IVORY MADE FROM MILK.

One of the Latest Achievements of Synthetic Chemistry.

Synthetic chemistry is working wonders in many fields, and one of the latest discoveries by its experts is how to make ivory out of nothing more wonderful than cow's milk—and very good ivory at that, according to all accounts. The original idea was to use the new "ivory" for piano and organ keys because it preserves its original color indefinitely, whereas the genuine article turns yellow after a time.

But it has been found that the new product is not only an efficient substitute for ivory, but can easily be prepared so as to take the place of amber, horn, coral, celluloid and such like products and, it is claimed, can hardly be distinguished from them.

It is in its position as a substitute for ivory that the new material has caused most surprise, however, because it has the appearance of being another instance of improving upon nature. The new ivory takes a very high and lasting polish and probably will not lack a commercial field for itself, as natural ivory continues to grow scarcer and dearer year by year. —Allahabad Pioneer.

A Labor of Love

Twenty Years Have Seen Thousands of Those Stricken by Tuberculosis Return to Health.

Story of the Fight that Big-Hearted Men Are Waging Against the Deadliest Foe of the White Man.

It is twenty years now, since a young clerk in a big Canadian business house walked into his chief's office one day, and announced that he was leaving the firm's employ.

"Why, what's the matter?"

"My lungs, sir. I have to go to Colorado, the doctor says." And then he told the whole story, just as any young man might tell it and as hundreds of young men have told it—with shattered prospects and probable death staring them in the face. Tuberculosis has set its hand upon him, he said. He had received the first unmistakeable sign a few days before; and his doctor had told him that his only chance was to go to a warmer and drier climate.

He gave up his position, gathered up his few assets and went.

The episode was common enough, but its nearness brought it home with greater force to the chief and it set him thinking. This young man was able to take the step which would save his life, but what of the thousands who were not? They died and that was all there was to it. It was a matter of common belief in those days—and still is in some parts—that the consumptive was doomed. The business man's memory traveled back to a blacksmith he had known, who was the sole survivor of a family of fourteen, all victims of tuberculosis. The idea was appalling, and then and there he accepted his life work. He set himself to the task of bettering the condition of the victims of the white plague.

Triumph Over Apathy.

That was the beginning of the movement in Canada and its annals extending over two decades tell a story of triumph over apathy, ignorance and even misrepresentation and a result which while it places Ontario far in the lead of any other district in America, still leaves the dream of its pioneers unfulfilled.

MR. W. J. GAGE.

The man who accepted a brief for the consumptive that day in his office was W. J. Gage of Toronto, and the outcome of the labor of many devoted hands is the institution known as the National Sanitarium Association.

At the time when Mr. Gage sallied forth to launch his idea the myth still prevailed that cures could only be affected in southern climates or in the altitudes of the Rockies. So he went first to Kamloops, B.C., and looked at a site there. A place was selected and Sir William Van Horne, then president of the Canadian Pacific, generously volunteered to carry patients free from all parts of Canada. In the meantime, however, the success of Dr. Trudeau in the Adirondacks drew the attention of medical men again to the east and the land chosen at Kamloops finally passed into the hands of the British Columbia Government for its own hospital. Medical men realized that Muskoka possessed all the necessary qualifications for successful treatment and doctors declared that it would be suitable for the summer season, but that in the winter it would be too cold. They little dreamed that the winter cure was later to play so important a part in the fight against the disease.

Turned to Muskoka.

Mr. Gage made a proposal to the city of Toronto that if they would furnish a site adjacent to the city he would give $25,000 towards a hospital. Civic bodies are not celebrated for speed, and two years elapsed and no action was taken. Mr. Gage then turned to the highlands of Ontario.

In the interval willing helpers had come forward, Hart A. Massey, manufacturer and philanthropist, agreeing to give $25,000. Dr. James E. Graham, who later gave up his life in the cause; Dr. N. A. Powell, Ambrose Kent, Hon. George A. Cox, Hugh Blain, Edward Gurney, Hon. W. A. Charlton, and others lent their aid and it was not long before the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium was built near Gravenhurst and operating with a full equipment and staff. It was the second institution of its kind in America, and the first in Canada. Mr. Gage and Dr. Graham, then consultant for the city of Toronto, chose the site and peculiarly enough it was at that place some years later that Dr. Graham fell a victim to the disease against which he had fought so long, and died a martyr to his life work.

The sanatorium was running on a half charitable basis at six dollars a week, but the pioneers found themselves up against a blank wall. Low as the charges were, the founders could not secure donations for an institution which charged a fee.

Free Hospital Started.

So in 1902 the association erected the first building of the Muskoka Free Hospital, and it marked a step such as few nations in the world have taken even at the present time.

The enlistment of the late H. C. Hammond, the "well-beloved," was a typical instance and was eloquent of the man himself. He was passing the time on a Winnipeg train in a quiet game of poker when a doctor who was present told him of the work.

"I like that proposition," said Hammond, "and if you don't mind I'd like to chip in."

He did chip in handsomely and when later on a treasurer was needed he was chosen for the post. From that day until his death he labored unceasingly. His friends tell yet with glistening eyes of the ingenious little devices by which he contributed to funds, without anyone, as he thought, finding out. "A Friend," "No. 46," and a host of other aliases were afterwards found to have concealed the unobtrusive generosity of H. C. Hammond, whom someone has called "the dearest soul who ever drew breath."

H. D. Dwight, who died a few weeks ago, was another to whom the call came more urgently than to most men, and the late John Ewan, the veteran journalist, used his barbed pen to drive home the message to those who could help.

Thus far every effort has been put forward in behalf of those who could still be cured. But a far more pitiable class remained—sufferers who were beyond saving. A department was added for these and a hospital built near Weston, Ont., where they might be cared for and made comfortable in their last days.

Help For Child Victims.

Not long ago the Duke of Connaught laid the corner-stone for a hospital where proper care might be given to the most pathetic of all the classes of patients—the children. Most persons do not realise that such a class exists but there are hundreds of little ones undergoing or awaiting treatment—mere babies whose lives must inevitably be snuffed out unless they are speedily provided for.

It is significant of the attitude of the public towards the relief of consumptives that when the Cabinet Minister who listened to the first application for a charter had heard the addresses of the delegates, his first words were:

"Gentlemen, what you have just said has been a great relief to me. I had always thought tuberculosis was hereditary. My mother died of it, and all my life I have expected that I would some day be a victim."

When a Minister of the crown still believed that the disease was transmitted from parent to child by heredity, it was an uphill fight to persuade the people that consumption was neither inherited nor incurable.

This is the work in which a little band of men are engaged, and they stand only midway in their self-chosen task. The labor of the past twenty years has brought about vast changes for good. The little deputation that went to the Governments of Manitoba, British Columbia, Ontario, Nova Scotia, and the Dominion has seen the seed it sowed spring up into sturdy growth and the pioneers of the movement are in a position to devote themselves more particularly now to Ontario. Government assistance has risen by degrees from the regular hospital allowance of ninety cents to $1.50 a week per patient and now to $3. The death rate from tuberculosis has dropped in spite of the incoming population. But the work is only half done.

Over one and a half million dollars have been spent for the care of these patients. Over 6,000 people have already been treated, and before the close of the present year there will be daily under the care of the Sanitarium Association five hundred patients.

It Can Be Cured.

Consumption is no longer an incurable disease. There was a time when the taint was considered equivalent to a "sentence of death," as John Ewan phrased it, but thousands of cures testify that all that is needed is the equipment and the expert service, and the blot can be wiped out.

The founders of the crusade in Canada are not relaxing their efforts. They are redoubling them and they propose to stay in the field until provision is made for every sufferer irrespective of age or wealth.

Some of the workers have themselves been bereaved; some have seen the blight of the plague very near to them, and they are all intensely in earnest. They propose to go on in the knowledge that they are easing the burdens of men, women and babes whom they see about them.

And after all the world has nothing better for a man than that.

Half of Canada.

It is not generally known that the Northwest Territories comprise half the Dominion and that it is very rich in minerals and that the Yukon alone produces gold to the value of $6,000,000 a year and that almost 1,000 tons of copper are shipped daily from the White Horse mine and that vast copper areas are to be found at the head of White River.

Intimate Friend—Squiggles, how does it seem to have a baby in the house?

It's getting so late that any woman who bought her gown the day before yesterday is out of date.

YOUNG PEOPLE PLAYING THE FOOL

One is the Young Man Dallying at the Wine Cup

"Playing the Fool" was the somewhat unusual subject of a strong and helpful sermon delivered by Rev. J. R. Webb, Sunday evening, to a large congregation in Murray street Baptist church.

"I could enumerate, if I chose, over a hundred ways in which young people persist in playing the fool every day," said the pastor.

"The young man who dallies at the wine cup is playing the fool; the young woman who accepts the attentions of such a young man is playing the fool. The youth who deems it necessary to sow some fields of wild oats is quietly playing the fool. But in mentioning these forms and many others I would be merely dealing with symptoms and not with causes."

The pastor described the foolish conduct of Saul, who followed his business so closely to the complete exclusion of every other thing in life.

After the sermon Mr. Asa Huycke interpreted in splendid voice the "Rest in the Lord and Wait Patiently for Him," passage from Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Mr. Stanley Pollard also rendered a tenor solo with much expression.

At Mass Meeting for the Boys in the Y.M.C.A.

The meeting for boys in the Y.M.C.A yesterday afternoon was a good success. In spite of the beautiful day with its temptation to remain out of doors there was an attendance of eighty-eight. In Mr. Bakers' story address to the boys, he appealed to their reason to cut out everything that might hinder their highest welfare, and to choose to live, good, honest, clean Christian lives. The next meeting of this series will be held on December 8th, when Mr. Brock will speak to the boys.

Saturday evening was a pleasant one for the members of the Right Life Club, who were entertained at the home of their leader, Bruce Marshall. Important business was transacted. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable social time spent. The young men were privileged to meet Dr. Carruthers, who gave a very interesting and exceedingly helpful address

ROLLER WON TWO FALLS ON FOULS BY THE FRENCHMAN

Cazeaux Tried Rough House Tactics and Kicked His Opponent.

Of the second meeting between Roller and Cazeaux, in which the Seattle wrestler was presented with two falls, the Ottawa Citizen has the following account:—

That Raymond Cazeaux, of France, has not yet learned his lesson in the wrestling arena, despite the fact that he has lost nearly every fight this season through rough work, was evidenced at the Laurier Avenue Arena last night, when Dr. Roller, of Seattle, rated as one of the classiest heavyweights in the wrestling game to-day, won two straight falls over the Frenchman on fouls. To say that the "Doc" deserved the victory would be but emphasizing the opinion of all those who witnessed the bout, such a case of gameness never before being witnessed in in Ottawa rink as that displayed by Roller last evening.

The usual bull-dog tactics of Cazeaux were, of course, in evidence and the fact that Roller was altogether too scientific and fast, didn't in the least help to pacify the touring son of France. Starting out rather tamely, with both men trying each other for a successful hold, the spectators were just about to sit back in their seats and enjoy what they expected would be a real wrestling bout, when Cazeaux's temper got the best of him and he made several wild swings at his opponent along with a few vicious kicks. Despite the fact that Referee Davy took the troule to warn him on several occasions, Cazeaux constantly relied on his rough work to get away with the match, and when Roller had stood just about all that was expected of him, Fred Davy called a halt and announced the first fall in favor of the Seattle physician in nine minutes. This by no means had the effect of taming the Frenchman, however, and between the bouts he paraded up and down in front of the reserved seat section, making all sorts of threats against Roller, the crowd and everything in general. It even looked on several occasions as if he would strike the official but nothing like this happened, thanks to the fact that a couple of dozen blue-coated individuals were on hand.

Cazeaux entered the ring for the second bout like a raging bull, and while the "Doc" was content to take his time, the Frenchman rushed matters in an endeavor to get the match over with as soon as possible, despite the fact that his future success as a wrestler rested in the balance of the bout. There was absolutely no wrestling to the second fall, for with every opportunity Cazeaux bit, kicked and swung on his opponent despite the warnings of the referee. There came a time, however, when the Seattle physician thought he had stood just about enough of the rough stuff, and before Cazeaux knew what was happening he received several upper cuts and jabs in the face a la Jack Johnson style. Cazeaux was there with the kicks and jabs again, however, and each time he succeeded in getting Roller to the mat, the latter was forced to take all kinds of punishment until Referee Davy finally called a halt to the fireworks amid a round of applause from the audience, declaring the second fall in favor of Roller in 26 minutes. It might be stated that this was the luckiest minute of Cazeaux's life, for Roller was just on the point of retaliating in record style when he was declared winner.

While the wrestling fans are certainly after the rough stuff, a repetition of last night's affair would probably kill the game in Ottawa for good, several hundred people swarming into the arena after the bout and "booing" the Frenchman until a small sized riot was averted by the intervention of the police. The match was by no means a real wrestling bout, although Roller displayed science and speed which at times took his opponent completely by surprise. He is by far the better man and could probably have made short work of the champion of France in a clean match. The largest crowd of the season witnessed the affair, fully three thousand persons being present.

ROMANCE OF MINING

British Columbia's Annals Make a Fascinating Story.

Some idea of the extent of the mineral resources of British Columbia can be gathered from the well-ascertained results of mining operations carried on since the year 1852. There was mining at that time, especially the mining of gold, and the official computation of production begins with that year. The total production for all years up to and including the year 1911, amounts to the enormous sum of $397,696,722. Of this sum, gold has contributed $137,175,683; silver, $32,053,805; lead, $25,715,126; copper, $65,315,049; the remainder being made up by the contributions of coal, building stone, and metals such as zinc.

Between 1852 and 1891 the production by years has not been tabulated, but since 1891 the total production year by year is given. Of these years, 1910 still holds the record of $26,377,066. Last year the output was three millions less, the decrease being largely due to a falling off in the output of coal, owing to certain disturbances in the labor market.

Last year the output of the three precious metals—gold, silver and copper—had a total value of $10,681,450, gold leading with a value of $5,151,513, but copper was a close second, with a value of $4,571,644.

And some say that mining has only commenced in British Columbia, which is another way of saying that the present operations, output and profits, are small in comparison with what they will be when operations are more fully developed, when other known deposits are worked, and when further discoveries are made. But it is not to the future that it is here proposed to look, but to the past—to the long ago time, when gold was discovered in British Columbia and gold mining commenced.

It has been stated that as early as 1852 Chief Trader McLean, of the Hudson Bay Co., when at Kamloops procured gold-dust from the natives of the Thompson River. Respecting the truth of this statement some doubt has been expressed, and it is pointed out that three years later the same man was "singing the praises of the mines in the American territory, without saying a word of any in his own vicinity"—which is held to make it quite unlikely that he knew of gold having been found in British Columbia.

Coming down four years in the history of the Province, one reaches surer ground respecting the date of date of the discovery of gold, for it is certain that in 1856 or 1857 gold was found in the crevices of rocks on the banks of the Thompson River. Hearing of the find, Chief Trader McLean, of the Hudson Bay Co., went up the river and examined the banks. Sure enough gold was there as reported, and McLean promptly sent down to Fort Victoria for what he called "iron spoons to be used in digging out the nuggets." These were promptly sent up to him with the instructions that he give "as much encouragement as possible to the Indians willing to devote their time and energies to that purpose."

News of the discovery traveled fast, and soon reached the Pacific Coast states, which had had the gold fever ever since the days of the Californian "Forty-Miners." Soon a party of explorers and miners arrived at Victoria, and thence ascended the Fraser River to within a short distance of Fort Gale where they discovered Hill's Bay, which proved very rich.

These miners on Hill's Bay "panned out" daily from one hundred to one hundred and fifty dollars' worth of gold dust, and after a considerable quantity had been secured it was sent down to Victoria in charge of a celebrated character, "Billy" Bardou, an expressman, who had had much experience among the gold camps of California. As soon as it was known that gold dust was being shipped out of the camp more miners came pouring in, and so the gold fever spread as more gold was found.

The Rev. A. G. Morice, O.M.I., in his History of the Northern Interior of British Columbia, states that "the first lot of the precious metal to leave the limits of what is now British Columbia, found its way into San Francisco, where it was taken in February, 1858, by the company's steamer Otter."

An Energetic Author.

Though the chances of Sir Gilbert Parker, the member for Gravesend, Eng., are generally favored for an Under-Secretaryship in the next Unionist Government, it is as a novelist and not as a politician that he holds a promient position in the public eye. When amongst the political pack he is a somewhat colorless individual, but in the realms of fiction he is king.

Sir Gilbert Parker has hustled a trifle during the past twenty years. He is a Canadian by birth, and received his education at Trinity College, Toronto. In his early Canadian days he hit on a method of replenishing his pocket by lecturing, with the aid of a magic-lantern. Then came a period of journalistic work in Australia, when he acted as associate-editor of The Sydney Morning Herald. After traveling round the globe he arrived in England and persuaded the free and independent electors of Gravesend, at the 1900 election, to send him to Parliament as their member, and he has stuck ever since.

Our New Citizens.

During the six months, April 1 to Oct. 1, of the current fiscal year, 273,649 immigrants arrived in Canada. Of this number 189,990 arrived at ocean ports and 89,659 from the United States. These figures show an increase of 13 per cent. as compared with the number of arrivals for the corresponding months of last fiscal year, which were 186,614 at ocean ports and 83,317 from the U.S., a total for the six months of 241,931 persons.

During September this year, there were 31,140 arrivals, 20,690 of them having been at ocean ports, and 10,450 from the States as against 29,077 for September last year, 17,593 of whom were at ocean ports, and 11,484 from the States.

SENORITA RITA

The Story She Told Jack When the Crisis Came.

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

"So you are going home, senor?" The girl looked straight ahead at the wide sweep of level prairie pasture, her red lips parted in a smile—a most tantalizing, annoying smile Carruthers thought as he caught a glimpse of it sideways.

"Perhaps," he returned moodily, "I have stayed too long already."

"You do not like Texas, senor?"

"You did not call me senor last week." He bent toward her slightly, but she did not turn her head. "You called me—Jack."

She laughed and flashed a hasty glance at him from her soft, dark eyes.

"That was a long time ago—last week—but I will call you it again if you wish, Mr. Jack."

Carruthers did not notice the concession or her gay scorn. He stared out to where the cattle browsed—a sea of still, brown waves, hundreds of them, motionless and peaceful in the morning sunrise. Here and there on the outskirts stood a figure of a horse with a silent rider watching the grazing herd. Carruthers' gaze swept over the mass until it rested on one herder at the extreme north. Even with the distance of nearly a mile between them he knew what the figure looked like, knew that it was watching them as he was watching it. It was not a pleasant knowledge.

"You have changed your mind, Senorita Rita," he said bitterly, "since Ramon came to the ranch. I was very happy—in Texas—until your old sweetheart appeared."

Rita laughed again, deliciously, warmly, with a full enjoyment of his mood.

"You are not tired of Texas, Mr Jack," she said merrily. "You are tired of me—ah, yes, I say you are. You love me so madly, so entrancingly, until somebody else comes who also loves me so madly, so entrancingly, too, and then all at once you are jealous and distant and dissatisfied, and, presto, now, this minute, you say you will leave Texas, you will never, never come to the Fortuna ranch again. You are—what did you call me the day I cried when Pep broke his leg?—kid, that is it. You are a big, foolish kid, Mr. Jack. When a man loves he does not sulk and ride away. He stays and fights. See!" She held up her hand and snapped her small tanned fingers sharply in the air. "I would not give that for the silly kid lover who rides away. Ramon is a Mexican, but he is brave; he can fight. If I but let him know the least bit I loved him he would carry me off on his horse 'way, 'way south over there to Mexico. You would not carry me away to your home like that, would you, Mr. Jack?"

"I would carry you to the end of the world," retorted Carruthers.

"But not to your home?" she persisted.

"I have no home," said Carruthers. "When I came here to Texas I meant to stay even before I met you."

"But you are rich. Ramon says you could buy all of the Fortuna for a pastime if you cared for it. And the Fortuna is the richest ranch within a hundred miles of the border. There is no cattleman so rich as my father in Mexico."

She lifted her head with the little tilt of pride he knew well. Senorita Rita Rias, heiress of the Fortuna, could well afford to lift her head a trifle higher than other girls. But to Carruthers the motion brought merely regret. He knew the truth about the Fortuna, knew what every Texan as far as San Antonio would know within a week—that old diablo Rias had squandered his wealth in gambling; that not a thing on the Fortuna was unmortgaged save his daughter, and even she, it was rumored, was pledged to Ramon Doranda in return for his promised assistance when the crash came.

Carruthers might have given the same assistance and claimed the same reward, but something within him revolted against making the hand of the girl he loved the stake in a transaction over old Rias's gambling debts. If he could win her, if he could hold her promise freely from her own lips, then he felt free to buy up the whole Fortuna when the crash came and lay it at her feet. But she must be free to say yes or no. And she would say neither. She would only laugh.

"Have you told Ramon you would marry him?" he asked, with sudden curtness. The uncertainty was maddening to him.

"Why do you ask?" she answered teasingly.

"Rita," he pleaded, "be serious. If you do not"—

She raised her arm with a sudden, imperative gesture and pointed to the herd.

"Look!" she cried. "They are stampeding!"

Carruthers looked. The brown sea had suddenly stirred to life. Undulating, swaying, branching out loosely at the edges, it was lurching toward them. There seemed to be nothing rapid or swift about its coming. Carruthers thought, almost idly, of how it resembled the swing of a bunch of race horses rounding the end of the field, when the movement was so concerted, so deliberate, that it hardly seemed a movement. The herders were riding here and there in confusion. They seemed mere specks of helpless misdirection in the distance.

Rita's face had lost its color. She turned her horse about, the rein held short and tight in her clinched hand.

"We must race before them as they come," she said. "If the horses keep their strength they will not trample us."

But Carruthers had slipped from the saddle.

"It is sure death to try to ride with them," he answered. "Dismount and do as I tell you."

The stern masterfulness of his tone startled her. He had never spoken like that to her; no one had.

"Hold the horses," he ordered. She obeyed, watching him in breathless silence. The brown cloud on the prairie was becoming more and more distinct. There was a heavy, low rumble in the air like far off thunder. Carruthers drew a cigarette case from his pocket, and after hunting carefully he produced one match.

"That is the only one I have," he said. "Pray that it doesn't go out."

He struck it on the box. The faint flame wavered in the southeasterly breeze, caught the end of the cigarette and lit it. Before the match went out Carruthers smelled it and set fire to the grass. It was dry and yellow from the sun and caught the blaze with a snap. The wind fanned it, and a wavering line of thin smoke slid like a snake along the roots for several feet. The horses reared and kicked at the first whiff, and Carruthers seized the bridles from the girl.

"Take the cigarette," he said, handing it to her. "Keep it alight and set fire to the grass as far as you can reach in a straight line facing the north. The wind is from the southeast and will blow the fire toward the herd. It may turn them."

Holding the plunging, trembling horses, he watched her. There was no fear, no sign of weakness. She was alert and sure in her touch as she knelt here and there in the grass and fired it. As the cigarette failed she tore a bunch of grass, tied it with another wisp and set it blazing like a torch. In another minute a wall of smoke and smoldering flame closed them in from the rushing herd line.

"Come back," called Carruthers. The herd were not a quarter of a mile from them. He could see the leaders, heads down, and behind them line after line of tossing horns.

"Will they reach us?" whispered Rita as she stood close beside him, her face lifted to his.

"God knows; I don't," said Carruthers desperately. "It is all we can do."

"Jack, listen to me." There was a new light in her dark eyes, a new softened tone to her voice. "Ramon has done this. The herd has never stampeded before. He has done it for revenge upon you and me. Last night I told him no. I know about him and the claim he holds over the Fortuna and my father, but I would rather lose it all than."—

"Than what?" Carruthers let the bridles trail on the ground and held her close in his arms. The tremble of hundreds of hoofs shook the ground, the thunder grew louder, now and then there came a low, threatening bellow from some steer gored by its fellows in the onrush.

"Than lose you," Rita whispered as she closed her eyes to meet what might come.

The herd was on them, but as the leaders caught the first sickening whiff of smoke they hesitated and wavered. Low leaping tongues of flame flashed up before them and rolls of smoke curled upward.

The leaders swerved westward. After them plunged the frightened herd, maddened and scared at the smell of the fire. The two horses, loosened, joined them in the frantic gallop, and in less than three minutes the danger had passed, and on the blackened bit of land stood Carruthers and Rita alone.

"The river will stop them," said Rita. "Ramon—I know he has done this to harm you. You must leave the ranch. No one can say what he may do next."

Carruthers bent to pick up something from the ground. It was the stub of a cigarette. He placed it tenderly and carefully in his case before he spoke.

"I know what Ramon will do next, sweetheart. He will cross the border into his own land tonight or else land in the hands of the sheriff. I mean to stay in Texas, and there is not room for both of us."

"[illegible] Fortuna?"

"On our ranch," he said. "I bought the Fortuna yesterday to make sure of Ramon and of my senorita."

High Price of Leather.

The rise in the price of leather, attributed in such large part to the development of the automobile industry, means dearer shoes for everybody and inferior shoes for the poorer people. But the actual decrease in the number of cattle in the United States since 1900 is an important factor in leather prices. The federal census of 1910 reported 61,803,866 cattle in this country, or 8.7 per cent less than in 1900. Shoes are going up all over the world, because hides are not as plentiful as they used to be with a smaller population.—Argonaut.

Notwithstanding all the conversation mighty little of it is very considered worth putting on one of those 87 talking machine records.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

BULGARIAN IS STILL AT LARGE

Police Have Carving Knife, He Used on His Victim

Chief Chilton and County Constable Thornbury returned last night after a day's adventure in and around Grass Hill in search of the Bulgarian Soanoff who made the murderous attack upon his countryman.

Chief Chilton stated that a large swamp surrounds the place where the assault took place and that the fugitive fled for this place of ambuscade after the commission of the crime.

The constables searched barns, outbuildings and other places in which he might seek seclusion from the officers, but could not locate him. The officers found one shoe and a sock at his point of entrance to the swamp, which pulled off his foot in the mud. As the man had no clothing on his body but a shirt and trousers and as the swamp is covered with several inches of water it is supposed that he may have succumbed to the cold and died rather than face justice.

Chief Chilton has the knife which he wielded in his vicious attack upon his victim. It is a 12-inch carving knife with a keen edge and sharp point. The victim will recover.

There may be something more than the stabbing affray in connection with the deed and theories are advanced as to the disappearance of the supposed assailant which arouses suspicion.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND AMBITION

Rev. F. J. Sawers Points Out that Christianity Teaches the Highest Ambition

The Rev. F. J. Sawers preached a special sermon to young men and women in St. Luke's Church last night on the subject of "Ambition."

Mr. Sawers took as his text "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God in Heaven." He explained that ambition was sometimes worthy and sometimes unworthy. If a man was ambitious for wealth so as to obtain material comforts, then it was an unworthy ambition, but if he desired wealth so that it would enable him to help the needy and sick, then it was a perfectly laudable ambition. If a chum of another boy were to say to his friend that the thing to live for was to be temperate, good and obtain life everlasting, the friend would laugh at him and probably tell him that he should have been a preacher but on the other hand, supposing such a man as the King should tell the boy the same thing, he would remember it all his life and try to live up to it. Some men believed that Christianity spoils ambition, but they were entirely mistaken. Christianity teaches the highest ambition in the world, that of teaching men to do their service and duty on earth. The greatest man in the eyes of God was the man that gave his service to his brethern.

Patrol Boat Has Been Active in Preventing Illegal Fishing

The Government patrol boat Naiad, with Cap Carson in charge was laid up for the winter at Kirkfield on Saturday. The season has been a very satisfactory one. Among some important seizures made was one of a thousand yards of net in Lake Simcoe, two weeks ago. The fishing in Lake Simcoe and the Kawartha Lakes has been the best in years in the opinion of Inspector Carson.

ELDERLY LADY HAD CLOSE CALL

A team of horses attached to a rig struck an elderly woman at the Simcoe street crossing Saturday evening. She was knocked down and her position appeared precarious for a few seconds. Passersby helped her up and she was taken into a drug store for treatment, where she requested that her name be withheld. Save for some bruises and the shock she was not harmed. A glass lamp shade she was carrying at the time was shattered.

Too often after a man has done his duty it refuses to stay done.

LOOKING ON THE BRIGHT SIDE

If the dawning of the morning
Is so cold and dark and drear,
Let the shining and the warming
From your inward heart appear.

If your brothers are such brothers
And do torment, nag, and tease,
Let the others be offenders—
Calmly rest you at your ease.

If you're baking or you're cooking
And the fire will not burn,
Keep a smiling and a singing—
This will help you in return.

If you're sewing and you're knowing
That you're tired and cast down,
Keep a praying and obeying
But do never wear a frown.

If you're walking and you're talking
And you slip or trip or fall,
Don't be scolding and complaining—
Use your patience, that is all.

If you're tempted, sorely tempted
And if everything goes wrong,
Be encouraged and supported
By an everlasting song.

If you're sighing, and you're trying
To be true and pure and good,
Let no slighting or back-biting
Prevent your doing what you would.

NOT THE BEST YEAR AT KETCHECUM

Hunters Have Had Rather Poor Luck to Date.

Dr. A. W. MacPherson returned last night from a week's hunting with the Ketcheeum Hunt Club. Dr. MacPherson reports the weather a little too warm for good deer hunting and that the Club has had very poor luck so far. Partridge, as well as deer, have been very scarce, although it is thought that the hunting will be better before the camp breaks up. The bad luck seemed confined to his Club, as other parties have had very good luck.

On the way home Dr. MacPherson heard that a bull moose and a black bear had been shot by some hunters near Ketcheeum Lake. The remainder of the Club will return next Saturday.

To Be Radial Hub.

London, Nov. 11.—Chief Engineer Gaby of the Hydro-Electric Commission has prepared a map showing the expected route of the combined radial railway and Hydro-electric transmission line, north and west of London.

The scheme purposes to use one right-of-way for electric railways for the carrying of Niagara power transmission lines. The map shows a radial from London to Windsor, another from London to Sarnia, and a third to St. Mary's and Stratford, and on to Goderich.

These transmission-radial lines to Windsor and Sarnia leave London by way of the Port Stanley Railway right-of-way. The purpose of this in part, is that the Port Stanley Railway gives right-of-way into the heart of the business centre of London for traction lines.

WEDDING BELLS

GARVIN—WARNOCK.

On Saturday afternoon, St. Andrew's church, King street, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Amelia B. Warnock, (Katherine Hale) of Galt, daughter of the late Mr. James Warnock, became the bride of Mr. John W. Garvin, formerly of this city.

The ceremony was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. T. Crawford Brown, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends. Dr. Anderson presided at the organ. Mr. J. B. Warnock brought his sister in and gave her away. She was wearing a travelling suit of amethyst velvet and plumed hat to match, and she carried a satin and chiffon muff and bunch of violets. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Garvin left for New York. On their return they will reside on Glen road.

McCLUSKEY—McMULLEN.

In George street Methodist church at seven o'clock this morning, Rev. Isaac Couch united in marriage, Mr. Frederick McCluskey, of Toronto, and Miss Cora McMullen, of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. McCluskey will reside in Toronto.

CONNELL—BEAUREGARD.

A quiet and pretty wedding took place in St. Peter's Cathedral early this morning, when Mr. Arthur Connell, of Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Miss Belina Almeie Beauregard, of the city. Both parties were unattended. The bride wore a brown tweed travelling suit, with black hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Connel left this morning for Toronto, where they will reside.

LABOR MEN SEE BORDEN

Resolutions Are Presented to the Prime Minister.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Premier Borden received a deputation representing the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Letter Carriers' Association on Saturday, when important resolutions asking for the betterment of certain conditions affecting workingmen and trade unions were presented to him.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, was present, and both the Premier and the Minister of Labor took the greatest interest in all that transpired.

President Watters introduced the deputation in a short speech, in which he informed the Prime Minister that they were the representation of one hundred thousand workingmen. He especially drew attention to the condition of the steel workers in Nova Scotia and asked that a royal commission might be appointed to look into the conditions. He said that not only were the hours of labor much too long and the wages too low, but that officers and organizers of unions were subject to monstrous treatment at the hands of the private police in the employ of the steel interests.

James Simpson of Toronto brought before the Premier a resolution calling for a federal bill granting cheap, simple and effective facilities for the formation of co-operative societies.

Mr. Borden, while promising his careful consideration, said he could not at present make a definite statement.

It also fell to the lot of F. Bancroft to request the repeal of the Lemieux Act. The delegate said that while the congress still believed in the principles of investigation and conciliation, in view of delays in the working of the act and certain decisions in regard to it, they asked for its early repeal.

Delegate Hoop, for the letter carriers, presented the case of postmen for higher wages and shorter hours.

As to the Eyes.

You have no doubt many times been troubled with a cinder or some foreign substance lodging in the eye, and no doubt, like many others, you have rubbed and fretted the poor eye without dislodging the offending particle until the eye is red and sore and the temper well nigh exasperated. A very simple little treatment if employed at once will avert any irritation and nearly always remove the dirt or cinder. It is to catch the upper and lower lids together by the lashes and pull gently out away from the eye, then roll the eye in toward the nose several times. This is an easy remedy, as it permits the fluids to flow over the eye and wash the substance, whatever it may be, out to the corner of the eye, where it is easily ejected, and thus prevents it from becoming lodged in the upper eyelid, where it is most often found when not quickly removed. If the particle has already lodged and cannot be ejected in the manner just described, then the best course is to turn the upper eyelid back and after locating the speck of dirt wipe off with a clean soft cloth dipped in a solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

Homemade Soap Compound.

The following soap compound is given by a reader who says she has found it most excellent: Slice very thin two cakes of ordinary brown soap; add just enough boiling water to cover it and while melting beat the shavings to a pulp. Add half a cupful of gasolene. Beat the mixture again and it is ready for use. This compound acts much like the naphtha soaps on the market. Clothes washed with it do not require boiling and its use will not injure the hands. It ought to be unnecessary to remind housekeepers that the gasoline must not be mixed with the jellied soap when there is a fire in the room.

O'Connell's Humor.

When Sir William Howard Russell (then Mr. Russell) was a young reporter, he was sent to Ireland by The London Times to report Daniel O'Connell's speeches during the repeal agitation. One of the first meetings he attended was in Kerry. Having heard of O'Connell's courtesy, he thought that he would ask permission to make a verbatim report of his speech.

The "Liberator" not only consented, but in his suavest manner informed the assembled audience that "until the gentleman was provided with all writing conveniences he wouldn't speak a word."

Russell was delighted. His preparations were soon completed.

"Are you quite ready?" asked O'Connell.

"Quite ready," Russell replied.

"Now, you are sure you're entirely ready?"

"I'm certain, sir."

The crowd was becoming excited and impatient. O'Connell rebuked them.

"Now, upon my conscience," said he, "I won't begin my speech till the London gentleman is entirely ready."

After waiting another moment O'Connell advanced to the front of the platform. Eyes glistened, ears were all attention, and the reporter's pencil was poised in the air. O'Connell bestowed one more benignant smile on the correspondent, winked wickedly at his auditors, and began his speech—in the Gaelic language!

London's Foot Traffic.

The City of London streets near the Mansion House are said to have the heaviest foot-passenger traffic of any capital in the world—namely, 500,000 persons per weekday. The Place de l'Opera, in Paris, has the heaviest vehicular traffic—63,000 vehicles per day, as compared with 50,000 per day at the Mansion House corner. The Place de l'Opera has 450,000 foot-passengers per weekday, or only 50,000 per day fewer than the most crowded London street. Fewer than 600,000 persons pass along the Broadway, New York, in the day on foot, but more than 700,000 pass in motor-cars and tram-cars.

MURDER OF SPAIN'S PREMIER FOLLOWED BY ASSASSIN'S SUICIDE

FOUR SHOTS FIRED AT THE PREMIER

Assassin's Victim Was About to Attend Cabinet Meeting When His Life Was Taken---Police Made Arrest, But Prisoner Committed Suicide.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—Premier Jos. Canalejas of Spain was assassinated to day.

The arrest of the assassin followed quickly. When captured by the police he gave his name as Manuel Pardinas Martin.

He fired four shots at Premier Canalejas as he was entering the Ministry of Interior building for the purpose of attending a Cabinet meeting.

The assailant is a man of twenty eight years of age and is believed to be an anarchist.

London, Nov. 12.—A despatch received by a News Agency here, says that the assassin of Premier Canalejas committed suicide.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The assassin of Premier Canalejas has committed suicide.

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT RESIGN BECAUSE OF DEFEAT

Liberals Ask for Vote of Confidence and Will Endeavor to Have Banbury's Amendment Re-Submitted.

London, Nov. 12.—While the House of Commons was debating the financial provisions of the home rule bill in committee yesterday afternoon, an unexpected vote on an amendment was offered by Sir Frederick Banbury, a Unionist member for the City of London, resulted in an opposition victory by a majority of 22.

The Conservatives were jubilant and loudly demanded that the Liberal Government resign, which, according to precedents, it should do, if the vote, which was 228 to 206, was a genuine test of the strength of the Government on the measure.

The temporary defeat of the Government caused a great political sensation, but did not result in its retirement. The Cabinet held a meeting last night and decided to present a resolution in the House to-day which will be particularly a demand for a vote of confidence, and after some Parliamentary red tape, will endeavor to have Sir Frederick Banbury's amendment re-submitted and expunged.

The younger Conservatives prepared the trap for the home rulers and succeeded in getting a vote when many members were in the country, and a number of those in town were absent from the House, not expecting that important business would be taken up.

The Government's average majority on previous details of the bill have been in the neighborhood of 100. But there has been much dissatisfaction among members of all the parties at the provision compelling the other sections of the United Kingdom to contribute to the support of Ireland without a voice in the expenditure of the money.

The Cabinet Council held after the Government's defeat lasted two hours, at the end of which its decision not to resign was announced. An official statement, which was issued, declares that the adoption of the amendment was clearly due to a snap division on a motion which was not even put on the order paper, and which was destructive of the resolution passed Nov. 7 by a majority of 121.

"The Government, therefore," the statement concludes, "does not consider that its defeat necessitates any change in its program, which, in respect to home rule, has been supported seldom short of 100.

There has been considerable opposition by members of the Ministerial side of the House of Commons to the financial provisions of the home rule bill. Some 70 Liberal members have given voice to their objection to the Irish Parliament being given control of the customs, as they argue such control would enable the Irish Parliament to introduce protection.

The followers of William O'Brien only yesterday morning announced their intention of withdrawing from the House during the proceedings of the committee on the financial clauses of the bill.

Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General, in opposing Sir Frederick Banbury's amendment to the home rule bill, said it would mean that the total sum payable to Ireland would be limited to $12,500,000 a year. The revenue from Irish taxation would be $47,000,000, estimated on the present basis from Irish revenue, and the amendment would mean that the sum handed back to Ireland would be $12,500,000 for services which cost $30,000,000 a year.

Snap divisions during the meetings of committees of the House of Commons are not unusual, although this is the first experience of the kind of the present Government. Arthur J. Balfour, when he was Premier, suffered in this way several times during his last Parliament.

The present standing of the parties in the British Commons is:

Unionist	280
Liberal	265
Labor	41
Nationalist	84

D. M. McINTYRE IS CHAIRMAN

Whitney Names Successor to Hon. James Leitch.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Donald Malcolm McIntyre, K.C., of Kingston, has been appointed chairman of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to succeed the Hon. James Leitch, who was recently appointed to the high court bench. The announcement of this appointment was made by Sir James Whitney yesterday. Mr. McIntyre will assume the chairmanship in the near future.

Mr. McIntyre was born in Kingston and has lived there all his life. He is not well known in Toronto, or in this part of the province. For a number of years he has been in partnership with his brother in the legal business. It is understood that he is a municipal expert.

Many years ago Mr. McIntyre was city solicitor for Kingston. He was afterwards an alderman, and in 1892-93 he was mayor. He was vice-president of the Ontario Municipal Association in 1905-06; chairman of the board of governors of the Kingston General Hospital in 1904-05; president of the Oddfellows" Relief Association in 1906-07, and at the present time is a trustee of Queen's University, which honorary position he has held for a number of years. He was also educated at Queen's University. Mr. McIntyre is now a member of the Ontario Prison Parole Board, and president of the Golf and Country Club of Kingston.

The new chairman has been a strong Conservative in Kingston for a number of years. In 1905 he contested the constituency against the late Mr. Pense, the Liberal member, and was defeated by twenty votes. Mr. McIntyre is a Presbyterian.

WILL AMEND THE RAILWAY ACT

Ottawa, Nov 12.—A complete revision of the Railway Act is planned for this coming session. Thomas Price, K.C., of St. Thomas, has been making a thorough investigation of the act with a view to changes. One amendment proposed is to do away with the evil of railway "blanketing." There will likely be a provision requiring railway companies to survey and locate their routes before submitting them to the Minister for approval. Another provision will provide for the superannuation of members of the Railway Commission.

NO OPPONENT FOR CODERRE

Ecrement Changes His Mind and and Will Not Run.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Another change took place in the political situation yesterday in regard to Hochelaga, when Arthur Ecrement announced that he had changed his mind about running against Hon. Mr. Coderre. Mr. Ecrement explained that in wishing to fight the new Minister's re-election, he had desired to bring the navy question to a direct issue. He has since learned, however, that Mr. Coderre would not make any statements on the navy question until official announcement has been made in the House of Commons, and for this reason Mr. Ecrement has decided to withdraw. He also gave it as his opinion that no other Liberal would enter the lists.

Mr. Coderre stated yesterday that he had made no arrangements as yet for holding any meetings, and in any case would hold none until after nomination day, and then, of course, only if opposed.

Lemieux Act Constitutional.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—That the Lemieux Act, providing for the nomination of a board of conciliation to enquire into disputes between employer and employe, is constitutional, and that consequently a board named to look into certain differences between the Montreal Street Railway and some of its employes was regularly and legally appointed, is the tenor of a ruling handed down by Justice Lafontaine, in a case which has been occupying the attention of the local superior court off and on for the past two years.

AUSTRIA CALLS THE MEN HOME

Lumber and Construction Companies Losing Their Help.

Sault Ste Marie, Nov. 12.—According to reports coming in from foremen and different lumber and construction companies along the line of the Algoma Central, their forces are being depleted and their operations hampered by the calling out of Austrian reserves.

One jobber, whose men were nearly all Austrians, finds himself pretty nearly without workmen with which to go on, and as there are lots of men of this nationality in camps, most of the foremen found themselves in pretty much the same position

This is the first intimation the Soo had that the Austrian Government was preparing for war to the extent of calling in military reserves from all over the world.

Besides this Bulgarians and Servians continue to leave in large numbers.

LANTERN MISLED ROYAL GEORGE

Quebec, Nov. 12.—It has now come out that the carrying of a lantern on the St. Laurent Beach by a fisherman led to the pilot of the Royal George's mistake.

It appears that the fisherman was visiting his fishery, and as he walked along the beach the lantern was swinging. The Royal George was then coming up the river at full speed, and the pilot seeing the light swaying to and fro, thought it was the light on the buoy at Beaumont Shoal, which is almost immediately opposite St. Laurent Light. He gave orders to [illegible] the vessel [illegible] the north shore.

When he discovered his mistake he ordered the helm to starboard, but before the steamer swung to the south she struck and remained fast.

Charges Multiply.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The federal grand jury late yesterday returned four additional indictments against Jack Johnson, champion pugilist, on further charges of violating the Mann Act against the interstate transportation of women for immoral purposes.

The indictments charged Johnson with taking Belle Schreiber from Milwaukee, Wis., to Chicago; from Indianapolis, Ind., to Chicago; from Detroit, Mich., to Chicago, and from Chicago to Milwaukee, Wis. The name of Lucille Cameron of Minneapolis does not figure in any of the indictments.

BULGARIA WOULD TRY TO INDUCE SERVIA TO ABANDON HER CLAIMS

Should Servia Persist, Bulgaria Would Refuse Support---Porte Says Soldiers Are Offering Fierce Resistance, But This Announcement May be Followed by an Acknowledgement of Disaster

Canadian Press.

London, Nov. 12.—A Vienna despatch to the Telegraph says Dr. Daneff has given assurances that Bulgaria would try to induce Servia to abandon her claims to Albanian territory and an Adriatic port. It is also reported according to the despatch that Dr. Daneff said if Servia persisted in her claims Bulgaria would refuse to support her.

London, Nov. 12.—Judging by all precedents in the present war, the news from Constantinople last night is the herald of another Turkish defeat at the Tchatalja lines, where a battle has been proceeding for the past two or three days. The Turkish admission that so many wounded are arriving in the capital as to show that the Turks are offering fierce resistance has a great significance, in view of previous admissions of a similar nature, and may be regarded as preparing the public mind for another disappointment. It may be quite possible that this will prove the last great battle of the campaign.

There are indications that Bulgaria may, after all, forego a triumphal entry into Constantinople. According to some reports Bulgaria will be content with finding suitable winter quarters for her army while the peace negotiations are going on and subsequent settlements are being arranged.

The question of mediation has made another step forward in the announcement from Paris last night that the Austrian Government has agreed to join with the other powers in transmitting Turkey's request for mediation to the allies and in enquiring on what terms the allies are disposed to accept mediation.

The revelation of the danger to European peace lying in the antagonistic interests of Austria and Servia appears to have quickened the sense of the powers and probably of the Balkan states also to the imperative need of working in amicable co-operation to secure a settlement of the Balkan problems acceptable to all the parties concerned.

Another factor making for the speedy cessation of the war is the approach of severe winter conditions, which would give to the campaign an exceedingly arduous character.

There is still talk in Vienna of sending an ultimatum to Servia, and other warlike reports, but it is believed that Germany is exercising an ameliorating influence in the direction of persuading both Austria and Servia to consent to a postponement of the settlement until the whole matter can be dealt with by the European conference.

Meanwhile, diplomacy is active in all the European capitals. It is understood that after his important mission at Budapest is concluded, Dr. Daneff, president of the Bulgarian Chamber of Deputies, will go to the other European courts to explain the views of the allies. The Servian premier, M. Pachitch, after an important Cabinet meeting, left Belgrade last night for Uskup to consult with King Peter on the situation.

The reported mobilization of the Austro-Hungarian forces is denied at Budapest. Roumanian, however, is taking certain military measures with a view to being prepared for eventualities. The War Minister has issued an order to all the army corps to the effect that half the contingent which was to have been dismissed Nov. 14, is to be retained with the colors until further orders.

No late news of importance has been received from Adrianople, Scutari or other points where the armies of the allies have the Turkish troops in close quarters.

Stream of Wounded.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The Bulgarians began an attack on the Turkish advanced positions along the Tchatalja line Sunday afternoon. The fighting continued throughout the day.

Judging from the number of wounded arriving in Constantinople, the Turkish troops are offering fierce resistance

GUELPH RATES TO BE LOWERED

Surplus in Domestic and Commercial Lighting Department.

Guelph, Nov. 12.—At yesterday's session of the light and heat commission, news was given out that will please the users of electric light in this city. Under the new ruling of the Hydro-Electric Commission, the power is divided into four departments, domestic lighting, commercial lighting, street lighting, and power. Each department has to stand on its own feet and the rates secured for electric domestic lighting cannot be used to make up for a deficit on the street lightning.

The change in the methods has resulted in there being a surplus of domestic and commercial lightning, of from three to five thousand dollars, and this will be returned to the consumers in the way of reduced charges, though the rate of the reduction has not yet been definitely settled.

NO FIGHT AT OWEN SOUND

For the Repeal of the Local Option By-law.

Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—It is now a foregone conclusion that there will not be a vote at the January municipal elections for the repeal of the local option bylaw. At the council meeting last night no move was made by the anti-members of the council to introduce a repeal bylaw. It is understood that the anti-forces will not try to have the bylaw repealed until 1914.

This for a time at least clears up the situation created by the ruling of the courts that the repeal bylaw last January had been improperly submitted. This legal decision left it optional with the antics, whether or not they would bring on a fight this year.

Steamer "Rosedale" Ashore.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 12.—News was received in Sault Ste. Marie yesterday morning to the effect that the steamer Rosedale had gone ashore at Drummond Island, four miles east of Detour. A tug and lighter of the Great Lakes Co. left at ten o'clock for the scene of the wreck. The extent of injury to the vessel is unknown, but the fact that the lighter has left leads to the belief that she can be floated and reach the Soo in safety.

Two Freeze to Death on Boat.

Portneuf, Que., Nov. 12.—Two men are dead as a result of the sinking of the schooner Ste. Celestine in the St. Lawrence Sunday night after striking a rock. The dead are Joseph Trepannier, captain of the schooner, and his son, Thomas.

They were frozen to death in a small boat, Emile Ouellette, the third member of the ship's company, reached shore alive, though badly nipped by the frost.

The Ste. Celestine was bound from Marsoum, Gaspe county, to Quebec with a cargo of laths.

SOME IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS

British Commission Makes Its Report on Divorce.

London, Nov. 12.—The Royal Commission on divorce, which has been investigating this subject for several years, has made public the result of its inquiries. The majority report recommends that the two sexes be placed on an equality before the law with regard to the grounds for divorce, which shall be adultery, desertion for three years, incurable insanity after five years confinement, habitual drunkenness, found to be incurable after three years.

From the issuance of the first separation order, it is recommended that all divorce cases shall be heard by a judge alone, who is empowered to close the court during the hearings and prohibit the publication of details.

The majority report also recommends that no report on matrimonial cases shall be allowed until they are finished and that the publication of the parties thereto shall be prohibited. The report states that the evidence taken during the course of the investigations showed that the proposed extension of the grounds for divorce, far from tending to lower the standard of the morality, has had a contrary effect and that the stringent restrictions and costliness of divorce are productive of immorality and illicit relations, particularly among the poorer classes.

This report is signed by nine commissioners.

The minority report, which is signed by the Archbishop of York and two other commissioners, oppose the extension of the causes for divorce on the ground that this is destructive to the sanctity of the marriage ties and family life, and contrary to the principles of Christian faith in its relation to marriage.

HORSE BOLTS; TWO KILLED

Runaway Accident Fatal to Mother and Daughter.

Hamilton, Nov. 12.—Two deaths were caused by a runaway horse at the Valley Inn, just west of the city, about 3.45 yesterday afternoon. Mrs. S. J. Mitchell, wife of a Flamboro Centre farmer, and her six-year-old daughter, Irene, were the victims. They were driving homeward in a single buggy and when descending the steep roadway running under the G.T.R. tracks, the horse they were driving took fright at a passing train and dashed madly down the hill. Mrs. Mitchell and here daughter were hurled from the buggy to the roadside, and the little girl was instantly killed. The mother died on the way to the City Hospital in the police patrol, which had hurriedly responded to the emergency call.

The horse continued down the hill and ran into the stable at the Valley Inn and the force of the collision knocked a big hole in the side of the building, but the horse and buggy escaped injury.

The bodies of the mother and daughter were taken to the city morgue. Coroner McNichol was notified of the double fatality, but decided that no inquest was necessary.

A pathetic feature of the unfortunate affair is that the little girl wanted to go to school yesterday morning, but her mother thought the drive to the city would do her good. The horse driven by Mrs. Mitchell was 20 years old and had never run away before.

Mrs. Mitchell was 47 years of age, and had lived in the vicinity of Flamboro Centre all her life. Besides her husband she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ralph of Carlisle, and by two daughters, and a three months old baby boy.

Liberal May Forfeit Seat.

London, Nov. 12.—The question whether Sir Stuart Montagu Samuel, Radical member for one of the East End divisions of London, shall continue to hold his seat in Parliament is to come before a select committee of the House of Commons.

Sir Stuart Samuel is believed by the members of the Opposition to have forfeited his right to sit as a member of Parliament owing to his firm of bankers having become purchasers of silver for the Indian Government. Under an old act of Parliament a member may not be even indirectly interested in such a transaction.

MINTO IS BACK FROM HUDSON BAY

Halifax, Nov. 12.—The Government steamer Minto arrived in Halifax yesterday after a four-months' trip to Hudson Bay for the purpose of continuing the survey of the approaches to Port Nelson.

The Minto carried on her work at Port Nelson until Sept. 26, when a shortage of coal threatening, she was forced to return to Barwell.

Conditions through Hudson's Straits, the captain says, could not have been better.

Coal Shortage Threatened.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—"If the people are patient I see no reason why the public cannot be fully supplied with coal without any suffering," said George P. Baer, president of the Reading Co., in discussing the reported shortage of anthracite coal yesterday. He said the difficulty in the way of increasing the output of coal was primarily due to mine strikes.

McBRIDE AND THE NAVY

Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, in an interview at Ottawa, says that it is an open secret that the Pacific coast is practically defenceless, and that if trouble arose it would be impossible to offer even the slightest resistance. Even if it were looked upon merely as an insurance of the property we have there, we should have ample justification for prompt and effective measures by the national government.

"We feel convinced of course, that our main stability lies in the continued strength and dominance of the British Navy, and that should anything befal it—why, of course, we are at once at the mercy of our foes. We feel too, that from the official statements of the first Lord of the Admiralty there can be no question of the emergent position that naval affiars have to-day assumed, that we owe it to ourselves to act promptly so as the place the standard of imperial squadrons beyond all peradventure. There can be no question of the stand taken by Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons, since even his most exacting critics have failed to question his speeches in the house. This in itself should be a sufficient warning to the people of Canada, and should make them realize how grave the situation is," said Sir Richard.

This is of interest particularly because the Toronto Globe and other Liberal newspapers have published what has been said to be interviews with the British Columbia Premier, representing Mr. McBride as saying that the Laurier naval policy must be enlarged. It is, of course, perfectly true that British Columbia demands a Canadian Navy large enough to give it some measure of local protection. The Pacific province is exposed to the Asiatic peril to any enemy in the Orient and being isolated from the rest of Canada by the mountains is entitled to special protection. If the British Navy were holding supreme sway in the Pacific, there would not be this necessity. But there is not the slightest difficulty in reconciling the demands of the British Columbia people with the Borden Government's emergency contribution to the British Navy. The Canadian Navy will be added to sufficiently to ensure some small measure of protection to Canadian shores, independently of the British Navy, but Canada will best defend herself in a larger sense by strengthening the forces in the North Sea, since the German Navy is the only one which is threatening British supremacy. The attempts made by the Laurier press to construe the British Columbia attitude into an endorsement of the Laurier policy do not jibe with the real truths of the situation.

ASQUITH DEFEATED

The growing weakness of the Asquith Government on the Home Rule Bill was more apparent yesterday, when in the House of Commons it was defeated by 228 to 206 on an amendment proposed by the Unionists. This amendment was comparatively unimportant relating to a financial clause and the adverse vote was as unexpected as it was significant. The failure of the Ministry to obtain a majority did not necessarily call for the resignation of the Government, as the defeat was in committee, but that it jarred the Asquith Cabinet from the ground up there is not the slightest doubt.

It would be very unfortunate if events should shape themselves so that the Asquith Government would not retain office, owing to the critical nature of the war situation. In fact, the tenseness of the Balkan trouble makes it imperative that the Government which is now in full possession of the facts, and is working out English foreign policy in a manner satisfactory to most of the nation, should not be put out, and a set of new men put in. However, the Asquith Government has determined that the situation is not necessarily so serious that there ought to be resignation. The vote was so largely a snap affair, the Unionists being only 40 short of their full strength, that there is scarcely a justification.

However, the defeat will have the welcome effect of upsetting the Home Rule apple-cart for some time. It is more than likely that the schedule arranged in view of having the Bill disposed of by Christmas will have to be abandoned. Certainly, the Government cannot take any chances on a repetition of the defeat. The followers of William O'Brien announced their intention of withdrawing from the House during the proceedings of the committee on the finance clauses, lessening the Liberal, or rather the coalition majority by nearly a score of votes. The election prophets are not slow in prophesying that before the Government has threaded the tortuous mazes of two or three Home Rule Bills, the passage of which will be necessary before Home Rule can become effective over the House of Lords veto there will have been an end to the Government, and the restoration of the Unionists to power. When that happens the Chamberlain program will come to the front, and probably Tariff Reform will give Canada a real measure of preference for her agricultural products in the British markets.

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

THE RETIRED FARMER

Dr. Creelman, of the Ontario Agricultural College, gave an address a few days ago in Kingston, in which he touched on the problem of the retired farmer. In many of the Ontario cities, like Kingston, Peterborough, Woodstock, Guelph, etc. quite a large proportion of this population consists of retired farmers who have, after a life time of labor, accumulated a sufficiency of this this world's wealth, and have come to town to spend the evening of their life. Dr. Creelman thought it was a mistake for the men of the farm to seek such a change after his habits and methods of living had become so set. Many retired farmers, living in town, are unable to acclimatize themselves to their new surroundings. They are unable to enter into the urban ways and views, and long to get back to the freedom of the open country. The really effective method to be followed on retiring would rather seem to be the obtaining of a semi-suburban residence, where there would be the free life of the country, but yet a close connection with the urban life. From an educational standpoint, this is much the perferable course.

It is often said in the smaller Ontario cities, that the retired farmer element is a draw back to progress. The property vote polled on municipal money-by-laws by these retired farmers, exercises a very powerful influence against what may be necessary expenditure. The innate conservatism of the farmer tells against the progressiveness so customary in Canadian cities and towns. The farmer frequently is unable, late in life, to readjust his views of financial affairs, and therefore cannot be blamed for what is called his slowness. It cannot be expected that the rush of the cities will make our land manless. The land must be cultivated, or else the cities fail, since they in essence, depend on the land for their prosperity. The better way for the farmer to retire would be to settle on a 5 acre plot near the city, where his life-long habits would still be given play, and he and his faithful partner would be relieved of much of the drudgery connected with farm work.

Radium by the Bottle.

The Austrian State Radium institution has now put aqueous solutions of radium emanation on the market for inhalation, drinking or baths. The price of the bottles of radium water, as it is called, varies from sixpence for a small bottle containing 10,000 units to 5 shillings for a large bottle of 300,000 units. The bottles bear a stamp of the date of issue, and as the strength of the emanation diminishes by 50 per cent in four days immediate use is recommended.—Vienna Cor. London Standard.

London's Fogs.

November is London's worst month for fogs. During a good year the Londoner may have to breathe only fifty fogs. In a very bad year he may have to endure as many as eighty. London's countless coal fires, mingling soot with mist, concoct the Londoner's fog for him. The great majority of fogs in the metropolis begin to form between 7 and 8 in the morning, just when most fires are being lighted.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ended Nov. 9, were 2400 cattle, 4000 sheep and lambs, 2900 hogs and 600 calves. The offerings on the market this morning were 1100 cattle, 1800 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 300 calves.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for cattle this morning and prices declined 25c to 50c per cwt., as compared with a week ago. At the above reduction demand was fairly good for best stock and sales of full loads of choice steers averaged from $5.75 to $6, while good steers and heifers weighing from 900 to 1000 lbs. each, brought $5.25 to $5.50, and mixed loads of cows, steers and heifers, $4.75 to $5 per cwt. The top price paid for picked lots of choice steers was $6.25. The supply of canning stock was fairly large, for which the demand was good and an active trade was done in this line at $2 to $2.75 for cows and at $3 to $3.15 for bulls.

There was no change in the condition of the market for small meats, prices being firm under a good demand and as the supply was fairly large an active trade was done. Ontario lambs sold at $6.25 to $6.50 and Quebec at $5.75 to $6 per cwt. The demand for calves was good and sales of milk-fed stock were made at 6c to 7c and grass fed at 3½c to 5c per lb.

An easy feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, but as the supply was smaller than usual prices showed little change as compared with a week ago, sales of selected lots being made at $8.50 to $8.65 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $5.75 to $6.25; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2 to $3.15; choice cows, $4.75 to $5; medium, $4.25 to $4.50, bulls, $3.75 to $4; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; common and medium, each, $70 to $80; springers, $55 to $65.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911, By H. K. FLY CO.

The imperturbable Shaw put out a pair of tickets as his only defense: "Here are your tickets, old boy."

And Hudson roared jovially: "We tried to get you a stateroom, but it was gone."

"And here are your baggage checks," laughed Shaw, forcing into his fists a few pasteboards. "We got your trunks on the train ahead, all right. Don't mention it—you're entirely welcome."

It was the porter that brought the first relief from the ordeal.

"If you gemmen is gettin' off at Kedzie avenue, you'd better step smart. We're slowin' up now."

Marjorie was sobbing too audibly to hear, and Mallory swearing too inaudibly to heed the opportunity Kedzie avenue offered. And Hudson was yelling: "Well, good-bye, old boy and old girl. Sorry we can't go all the way." He had the effrontery to try to kiss the bride good-bye, and Shaw was equally bold, but Mallory's fury enabled him to beat them off. He elbowed and shouldered them down the aisle, and sent after them one of his own shoes. But it just missed Shaw's flying coattails.

Mallory stood glaring after the departing traitors. He was glad that they at least were gone, till he realized with a sickening slump in his vitals, that they had not taken with them his awful dilemma. And now the train was once more clickety clicking into the night and the west

CHAPTER X.

Excess Baggage.

Never was a young soldier so stumped by a problem in tactics as Lieutenant Harry Mallory, safely aboard his train, and not daring to leave it, yet hopelessly unaware of how he was to dispose of his lovely but unlabelled baggage.

Hudson and Shaw had erected a white satin temple to Hymen in berth number one, had created such commotion, and departed in such confusion that there had been no opportunity to proclaim that he and Marjorie were "not married—just friends."

And now the passengers had accepted them as that enormous fund of amusement to any train, a newly wedded pair. To explain the mistake would have been difficult, even among friends. But among strangers—well, perhaps a wiser and a colder brain than Harry Mallory's could have stood there and delivered a brief oration restoring truth to her pedestal. But Mallory was in no condition for such a stoic delivery.

He mopped his brow in agony, lost in a blizzard of bewilderment. He drifted back toward Marjorie, half to protect and half for companionship. He found Mrs. Temple cuddling her close and mothering her as if she were a baby instead of a bride.

"Did the poor child run away and get married?"

Marjorie's frantic "Boo-hoo-hoo" might have meant anything. Mrs. Temple took it for assent, and murmured with glowing reminiscence:

"Just the way Doctor Temple and I did."

She could not see the leaping flash of wild hope that lighted up Mallory's face. She only heard his voice across her shoulder:

"Doctor? Doctor Temple? Is your husband a reverend doctor?"

"A reverend doctor?" the little old lady repeated weakly.

"Yes—a—a preacher?"

The poor old congregation-weary soul was abruptly confronted with the ruination of all the delight in her little escapade with her pulpit-fagged husband. If she had ever dreamed that the girl who was weeping in her arms was weeping from any other fright than the usual fright of young brides, fresh from the preacher's benediction, she would have cast every other consideration aside, and told the truth.

But her husband's last behest before he left her had been to keep their precious pretend-secret. She felt—just then—that a woman's first duty is to obey her husband. Besides, what business was it of this young husband's what her old husband's business was? Before she had fairly begun to debate her duty, almost automatically, with the instantaneous instinct of self-protection, her lips had uttered the denial:

"Oh—he's—just a—plain doctor. There he is now."

Mallory cast one miserable glance down the aisle at Dr. Temple coming back from the smoking room. As the old man paused to stare at the bridal berth, whose preparation he had not seen, he was just enough befuddled by his first cigar for thirty years to look a trifle tipsy. The motion of the train and the rakish tilt of his unwonted crimson tie confirmed the suspicion and annihilated Mallory's new-born hope, that perhaps repentant fate had dropped a parson at their very feet.

He sank into the seat opposite Marjorie, who gave him one terrified glance, and burst into fresh sobs:

"Oh—oh—boo-hoo—I'm so unhap—hap—py."

Perhaps Mrs. Temple was a little miffed at the couple that had led her astray and opened her own honeymoon with a wanton fib. In any case, the best consolation she could offer Marjorie was a perfunctory pat, and a cynicism:

"There, there, dear! You don't know what real unhappiness is yet. Wait till you've been married a while."

And then she noted a startling lack of completeness in the bride's hand.

"Why—my dear!—where's your wedding ring?"

With what he considered great presence of mind, Mallory explained: "It—it slipped off—I—I picked it up. I have it here." And he took the little gold band from his waistcoat and tried to jam it on Marjorie's right thumb.

"Not on the thumb!" Mrs. Temple cried. "Don't you know?"

"You see, it's my first marriage."

"You poor boy—this finger!" And Mrs. Temple, raising Marjorie's limp hand, selected the proper digit, and held it forward, while Mallory pressed the fatal circlet home.

And then Mrs. Temple, having completed their installation as man and wife, utterly confounded their confusion by her final effort at comfort: "Well, my dears, I'll go back to my seat, and leave you alone with your dear husband."

"My dear what?" Marjorie mumbled inanely, and began to sniffle again. Whereupon Mrs. Temple resigned her to Mallory, and consigned her to fate with a consoling platitude:

"Cheer up, my dear, you'll be all right in the morning."

Marjorie and Mallory's eyes met in one wild clash, and then both stared into the window, and did not notice that the shades were down.

CHAPTER XI.

A Chance Encounter.

While Mrs. Temple was confiding to her husband that the agitated couple in the next seat had just come from a wedding-factory, and had got on while he was lost in tobacco land, the people in the seat on the other side of them were engaged in a little drama of their own.

Ira Lathrop, known to all who know him as a woman-hating snapping-turtle, was so busily engaged trying to drag the farthest invading rice grains out of the back of his neck, that he was late in realizing his whereabouts. When he raised his head, he found that he had crowded into a seat with an uncomfortable looking woman, who crowded against the window with old-maidenly timidity.

He felt some apology to be necessary, and he snarled: "Disgusting things, these weddings!" After he heard this, it did not sound entirely felicitous, so he grudgingly ventured: "Excuse me—you married?"

She denied the soft impeachment so heartily that he softened a little:

"You're a sensible woman. I guess you and I are the only sensible people on this train."

"It—seems—so," she giggled. It was the first time her spinstership had been taken as material for a compliment. Something in the girlish giggle and the strangely young smile that swept twenty years from her face and belied the silver lines in her hair, seemed to catch the old bachelor's attention. He stared at her so fiercely that she looked about for a way to escape. Then a curiously anxious, almost a hungry, look softened his leonine jowls into a boyish eagerness, and his growl became a sort of gruff purr:

"Say, you look something like an old sweetheart—er—friend—of mine. Were you ever in Brattleboro, Vt.?"

A flush warmed her cheek, and a sense of home warmed her prim speech, as she confessed:

"I came from there originally."

"So did I," said Ira Lathrop, leaning closer, and beaming like a big sun: "I don't suppose you remember Ira Lathrop?"

The old maid stared at the bachelor as if she were trying to see the boy she had known, through the mask that time had modeled on his face. And then she was a girl again, and her voice chimed as she cried:

"Why, Ira!—Mr. Lathrop!—is it you?"

She gave him her hand—both her hands, and he smothered them in one big paw and laid the other on for extra warmth, as he nodded his savage head and roared as gentle as a sucking dove:

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Years, Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Canadian women are continually writing us such letters as the two following, which are heartfelt expressions of gratitude for restored health:

Glanford Station, Ont.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never found any medicine to compare with it. I had ulcers and falling of womb and doctors did me no good. I suffered dreadfully for years until I began taking your medicine. I also recommend it for nervousness and indigestion." — Mrs. HENRY CLARK, Glanford Station, Ont.

Chesterville, Ont. — "I heard your medicines highly praised, and a year ago I began taking them for falling of womb and ovarian trouble.

"My left side pained me all the time and just before my periods which were irregular and painful it would be worse. To sit down caused me pain and suffering and I would be so nervous sometimes that I could not bear to see any one or hear any one speak. Little specks would float before my eyes and I was always constipated.

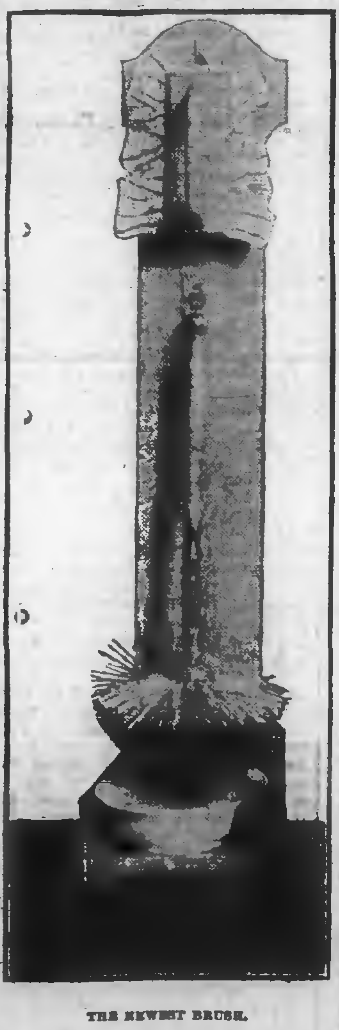
"I cannot say too much for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, for there are no medicines like them. I have taken them and I recommend them to all women. You may publish this testimonial." — Mrs. STEPHEN J. MARTIN, Chesterville, Ontario, Canada.

BATHROOM NOVELTIES.

Brushes That Every Up to Date Housewife Will Need.

The woman who is adding to her bathroom conveniences this fall and is searching for novelties in appointments cannot do better than look at the new brushes that are being shown in the household departments of the big shops.

Particularly good for cleaning basins and tubs are the brush and bowl illustrated, which articles are attached to a wooden panel, the long handled brush at the top and the enamel bowl that fits into a shelf at the bottom of the stand.



THE NEWEST BRUSH.

Wood in several varieties is used for this bathroom novelty, and the price is wonderfully cheap.

The Screw Cylinder.

Invented about 236 B. C., the principle of the pumping screw, or screw cylinder, is still the same for those in use today.

Freezing Water.

Water contracts as it falls from the normal boiling point, 212 degrees, until it reaches 39 degrees. Below that degree it expands, and at 32 degrees, the freezing point, it will expand enough to burst pipes and vessels holding it.

Fruit Eating Is Healthful.

If people ate more fruit they would need less medicine and would have better health. Fruit eaten early in the morning on an empty stomach serves as a stimulant to the digestion, and apples and oranges eaten at any time in the day are good for biliousness. Stewed prunes and figs are also healthful at any time.

WHY WASH DAY IS BLUE.

Because the Laundress Is Forced to Stoop Over Her Work.

The wash day is often spoken of as "blue Monday" because it is usually a day of hard work, followed by days of recovery from such aches as woman thinks her due. Now it has been definitely proved, says J. Howard Frick, instructor in medical correction gymnastics in the Samaritan hospital of Germantown, in the Mothers' Magazine, that washing clothes has nothing to do with making a woman feel gloomy, but that the way she does it has all to do with her after health.

The most common complaint of women after a day's washing is the terrible backache which almost compels them to go to bed. This is sometimes followed by headaches in the middle of the head and behind the eyes, which often last for days. Now, what is the cause of these after effects? Certainly ordinary work should not entail such after sufferings. The whole cause is the position of the woman while working over the tubs. The majority of wash benches are too low, and the woman must stoop over while at work. This causes the muscles over the abdomen to relax, which allows the stomach, liver, kidneys and, in fact, all the organs to fall forward out of their normal positions, causing the terrible after effects of such work.

The proper position before a tub is a perfectly erect position.

Another point of value in the erect position is the fact that the wringing of the clothes is much easier since the whole force of the arm can be used without having to exert an effort to keep the erect position.

The lifting of tubs is an entirely unnecessary labor. When they are not of the stationary kind they can be emptied by means of a siphon.

School Bag Carrying.

Every mother should insist that her child be not forced to carry a heavy bag to school.

If it is necessary to carry the bags they should not be carried on the shoulder, so that it is possible for one side of the body to get shorter than the other side. When this is allowed to happen the spine become affected and many are the sicknesses that grow from this seeming little mistake.

The bag should be carried in the hand and often shifted from one hand to the other, often enough to prevent any tendency to stunting either side of the body. This can be explained to any sensible child, and if he does not heed the suggestion the very fact that the bag has no shoulder harness will mitigate the trouble.

However, most teachers these enlightened days have the school bag question in mind, and the bags are not so heavily laden.

The carrying of heavy satchels or bags every day is certainly a great mistake and should not be allowed to continue for any length of time.

Studies In Criminology.

A course in penal studies was recently instituted by the University of Montpellier, France. Physicians, publicists, lawyers, police and court officials were among those who enrolled for the course. American educators hope that the interest in criminology will lead to something similar in this country.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

FELL TO DEATH FROM SCAFFOLD

Workman's Chest Was Crushed—Another Tragedy Enacted

Toronto, Nov. 12.—While working at the construction of a building at the foot of Cherry St., yesterday afternoon Thomas Tofield, who lived on Richmond street west, received injuries from which he died shortly after being admitted to St. Michael's Hospital.

Deceased was 35 years of age, and an employe of George E. Lindsay. A scaffolding on which a number of people were at work, broke, and he was thrown to the ground, one of the beams falling on him. His chest was badly crushed, and he died about an hour after the accident.

TIRED OF LIFE.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—When Police Constable Mumford forced the door of 343 Pape Avenue last night he found Patrick Norton, aged 50, dead in bed. In the room below his bedroom the gas jet was turned on full and the stovepipe hole through the floor allowed the gas to fill the upper chamber.

The house was broken into at the request of relatives, and when they entered they found the spaces about the window and door casements of deceased's bedroom well stuffed, so that the gas that would come from the lower room would be confined to the bedroom above.

Deceased had been living alone for some time past in his Pape avenue flat, and when he could not be found yesterday it was decided to break into the place.

USUAL FINE FOR BLACKLISTER

Young Man Who Slapped Boy's Ears Paid $5.75

Charles Trotter, who is on the "prohibited" list, pleaded guilty in police court this morning of being intoxicated.

License Inspector Stewart asked him the source of his last liquor supply, and he said Percy Kennedy had purchased a bottle for him.

Trotter was fined $10 and costs, $13.75 in all, with ten days to pay. Incidentally his drinking habits were severely criticized by the Magistrate.

ASSAULT CASE.

Arthur Hicks was charged with assaulting a young lad named George Webb.

Hicks admitted slapping the young lad's ears in a fit of anger because the latter appeared to have been slow in driving a horse, for which he was waiting in the country. Magistrate Dumble administered some advice about controlling one's temper, and imposed a $5.75 fine, which included costs.

Hicks is a young man who works in the country. He paid his fine.

BACK TO THE CAPITAL.

Robert Burns spent the night in the cells, having been found drunk last night.

"You must be some relative of the poet, as he was fond of the extract of barley," remarked His Worship.

Burns said he was a silversmith by trade, and came from Ottawa. If given his liberty he would straightway leave the city. He was rather shaky from the reaction of his spree. He was allowed to go.

FUNERAL OF LATE CHAS. H. HINDLEY

About the city, and principally in the business section, sympathetic reference is made to the death of Mr Charles H. Hindley, who passed away yesterday morning at Nicholls Hospital.

This morning Mr. Thomas Bilsbury received an answer to his cablegram sent yesterday, instructing him to have the remains interred here and the funeral has been arranged to take place from the Masonic Hall to-morrow afternoon. Rev. James Price, incumbent at St. Martins-in-the-fields, who comes from Manchester, will officiate.

ABOUT COUPONS

Dealers and Customers are Liable to Fine of $200

At the last meeting of the local Retail Merchants' Association it was the unanimous opinion that under the provisions of the Act in that respect the issuing of coupons or tickets by merchants, in liew of a cash discount, would have to cease. Mr. E. M. Trowern, who is fully posted in the matter, said that many dealers were using such tickets unknowingly and hence liable, and that customers accepting them were equally liable to a fine of considerable proportions. The punishment for this offence is liability of a term in prison not to exceed six months, or a fine not to exceed $200.

OMEMEE NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Nov. 12—Mr. McDermid of Toronto, a representative of the Dominion Temperance Alliance, held meetings in the Presbyterian church on Sabbath morning, Lebanon in the afternoon and in the Methodist church in the evening. The speaker outlined the work of the Alliance rather than denouncing the evils of intemperance in a very optimistic manner. The services were enthusiastic and well attended.

Some of our deer hunters are abroad with their rifles. The effluvium of cooking venison steak is in our nostrils.

The funeral of the late William Osborne Rehill took place to Emily cemetery on Sunday afternoon. The cortege was one of the largest seen here for some time and was composed largely of single buggies. Rev. W. Chapman, B.A., pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the service at the house and at the grave. The deceased was popular, widely-known and had just arrived at the threshold of useful citizenship when he was called away; thus his death is the more lamentable. To his young wife and child, his parents and two brothers, the warmest sympathy is extended in their heavy bereavement.

A Choral Society was formed on Tuesday evening. It is proposed to give a public performance in the near future. Reeve Milligan will swing the baton.

Mr. John Murray of Peterborough came home on Saturday afternoon.

Guy Fawkes' Night in our town is an annual time for the younger male members to "cut loose," and have a maximum amount of fun. From dark till about 11 p.m., they pursued their vocation on Tuesday last with the greatest apparent success. The disguises were varied, some being a burlesque on fashion and others on humor and character. The procession marched up and down King street, with the effigy and his guard, accompanied by the music of a concertina solo at and innumerable drummers of old tinware, finally reaching the river bank at the foot of George street. Here the crematory services took place in great style, the many torches giving a weird appearance to the perpetuation of the rehearsal of an historical occurrence of over 300 years ago.

Messrs. J. J. Lamb, Max Sheir, and Robert Toole were business visitors to Peterborough on Saturday.

Miss Kate Harrison and Master Eric McLean of Mount Pleasant called on Omemee friends on Wednesday.

Another rural mail route will be in operation from this forwarding centre on December 1st prox. The course will be south on the quarter line serving residents of each side for 3 or 4 miles distant, to the boundary of Durham County. Mr. Redmond Carey is the contractor.

Mrs. (Rev.) Chapman has returned from visiting with friends at Bowmanville.

Mr. J. McGhie has moved from Quarter-line Avenue to the residence on King street, just east of the tannery.

FOUR NEW CHARGES AGAINST JOHNSON

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The Federal Grand Jury late yesterday afternoon returned four additional indictments against Jack Johnson, champion pugilist on further charges of violation of the Mann act against interstate transportation of women for immoral purposes. The indictments charged Johnson with taking Belle Schreiber from Milwaukee, Wis., to Chicago; from Indianapolis, Ind., to Chicago; from Detroit, Mich., to Chicago, and from Chicago to Milwaukee. The name of Lucille Cameron of Minneapolis does not figure in any of the indictments.

A Mysterious Affair.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Under circumstances so peculiar and mysterious that the city detectives are puzzled as to which of several motives to accept for the crime, a Macedonian, known as Pule, or Tale Bosheff, was shot down at 25 Erin street about 3.20 yesterday afternoon. The man who fired the shot and his companion made good their escape before the neighborhood was aware of what had happened. Bosheff is now in St. Michael's Hospital with a bullet in his breast, just below the heart. It is not expected that he will live.

Two weeks ago Bosheff was released from the General Hospital. Since his recent illness he has not worked, and yesterday, as usual, was sitting in the living room. About 3.20 Bosheff heard the back door open.

Looking up he saw two intruders coming into the room. The larger of the two men spoke to him in what he thought was English, but as he cannot speak the language he did not answer. The other man then addressed him. When he still remained silent the man with the gun raised his weapon and fired. The Macedonian fell back into the chair, from which he had just arisen, with a bullet in his breast.

The assailants calmly shut the door and disappeared by the side entrance. Boszeff declared that the two men who shot him were strangers. One he claimed to be about 14 or 15 and the other about 19 years of age. He was positive that they were Englishmen.

DINOSAURS FROM ALBERTA

The riches country in the world is the manner in which Charles H. Sternberg, the explorer, engaged by the Canadian Government, described Western Canada in a recent interview.

Mr. Sternberg has arrived in Ottawa with over twenty thousand pounds of fossils for the Victoria Memorial Museum, which included perfect skeletons of two of the most extraordinary animals ever unearthed by any explorer. One of the skeletons, named by Mr. Sternberg, a duckbill dinosaur, weighed over 6,000 pounds, and was thirty-five feet in length. This animal, Sternberg explained, lived three million years ago. Another specimen he discovered known as the Triceratops (three horn trace) had a skull seven feet in length with horns over each eye and one at the end of the nose.

In describing another specimen of the Dinosaur found not very far from the first one, Sternberg said that he had enough material to complete a mount forty feet in length. The front part of the mouth of the dinosaur was expanded into a duck bill and covered with horns. The teeth, two thousand in number, were arranged in magazine form and made a decidedly interesting study.

A Rude Lad.

As the Duke of Connaught was taking a stroll after breakfast recently at Victoria, B.C., he passed a school where boys were going in for their morning lessons.

According to his custom of chatting pleasantly with people whom he meets the duke spoke to a small boy and asked his age and other questions, to which the lad gave discourteous replies. Then the duke said: "Are you a Boy Scout?" As Chief Scout in Canada he is greatly interested in the movement. The little fellow answered impatiently, "No, you bet I'm not."

The duke, somewhat surprised, said that many boys found the movement interesting and useful; this was proved by the fact that the scouts in the Dominion numbered 30,000. It was now the turn of the boy to be surprised. "Say," he murmured, "is that so?" "Yes," replied the duke, as he moved on, "that is the number; so I daresay they do not miss you."

September Labor Record.

The Dominion Department of Labor records only 21 disputes in existence during September, a decrease of 21 as compared with the previous month, though more than in September, 1911. The most important disputes are those of the 3,000 coal miners on Vancouver Island, and the 450 carpenters at Moosejaw, the latter not of long duration. About 5,000 employes were thrown out of work by the September disputes.

In September 89 workmen were killed and 419 injured, as follows: Railway service, 28 fatal and 123 non-fatal accidents; metal trades, 3 killed, 72 injured; mining, 10 killed, 42 injured; building trades, 10 killed, 33 injured.

Calumet.

"Calumet," supposed to be an Indian word meaning "pipe of peace," was wholly unknown among the savages, and was probably introduced by the French explorers of Canada. It is Norman and signifies in general a pipe. The pipe of peace was a "ganowdaoe," among the Iroquois and a "poagun" among some other tribes. The Algonquins called it "poagan," the Winnebagoes "tahneehoo."

18 MONTHS IN PRISON

Fallon and Wright Were Sentenced to Central

"Eighteen months in Central" said His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon, after finding Albert Wright and William Fallon guilty of robbing a farmer named Kennedy, of $7.00 on the night of Thanksgiving Day.

It appears that Kennedy came to the city on the holiday and by evening was somewhat intoxicated. He became an easy mark for the two young men who got away with $7 of his money. The victim saw a policeman resulting in the arrest of the two prisoners, who were committed for trial.

IN COURT BEFORE.

In passing judgment upon them the Judge referred to occasions when he had acquitted them of previous charges and when they had given him their solemn promise to amend their mode of life. He classed their last crime as being one that was cowardly and unworthy of them.

"If this had been your first offence, I might have been inclined to allow you your liberty. In sentencing you now I don't want you to feel that it is necessary for you to throw your lives away. Make up your minds that when your sentence expires that you will endeavor to lead better lives in the future. There is a chance for you yet to do better."

Both prisoners took their sentences smilingly and thanked the Judge for his leniency.

Messrs. G. N. Gordon and V. J. McElderry defended Wright and Fallon and asked for leniency in view of the fact that both boys were young and would improve their conduct if afforded another opportunity.

HOSPITAL BOARD

$500 Left From the Appropriation of $4,000

At the Queen Mary Hospital Board meeting yesterday afternoon, the M. H. O. reported eight cases at the hospital for the month, of which three were admitted. All were scarlet fever.

Dr. McPherson asked for storm windows for the east side of the building. As there are no diphtheria cases, it was suggested that windows be taken from the west side and used, until the Board is in a better position to provide new windows. The appropriation of $4,000 has dwindled to $500, with two month's running expenses still to be incurred.

The Board felt that circumstances warranted a reduction of the account against John Arthur, whose two children were treated, and the amount was placed at $30 on the understanding that payment be made at once.

It was decided that an extension ladder be purchased.

Lockout at the Soo.

Sault Ste Marie, Nov. 12.—When men employed at the Algoma Iron Works arrived at their places of employment yesterday morning they found a notice posted up to the effect that the services of blacksmiths, boilermakers and machinists would not be required, and the employes allege the shop was closed up locking out the men.

The statement from the offices of the company yesterday was to the effect that the Algoma Iron Works had been taken over by the Algoma Steel Co. as repair shops, and that in doing so a number of men were transferred from the Algoma Steel Co. to the iron works, thus letting out a number of men employed at the latter institution.

According to a number of the men this is the result of trouble that has been brewing for the past week.

The matter was discussed by the men yesterday afternoon. It is claimed by the men that the company is wiring to Pittsburg and other centres for men to fill the vacant positions, and the men state that it is their intention to take the matter up with the Immigration Department.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Feeding the Chimpanzees at the New York Zoo.

MONKEY ACTS AS MAJOR DOMO

How the Plain Husband of a Plain Wife Made a Successful Political Speech Aided by Nothing More Effective Than a Butter Ball.

Dear Elsa—I must tell you about a visit I paid to the zoo. You, of course, know that the zoological display at Bronx park here in New York is one of the wonders of the naturalist world. But with all kinds of interesting sights at one's very door one never seems to see them unless a stranger without the gates happens along and expresses a desire to "see the animals." Well, that is what brought about the visit to the zoo. My cousin Margaret has been visiting us for a week, and as yesterday was the time set for her departure I undertook to see her safely on the train. As usual, I was the means of her missing it by about three minutes. There was nothing left for us to do but to put in a few hours' time before the train left for the suburban town we have been calling home for the past month. Margaret suggested a visit to the zoo, and, as there seemed to be no just cause why we shouldn't avail ourselves of this opportunity, we went. The attitude of a Christian martyr was cheerful resignation itself compared to my mental state of mind, but I lived to see the error of my ways, while martyrs died for a better cause.

The monkeys were the funniest things ever. My dear, six chimpanzees sat at a low table, such as is used in kindergartens, in chairs of the same childish size, with all the dignity one associates with the meeting of a board of bank directors. A small monkey dressed in white linen acted as butler and waited on table quite like a trained English flunky, removing the plates as the courses were finished, filling the glasses when necessary and apparently anticipating the wants of his superiors. Whenever these same superiors became rude and grasping over the possession of a certain dainty or spilled any of the viands, there was an overseer of the human species on hand to chastise them by applying a smart wrap over the head of the offenders. At the end of the meal down went each apish head into its fore paws in devout thanksgiving to the divine provider of the feast. Seats about the monkey cage were reserved for youthful spectators, and the peals of childish laughter when a chimpanzee forgot his table manners and was corrected made that part of the park ring with their appreciation. One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

Since women have gone in for campaign work in behalf of their favorite presidential candidates there is a very hurricane of talk about politics; in fact, in the words of the popular ragtime song, "everybody's doing it," and one hears mighty funny stories on the subject. Here's my latest find concerning the misfortunes of a citizen who wanted to help along the cause.

This particular John was wont to say to his wife Mary: "I'm a plain man, and among other things I take no interest in butter balls. I like my butter plain in pats."

But Mary, though a plain woman, saw no reason why the butter should emulate her, and at table the butter continued to appear in neat round balls. One evening John hurried through dinner. He was due to attend a political meeting. He was going to make his maiden speech. He left the table before the cloth was cleared for dessert, but he returned for a moment, hat in hand, to rehearse his climax for Mary. "We are approaching a climax"—up went the hat. "Who among you will fall the old party now?" Hat waving in air. "I venture to predict"—hat aloft, still and perpendicular—"not one." Hat in a swift downward swoop, landing bang upon the table. And John, thrusting his hat upon his head, left the house.

John was a marked man all the way to the meeting. Evidently the district knew that he was about to speak. John's speech was a great success. The climax seemed to quite move the audience. All the way home John was a marked man. People nudged each other and pointed him out. People craned their necks to see him and smiled. Secretly John rather fancies himself a power in the district. When his wife Mary met him at the door, "John," said she, "what is on your hat brim?"

Pertly impaled upon his stiff straw hat front for all the world to see sat a plump yellow butter ball.

"Mary," said John sadly, "this would never have happened had you been content to serve our butter plain, as it comes from the cow." Now, Elsa, dear, when Jack goes out to make a political speech inspect his hat.

You would like to know how I am getting my hands into shape after the summer's hard usage. I'm doing it with the following lotion, which is the best thing of the kind I have ever come across. Very simple is the formula: Five cents' worth of bay rum, 15 cents' worth of glycerin, 5 cents' worth of alcohol and 5 cents' worth of quince seed. Shake the lotion well before using, and if applied regularly for a few days the result will be magical. Having put you on the beauty trail, I must stop gossiping with you and see whether Maggie's washing the white paint properly. We're cleaning house. Woe is all of us. Miserably yours, MABEL.

Recent events altogether disprove the supposition that the home of the war germ is in Germ-any.

MALE QUARTETTE SANG AT HASTINGS

Assisted in Program at Methodist Church Anniversary

The Harmony Male Quartette took its first jaunt of the season last night and hied away to picturesque Hastings, to assist at the anniversary services of the live Little Methodist Church there. Promptly at three o'clock, Mr. Banks' auto, that you can always bank on to take you safely over "Banks and Braes" in spite of cloud banks, or snow banks to your destination in consideration of a small bank note, drew up at the door of the Greene Music building, the quartette tumbled in and we were off. Off is the correct word in this case, as everyone who uses the road we travelled will acknowledge, for we were about as much off the ground as on it.

A crowded church greeted the Peterborough talent, and a two hours' program, which included a number of unusually good clerical addresses, was successfully given. Vocal solos were most acceptably rendered by Miss Tate and Messrs. J. M. Greene and F. Pratt. Mr. Greene also gave a beautifully executed trombone solo.

The Harmony Quartette rendered several selections, both secular and sacred, in the last of which, Miss Smith very pleasantly assisted by taking an obligato contralto solo, with the male voices providing the accompaniment.

Misses Tate and Smith, and Messrs. Callander and Pratt, as a mixed quartette, also presented two appreciative numbers.

As our watches pointed to eleven we loaded that broncho hill-climbing slough "Ford"-ing, road-eating, blizzard of a car, roped ourselves in to save the roof from damage, and when we recovered we were smoothly (?) gliding (?) along the paved (?) streets of Peterborough, and a most enjoyable outing was over. —Com.

Kuntz's ORIGINAL LAGER

It's More Refreshing

"Did you ever notice how much more refreshing Kuntz's Original Lager is than ordinary lagers?" remarked a man to a friend, as they were enjoying a bottle the other day. "Yes," replied his friend, who, by the way, was a physician, "and the reason is because Kuntz's Original Lager is brewed from naturally pure spring water, instead of ordinary or city waters which require to be artificially or chemically purified."

Let your next bottle be Kuntz's Original Lager. See how much more enjoyable and refreshing is this famous spring-water lager. 66

JACKSON WAS NEAREST TO COBB

Ty. is the Champion Batsman for Sixth Year

Batting honors of the American League again go to Tyrus Cobb, of the Detroit Club, for the sixth successive year.

Official averages for the 1912 season, issued by President Johnson, show Cobb leader with .410. Joe Jackson was Cobb's closest rival. The Cleveland outfielder finished with an average of .395 while "Tris" Speaker, of Boston, was third with .383. Thirty players batted into the select .300 class.

In 140 games Cobb pounded out 227 hits for a total of 324 bases. He made 30 two-base hits, 23 triples and seven home runs. Frank Baker, of the Philadelphia Club, was the premier home-run hitter of the year, having ten to his credit.

Although noted for his speed on the bases, Cobb was outrivalled by Clyde Milan, of Washington, in stolen bases. Milan stole 88, while Cobb finished with 61. Eddie Collins, of Philadelphia, also finished ahead of Cobb, having 63 stolen bases to his credit.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Bowmanville will play intermediate O.H.A. this season. A new rink is being erected.

Mr. H. E. Wettlaufer, President of the O.H.A., is in the city.

The new Yale stadium will be ready for football next year. It is to provide seating accommodation for 60,000 and is claimed to be the most commodious athletic ampitheatre in the world. The stadium will be of the sunken type, 25 feet of the bowl being below the level of the ground, the above-ground portion being 32 feet high.

Fred Welsh, the English lightweight, regained his title of lightweight champion of Great Britain in a twenty-round fight last night with Matt Wells, the British titleholder. The fight went the full distance, Welsh winning on points.

Arrangements are completed for the play-off of the tie which exists in the senior series of the Intercollegiate Union between McGill University and University of Toronto. It was decided to play the game at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, on Saturday next, November 16.

OFFICERS OF O.H.A. WERE RE-ELECTED

That the work of the officers of the Ontario Hockey Association for the season of 1911-12 was most satisfactory is evidenced by the fact that all of the members have been re-elected by acclamation as follows:

Past President—L. Blake Duff, Welland.

President—H. E. Wettlaufer, Berlin.

Life Member—J. Ross Robertson, Toronto.

A. A. U. of C. Governor—Francis Nelson, Toronto.

First Vice-President—Charles Farquharson, Stratford.

Second Vice-President — Kenneth Casselman, London.

Secretary—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

Treasurer—Dr. W. G. Wood, Toronto.

Executive Committee—A. E. Copeland, Midland; R. M. Glover, Peterborough; James T. Sutherland, Kingston; J. R. Beaton, Chatham.

There are two appointments to be made by the president, and the appointees last year will probably be named again as follows: Dwight J. Turner, Toronto, and Sheriff J. F. Paxton, Whitby.

Looking at New Route.

Engineers and surveyors in the employ of the Alberta, Peace River and Eastern Railway Co., which purposes building a new transcontinental line from Hudson Bay to the Pacific coast by way of Edmonton, are on a pony back trip of more than two thousand miles into the north country to survey the route. They will meet the McDougall party at Lesser Slave Lake and start on a tramp of 700 miles, finishing the trip on dog trains and return in 12 months.

The party, which is in charge of Mr. Edwards, an experienced engineer and pathfinder, will first go over the north-eastern portion of the route, thence continuing the survey westward along the proposed route from Fort McMurray to tidewater on the Pacific coast. A branch line is to run southward from Fort McMurray to Edmonton, thence southeasterly to the Milk River country by way of Cochrane.

The Eastern Potato Crop.

The potato crop of Nova Scotia this year is fully up to the average and farmers will realize good prices for their stocks during the next few weeks. Most of the Nova Scotia potato export trade, which amounts to a quarter of a million barrels annually, is conducted through Halifax commission merchants, the market being chiefly with Cuba and the British West Indies. When the later crop is marketed the exportations will begin and the commission merchants will have a busy time.

THE WHEAT PROPHETESS

Miss E. Cora Hind Is Canada's Greatest Crop Expert.

It may be news to some people that the greatest authority on agricultural conditions and tendencies in Western Canada is a woman. Perhaps it should be said that some of the professors and other experts in the service of the various Governments may be excepted when this distinction is accorded, says Toronto Saturday Night. Miss E. Cora Hind, commercial and agricultural editor of The Free Press, Winnipeg, has achieved a national reputation as an authority on agricultural topics, with particular reference to the production of grain and live stock. Her most noteworthy accomplishments, as far as the general public is concerned, have been in connection with the inspection of growing crops in the prairie provinces. In her capacity as commercial editor she spent a large portion of each summer during the past eight years in traveling through the various grain districts in order to reach an accurate conclusion regarding the crop outlook. The present season has been the first in which Miss Hind has not undertaken these trips, and only the great extension of settlement and cultivation has made necessary the discontinuance of this important work.

It is no small task to calculate the probable output of wheat over an acreage of five to ten million distributed through a territory of 200,000,000 acres, but a summary of what Miss Hind has been able to do in this respect will give the best idea of her efficiency. From 1904 to 1911 she made an annual estimate about harvest time. Of course, it was not until one year later that there was an opportunity to compare her figures with the official returns of the Dominion Government. During that time the total yield of wheat increased from 54,390,678 to 181,751,017 bushels, so that there was plenty of room to make a mistake. In 1904 Miss Hind's figures were within 700,000 bushels of the actual output as tabulated a year later. In 1905 she was about 500,000 bushels out, in 1907, 300,000 bushels, and in 1909, 600,000 bushels. In the other years her estimates were from three to four million bushels astray, but these were seasons in which the work of calculation was particularly difficult on account of the rapid increase in acreage and an unusual variety of weather conditions.

Miss Hind was born in Toronto, and is descended from United Empire Loyalist stock. She was brought up on her grandfather's farm in the County of Grey and went to Winnipeg just after the famous boom of 1882. She was the first girl to be employed as a typist in Western Canada, and in that capacity she made the first typewritten brief that was used in the courts in Manitoba. Her first work for The Manitoba Free Press was done in 1883 and her connection with that paper gradually became more intimate as her experience increased.

The expert knowledge gained by Miss Hind in her newspaper work has made her a welcome and popular visitor at fairs, stock shows and other exhibitions where the best displays are to be seen. She is as well known at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago as she is at the Brandon Winter Fair. She has taken a prominent part in the activities of the Canadian Women's Press Club, and is generally interested in any movement that has for its object a closer recognition of the important part that women can play in business life.

National Playgrounds.

A new policy has been developed by the Forestry Department of the Dominion Government which promises to be very popular in the west. There has been established a new branch which will be known as the bureau of national playgrounds. Hitherto the forest preserves of the Dominion Government have been purely for the purpose of saving the timber and wild animals. Now the idea of maintaining many of these reserves as pleasure and health resorts is developed and suitable portions will be set apart as playgrounds for the people. The first experiment of this kind was made this summer in the Turtle mountain reserve in Manitoba, where the plan has proved popular. It will be carried out on a more extensive scale next year. Requests have already been made to have playgrounds established at Duck mountain and Riding mountain reserves in the Prairie Province and also for the establishment of a playground and health resort at Spruce Woods reserve, southwest of Prince Albert.

Passed With Honors.

Sir William Mulock is one of the many Canadian city men who take an interest in farming. Another gentleman who does farming on the side is Dr. Miller, principal of Ridley College, St. Catharines.

Both have been connected with educational work, but when they met on a train from St. Catharines recently much of their talk was about farming. Sir William asked the doctor about soil, fertilizers, sheep, cows, rotation of crops, what use to make of land under apple trees and many other things concerning the farm.

"This answering your questions," said the doctor, "reminds me of my university days."

Sir William smiled, and said: "Perhaps so. At any rate you've certainly passed a very creditable examination."

The Musk Ox.

The musk ox is an arctic animal, occurring both in Greenland and in Northern Canada. In plaistocene times it occurred in England and Central Europe. It is about the size of one of our smaller breeds of ox, but in habits and in the fact that most of its muzzle is hairy more like a sheep than a bovine. Its hair is very long, thick and matted. The horns in the young are small, upright and far apart, but in the adult they become very broad at the base and meet in the midline and take a curve downward and outward, while the ends curve again upward to a point. It owes its name to its strong musklike odor.

The Wrong Man.

Samuel Gompers was giving it as his opinion that in exciting times people are apt to accuse the wrong man. It suggested to him the story about the young lady in Toledo.

This girl had been receiving now and then a young man who had never made love to her, but had admired her greatly. One evening before the girl entered the parlor her mother appeared and asked in a rough, stern tone of voice what his intentions were. Not having any intentions, the youth turned every color of the rainbow and succeeded in saying nothing. His suffering was ended by the entrance of the girl, who exclaimed:

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

FOR THE NURSERY.

Life Motifs or Studies From Nature Popular Decorations.

Decorations for the nursery are now the fad of the modern mother, who often prefers to execute her own designs in order to express her individual taste upon her little ones. What are called "life motifs" or studies from nature are at present popular designs for decoration and can easily be achieved.

Take a single large sheet of water color paper and on this paste a variety of cut-out white paper animals which are to serve as a frieze. At regular intervals of twelve inches paste one of these animals, a dog, cat, squirrel, kangaroo or any kind of bird. All these must be cut out of white paper, though a little variety is afforded by giving yellow bills and red feet to the chickens.

The walls above and below this frieze of white animals may be painted in tan color and so serve as a restful background to the decorations.

Trees for the motifs are also excellent and should be conventional in shape, modeled something on the lines of the Noah's ark type. Both large and small are cut out of white paper and colored respectively dark green and yellow and crimson. Two green trees, arranged side by side, may be alternated by red and yellow and thus give a charming effect.

The "bird" motif in the brilliant colors of every gay hued parrot, robin redbreast, bird of paradise, etc., is also highly effective on a background of gray cartridge paper and invariably pleases a nursery of children

A High Cost Hymn.

The dough I've spent on thee, dear heart,
Has driven thoughts of joy from me.
I sit and wonder why the coins depart—
My grocery—my grocery!

Each day a bill, each bill a scare
To squeeze from me my hard earned gold.
I bid each coin a fond farewell—
A fare that's ages old!

O memories of days gone by,
When eggs were fresh, not counting cheats!
I curse each cost that to my hand doth fly
And wait for eats—in vain—for cheaper eats!

A Word Without a Meaning.

Apropos of music and ignorance, Dr. Melvil Dewey, state librarian of New York, recently told the following story:

"A certain governor," he said, "was given a luncheon at a seaside town. During the repast the local band played on the beach outside the hotel. The drum was in charge of a blacksmith, and he beat it so resonantly that at last this message was sent out:

" 'The governor requests the drummer to desist.'

"The bandmaster was puzzled by this message for a moment. Then his face brightened in a smile, and he said:

" 'More drum, Joe; the governor likes it.' "—New York Tribune.

Bells and the Koran.

It is said in the Koran that beautiful bells are hung upon the trees of paradise in such a way as to be stirred by wind from the golden throne of God whenever the blessed ones in his presence wish for music. It is to this that the author of "Lalla Rookh" refers in the lines:

Bells as musical
As those that on the golden shafted tree
Of Eden, shook by the eternal breeze.

25 Cents to Stop That Itch

Does it not seem strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema?

A 25 cent bottle of a simple wash stops that itch and will surely convince any patient.

This wash is composed of mild and soothing oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol and glycerine, etc., and known as D. D. D. Prescription. We do not know how long the D. D. D. Laboratories will continue the 25c offer, as the remedy is regularly sold only in 1.00 bottles and has never before been put on the market in Canada on any special offers.

If you want relief to-night try a bottle at 52c. on our personal recommendation.

HAPPY THOUGHT

Why Bread is Better Baked in Some Ranges Than in Others

It is all a matter of the way the heat gets into the oven.

Some stoves have ovens that heat easily and quickly and remain very hot.

Others have ovens that require a wasteful amount of fire in the fire-box before baking heat is reached.

These are the two extremes. For some things each type has advantages. But for all your requirements neither is really satisfactory.

"Happy Thought" Ranges give you the heat in the oven that exactly corresponds with the fire in the firebox.

So a little fire means a light heat and a big fire means a perfect hot-blast in the oven.

In baking bread, this feature enables you to secure the benefit of every ounce of heat—to make every lump of coal pay for itself—to continue the heat steadily for as long as you wish in order to have the bread baked uniformly all the way through.

More than a Quarter Million Canadian women use the "Happy Thought" every day.

A Congratulation

And What Came of It

By P. A. MITCHEL

"Well, Bob, what is it?"

He who was called Bob—Robert Morrow was his real name—was walking to and fro on the floor of his room. He had sent for his bosom friend, Martin Bangs, to come to see him, having something especial to communicate. Without pausing in his walk Morrow said:

"I'm engaged to be married."

"You announce it as if you were going to be hanged."

"Well, I don't know"—

"Don't know what?"

"Whether I've done a very big thing or a very little one."

"Oh, I suppose you've done right if you don't mind"—

"Don't mind what?"

"Staying at home nights, losing all your old friends, being interfered with every time you drink a cocktail or smoke a cigar, having to be friendly with all your wife's relatives"—

"Mart, another word of that and I'll brain you!"

"Oh, well, if you wish me to give you taffy I'll do it."

"What do you know about married life? You've never been married."

"I don't wish to be. One thing I know. I never had an intimate friend who married but I lost him. Don't you know that the first a woman does with her husband is to prejudice him against any old crony he may have an especial fancy for?"

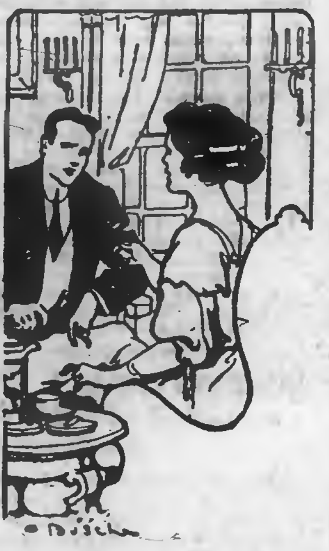
"What does she do that for?"

"Jealousy."

An expression of terror came upon Morrow's face. "Oh, heavens!" he exclaimed. "Why did I do it?"

"Did she rope you in?"

"Rope me in! No. I did it all myself. Why, only yesterday when she sent for me to give me my answer I swore to myself if it was 'No' I would commit suicide."



"GOOD GRACIOUS! WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?"

"Well?"

"And after the surprise had passed and I got to thinking it all over I couldn't understand how I had been so insane as to tie myself up in a knot that—I got thinking of just what you just said—the awful change in my affairs, interferences, wife's relations, and all that. O Lord, what a fool I've made of myself!"

"Sorry for you, Bob, but I don't see how I can help you. It wouldn't do for me to advise you anyway. You have passed from my influence to hers. Anything I'd say to you you'd pour into her ear, and she'd prejudice you against me all the quicker and all the stronger."

"How can I get out of it?"

"You can't."

"I can shoot myself—accidentally."

"That's what you were going to do if she refused you."

"So I was. I wonder if I'll ever feel that way again."

"Yes, you will."

"When?"

"The next time you see her."

"Will I?"

"Yes; she'll approach you with a smile, both hands extended to take both of yours, put up her lips to be kissed, and you'll be limp as a wet rag."

This was the first thing Bob's chum said to him that did not elicit a reply. The picture seemed to turn him as a changed wind will veer a weather cock.

"Well, I suppose I must make the best of it. One thing I think you might do to make it easier for me."

"What's that?"

"Get married yourself."

"Well, I like that! Did you ever read the fable of the fox that had his tail cut off in a trap? He told the other foxes they'd better have their tails cut off too. Not any for me. I don't propose to cut off my cigars, cocktails and other pleasures of life to be tied down to a woman who will place a barrier between me and all"—

"Get out of here! You'll drive me insane with your chatter."

"Well, goodby, old man. It's sad to recall our pleasant friendship and think that it is ended. It is better to break it all off at once. Fortunately I'm off on a long trip, and by the time I return you'll have been swung off. Good by, Bob, as the poet says:

"We've been long together,
Through pleasant and through stormy weather.
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cause a sigh, a tear,

"When I see you again"—

Mr. Bangs' voice, which had been growing tremulous while repeating the lines, gave out altogether, and with a silent pressure of hands the chums parted.

* * * * * * *

"Mr. Bangs, I have sent for you at Bob's suggestion—indeed, his request. Our honeymoon had scarcely passed before he was called away on business. He told me that you would return soon after his departure and he could rely on you to help me out of my loneliness during his absence."

"I shall be very happy, I assure you," replied Mr. Bangs, belying his words by his expression.

"Bob knows perfectly well that he can trust me, and, as for you, he says you have no use for any woman except to pass time. I shall expect you to be devoted to me."

The only one of these statements that was spoken with apparent sincerity was the last. It doesn't matter what persons say to each other; it's how they say it. Mr. Bangs made a short call, during which he said a number of things, all of which were untrue. At any rate, they were intended to be untrue.

An attractive woman doesn't need to deceive a man as to her intention to conquer him. He wishes to be conquered. Indeed, he can't be conquered fast enough to satisfy his impatience. Martin Bangs had no occasion to fear matrimony with a married woman, but the idea of a possibility of his getting mixed in an affair with his friend's wife was horrible to him. During the period that he was engaged in preventing Mrs. Bangs from being lonely he made several attempts to get out of her clutches. On one occasion he left her vowing that he would not remain under her roof another moment or ever return to her again, and in less than half an hour he was ringing the doorbell furiously.

What made the matter worse was that Mrs. Morrow did not appear to feel the slightest compunction at what she was doing with Mr. Bangs, or have any fear that she should come to prefer him to her husband. She would lower her eyes before his gaze then look up and laugh at him. In fact, she was teasing him. And all the while she would persist in referring to Bob Morrow as the best man, the finest man, the loveliest man in the world, and any woman who preferred any other man to him couldn't have any taste.

One evening when they were together she announced that Bob had written that he would be at home in a few days. Bangs looked as if she had read him his death warrant.

"You don't seem joyful," she remarked.

"No I don't. I don't see how a man can feel joyful situated as I am."

"How are you situated?"

"In the first place, my feelings toward the man I love most in the world are that I'd like to kill him."

"How awfully horrid!"

"In the second place, I feel that he would be justified in killing me."

"Good, gracious! What have you done?"

"Nothing. It is what I wish to do."

"And what do you wish to do?"

"Run away with his wife."

"You naughty man! That being the case, I think you had better not come here any more till after Bob's return."

"I think I'd better never come."

"It's very silly of you to want another man's wife when there are so many nice girls in the world. But I thought you didn't wish to be married."

"I wouldn't in my senses."

"Just think of what you would have to give up."

No reply.

"The cocktails."

"Oh, Bob told you all that, did he?"

"And the wife's relations."

"I knew he was not to be trusted from the moment he got engaged."

"Then you would have to give up your old friends; your wife would be jealous of them."

"What a sieve a man becomes as soon as he is married!"

"I wouldn't do it if I were you."

"I'm not likely to. I can't marry my best friend's wife, and I don't wish to marry any one else."

"Mr. Bangs!"

"What?"

"You men are humbugs!"

"I know it."

"You don't know what you want."

"We certainly don't want a sweetheart till we know we can't get her."

"Bob turned out to be a seive, true enough. He was no sooner engaged than he repeated to his fiancee word for word the congratulations you offered him."

"The greater fool I."

"I was present when he did it."

"Of course you were! How could you have been somewhere else?"

"I'm not Mrs. Morrow."

"Not Mrs. Morrow!"

"I'm Mrs. Morrow's sister. Nell and I just thought we'd punish you for your opinions of women."

"For heaven's sake! Are you married or single?"

"Single."

"Thank God!"

When Morrow came home there were criminations and recriminations between the two men, but there was no bitterness to them.

"You gave me away," said Mart.

"So would the fox have given the other foxes away if by doing so he could have got them to cut off their tails."

"I'm in heaven!"

"Thanks to me, who betrayed you."

ZAM-BUK CURED US! WHY NOT YOU?

Injury to Feet Healed.

Mr. Reuben Atherton, of 367 Ferguson Ave., Hamilton, says:—While employed with the Otis Elevator Co. a heavy plank fell and severely crushed my big toe and right foot. The nail had to be removed from the toe when the doctor came to dress the injured members. The flesh was terribly bruised, turned very black, and the foot and leg became much swollen and painful. I was laid off work for some eight weeks. The doctor attended regularly at first, but the wounds did not heal. At last I heard of Zam-Buk and began using this ointment. It really seemed to act like magic, cleaning all unhealthy matter from the wounds, and drawing out all discoloration, inflammation and soreness. In two weeks the toe and foot were well again. Zam-Buk balm is certainly a wonderful healer, and I would not be without a box in the house.

Poisoned Sore Cured.

Mrs. D. S. Green, of Kingston, Ont., writes:—My daughter Hazel sustained a poisoned wound on her heel. She had chilblains and when the skin broke some poison got into the wound and made a terrible place. It was painful, much swollen, and made her almost unable to move about. For a long time she could not bear to put a shoe on. I tried several things, but there was no trace of improvement. At last a lady friend recommended Zam-Buk. I left off the ordinary salves and applied this herbal balm to her heel. In a few days Zam-Buk had cleansed and healed the sore so well that she was able to put on her shoe, and a few days later the wound was healed and Hazel was back at school. I shall always keep Zam-Buk handy in future.

Obstinate Skin Rash Ended.

Mrs. H. Burdett, of 196 Simcoe St. East, Hamilton, says:—"I was cured by Zam-Buk of an obstinate skin rash which had defied all previous remedies. This eruption broke out on my face in the form of red pimples and blotches. Various remedies one after another were tried, yet nothing permanently removed this eruption until I used Zam-Buk. After each application of this herbal ointment my skin became clearer, and in a week my face was as smooth and white as before the rash broke out, thanks to Zam-Buk. Since then our home is never without it.

For all skin injuries & diseases Zam-Buk is best. All druggists and stores 50c a box or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Explorer Returning After Fruitless Search In Antarctic Seas.

News has been received in Christchurch, N.Z., of the scientific expedition in the Antarctic, which sailed at the beginning of the summer under the charge of Dr. Mawson. The exploring ship Aurora has returned from her winter cruise after carrying out a trip of over three weeks. As the ship was not required until November, when she will return to the ice region to bring back the leader and his party, she was engaged on scientific investigations in sub-Antarctic seas. The Aurora is in charge of Capt. J. K. Davis, and among those aboard are a taxidermist and a cinematograph operator. The whole of the ship's company are reported as being in good health. One of the objects of the cruise was not attained. This was the discovery of the reported Royal Company's islands. Four days of the cruise was spent in searching the ocean for sight of these islands, but not a trace could be found. The reported islands were said to be in two different positions, but though both positions and the sea around were thoroughly explored there was no sign of the supposed islands.

It was on May 17 that the Aurora left Sydney, sailing by way of Bass Strait to the 140th meridian, and after his exhaustive search it is the opinion of Capt. Davis that the islands do not exist anywhere near where the charts indicated. He admits, however, that even in comparatively clear weather Macquarie Island could only be seen from a distance of eight miles, and rough weather made it impossible to take soundings. Indeed, so boisterous was the weather that on not a single day was it possible for them to use the sounding machine; and though several attempts were made these generally resulted in a loss of some of the gear. On one occasion, however, a depth of 2,000 fathoms was found by the sounding wire. The cinematograph apparatus was not used owing to bad light and the inability to get the machine steadily fastened to the deck.

When Macquarie Island was reached it was found that the five men of Dr. Mawson's party were doing good work, and the wireless station was in constant service. Messages were caught as far as Fiji and Western Australia, but the gales and the humidity of the atmosphere interfered badly with the installation. The aerials had been blown down twice, but had been erected again, and the water which cools the petrol engine had been frozen often and caused more trouble. It is the belief of the operator that the messages sent out are being received at the base in the Far South. There has been a rich field of Antarctic fauna for the explorers to study. Contrary to ordinary belief, it has been established by the expedition that the sea elephants are still very numerous. At times hundreds of these animals could be seen in shoals, and on the shore sea leopards, which are perhaps the most beautiful of sea animals, were seen at intervals.

Penguins with their families roved along the beaches, and the Maori hens, which were taken to Macquarie Island some years ago, have so multiplied that they were seen in hundreds. Among the specimens which have been secured for the Canterbury Museum are many new ones. A sea elephant which was obtained is nearly 20 feet in length, and weighed more than a ton. The attempts at trawling, however, were not so fortunate, owing to rough seas. On two occasions the trawl was let down, but the wind and tide carried the vessel away very rapidly, and the trawl was damaged and the net torn. There are five members of the expedition at Macquarie Island, and 20 with Dr. Mawson are at the base in Adelie Land. Eight are at the secondary base near Aussberg. It is expected the expedition will return to civilization in April next.

CHURCHES JOIN FIGHT AGAINST WHITE PLAGUE

December 1st Will be Observed as Tuberculosis Sunday

A movement fraught with tremendous possibilities for good has been launched in the form of a request that the churches of Ontario should set aside each year a Sabbath to be observed as "Tuberculosis Sunday." The Interdenominational Ministerial Association of Toronto gave a ready assent when the proposal was laid before them, and they have fixed upon Sunday, December 1st, as the day upon which they will seek to awake the interest and sympathy of their congregations in the noble work being done to succor needy consumptives, stay the ravages of the disease, educate the public in preventive measures, and finally stamp out the scourge of tuberculosis. A general appeal issued to the clergy of all denominations in Ontario is meeting with a cordial response, and in hundreds of pulpits the sermons of December 1st will be devoted to this vitally important subject. The active co-operation of the churches of the province should result in a mighty impetus being given to the war upon tuberculosis in Ontario.

HICKS' WEATHER FOR THIS MONTH

Stormy Periods With Cold Wave in the Last Week

A regular storm period involves the 11th to the 16th, being central on the 13th. At this period the moon will be at the extreme south declination and atmosphere tides will flow from northerly directions, increasing the probability of cold rains and winds, added to snow and sleet over central to northern parts of the country. The Mercury and Venus periods will both be felt in the disturbances of this period, and to the end of the month. Storms of this period will culminate on the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th—first to the west and thence progressively, day by day to the eastward. High barometer and change to westerly winds and much colder will push the western flanks of the storm centre, all the way to the Atlantic. One of the most important things to know, and keep in mind, is that rising temperature, falling barometer and fair weather precede storms and rising barometer and colder, clearing weather will follow storms.

A reactionary storm period falls on and touching the 18th, 19th and 20th. There will be electrical storms centreing on and touching the 19th, the date of the moon's crossing the celestial equator. Under strain of both Mercury and Venus periods decided storms, culminating in snow and sleet, may be expected at this period. A general low barometer at this time will be ample warning of dangerous autumnal gales, especially on the Atlantic and over the lake regions.

A regular storm period involves the 23rd to 28th. Watch your barometer. This period calls for violent autumnal storms. Rain, sleet and snow, fierce gales and a sweeping cold wave following will be the order.

The Venus period which begins about the middle of November, will intensify and aggravate storm conditions all the last half of November, but the culmination of the period will fall in December.

WEDDING BELLS

HEASLIP—DORMER.

At Charlotte Street Methodist Church, Miss Florence Dormer and Mr. F. J. Heaslip were united in marriage at seven o'clock this morning.

Rev. T. J. Mansel, performed the ceremony, the event being quietly observed. There were no attendants.

The bride was married in her travelling suit of navy blue with palm shot effect. Her hat was a black beaver with plumes.

Mr. and Mrs. Heaslip left on the C.P.R. local for a trip to Boston and Pittsfield, and on their return to the city will reside at the corner of London and Aylmer streets.

Congratulations and best wishes will be extended by a host of friends. Both the bride and groom have been very popular. Among the many useful gifts to the bride was an oak kitchen cabinet, from the employes of Barrie's, Ltd., where the bride formerly held the position of bookkeeper.

Farmers.

Sing a song of farmers,
  Up at early morn,
With four-and-twenty chores to do
  Before the breakfast born.
When the breakfast's over
  There's little to be done
Except to plow the fodder,
  And let the harrow run,
And mow the sheep, and prune the beets,
  And curry up the swine,
And shear the hens, and dig the hay,
  And ride the gentle kine,
And [illegible] and rake the rye,
  And wash and dress the land
And things like that which city folks
  Can never understand.

—Life.

This Is Not Intended For Husbands.

A correspondent sends us the following bit of matrimonial philosophy which she vouches for as both original and recent. There is a quaint and homely recipe involved in it that may be found helpful in many households:

Young Lady—What is the secret of your happy life with both your husbands—two such different men?

Old Lady—Why, I guess I wasn't fussy over trifles. And then I let them have their own way sometimes. They thought they always did.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

INJURED MAN IS IMPROVING

Freight Conductor Perry Met With Painful Mishap

Railroad employee and citizens in general will be pleased to hear that Conductor Harry Perry, of Lindsay, who was injured in the yards at Waubaushene, near Midland, on Saturday last, is reported to be getting along nicely. Mr. Perry lives in Lindsay at present, although his home is in Peterborough, where his mother resides.

It appears that Conductor Perry was assisting his trainmen, and had uncoupled his train, but while the engine remained still, the slack moved back, pinning the unfortunate young man tight. He was rushed to to the hospital at Midland, where his wounds were dressed. Conductor Perry suffered great pain, and late Saturday night was still in an unconscious condition. However, to day his condition was reported as very much improved.

At the present time Conductor Perry's mother is confined to the the Peterborough hospital through illness.—Lindsay Warder.

THEATRICAL

LITTLE MISS FIX-IT

Alice Lloyd appearing in the musical comedy "Little Miss Fix-It," at the Grand last night, was greeted by one of the largest houses of the season. The play itself has very little to it and serves as a vehicle for Miss Lloyd, who makes up for all deficiencies with her cheerful smile and buoyant air. When she sang her own songs "Ship Ahoy," "Won't You Come and Splash Me," "What Are Ye Gettin' At, Hey," she had great difficulty in getting off the stage at all, so prolonged was the applause. There were a large number of English people in the audience, who had heard her in the London Music Halls, and no doubt her Cockney dialect and English songs, brought back memories. A number of Englishmen gathered in the gallery and sang the choruses to "Ship Ahoy," much to the little star's delight.

Miss Lloyd has very pleasing ways and her happy smile went straight to the hearts of the audience.

Of her support, Lionel Walsh, in the character of Percy Paget, deserved full honors. Never before have Peterborough theatregoers had the chance to see such a droll characterization of the penniless English aristocrat. His song "I'm Percy of the Lancers," was almost a work of art.

The remainder of the company deserved full credit. There were two other songs which were tuneful and popular, "If You'll Be My Eve, I'll Build an Eden for You," and "Excuse Me, Mister Moon."

PIANISTE OF ODD LINEAGE

Mme. Mary Hallock, the pianiste who is to be heard here on Thursday November 21st., at The Grand, is an artist whose genealogy presents striking [illegible] contrasts. Mme. Hallock's mother was a descendant of an old Oriental family, which has been prominent in Asia Minor since the sixth century, while her father's side the pianiste comes from a long line of illustrious Americans, one of her ancestors being Thomas Mayhew the first Governor of Connecticut.

This magician of the key-board was born in Bhamdoun, a village and summer resort in the Lebanon Mountains, in the [illegible] of her grand father's tenantry and vineyards. Her imagination was fostered when yet a babe by the stories told her by native nurses, and without which she would refuse to go to sleep. These stories vied with the Arabian Nights tales in picturesqueness, variety, and originality, and are probably the source of the subtlety warmth and originality of her interpretations.

MISS LLOYD AT QUAKER OATS CO.

Miss Alice Lloyd, her two nieces and a few other members of the "Little Miss Fix-it" company, paid a visit to the Quaker Oats Company yesterday afternoon.

Miss Lloyd appeared very interested in the different departments and afterwards expressed her delight in what she had seen.

Seven in Human Life.

A writer divides the human life as follows: At three times seven a man reaches a competent age in the eyes of the law; at four times seven he is in full possession of his strength; at five times seven he is fit for the business of the world; at six times seven he becomes grave and wise if he is ever destined to; at seven times seven he is in his apogee, and from that time he begins to decay; at eight times seven he is in his first climacteric, at nine times seven he is in his grand climacteric, and at ten times seven he has reached the allotted span of life.

MEMORIAL TO GENERAL BOOTH

Salvation Army in Canada Plan to Erect Training Institution

The members of the Salvation Army are now actively engaged, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in securing the necessary funds towards the establishing of a memorial in Canada to the late General William Booth. It has been decided by the leaders of the Army in this country, that a new training institution should commemorate the life and work of the honored founder of the organisation.

This is to be erected in the city of Toronto, the centre of all Salvation Army operations in the Dominion, in which the young men and women who offer themselves as officers, could be thoroughly and efficiently trained for their life's work.

It is the intention to provide accommodation for 125 persons, including class rooms, lecture rooms, libraries, sleeping rooms, dining rooms, kitchen, hospitals, baths, swimming pool, gymnasium, offices, etc. The expenditure necessary is estimated at $250,000 and while this may appear a very large amount, the money would be well spent, as it will be an investment securing very beneficial results for the future.

At the moment, the Army is handicapped in their training operations, inasmuch as the accommodation of the present training college is considerably overtaxed; the idea therefore, of the memorial is not only one of sentiment, but of necessity.

The local representatives desire to enlist the practical co-operation of all the admirers of the late General who was truly a benefactor of humanity and of whom in his lifetime it was said, "The poor Thy Clients, and Heaven's smile Thy fee."

HAD KING MIDAS SAVED ONE DIME EACH WEEK

Why didn't King Midas, the gold lover try to save ten cents a week? He could have given the world a wonderful example of the value of the saving habit. Besides, he would have left money for the members of his family alive to-day. Midas was one of the Kings of Phrygia. As the Phrygian line was wiped out by the Cimmerians about 670 B.C., we may assume he lived about 80 B.C., or at least 2,711 years ago.

If King Midas had started in saving ten cents a week he would have a dime therefore, on each of the 140,870 weeks. This would make him the neat little sum of $14,087. Although not a fortune in these days, $14,087 is quite a fair sum to save by giving up one cigar a week. But there is more to follow.

RISK GREATER THEN.

In those days of political upheaval and commercial uncertainty, capital was entitled to a bigger return on its investment than it would be to day. The risk was much greater. Though we have no actual accord of Phrygian rates of usury it is fair to assume that the Midas account drew 10 per cent. interest compounded annually for at least the first two hundred years, or until the commercial world had reached a comparatively recent stage of development.

Beginning, therefore, 800 years before Christ, Midas put into his savings 10 cents every week. At the end of the first ten weeks he had a dollar. The interest on $1 for one year is not great, even at 10 per cent., but it adds another dime to the 10 already saved. At the end of the second year there is something more than two dimes to be added.

At the end of the first 100 years the accumulation on the first dollar at 10 per cent. compounded, would be $13,780.63. Thus Midas in the year 700 B.C., would have had $13,780.66 resulting from his first 10 weeks' savings. The compounding goes on through the next century so that at the end of 200 years, or in the year 600 B.C. Midas would have had $189,965,590.04 from his first dollar.

NOT COMPLICATED.

At the end of the next hundred years or in 500 B.C., the results from those first ten dimes put away would be $2,619,038,149,100.63. Continuing this compounding through the following 2,411 years it is not a complicated mathematical problem to arrive at the sum Midas would have to-day from his first $1 saved.

Remember moreover, this sum, which would be among the uncountable trillions of dollars, would represent the increment of only $1 put by Midas. Midas, himself busily saving dimes, would have started a new series of dollar pyramids every ten weeks.

When a woman goes to the depot to meet a woman for whom she doesn't care much, how mechanically they kiss!

Shelter for Poultry

No matter whether the run be large or small, a covered portion is a necessity if one wishes to obtain the best results in winter laying. There are many days during the winter where the birds can be turned out into the open, but, on the other hand, there are occasions when heavy rain or snow prevents proper exercise. It is there the open-fronted shed comes in useful. With some litter on the floor, and a few grains of corn occasionally scattered about, one can keep the birds active all day and that kind of activity tends to good condition, and the condition to productiveness, so that the part played by the covered run in winter egg-production is of the foremost importance.

HYDRO COMMISSION ORDERS THAT WIRES BE BURIED

City of Hamilton and Cataract Power Company Must Settle the Wire Question for Down Town Part of the City.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—At a meeting of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission yesterday afternoon the commission determined that an order should be issued directing the city of Hamilton and the Cataract Power Co. to construct a joint underground electric conduit system for the downtown part of the city. This order is practically the first that has been made under the Hydro-Electric Act, which was passed by the Ontario Legislature at its last session, and it shows that from now on the Hydro-Electric Power Commissioner will mean as much to the electric industry as the Dominion Railway Board does to the railway industry.

To Hamilton the board's order means much. The order states explicity that the city and the Cataract Power Co. will have to get together immediately for the settlement of the wire question. This means that there will be no more time wasted in the courts and that the downtown part of the city will soon be free from the post pest. The order states that the work in connection with the construction of the system shall be done by the city and it shall begin immediately. All parties using the system will share in the cost, but the apportionments have not yet been considered.

A special feature of the new system will be the provision made for telephone and telegraph wires. The order provides service for the Bell Telephone Co., the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co. by ordering that spare ducts and special manholes shall be installed in the new system. This means that the telephone and telegraph poles will have to come down. The Dominion Railway Board has jurisdiction over telephone and telegraph companies, but it is understood that as the result of the recent joint meeting of the Railway Board and the commission there is a mutual understanding between them that they will co-operate in the work of getting rid of overhead wires. The commission's order states that if either of the companies wants the underground service the overhead wires will have to be taken down.

HON. ADAM BECK,

Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, which has ordered the Cataract Power Company and the City of Hamilton to have wires in the downtown section of Hamilton placed underground.

GEO. FOSTER AT LONDON

An Imperial Navy Forcasted as Coming Development.

London, Nov. 13.—Hon. George E. Foster, in the course of an interesting address before the Royal Colonial Institute last night, reviewed the various influences making for the unification of the Empire in literature, science and art. There were, he said, other influences which perhaps were more palpable—the army and navy. The Empire to-day, he continued, consisted not merely of British soldiers, but British sailors. The soldiers and sailors were representative of every part of the Empire. It was the Empire's army and navy.

The Dominions had not done all that they should have done in the past in the matter of defence, but they had always respected and relied on that army and navy, and out of this respect and reliance had grown a policy which to-day enabled them to realize the spectacle of the ships of the oversea Dominions floating side by side with British ships in British waters. As the years passed still more of the Dominions' ships would be floating side by side with the British ships in British waters until the Empire had no longer a British but an Imperial navy.

Far from the Empire showing signs of disintegrating, it had grown closer together, and to-day there was not a statesman in the whole of the Empire who would dare repeat the "cutting the painter" prophecies of long ago. Another bond of union between the Motherland and the oversea Dominions was that represented in King and constitution. These were not only England's possessions, they were the Empire's, and England held that constitution in trust for the oversea Dominions no less than for the Motherland. The Empire of to-day needed Imperial consciousness. One way of securing that was by means of an Imperial organization. He did not believe we could perfect that organization until we obtained some deliberative and directive body which typified all parts of the Empire. That it would come was certain. (Cheers.)

CRITICISM FROM PREMIER BORDEN

Civic Deputation is Given Some Plain Talk.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The civic deputation from Ottawa and Hull, which waited upon the Prime Minister at noon yesterday, respecting the creation of a federal district, met with some plain talk, according to gossip current on the street last night.

Mr. Borden asked the press representatives to withdraw, and then told the civic deputation that he had a serious matter to bring to their attention. The Government, he is reported as saying, was in receipt of representations from nearly every part of Canada, respecting the various epidemics which have raged here during the past five or six years.

The fact that some 400 claims for damages had been filed against the city on account of typhoid, brought on by the negligence of the city in taking sewage into the intake, was dwelt upon by a number of people, including members of Parliament, who have addressed the Prime Minister.

Mr. Borden, it is said, warned the deputation that the City of Ottawa must set its house in order or the agitation for a new capital of Canada might become insistent.

Dr. J. E. Laberge said yesterday that while he did not think that the outbreak out to the serious proportions of the epidemic of 1885, still the citizens should realize that the situation was a crtical one and every possible means to offset the outbreak should be taken.

RUSSIA WILL NOT DECIDE SERVIA'S CLAIM BY WAR

According to Announcement by the Russian Foreign Minister.

Turkish Troops Attempt Sortie, but Are Driven Back to Adrianople.

Canadian Press.

Constantinople, Nov. 13 — The Turkish Government has been informed that the European powers have instructed their representatives in the Balkan States to communicate Turkey's application for mediation to the allies with the view of arranging an armistice preparatory to the conclusion of peace.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 13—All Austrian officers belonging to the army reserve, domiciled in Switzerland, received telegraphic orders on Monday to report at Vienna. They are assembling at Buchs near St. Gall, where a special train has been prepared to convey them to the Austrian capital.

Sofia, Nov. 13—A desperate sortie was made by the Turkish garrison of Adrianople, according to a despatchpatch to The Mar. After five hours fighting, the Turkish troops were driven back by the Bulgarian besiegers. The Turks suffered heavy losses.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 13— Russia does not intend to go to war over the question of Servia obtaining a port on the Adriatic Sea according to Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian Foreign Minister. Mr. Sazonoff informed Mr. Popovitch, the Servia Minister here, that the decision has been reached as a result of conversations between the German Ambassador to Russia and himself.

London, Nov. 13.—There is no news either from Sofia or Constantinople as to how the great battle at Tchatalja is going. The silence may imply that the Turks are making a better defence than had been expected. On the other hand, it is rumored that Turkey is asking Bulgaria to arrange an armistice.

In the other fields of the war operations the progress of the allies is slow. The Servians and Greeks have not yet reached Monastir, where, it is reported, Ali Riza Pasha, the ex-Turkish Minister of War, has 50,000 troops prepared to offer a vigorous resistance.

The Montenegrins have suffered a setback in their prolonged efforts to capture Scutari, largely owing to the defection of the Malissori tribes, who demand guarantees of Albanian Independence. The Greek advance in the direction of Janina also appears to be retarded. It is probable that the weather conditions have much to do with the slow progress.

In the diplomatic field no fresh development is reported. Important conferences continue at Budapest, where the ex-Premier of Roumania, P. P. Carp, arrived yesterday with a letter from King Charles to Emperor Francis Joseph.

In most of the European capitals a more hopeful feeling is displayed that peace will not be disturbed by the Austro-Servian difficulties.

If the wishes of the Albanians weigh in the permanent settlement of the Balkan question Albania will be made an independent principality, as the Triple Alliance proposes, rather than subject to any of the Balkan states.

From Antivari The Morning Post correspondent telegraphs: "This war has lasted only a short month, but in this brief period a profound change in the sentiments of the Albanians has taken place. Almost all the Albanian tribes inhabiting the mountains around Scutari declared themselves allies of the Montenegrins against the common enemy, the Turk. But this was an alliance of expediency, not sentiment. If the Albanians fought side by side with the Montenegrins it did not mean that they desired to become the subjects of the courageous little kingdom which was the first to cast the gauntlet in the face of the Ottoman empire, but that they saw in this temporary alliance a means finally to free themselves of the yoke they detested.

Is Schrank Insane?

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 13.—John Schrank, pleading guilty yesterday to an attempt to murder Theodore Roosevelt, did not receive the quick disposition of his case he had looked for. Instead, on motion of District Attorney W. C. Zabel, Municipal Judge A. C. Bakus appointed five Milwaukee alienists to act as part of his court in determining the would-be slayer's mental condition.

The court's action was the first such practice in Wisconsin criminal procedure. Under a recent statute the court was given this power. In his charge to the commissioners the court explained to them why they were sworn as part of the court, instead of the customary procedure of receiving only their report under oath.

James G. Flanders, a leading Milwaukee attorney, appointed to represent Schrank in the sanity inquisition, had two brief talks with his client, but neither gave indication of what Schrank would decide to do.

DEATH OF PROF. CLARK

One of Canada's Most Brilliant Scholars Passes.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Canada lost one of her most brilliant scholars and educators in the death yesterday afternoon of Rev. Prof. William Clark, D.D., D.C.L., of Trinity College. Death occurred at his late residence, 53 Beverley street. Prof. Clark had been in failing health for the past two years. He became quite weak about two weeks ago, and never rallied. He was in his eighty-fourth year.

Prof. Clark was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1829, and was a son of the late Rev. James Clark. He received his early education and first degree at Aberdeen, Scotland, afterwards receiving a degree at Oxford, and later from Canadian and United States universities. He was an honorary D.C.L. of Trinity College, Toronto; D.D. of Queen's University, Kingston, and LL.D. of Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y.

After his ordination by the Bishop of Worcester he in 1857 held the curacy in St. Metthia's Church, Birmingham, and in 1859 became vicar of St. Mary's Magdalene Church, Taunton, Eng., holding that post until 1880. During that period he was also an honorary member of the staff of Wells Cathedral, Eng. After two years spent in literary work he came to Canada in 1882, and became rector at St. George's Church, Toronto.

In 1883 he became a professor at Trinity College, Toronto, taking the chair of mental and moral philosophy, and afterwards becoming professor of English literature. He held the post of professor at Trinity College for twenty-five years, retiring in 1908 as Professor Emeritus. Since 1907 he has been honorary canon of St. Albans' Cathedral, Toronto.

He was also a member of the Royal Society of Canada, at one time being president of that body.

A number of literary and theological works have been written by Prof. Clark, and also the translation of several important theological works from the German.

ASSASSINATION AN ISOLATED CRIME WITH MOTIVE OBSCURED

Assassin of Canalejas' Said to be Living When Taken to the Hospital.

Not a Part of Political Plot or Revolutionary Movement.

Madrid, Nov. 13.—Jose Canalejas y Mendes, the Prime Minister, whom Spain has regarded as one of the greatest of statesman, was shot and killed yesterday by a young anarchist named Manuel Pardanis. The assassin attempted suicide and it was first thought he was dead, but when he had been carried to the hospital he was found to be living.

No event since the throwing of the bomb at the carriage of King Alfonso on May 31, 1906, while the king was returning from the church after his marriage, has created such general consternation and such public sympathy.

So far as can be learned at present the assassination seems to be in no way a part of a widespread political plot or revolutionary movement, but an isolated crime for which the exact motive remains obscure.

The assassin, who was of Spanish birth, came recently from Buenos Ayres, by way of Paris. Practically nothing is known of him.

The King has appointed the Foreign Minister, Marquis Manuel Garcia Prieto, as Premier pro tempore, and the Liberal Government, which Senor Canalejas so conspicuously conducted for several years, remains in power.

After a meeting of the Cabinet last night it was announced that General Weyler, captain-general of Catalonia, and once commander-in-chief of the Spanish forces in Cuba, or Count Romanonez might be appointed permanent Premier.

Canalejas was shot in the back three times as he was walking to the Ministry of the Interior in the Poerta del Sol. He had stopped to glance into the window of a bookshop.

In the morning he went to the royal palace, to submit several decrees to the king. He emerged smiling and happy. As an attendant opened the door leading to the street a strong gust of wind struck the Premier in the face, causing him to exclaim gaily: "Oh, what a wind. We are going to have a bad day."

About an hour later his unconscious prophecy was fulfilled. As he stopped for a moment at the shop window a man darted from a nearby doorway. He ran up behind the Premier and fired four shots at close range. Three bullets, as it was afterwards found, took effect.

Canalejas sank to the sidewalk. A friend who was passing at the moment, rushed up, crying: "Don Jose! Don Jose!" this being the Premier's baptismal name.

The wounded man scarcely had strength to murmur: "The scoundrel has killed me." He then expired.

In the meantime his assailant turned the muzzle of the revolver on his own breast and fired again. A crowd quickly gathered, while the assassin was half-dragged to the police station.

The Premier was carried to a pharmacy, and then to the Ministry of the Interior, where he was placed on a large marble table in the main salon. The blood flowing from a wound behind the right ear soon formed a pool on the floor.

Jose Canalejas, who belonged to a wealthy and prominent Spanish family, came to the front in political life in Spain early in 1900, when he took a leading part in the campaign against clericalism. He had, however, taken great interest in politics as a student and public speaker for many years before that. At the age of 25 he became a member of the Spanish Parliament, attaching himself to the advanced Liberal section.

He became a member of Premier Sagasta's Cabinet in 1902, when he accepted the portfolio of agriculture. He introduced many reforms, especially in regard to the working classes, and eventually created a department of labor.

When he was asked in February, 1910, by King Alfonso, to form a Ministry, the request caused a great sensation, as it was the first time in the history of Spain that an advanced Radical had been placed at the head of the Ministry. His Cabinet has since undergone many changes, but he has always retained the leading place.

The project introduced by Senor Canalejas for the separation of church and state in Spain caused a rupture of relations between the country and the Vatican. These have since been resumed and the question of separation is being discussed with a view to a friendly settlement. The Spanish Government, however, insists on the supremacy of the civil power.

Pope Is Shocked.

Rome, Nov. 13.—The assassination of Premier Canalejas of Spain produced the deepest impression here, especially at the Vatican, where the remembrance is still vivid of his energetic struggle against the religious orders.

Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, received news of the crime early in the afternoon in a cipher telegram from Madrid. He went immediately to the Pope and communicated the news to him, using great precaution not to shock him. The Pope was deeply affected and expressed his horror at the crime, exclaiming: "This comes from stamping out religion in the most Catholic country."

His holiness then knelt and remained absorbed in prayer for the safety of Spain.

The impression produced on Cardinal Merry del Val was very profound, [illegible] together with Cardinal Vives y Tuto, possesses the most powerful influence with the Pope, and gives the present pontificate somewhat of a Spanish atmosphere.

In the city of Rome the crime is generally regarded as one of vengeance for the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, for conspiring against the Government at Barcelona.

The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, expresses horror and utters a protest of indignation against the author of the assassination.

Sorrow In France.

Paris, Nov. 13.—France was greatly shocked by the news of the assassination of Premier Canalejas, who was greatly admired here as a statesman and a political leader.

During the difficult Franco-Spanish negotiations concerning Morocco, which resulted in a practical agreement, Premier Canalejas, by his great tact, kept the discussions in such a groove that the friendly relations of the two countries were not impaired in any way.

Premier Poincare immediately after receiving news of the crime, called at the Spanish embassy to express his grief.

President Fallieres sent a member of his military household to the Spanish embassy to say on his behalf that he was unable to understand the crime, as the late Premier was a man of distinctly liberal tendencies. There was, therefore, no logic in making him a victim of an anarchist outrage.

HOME RULE BILL UP TO-MORROW

Full House to Take Part in the Debate.

London, Nov. 13.—A motion to rescind the decision of the House of Commons committee on the Home Rule bill, which brought about the defeat of the Cabinet yesterday on an amendment to a financial clause introduced by Sir Frederick Banbury, a Unionist, is to be brought up for debate by Premier Asquith in the full House to-day.

The House of Commons was crowded yesterday and the leaders of the various parties were given noisy receptions. The Liberals, the Labor members and the Nationalists rose in a body to welcome the Premier when he gave notice of his motion. The House then proceeded with other business.

SERIOUS RIOTS IN NEW ZEALAND

Non-Union Workmen Rushed Hall Used by Union Men.

Waihi, New Zealand, Nov. 13.—A constable and a citizen were shot and killed and several persons injured, some mortally, in a strike riot here yesterday. Maddened by the taunts of strikers, a body of non-union workers marched to the union hall, burst open the door and rushed on the occupants. A fierce battle ensued, during which revolvers were freely used. Police rushed to the scene, but after the riot was quelled, a mob of "free workers" chased some strikers, severely beating them.

The strike at the Waihi gold mine has been in progress for some time. The men ask for better pay and shorter hours.

THE COMING SESSION

The session of the Dominion Parliament is only a week or so away. The session will be full of interest, as the real work of carrying out its program will be undertaken by the Government. Last session many measures were passed, but much of what the Government had promised while its members were still in Opposition, had to be left over for mature consideration. There is not much likelihood that the Liberals will be able to make much headway against the Government. The naval business of course, contains the possibilities of keen interest, but there are many other matters on which a vigorous fight may be waged. The Government will re-introduce the Tariff Commission Bill, the Highways Bill, and others that were thrown out by the Liberal senators at the behest of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In addition, the Bank Act will involve long and detailed discussion in committee, and in the Open House. What the tariff proposals will be, there is no method of gauging. These are always carefully guarded until the budget is presented to the House.

But from the program that is being prepared, notably in respect of the Transcontinental building, there is no question that the Government is preparing a series of ambuscades for the Liberal Opposition that will surprise some of Sir Wilfrid's followers. They will have to proceed warily lest they be caught in their own meshes.

The Borden Government not only has held well up to the promise it gave on entering office, but the agenda indicates that by far its best and most constructive work has yet to be done. The day when Canada overturned the corrupt Laurier administration will not be regretted.

THE WAR OUTLOOK

The prospects for peace in Europe on the settling of the Balkan difficulties have become much gloomier within two or three days. This week will be one of tense nervousness, for the situation as regards the ultimate position of the allies has clarified considerably, and the powers have some basis for negotiation as to what form the settlement will take. The speech of Premier Asquith at Guildhall was a master pronunciation of the subject, and in declaring that to the victors must go the necessary spoils, he was only enunciating the doctrines which Gladstone would have upheld in this case, if the same events had happened thirty years ago. It is worth while recalling what Gladstone had to say in that famous Edinburgh speech of his. This part of his speech refers to what ought to happen in the Balkans when the unspeakable Turk was made to pass out of Europe, and find his home in Asiatic territory:

"I wish to avail myself of this occasion for the purpose of clearly putting and clearly answering one question of vast importance: Who is it that ought to possess, who is it that ought to sway, those rich and fertile countries which are known as comprising what is called the Balkan peninsula?

"It seems to be agreed that the time has come, that the hour is about to strike, if it has not struck already, when all real sway of Turkish power over those fair provinces must cease, if it were only by reason of impotence. Who, then, is to have the success on to Turkey? From the bottom of my heart, and with the fullest conviction of my understanding, I will give you the reply—a reply which I am perfectly certain will awaken a free, a generous, a unanimous echo in your bosoms. That succession is not to pass to Russia. It is not to pass to Austria. It is not to pass to England, under whatever name of Anglo-Turkish convention or anything else. It is to pass to the people of those countries; to those who have inhabited them for many long centuries; to those who had reared them to a state of civilization when the great calamity of Ottoman conquest spread like a wild wave over that portion of the earth, and buried that civilization under its overwhelming force!"

Premier Asquith says that Britain will uphold the contentions of the allies, insofar as they relate to a proper division of territory and spheres of influence with them. This may be interpreted as somewhat of a warning to Austria, that it may not let its jealousy of the new Balkan league drive it into an overt act to coerce the allies into acceptance of less that their just dues. Russia sits on one side, grim and menacing. Russia is going to see that Servia gets a port on the Adriatic sea, and says "Go ahead." Austria regards the extension of Servia to the Adriatic as dangerous to its political and mercantile safety. For economic reasons it feels compelled to deny the Servian demand. If the status of Albania cannot be settled satisfactorily, here is another bone that may lead to more than growls. The whole situation is fraught with tense difficulty, and the world will breathe easier if the tangle is unraveled without that much dreaded Armageddon coming on to wreak destruction and havoc upon the peoples.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Caused Palpitation, and Prevented Sleep—When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of "Nerviline."

"My last wish will be," writes Harry P. Pollard, a well-known boot and shoe traveler of Hartford, "that everyone with a bad stomach may learn as I did, before it's too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in mighty bad shape, my digestion was all wrong, and every night I would waken with a start and find my heart jumping like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the traveling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Aired Her Equality.

Introduction of the new reform bill in Great Britain recalls a story told by Lady Dorothy Nevill of the passage of the great reform bill eighty years ago this summer. One morning an elderly couple peacefully sleeping in their four poster were rudely awakened by an excited maidservant bursting into the room and shouting, "It's passed, it's passed!" "What's passed, you fool?" "The reform bill!" shouted the girl. "We're all equal now." After which she marched out of the room, leaving the door open as a sign of her new equality.—Chicago News.

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N.Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central for the last three years.

About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate.

I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel In The Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physicians who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS which I did—with the result that the pains left me entirely."

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thin and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or a colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. E. V. Italy's First Woman Lawyer.

Signorina Teresa Labriola, the first woman lawyer in Italy, is a daughter of the late Professor Antonio Labriola, one of the most versatile and encyclopaedic intelligences of the last century. Having obtained her degree, Signorina Labriola obtained a position as professor of law at the Rome university and has entered the ranks of practicing lawyers through a curious strategy. The law does not allow women in Italy to practice law, but in another article it establishes the fact that a professor of law in the university has the right of being inscribed among the practicing lawyers.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—British consols and French rentes today reassured wheat traders who for a while thought that a price advance at Budapest might mean the approach of hostilities between Servia and Austria. In consequence, the market closed steady at a net decline of 1-4c to 3-8c. Corn finished 1-4c to 3-8c down, and oats off 1-8c to 1-2c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 12 1-2c advance.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d to ¼d lower on wheat, and ¼d to ⅝d lower on corn. Berlin wheat closed ⅜c lower, Paris ⅝c to 1⅝c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—The foreign demand for wheat today was quieter and as cables were weak at a further decline of 4½d to 6d, no business was done. EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 911 By H. K. FLY CO

"Well, well! Annie—Anne—Miss Gattie! What do you think of that?"

They gossiped across the chasm of of years about people and things, and knew nothing of the excitement so close to them, saw nothing of Chicago slipping back into the distance, with its many lights shooting across the windows like hurled torches.

Suddenly a twinge of ancient jealousy shot through the man's heart, recurring to old emotions.

"So you're not married, Annie. Whatever became of that fellow who used to hang round you all the time?"

"Charlie Selby?" She blushed at the name, and thrilled at the luxury of meeting jealousy. "Oh, he entered the church. He's a minister out in Ogden, Utah."

"I always knew he'd never amount to much," was Lathrop's epitaph on his old rival. Then he started with a new twinge: "You bound for Ogden, too?"

"Oh, no," she smiled, enraptured at the new sensation of making a man anxious, and understanding all in a flash the motives that make coquettes. Then she told him her destination. "I'm on my way to China."

"China!" he exclaimed. "So'm I!"

She stared at him with a new thought, and gushed: "Oh, Ira—are you a missionary, too?"

"Missionary? Hell, no!" he roared. "Excuse me—I'm an importer—Anne I—I—"

But the sonorous swear reverberated in their ears like a smitten bell, and he blushed for it, but could not recall it.

CHAPTER XII.

The Needle in the Haystack.

The almost-married couple sat long in mutual terror and a common paralysis of ingenuity. Marjorie, for lack of anything better to do, was absent-mindedly twisting Snoozleum's ears, while he, that pocket abridgment of a dog, in a well meaning effort to divert her from her evident grief, made a great pretense of ferocity, growling and threatening to bite her fingers off. The new ring attracted his special jealousy. He was growing discouraged at the ill-success of his impersonation of a wolf, and dejected at being so crassly ignored, when he suddenly became, in his turn, a center of interest.

Marjorie was awakened from her trance of inanition by the porter's voice. His plantation voice was ordinarily as thick and sweet as his own New Orleans sorghum, but now it had a bitterness that curdled the blood:

"'Scuse me, but how did you-all git that theah dog in this heah cah?"

"Snoozleums is always with me," said Marjorie briskly, as if that settled it, and turned for confirmation to the dog himself, "aren't you, Snoozleums?"

"Well," the porter drawled, trying to be gracious with his great power, "the rules don't 'low no live stock in the sleepin' cars, 'ceptin' humans."

Marjorie rewarded his condescension with a blunt: "Snoozleums is more human than you are."

"I p'sume he is," the porter admitted, "but he can't make up berths. Anyway, the rules says dogs goes with the baggage."

Marjorie swept rules aside with a defiant: "I don't care. I won't be separated from my Snoozleums."

She looked to Mallory for support, but he was too sorely troubled with greater anxieties to be capable of any action.

The porter tried persuasion: "You betta lemme take him, the conducta is wuss'n what I am. He th'owed a couple of dogs out the window trip befo' last."

"The brute!"

"Oh, yassum, he is a regulah brute. He just loves to hear 'm splosh when they light."

Noting the shiver that shook the girl, the porter offered a bit of consolation:

"Better lemme have the pore little thing up in the baggage cah. He'll be in charge of a lovely baggage-smasher."

"Are you sure he's a nice man?"

"Oh, yassum, he's death on trunks, but he's a natural born angel to dogs."

"Well, if I must, I must," she sobbed. "Poor little Snoozleums! Can he come back and see me tomorrow?" Marjorie's tears were splashing on the puzzled dog, who nestled close, with a foreboding of disaster.

"I reckon p'haps you'd better visit him."

"Poor dear little Snoozleums—good night, my little darling. Poor little child—it's the first night he's slept all by his 'ittle lonesome, and—"

The porter was growing desperate. He clapped his hands together impatiently and urged: "I think I hear that conducta comin'."

The ruse succeeded. Marjorie fairly forced the dog on him. "Quick—hide him—hurry!" she gasped, and sank on the seat completely crushed. "I'll be so lonesome without Snoozleums."

Mallory felt called upon to remind her of his presence. "I—I'm here, Marjorie." She looked at him just once—at him, the source of all her troubles—buried her head in her arms, and resumed her grief. Mallory stared at her helplessly, then rose and bent over to whisper:

"I'm going to look through the train."

"Oh, don't leave me," she pleaded, clinging to him with a dependence that restored his respect.

"I must find a clergyman," he whispered. "I'll be back the minute I find one, and I'll bring him with me."

The porter thought he wanted the dog back, and quickened his pace till he reached the corridor, where Mallory overtook him and asked, in an effort at casual indifference, if he had seen anything of a clergyman on board.

"Ain't seen nothin' that even looks like one," said the porter. Then he hastened ahead to the baggage car with the squirming Snoozleums, while Mallory followed slowly, going from seat to seat and car to car, subjecting all the males to an inspection that rendered some of them indignant, others of them uneasy.

If dear old Doctor Temple could only have known what Mallory was hunting, he would have snatched off the mask, and thrown aside the secular scarlet tie at all costs. But poor Mallory, unable to recognize a clergyman so dyed-in-the-wool as Doctor Temple, sitting in the very next seat—how could he be expected to pick out another in the long and crowded train?

All clergymen look alike when they are in convention assembled, but sprinkled through a crowd they are not so easily distinguished.

In the sleeping car bound for Portland, Mallory picked one man as a clergyman. He had a lean, ascetic face, solemn eyes, and he was talking to his seat-mate in an oratorical manner. Mallory bent down and tapped the man's shoulder.

The effect was surprising. The man jumped as if he were stabbed, and turned a pale, frightened face on Mallory, who murmured:

"Excuse me, do you happen to be a clergyman?"

A look of relief stole over the man's features, followed closely by a scowl of wounded vanity:

"No, damn you, I don't happen to be a parson. I have chosen to be—well, if you had watched the billboards in Chicago during our run, you would not need to ask who I am!"

Mallory mumbled an apology and hurried on, just overhearing his victim's sigh:

"Such is fame!"

He saw two or three other clerical persons in that car, but feared to touch their shoulders. One man in the last seat held him specially, and he hid in the turn of the corridor, in the hope of eavesdropping some clue. This man was bent and scholastic of appearance, and wore heavy spectacles and a heavy beard, which Mallory took for a guaranty that he was not another actor. And he was reading what appeared to be printer's proofs. Mallory felt certain that they were a volume of sermons. He lingered timorously in the environs for some time before the man spoke at all to the dreary-looking woman at his side. Then the stranger spoke. And this is what he said and read:

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

LATEST PARIS CRY.

The Cutaway Is Having Modish Right of Way.

SUIT OF TAN BROADCLOTH.

A decided novelty in tailored wear is this coat with cutaway fronts and a watteau plait at the back. Under the plait the coat fits the figure trimly, and the waist line is clearly defined.

The costume is by a famous French dressmaker, and the combination of tan broadcloth coat and pannier skirt of brown velvet is thought very chic in Paris.

A hat of light tan colored moire silk faced with black velvet and trimmed with a "shower" feather ornament matches the costume, which is completed with long tan gloves.

World's Wheat Barn.

They have only just begun to scratch the surface of prairie Canada, which is offering homes and fortunes to millions, says a recent writer abroad. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, now constitute the world's largest wheat farm, a tract so vast that it has not all been explored yet and no one knows its extent and resources. This great plain 1,000 miles long and of undetermined productive width contains approximately 464,000,000 acres of the best wheat land in the world, of which half is unknown. Of the total surveyed area of 149,000,000 acres only about 16,000,000 acres have been brought under cultivation, an area which in 1911 produced 550,000,000 bushels of wheat, oats, barley and flax—194,000,000 bushels of it being wheat. It may be seen that there is land enough to keep the world in bread for some time to come. Furthermore the country is well supplied with railroads and is offering great inducements to settlers. Something of the size of prairie Canada may be understood when it is known that it is five times bigger than Great Britain and Ireland and three times the size of the German empire.

A Little Known Spot.

Strange and almost incredible as the fact may seem probably not one person in a thousand visiting Queenston Heights has ever seen the place where Macdonnell's battery was located, and where many of his brave men lie buried, although their gallantry was an important factor in the achievement of victory of the heights.

SPELLING IN ENGLAND.

They Say Over There it Is Chaotic, and They Seek to Reform It.

A campaign in favor of spelling reform is to be conducted in London and the provinces in the autumn and winter.

Mr. William Archer, under the auspices of the Simplified Spelling society, is to conduct a lecturing tour on his return from the east, and lectures will also be delivered by many other well known men throughout the country.

The lectures will advocate the reform of what they regard as the present "chaotic spelling," which they declare is so remote from pronunciation that it is no guide to the English language at all and tends to degrade our speech.

The society desires to fix a standard of pronunciation of the English language throughout the empire.

It has been stated that the English people overseas, particularly in Australia and South Africa, are deviating so seriously from the general standard of speech prevailing in the mother country that the time might come when visitors from these parts of the empire might fail to make themselves understood in London.

Mr. Tate, director of education in Melbourne, has suggested several spelling reforms to which effect has been given in the official papers issued by his department. Discussions have taken place, and the council of public education in Melbourne is addressing a letter to the president of the board of education in London urging upon him, in the interest of education, the necessity of a general adoption of a simplified reform of spelling.—London Chronicle.

MONTE CARLO PAYS WELL.

Enormous Profits Made by Monaco's Gilded Gambling Den.

As an example of how much money is made in some of the famous gambling dens of Europe and America the figures of the earnings of the most famous gambling place in the world, Monte Carlo, will prove interesting. There are at least a dozen kings and princes in Europe who receive a revenue from Monte Carlo.

The four descendants of the original concessionaire, Edward Blanc, receive each $4,500,000 a year. Two of them are princesses. When Prince Roland Bonaparte married Edward Blanc's daughter he received $10,000,000, and Prince George of Greece received the same sum when he married the daughter of Roland Bonaparte and Marie Blanc. The Prince of Monaco's two divorced wives, one of whom was Miss Alice Heine of New Orleans, receive large annual incomes. The state of Monaco is entirely supported by the institution, its 20,000 citizens being free from any tax.

It also pays the Prince of Monaco 20,000,000 francs a year, supports one of the finest opera houses in the world, a standing army, fifty detectives, whose duty it is to persuade would be suicides to carry out their plans outside of the state, and it provides free funerals and a cemetery for the unlucky ones who do take their lives when they have seen the wheel of fortune take their last cent.

And who is it that supports this place? Men and women in equal number from every corner of the world.—New York Sun.

How Vienna Helps Brides.

"Lectures For Brides" is the name of the latest course started by the Viennese institution for popular instruction known as the Urania and now advertised all over the city. The lectures will cover such subjects as housekeeping, cooking, hygiene, elementary physiology and the care of children. Though mainly intended for those who are about to be or have just been married, all girls over seventeen will be admitted. The course will last for eight months, there being lectures on two evenings a week. A small fee is charged for the course, but the poor can obtain tickets free.—Vienna Cor. London Standard.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

At the dinner table on board an ocean liner one man was much annoyed by the vulgar manner in which his next neighbor ate.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA.

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna.

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me.

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it.

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me.

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment.

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

"SETTING-UP" A BOOM.

How Knox Students Relieve Their Pent Up Emotions.

To look at it from the outside or even to visit it on formal occasions, you would think it was a building, quiet as the grave and dignified as the ruins of the Parthenon. In fact for the last ten years, outsiders have regarded Knox College as an artistic edifice, bluemoldy and covered with redeeming ivy, but one without any spark of life, says The Toronto Star Weekly.

To smash illusions is an unpleasant task, but truth demands it, and truth alone must be obeyed. Knox College has not been the haunt of quietness and repose it is so often pictured to be. Both mentally and physically, it has been vividly alive, and oftentimes actually noisy.

One of the chief amusements, dating back for many years, has been "setting up" rooms. A "setting-up" committee is formed, either officially or unofficially, to visit the bedroom of some student who is marked out as the sacrifice for that evening. The one chosen is usually known to be visiting somewhere in the city. In his absence his room is turned topsy-turvy, and when be returns he finds himself compelled either to sit up all night in the reading-room or find shelter on a couch in a friend's room.

The "setting up" process is an art. The furniture is not simply thrown around and put out of place; it is piled, layer upon layer, right to the ceiling. Every book, every cushion, every chair and table, desk and washing utensil is piled one on top of the other, until every vestige of order is destroyed and the poor unfortunate coming home, believes that the Biblical Chaos is no myth, but is existent in his own apartment. Not infrequently it takes the whole of the next morning to repair the damage. Both the process of upsetting and restoring the room are watched by a noisy and exuberant crowd.

This custom dates back so far, and has been so universally observed, that it is hard to say who hasn't taken part in it. The probability is that nearly all the distinguished graduates, men noted for their scholarship and dignity, have had a hand in it. And remember, we are not saying that it is any disgrace to them. It only adds a new interest to their personality. Imagine such men as the following, dancing around an upheaved room in the depths of night: Ralph Connor (Dr. Gordon), Dr. J.A. Macdonald, Dr. Scrimiger, Dr. R. P. McKay (ex-moderator), Dr. McQueen (present moderator), Dr. Sommerville, Dr. Wallace, or Dr. O'Neill! Principal Gandier never attended Knox as an undergraduate; he is a product of Queen's.

Another Knox custom is still more uproarious and exciting. Once or twice a year the college seems to go completely off its head and to plunge into anarchism and pandemonium. One of these occasions is usually at the beginning of the session, in honor of the freshmen, and the other may come unexpectedly at any time. The first frequently coincides with the visit of the alumni.

30 VOICES AT FIRST PRACTICE

Prospects for St. James' Choral Society Appear Bright

The St. James' choristers held their first practice last night, with a most gratifying attendance, considering the unfavorable weather conditions. Nearly 30 were out for the opening lesson and enough others had signified their intention to join and be on hand next Tuesday evening to bring the membership up to forty-five. By the time the class settles down to work it is fully expected that 50 or 60 voices will be in attendance. Mr. Greene, as conductor, made a most favorable impression, and the class starts its work with an abundance of enthusiasm.

MANY EXCHANGES AT THE LIBRARY

Saturday Always the Busiest Day for the staff

Between three and four hundred members of the Peterborough Public Library exchange books every Saturday. The last day in the week is always the busiest at that institution. Librarian Dela Fosse stated that the library staff is kept on the jump all that day. The earlier days of the week also provide plenty of work for the entire staff, the busiest part of each day being from four o'clock in the afternoon until closing time in the evening. The reading rooms are being heavily patronized, especially by school children. The reference room in which information may be obtained for debates, essays and compositions is much used by the students, on many occasions after four o'clock, being crowded almost to congestion.

ROMANCE ENDED WITH CHANGE OF GOVERNMENT

Lady in Breach of Promise Case Awarded $1,000

Pembroke, Nov. 13.—Miss Hattie Ross, of Cobden, was awarded $1,000 by a grand jury at the Criminal Assizes here yesterday in her action against John Nicol, Smiths Falls, a moulder, for breach of promise of marriage. Defendant did not appear, but his counsel informed the court that his client had deposited $200 as compensation to the lady.

The evidence of the plaintiff as to the reasons for her swain backing out of his promise to marry her had to do with the recent change of Government. She stated that Nichol had become engaged to her in July, 1911, but that in November of that year his ardent love-making had waned. By way of explanation he told her that as the Government at Ottawa had changed, his father, who was a lockmaster on the Rideau Canal at Smith's Falls, would lose his job and he, the defendant, would have to keep his parents. However, she declined to release him from his promise for that reason, and the courtship continued until July, 1912, when in a letter he told her he had gone back to another love.

Pillow Slips For the Baby.

The desire of every mother's heart is to have pretty things for her own baby, no matter whether she has only one or the clothes are being prepared for the fourth arrival.

In the matter of pillow slips the fancy runs to small ones, having a design embroidered in the corner. This may consist simply of the little one's initial with a wreath of small flowers about it, or a more ornamental spray of small buds, leaves and blossoms; but whatever the design the work is always done in white, and the material of which the pillow slip is made must be of softest cotton or linen.

It is a grave mistake to embroider a pillowslip in the center, because the skin of a baby is naturally delicate and tender, and even a grown person would find it uncomfortable to lie with the face pressed against an embroidered design.

To keep some kinds of flowers from making a vase top-heavy, put a quantity of clear white sand in the bottom to serve as weight.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Subpoenas For 30 More.

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Thirty witnesses from the Pacific Coast, it was announced yesterday, have been subpoenaed to testify at the "dynamiting conspiracy" trial concerning explosions in western states. These include officials who assisted in the dynamite cases at Los Angeles, and men in San Francisco, Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., who, the Government stated, will be called upon to testify concerning the movements not only of J. B. McNamara and Ortie E. McManigal, but also of Eugene A. Clancy, Olaf A. Tveitmoe and other labor leaders. More than twenty of the Pacific Coast witnesses have arrived or are on their way to Indianapolis.

After an hour's session the trial was postponed until to-day on account of the illness of Allen Spaulding, a juror.

TWAIN'S TYPEWRITER.

It Made Him Want to Cuss, So He Traded It For a Saddle.

It was in 1874, during a famous trip to Boston with Dr. Twitchell, that Mark Twain saw for the first time what was then a brand new invention; or it may have been during a subsequent visit a week or two later. At all events, writes Albert Bigelow Paine, he had the machine and was practicing on it on Dec. 9, 1874, for he wrote two letters on it that day, one to Howells and the other to Orion Clemens. In the latter he says:

"I am trying to get the hang of this new fangled writing machine, but am not making a shining success of it. However, this is the first attempt I ever have made, and yet I perceive that I shall soon easily acquire a fine facility in its use. I saw the thing in Boston the other day and was greatly taken with it."

He goes on to explain the new wonder, and on the whole his first attempt is a very creditable performance. With his usual enthusiasm over an innovation he believes it is going to be a great help to him and proclaims its advantages.

This is the letter to Howells:

"You needn't answer this. I am only practicing to get three—another allpup there—only practicing to get the hang of the thing. I notice I miss fire and get in a good many unnecessary letters and punctuation marks. I am simply using you for a target to bang at. Blame my cat, but this thing requires genius in order to work it just right!"

In an article written long after he tells how he was with Nasby when he first saw the machine in Boston through a window and how they went in to see it perform. In the same article he states that he was the first person in the world to apply the type machine to literature and that the story of "Tom Sawyer" was probably the first type copied manuscript.

The new enthusiasm ran its course and died. The typewriter was not perfect in those days, as it is now, and the keys did not always respond readily. He declared it was ruining his morals that it made him "want to swear." He offered it to Howells because, he said, Howells had no morals anyway. Howells hesitated, so Clemens traded the machine to Bliss for a sidesaddle. But perhaps Bliss also became afraid of the influence, for in due time he brought it back. Howells, again tempted, hesitated and this time was lost. What eventually became of the machine is not history.

Sturdy Swedish Girls.

Bathing in Sweden is a business. Even the hotel bathrooms are extraordinary—regular suits of rooms, one for the bath proper, one for shower baths of various sorts and one for a drying room, wherein you find enormous towels as large as American sheets. The public baths are luxurious. They are built around courts where, after the bath you may have your coffee under great trees surrounded by beds of beautiful flowers. It is apt to bother Americans a bit to find that the bath rubbers for both men and women are strapping Swedish girls, businesslike and unabashed. But this is only one manifestation of the advanced activities of woman in Sweden. You find her occupying all sorts of positions. You see her boldly swinging off street cars without waiting for them to stop. —Harper's Weekly.

Needlework Note.

Seekers after novelty will find that the prevailing fancy is for fine lawn and lace in such table accessories as the table center or dolley. The cloth of damask whiteness is not broken by a spot of color except that supplied by floral decoration. The dolley may be simple or extremely decorative, but it must be of virgin whiteness.

The table center of billowy silk or chiffon is not nearly such a fashionable form of decoration as the center of lace and lawn, which lies like a distinguishing spot of embroidery to relieve the plain napery of the table, being the island on which sweet pale toned blossoms grow out of fine stemmed glasses or from silvery bowls. There is opportunity for fine needle craft in the creation of the table dolly, and some of the most artistic examples of fine work are produced by enthusiastic needlewomen of today.

THE WORLD'S HAPPIEST GIRL

Who Declares She Would Rather Plow Than Go to the Opera.

"The happiest girl in all the world!" That is the distinction claimed by Miss Jack May, a slender bit of femininity, who owns and operates a farm in the wilds of Canada. Not many years ago Miss May, who is the daughter of Admiral May, of the British navy, was a frilly, frothy society belle, to whom the theatre, balls and card parties represented all that was worth living for. When the Boer war broke out and, along with scores of other aristocratic young English women, she went to the front as nurse, her eyes were opened to the smallness of the butterfly existence she had been leading. Upon her return home she at once entered the Swanley Agricultural College at Kent, and at the conclusion of her course amazed her former fashionable friends by becoming manager of a dairy farm. After a time she became working manager of another farm in Kent, where she took active charge of all the work, grain growing, vegetable gardening, and live stock. She went direct from that farm to the Canadian west, to a ranch of 320 acres near the Canadian Pacific Railway, and now all English society is interested in watching her career. Not a man is employed on Miss May's entire farm. Her only companion and helper is a Canadian girl of 18.

"Go back to society again? Not for worlds," declares this former London favorite. "I would rather plow than go to the opera. I would rather plant corn than attend a pink tea and I much prefer currying my horses to arraying myself in an evening gown. What's a butterfly society life in damp and foggy England compared to real life in bright sunshine and bracing cold?" Miss May's success had made her views on agriculture much sought after, especially among the English immigrants.

Although this little English woman has sacrificed conventional feminine garb and has given up social life completely, she has lost none of the charm that made her a leader in British society circles. Her everyday costume consists of stout leather boots and leather puttees, riding breeches of heavy blue serge, a man's shirt, and a short khaki coat. When she desires to really "dress up" for special occasions, she wears a soft collar and tie, and a peasant smock of navy blue denim, which comes to her knees and is loosely belted around her waist. She is delightfully picturesque and her happy carefree laugh is a sure cure for the blues.

"I love the freedom of the life and the bigness of things here on the western prairies," she said, recently. "In England one is bound by conventions, as one's fields are girt with hedges. Here I can do as I choose. I would not go back to stay under any consideration."

LOOSE FAMILIARITY AMONG YOUNG GIRLS AND BOYS

Mere Slips of Girls in Short Dresses Go About the Streets Locked Arm in Arm With Young Men and Boys —What Magistrate Dumble Says.

Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble expressed his strong disapproval to-day of the questionable manner in which young girls and boys conduct themselves in this city. Without suggesting that the young people of this city were worse than in other places, the Magistrate regretted the loose familiarity which reigned amongst them.

"It is a common sight to see mere slips of girls in short dresses promenading the streets, linked arm in arm with boys or young men. This practice when adopted so early in life, cannot fail to exert a harmful influence upon these girls. It leads to undue excitement of their passions, and often brings trouble to themselves or their parents."

The Magistrate's opinion was that boys and girls so brought together indulge in conduct that often tends to develop the evil side of their natures. No helpful influence is brought into play.

"In many cases these companionships result in marriages where the husband is unfitted both morally and financially to become a husband.

"What would you say would prove an effectual remedy?" Mr. Dumble was asked.

"Nothing but the inculcation of truth and proper ideas into the the minds of their children by their mothers. Teach the young girls good morals and show them what evil behavior will ultimately result in. Let parents keep their children at home, or else let them be conversant with the nature of the companionship in which their children partake. Let them make home comfortable and attractive, and then the children will not seek the companionship of those who love the streets."

Magistrate Dumble thought that girls nowadays betrayed too much anxiety to wear expensive clothes beyond their means, and if they cannot secure the money in a proper manner they are often induced to obtain them by improper means. He advocated more domestic science training in the schools, and the teaching of girls how to sew, cook and do other things associated with the home. This would combine to keep them away from the streets and make home intreresting.

"There are things taking place in this city which are only known to those who are on the inside of the situation, and which the general public are totally unaware of. There is too much joy-riding, etc., leading to questionable situations and relationship between young men and women. Only the police department and detectives know of the enormity of instances where immorality and harm follows conduct of such a character.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir— The editor of the Examiner seems to think that the readers are a lot of fools. It keeps on repeating that the Lancaster Bill was voted down, when everyone knows it was sent on to the courts and pronounced upon.

Will the Examiner say whether it is anxious that the marriage law should be brought about or not?

Yours truly,
"CITIZEN."

The Lutheran Church.

The Lutheran Church is fifth among the Protestant bodies of Canada. There are about 500,000 baptized Lutherans in Canada; about 100,000 are communicants of the church, and 100,000 are confirmed but not in Lutheran churches, some of them worshipping with other communions. More than half of the entire half million are young people.

The gospel is preached in at least twelve different languages in the Lutheran churches in Canada, but the young people are learning the English language, and ministers are being secured who can preach in English as well as in some other tongue.

There is a theological seminary at Waterloo, Ont., which began about a year ago, and one is being organized in Saskatchewan. A Lutheran home is planned for Montreal to care for the immigrants, there being three Lutheran churches in that city—one German, one Danish, and one English. There are about 5,000 Scandinavians in Montreal, and 1,000 Finns in Toronto, according to a local paper and all are Lutheran.

LOST PART OF LEFT FOOT

Switchman Used His Foot With Unfortunate Result

Frank J. Fontaine, switchman for the G. T. R. shunter had his left foot crushed between the engine and a car, near the King street yards, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Fontaine was standing on the front board of the shunter while coupling cars, when the accident happened. He put his foot out to shove the draw bar over and could not withdraw it in time to save the foot from being crushed.

Belleghem's ambulance was called and conveyed the unfortunate man to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Drs. Button and Morgan attended him.

The fore part of the foot was amputated.

Magistrate For the Rockies.

To a former journalist, in the person of Mr. W. A. Jowett, has been entrusted the maintenance of law and order and the administration of justice in the vast new territory west of the Rocky Mountains now being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Mr. Jowett has been appointed stipendiary magistrate for the country at the eastern end of present construction. More than 3,000 laborers are at work along the company's grade from the summit westerly, and new settlers and prospectors are pouring in in large numbers, while the development of mining claims promises to still further increase the population in this territory. Mr. Jowett, who was for many years editor of The Nelson Miner, will establish his headquarters at Tete Jaune Cache, but his commission is a roving one, and he will hold court at various points along the line as necessity may dictate.

A REAL BLUE BLOOD.

Count de Fronsac Tries to Revive the Old Seigneury.

A Montreal journalist supplies some information with regard to Count de Fronsac, a well-known Montreal man who has figured recently in special articles. He writes:

To see Count de Fronsac walking along the streets of Montreal is a picture, one is not likely for forget for some time. The count, or viscount as he prefers to be addressed, is a striking figure in spite of the unmistakable air of shabbiness which surrounds him. His collars are usually several days the worse for wear, and his coat is threadbare, but the blue blood of old France beats through the upright carriage, and the clean shaven face looks out shrewdly and undauntedly through a pair of glasses. How he lives no one I have met knows. It is true he has had several books published by a firm in New York, but all of them are on subjects the reverse of popular, and I do not fancy the sale is anything to boast about. One, I remember, traced the genealogy of French-Canadian seigneurs away back to the time when Noah took to the ark on account of wet grounds and another traced the decline of the royalistic spirit in America. The count lives in a little house outside of Huntingdon, Que., but spends a great deal of his time in Montreal. Sometime ago he made a trip to Louisiana where the descendants of several once prominent French families still live and tried to interest them in his illusion to make the Governments of the world restore to them their estates and birthright. If there was ever a more Quixotic scheme since the days of the great Cervantes I have never heard of it. Count de Fronsac can recite to you the names and family trees of all the French nobles who came to America at any time since the days of Jacques Cartier. In fact, it is a mania with him, and one glance at the man would convince anyone that the thrones of England and France are still safe. A couple of years ago he called a meeting of all the seigneurial families still remaining in North America. It was held in the Power Building, Montreal, and when the roll was called there were present Count de Fronsac, one other, and the janitor, attracted through curiosity. Nothing daunted the viscount called the meeting to order, passed the minutes and then read a long report on the progress of his movement. He afterward made a complete record of the meeting in the minute book which is an important part of the growing archives of the Monarchists of the new world.

RUBE MARQUAD HAS TROUBLES

The Hero of "Nineteen Straight" May Leave the Spotlight

New York, Nov 13— Richard W. Marquard, otherwise known as "Tube," the New York pitcher, who broke the world's baseball record by winning 19 straight games for the Giants this year, the only man who could stop the Red Sox in the world's series, is now breaking hearts. And if Joseph Kane, of New York, husband of Blossom Seeley, the well known actress has his way and "Rube" will soon be breaking stones.

After the close of the baseball season "Rube" went on the stage appearing with Miss Seeley or Mrs. Kane, in "Nineteen Straigth," a sketch, in which his wonderful pitching was exploited.

Some days ago Marquard and his pretty partner played in Atlantic City. Joseph Kane, the woman's husband and private detectives followed them. They shadowed Marquard and Miss Seeley, and the result is a suit by Kane against Marquard, for alienation of his wife's affection. Kane alleges that he secured evidence at a hotel in Atlantic City, but that employes of the place smuggled Marquard and his partner down a fire escape to avoid his angry glare and testimony that would lead to a divorce suit.

In any event Kane sues Miss Seeley for divorce and Marquard for $10,000 at which amount he valued the fond love of his actress wife. Marquard on the other hand, denies the charges. He claims that Kane's jealousy is unreasonable and that he has been forced on several occasions to interfere when his partner's irritable spouse resorted to cruelty. In other words, Marquard professes innocence and asserts that he has been protecting the girlie. Furthermore, "Tube" has the papers to show that he went before a New York judge two weeks ago and bound Kane over to keep the peace.

Some months since it was rumored that Marquard had secretly eloped with Shirley Kellog, one of the handsomest women on the stage. Then it developed that "Rube" didn't know her. Press agent stuff was responsible for a story that set Manager McGraw into a panic, on the eve of the world's series.

Marquard has made a tremendous hit on the stage, but the port-side pitcher, who cost New York $11,000 and who has since made a quarter of a million for Owner Brush, declares that if his troubles behind the footlights continue to multiply he will retire and go in for horse stealing or trading—same thing he says. Mrs. Kane says "Rube" has been a thorough gentleman, and she, too, will sue for divorce, alleging gross cruelty. Incidentally it is said that "Rube's" curves have worked their way around the heart of the attractive vaudeville headliner and there will be wedding bells in the vicinity of the Polo Grounds after Marquard has struck out the legal batsmen. Meantime "Rube" and Miss Seeley have disappeared again. Kane is trying to locate them.

RAIN STOPPED OLD BOY'S GAME

"Youths" Under Forty Years of Age Were Barred

Two teams of Lakefield old boys were to have engaged in a football match this afternoon, but the rain interfered. The players were all to have been residents of Lakefield and none under forty of forty-five years of age. Two entire teams had been picked and the game was expected to be a great drawing card.

F. M. Dela Fosse, librarian of Peterborough was to have been one the players, he being in his younger days, a fair player and great lover of the good old English game.

The match will be played as soon as weather permits.

"Yes," replied Mamie. "I felt complimented until I learned that he was studying to be an oculist. I had the same disappointing experience with a young dentist who was always anxious to make me smile."

HOCKEY MEETING AT RINK TO-NIGHT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club is called to take place at the rink to-night at eight o'clock.

This annual call for a gathering of the hockey fans is the first move of real activity in the interests of the game in Peterborough, and all interested in the question of representation in the O.L.A. by the Electric City are invited to attend.

The annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held at Toronto next Saturday, and representatives to the meeting will be appointed to-night.

NEGRO DEFENDED BY FLANAGAN

Says Johnson Has Been Straight But Has Made Enemies

Tom C. Flanagan, who was Jack Johnson's manager before and after the famous pugilist's battle at Reno against Jeffries, when the colored man captured the heavyweight championship, defends the fighter. He does not excuse Johnson's moral lapses, but says the big black is one of the cleanest, fairest sports, white or colored the writer ever met.

"Jack Johnson, as a fighter, has been as straight as a string in the face of temptation that few white men would withstand, but he has never been forgiven for defeating Jeffries. He made himself thousands of powerful enemies that fatal day at Reno, when he crumpled up the carcase of Jim Jeffries. That was his great mistake. He could have lain down to Jeffries and retired independently rich, but he didn't, because he was a cleaner and better sports than thousands of whites, who hoped to clean up on the public.

"Jack Johnson is no saint, I am free to admit, but don't forget that he has been literally dogged by women in every city of any size he has ever visited—supposedly respectable white women—and Toronto was no exception to the rule. Johnson will be driven out of Chicago, not because he is worse than many others, but because there is one moral code for whites and another for blacks. He will probably go to Europe and fight all comers. Johnson is still the greatest pugilist who ever entered the ring, but—he is black."

WRESTLING

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Yussif Mahmout may not come to America in 1912 as planned. In fact, there is likely to be a dearth this season of Bulgarian, Greek and other foreign wrestlers to supply the ever increasing demand for mat artists in the United States.

Mahmout is loyal to his native land, Bulgaria. He had an agreement to report to his manager, Emil Klank, in Chicago, October 15th. Passports were denied Bulgarians, however, as early as September 1st, and Mahmout is in the thick of the fight with the terrible Turks. Whether he will appear in Chicago this wrestling season Klank says depends upon the termination of the war between the Balkan allies and the Ottoman empire.

No Poisonous Lead or Sulphur In Parisian Sage Hair Tonic

Banishes Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair or Money Back.

If you want a good, clean, delightful hair dressing, free from harmful ingredients, one that will stop falling hair, itching scalp, banish dandruff and add lustre to dull faded hair, then ask for Parisian Sage and see that you get it.

The girl with the Auburn hair is on every carton and bottle of Parisian Sage which is manufactured in Canada by the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Price only 50 cents at drug and department stores and all counters where toilet goods are sold. Here's more proof:

"It is indeed with pleasure that I wish to advise you of the great benefit received from the use of your Parisian Sage. I suffered from dandruff and falling hair; in fact was almost bald in spots. Parisian Sage was recommended to me, so I purchased three bottles, having finished the last about ten days ago. My head is now free from dandruff and my hair is certainly much thicker than before I began using your wonderful tonic. Might state, too, that all other so-called remedies for dandruff which I tried were of no benefit. I cannot speak too highly of the merits of Parisian Sage, and gladly endorse its use where the above mentioned conditions exist." — G. Knight, Underwood, Ontario. Wm. Madill, druggist, guarantees it.

Telephone For Deaf Mutes.

An electrical device called a "deaf mutes' telephone" has been invented to enable those who cannot speak or hear to communicate rapidly with each other. The "phone" comprises an electrical keyboard, somewhat like that of a typewriter. This keyboard is connected by wire with an electric signal board, which is the "talking machine" proper, and consists of thirty-six incandescent light globes, each with a large letter of the alphabet or one of the nine numerals painted on the end of the bulb. The person who wishes to talk presses the key, spelling out the words as on a typewriter, the other person reading off the letters as they flush on the lamps.—London Globe.

Alligator Skins.

The alligator skin business of the world is controlled by a firm in Newark, N. J., which buys 80 to 90 per cent of the American production. It is significant that the sudden supply of 30,000 alligator skins per year from Colombia finds such a ready market in the United States that they have invariably been purchased upon arrival at New York on presentation of the shipping documents even before unloading the cargo.

BATHROOM LUXURY.

Portable Shower Spray That Is Practical and Convenient.

Almost every person can afford the luxury of a shower bath, since it is possible to buy a portable one at such modest prices. A shower bath of the most practical kind is marked at a few pennies less than $5, and after demonstrating its merits no one would go without such a comfort who had the price to pay for it. The fittings were substantial, arranged with fixtures for attaching to the wall, an extremely strong rubber pipe and curtains of heavy sail duck such as tents are made of.

These would be a perfect protection to walls or paper.

At such a low price one expects only the most flimsy outfit, and to pay $5 for something that would soon get out of order or prove impracticable is just like throwing money away. Then for those who feel even $5 is beyond their purse there is a bath spray that is not at all a bad substitute for the shower bath. The prices for rubber and rose nozzle begin at 50 cents for the small size. For rinsing the hair these sprays are excellent, as the force sends water right into the scalp, cleansing in from soap most thoroughly. By the way, there is a little shampoo bag lately introduced which costs only 10 cents and can be dried and used over and over again. The outer covering is cheesecloth, with a spongy substance inside charged with soap and perfumed powders, said to be very cool, cleansing and refreshing.

"I saw that man gazing into your eyes," said Maud.

A RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

Lindsay, Nov. 6th, 1912.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

CRAVATH WINS

A SERIES OF TEN STORIES
BY JOHN T McINTYRE
COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of stonemason that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Sore determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

Next the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful woman, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

Taking another tack, the Blaylows endeavor to have the real pistol stolen by a Swedish butler, whom they "plant" in Cravath's home, but the plot is discovered, barely in time.

A cleverer plot is next hatched. Cravath is requested to show the curious old pistol to an antiquarian friend who has been hurt in an automobile accident and cannot leave his house. When Cravath lays it on a table, there is a mysterious upset, the antiquarian is bowled over and the pistol is gone. Again Cravath and Scanlon suspect that a butler has been subsidized. They force him to admit it, and get the pistol from young Blaylow, who has taken it and hidden in a recess behind a Venetian panel.

Hard luck next besets the friends. Cravath's mother goes on a visit to a country estate, and they start to call on her, taking the pistol with them. They get into an empty house, are taken for burglars, lose the pistol, and are only released when Cravath's mother comes along in an automobile. The pistol is then restored to them.

VIII—The Adventure of the Storks Chicken

IT WAS by the merest chance that I saw Cravath the next morning. I was strolling along and swinging my cane and smoking a cigar when he hailed me from a taxi.

"Old chap," said he, "I can't tell you how pleased I am to see you. Jump in! I have the news that is making the old earth wobble on its axis."

"I trust," said I, as I got into the cab, "that the tidings have nothing to do with firearms—more especially those of an ancient vintage."

He smiled.

"No," said he. "My experiences for a week past have been almost exclusively of a gunpowder character; but strange to say this new one is of a different hue altogether."

"Well?" said I, expectantly.

"La Sultana is due this afternoon."

"Oh, she is? Well, I doubt not but that the arrival is of an earth disturbing nature to the initiated; but I don't quite get it. What is La Sultana? A muscle dancer, or a cigarette?"

"She is a ship," Cravath informed me with some dignity. "She is a ship of the Lord knows how many tons burden—out of Havre and bound for this port with 700 souls on board."

I was a trifle sluggish that morning or I would have connected one thing with another more deftly. As it was, I had to ask for more light.

"From among the 700," stated Cravath, "one stands out with shining distinctness. It is a young lady and she is traveling over the sea to learn whether or no her knight has proven himself worthy."

"Oh, yes," said I, "Miss Betterton."

"No one else," answered Cravath. "And, do you know, old man, I'll be greatly relieved when I see her, and get this confounded pistol out of my possession. At first it was a lightly considered thing—an airy trifle—but it has grown mightily in these last few nights. It is as if I had a piece of three by four over my shoulder with never a pocket to put it in. I'm staggering now; in another day or so I'd go down for the count."

His tone was humorous and there was a smile upon his lips; but I could see much truth in the lightly spoken complaint. He was a strong young man; strong in purpose and strong in body; but a man is only human and cannot endure forever. Even a week of strain tells upon the stoutest. The smile had a [illegible] that I had not noticed before, and there was a slightly drawn appearance of the face which was far from pleasing me.

I assumed his own manner, and touched the subject with a careless hand.

"In the old romances," said I, "there never was a champion whose knees were not sagging toward the end of the fray. It was the proper condition for the champion and gave him a chance to throw a heroic bluff. His crest was held highest and his air of hardihood the most strongly marked when he was all but ready to drop. Stagger to your heart's content, but do it privately; when alone in your closet permit despair to lay its cold hand upon your heart if it is so disposed, but when on public view, lift your buckler of bluff and let your manner be as full of lies as it can stick."

"Your advice is worthy of you," said Cravath. "It is both grave and practical. And trust me to follow it. If I have been punished in what has passed, I will carefully cover up all evidences of it. Even though my enemies hate me, still will I smile at them."

"And don't forget to treasure up a wallop to be used when the smile fails," cautioned I. "The smile is a good thing enough; but it never gets a man anything in a clinch."

He nodded, nursed his knees and gazed dreamily at the buildings as we went by. I, too, took cognizance of these; and in a little I realized that we were approaching the waterfront. It was then that I realized that I had not inquired as to our destination.

"Why the taxi ride?" I now asked.

The dreamy look remained as he shifted his gaze.

"La Sultana is due this afternoon," he said.

"But what's that got to do with this helter-skeltering about the streets?"

"I'm going to meet her."

"What, in a cab?"

"In front of a street drop in a vaudeville theater, that might pass as humor," said he. "But it is flavorless in the face of what I am about to do."

"Huh?"

"I am on my way to charter a vessel," he said. "A vessel of some speed and a fair degree of seaworthiness."

My wits had improved since entering the taxi and I grasped the situation.

"Ah!" I said. "Miss Betterton calls so urgently that you cannot wait."

"Her personality is not halted by distance," said he. "Neither is her sweetness circumscribed by anything else. I sense her as poignantly at this moment as I would if I were beside her. Nevertheless, I am going down the bay to meet her."

We got out of the taxi at the foot of the street.

"Right over there," said the driver, pointing, "is a whole line of tugboat offices. Any of them will do for you."

In one of these we found a short, thick-set man with a scrubby beard upon his chin and his feet upon a desk. He listened calmly to Cravath's desires, then he took a pipe from his mouth.

"It will cost you $200," pronounced he. Then he replaced the pipe and regarded our several expressions of horror with the utmost indifference.

"Two hundred dollars!" said Cravath. "Sir, you are really superb! You demand like a satrap!"

The tugboat man was visibly disconcerted at this; he was upon the point of removing the pipe for a further utterance, when I said:

"Two hundred dollars is not your lowest!"

He removed the pipe.

"If my own father wanted to go nosing around the bay hunting for a ship, I wouldn't knock off a dollar. Those big boats never do what you expect them to do. They're reported today and they dock next Thursday. No, sir, $200 is the least money that'll make my tug get up steam."

We tried some other towboat men; but their ideas were equally inflated.

"Two hundred dollars," said Cravath, again and again. "That beats the dickens! Why, I haven't more than $30 in the world."

Finally we entered another place; it was a basement under a chandler's shop. A thin man with a weak chest and a red head greeted us distantly.

"I'll take $275 for the trip," stated he with cold-blooded calmness. "And I ain't crazy to do it at that."

At the curb before this place we compared notes.

"It looks," spoke I, "as though the bosom of the bay were to remain unruffled by us."

Cravath was [illegible].

"He said $275 and he said it as if he were accustomed to thinking of such sums," complained my friend, fearfully. "There are really such people in the world, then."

"They are robbers," I told him, "actual robbers. Why, the man who gets his in lonely places is a higher type than any fellow we've yet interviewed. What does a little scoot down the bay mean? Merely the eating up of several tons of coal and the paying of a couple of men in dirty shirts. And $50 ought to do all that."

"At $50 I couldn't sit in," stated Cravath. "As I stated, I have only thirty."

I took account of my wealth.

"It comes to $20," I said. "So if you can get any sort of a craft at $50, do it. We'll make one pile of the two."

This seemed to give him an idea.

"Any sort of a craft," said he in a pleased tone. "Why, that's so; there are other sorts of craft, aren't there?" Then he bolted off down the street, continuing over his shoulder: "Let's ask about them."

The first person encountered who seemed to possess knowledge of this character was a man who stood in the door of a shop and who apparently sold rusty anchors and battered ship's lanterns. This man disdained a pipe; he got the necessary quantity of nicotine into his system by means of mastication; all the byproducts of the leaf he spat upon the sidewalk.

"If you gents wants to go down the bay," spoke he, after a particularly vigorous effort in the latter direction, "you ought to go and see Tommy Downey."

"Why?" asked Cravath.

"Because," answered he of the rusty anchors, "he's the owner of the Storks Chicken, which is the cutest traveler on this river."

This appealed to Cravath, and learning where Tommy was to be found, we hurried there. It was a small, stall-like tobacco shop, facing the river, crowded with its particular kind of merchandise and hung with a mighty display of brilliant printing.

Downey was the owner of this as well as of the Storks Chicken. He was mild-mannered and spectacled and listened to Cravath with interest.

"The Chicken just got back from hauling a crowd of campers up the river," he said; "and she's all ready and the boys are still on board. I'll let her go down and meet La Sultana for $40—you pay for the gasoline."

"You're on," said Cravath.

Mr. Downey left his shop in charge of a small boy who seemed there for that purpose; in a nearby dock we found a good-sized hunting launch with a blond youngster lounging upon the cabin roof. At a few words from the owner, this youth became exceedingly active; summoning another lad from the interior of the craft they plunged into a sea of preparations.

"Here's the boat, and here's the crew," suggested Mr. Downey, mildly. "Now, where's the $40?"

With my aid Cravath produced this, and as Mr. Downey slipped it into his trousers pocket he added:

"I'll hand you your gas bill when you get back."

Then he went up the wharf; and the two lads finished their preparations; then with one at the wheel and the other seeing to the engine, we tore down the river.

"Got somebody on board La Sultana you want to see?" inquired the pilot, with an air of careless comradery.

"Yes," replied Cravath.

"Kind of a rush, eh?"

"Something like that."

The brisk wind tousled the corn-colored hair of the boy at the wheel; he had the light colored eyes and the aquiline deviltry of the Vikings; and from the friendly way with which he glanced over the water, he might have come from them by direct descent. A good-sized tug, also on the way down, suddenly altered her course; yard by yard she crept nearer to us; at a point no great distance ahead the two vessels must meet if they held to their present courses.

"What's the matter with that fellow?" asked Cravath.

"Getting funny, I guess," replied the Viking, his blue eyes beginning to glint. A few moments later the wash of the tug began to make the Chicken dance; then, in his unaccountable desire to get nearer to us the tug's pilot all but ran us down. Icily, and with deliberation, the Viking cut loose the most eloquent stream of profanity to which I had ever listened. The diction was admirable, the style crisp and concise, the periods heaving and brilliant. He took the tug pilot, feature by feature, subjecting each to the most caustic and blasphemous criticisms; as a human he scouted him; as compared with the lowliest of quadrupeds the summing up was all in favor of the latter; in a half dozen sentences the man was consigned to all the known places of torment, had had his parentage reflected upon and doubts raised as to the character of his birth.

The captain of the tug stood at the rail, listening with much admiration.

"Good work, kid," said he. "With a little more experience you'll be some cusser."

Calmly the Viking turned his guns upon the speaker and volleyed at him with vitriolic ardor; in the midst of this last assault I caught a laugh—a familiar laugh and one which I would much rather not have heard.

At the stern rail of the tug stood young Blaylow, and beside him was his father. And as I sighted them, the former waved his hand at Cravath.

"I beg your pardon," said he. "All this fuss is my fault. I thought I recognized you a little while back, and asked to be brought closer so that I might be sure."

"I trust you are well," said Cravath.

"Couldn't be better. Taking a spin?"

"Down the bay a little distance," answered Cravath, carelessly.

Young Blaylow laughed again; his father leaned over the stern rail, for they had drawn somewhat ahead of the Chicken.

"We thought we'd go down a piece ourselves," said the elder. "Sometimes one is put out of one's way in the effort to forestall false reports."

"Did you get that?" I asked Cravath.

"They mean to get Miss Betterton's ear and deny everything that I might afterward say against them," answered he. "It's a fair sort of scheme."

I cogitated the matter and grew very indignant. Indeed, I quite forgot that the matter was Cravath's and intruded myself with marked results.

"Going to meet La Sultana?" I asked the Blaylows.

"Oh, we may board her, if we find ourselves in her neighborhood," said the younger with a wide smile. "Nothing certain, though."

Then I boiled over.

"Why don't you say what's so?" I demanded of him. "You know blamed well you're on your way down with no other intent. You've tried all the other mean tricks you know, and now you're going to try and put across a lot of lies."

"Sir!" exclaimed the old man. "Sir!"

"It'll do you no good, though," I told them loudly, for they were now some little distance away. "We've got the thing that counts; ten minutes after we sight the steamer the pistol will be produced and that will be answer enough for you both."

This information was received by the Blaylows with much interest; I saw their heads go together; and then the younger waved his hand mockingly. It may be that he also called something, too, but if he did they were too far away for me to hear.

Flushed with the thought that I had not allowed them to go without competent spiders in each of their dumplings, I turned to Cravath, thinking to find him amused. But he sat upon the roof of the cabin, rolling a cigarette, and with a sober face enough.

"However," said he, as he lighted the roll, "even Jove is said to nod. So we'll say nothing more about it."

I took the offered tobacco pouch and packet of papers and proceeded to duplicate his performance.

"That observation," I suggested, "has a weighty sound. But if there is any wisdom in it, it has escaped me. Suppose you explain."

Cravath looked out across the waters, which had widened considerably, showing that we had entered the bay; then he answered:

"Here we are in a little boat, the crew is two boys; the bay is lonely. Not far away are the Blaylows, in a larger boat, and with a stronger crew. In the face of this, you, who have all along been so cautious, let out the information that the Betterton flintlock is on board."

I was appalled.

"If there is a plank at hand," I told him, "and you so desire, I will cheerfully walk it. No punishment, nautical or otherwise, is too severe for a man who has proven, as I have done, his possession of a boiler-plated head."

"I think," smiled Cravath, a mysterious twinkle in his eyes, "that it would be more profitable to suspend sentence and put you in the first line of defense, in case such a thing should be needed. A skull of that pattern would fit in there very well."

The tug was now some distance away, but not so far but that those upon her decks were plain to be seen. The two Blaylows were still in the stern; and apparently engaged in an earnest conference with them was the captain and a burly member of the tug's crew.

"They may be discussing the direction of the wind, their rate of speed, or the depth of the channel required by a seagoing ship," said Cravath, after a moment's inspection of this group. "But from their gestures and nods in this direction it's my opinion that they are discussing us."

"There is no doubt about that," I said. "They have us under advisement—or you, that is; or perhaps the old flintlock would be a better guess."

"The skipper of the tug seems to require some talking to," remarked Cravath, after a little time spent in watching.

"I have noted a sort of reluctance," said I. "From this distance it appears to be the same style of self-denial displayed by a small boy when looking at a tree full of green apples."

Cravath nodded.

"The Blaylows want him to do something," said he, with his eyes upon the tug.

"And that something," spoke I, "is not far to seek. The Betterton pistol is in for another small matching of wits or muscle."

For a long time, perhaps an hour or more, we watched the tug steadily. Her speed had decreased, but she maintained her lead with much snorting and coughing of exhausts. Finally the clump at her stern rail broke up with the suddenness that spoke of a decision arrived at.

"The cap," predicted I, "has concluded to run up the black flag."

"It looks like it," assented Cravath.

At this point the bay was very wide; here and there a schooner or other sailing craft was anchored; under the gray sky with no sun it was a sad slate-colored stretch of water indeed.

Cravath turned his attention to the light-haired boy at the wheel.

"Can this vessel travel any?" he asked.

The Viking grinned pleasantly and took a whirl at the spokes.

"She won four races," stated he. "Got engine enough in her to drive her under water."

"Could she show anything against that tug?" and Cravath pointed.

The Viking grinned wider than ever. Ducking his head toward the cabin he called:

"Hey, Dave!"

Dave appeared, rather smutted and oily, but pleasantly receptive.

"Eh?" inquired he.

The Viking wriggled a thumb toward Cravath.

"Wants to know if the Chicken could show that tug there anything."

Dave melodramatically threw up both hands and pitched headforemost down the short flight of steps. He reappeared, however, slightly breathless and inordinately mirthful.

"Mister," he informed Cravath, "The Chicken can drift faster than that old bathtub can steam."

I could see that Cravath was pleased at this assurance; he said, addressing our pilot:

"Suppose those folks on the tug took the notion that they just must 'get us'? What way would you look at it?"

The Viking was eminently practical.

"You paid your money to Tommy for the Chicken," said he, "and I'm a-doing just what you say."

"Fine," said Cravath.

Dave had been listening and speculating; also he had been watching the tug.

"She's shut off some power," said he. Then to Cravath: "We'll come even with them in less than five minutes. When do you figure they'll start trying to get you?"

"Any time from now on," answered Cravath.

The Viking turned his wheel and the nose of the Chicken pointed away some degrees to the westward; the tug people noticed this, for in a moment that vessel slowly drew her head around the same way.

"Looks like they'd a mind to talk a little," said our pilot.

"All right," said Cravath. "But don't let them get too close."

From the expression of both lads I could see that they were much edified by the situation; at the same time they were puzzled and curious as to the cause of it. However, they went about their work of handling the Storks Chicken, never asking a question, but expecting much.

The tug was steaming slowly along and in a few minutes we came abreast of her. Neither of the Blaylows was now visible; the captain was engaged in a conversation with his pilot which must have been stuffed with humorous observations, judging from the way they laughed; the burly man who had formed one of the conferring group of a short time before leaned carelessly over the starboard rail.

"Nice little boat you've got there," said he, to Cravath.

"I hadn't noticed her particularly," said Cravath carelessly, engaged with a second cigarette. "I suppose she'll do, though."

The burly man nodded.

"Heard of her before," said he. "Fast and not hard to handle. Over-engined, though."

The Viking whispered to me.

"Do you get the captain and the other one? There's something doing."

Still indulging in their exchange of humor the captain and pilot of the tug never looked in our direction; but their very attitudes cried out the [illegible] of their interest in our proximity. The sharp eyes of the Viking had caught this, his grin was of wide proportions as he allowed the tug to come tantalizingly close, then suddenly sheer away.

"I thought about buying her once," the burly man informed Cravath. "But Downey wanted too much for her."

"Some people are entirely case-hardened," commented Cravath. "They seem to take delight in standing in the way of others."

Here the Viking impishly drew very close to the tug's side, winking at me as he did so; however, in another moment the wink was followed by a cry of alarm. Two men, heretofore concealed by the tug's rail, suddenly arose; with the neatness of experts they dropped a heavy iron cleat into the Storks Chicken. It went on through as though the bottom was paper, the water rushed in and the launch sank like a stone.

Instantly all was alive on board the tug. Boathooks, lines and such like were brought into use; and in a moment or two all four of us were upon the tugboat's deck, dripping, gasping and astonished. The eloquence of the Viking did not follow him into unaccustomed experiences, for he was dumb; Cravath, however, after dashing the water from his eyes, did not wait to demand explanations, but jumped among the tug's crew, lashing out right and left. The two who had performed so deftly with the cleat had their consequent amusement effectually stayed by their heads thudding against the deck. Following his example I engaged the burly man with some vigor. But the pilot, the engineer, the captain, young Blaylow and, subsequently, the two [illegible] joined in the attack, and in a very few minutes we were both pinned to the deck.

"Now," said young Blaylow, to the captain, "search them both, and more especially this one," indicating Cravath. "The thing which I want is an old dueling pistol, of which they are illegally in possession."

Of course I was guiltless of such a thing; but when they also failed to find it upon Cravath, my amazement was as great as the Blaylows'. A fear took possession of me.

"It went down with the launch," I said.

Not having what they desired, we [illegible] released, while the two boys were being [illegible]. Cravath smiled as he watched.

"The pistol," said he, "is now safe in the [illegible] of a trust company."

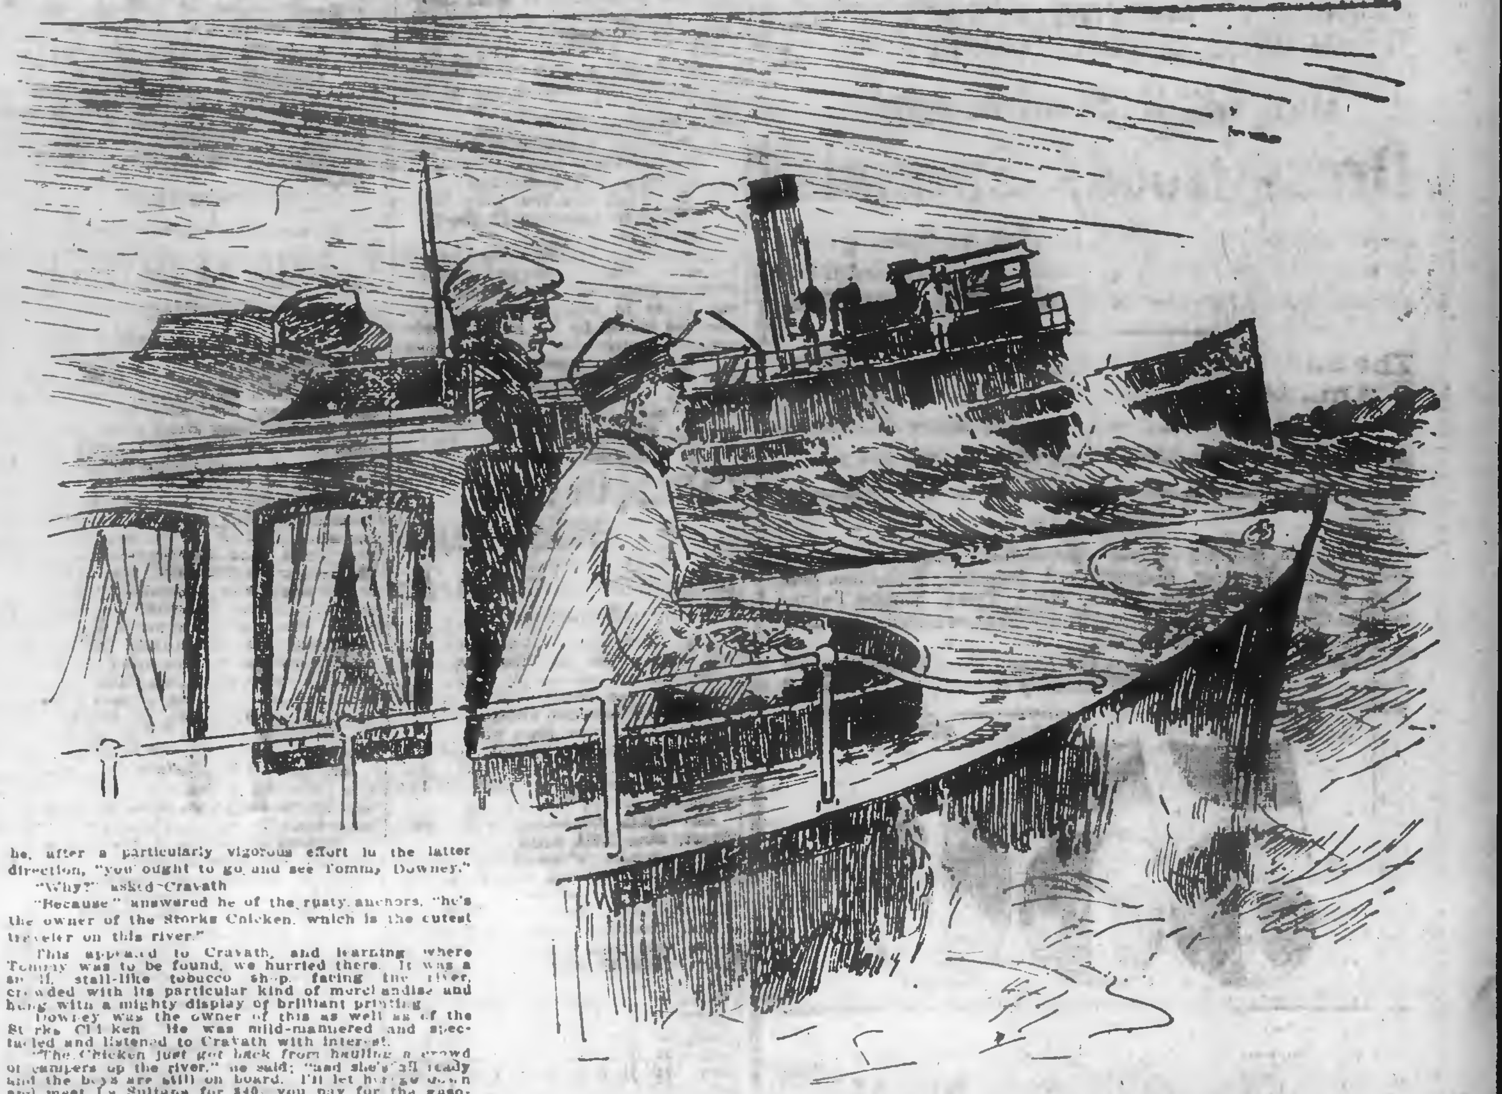
"Why," said I, "I thought you said—"

"If you will hark back," said he, "you will see that it was you who did the saying. I [illegible] to undeceive you." Then to the Blaylows, who stood listening moodily, he added:

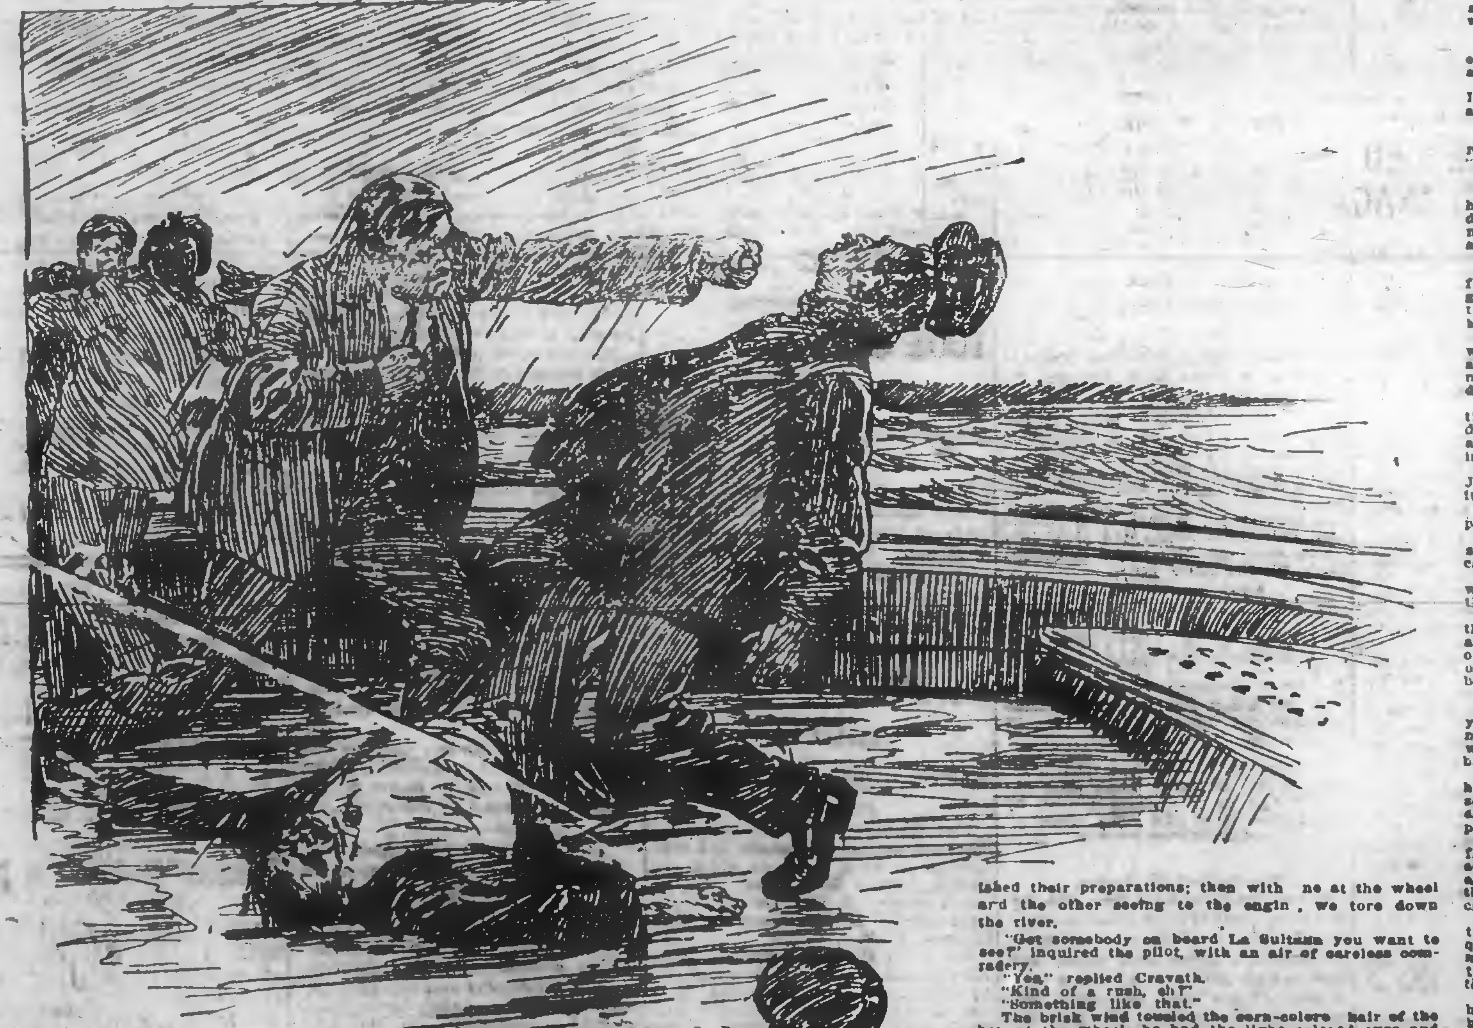
"Miss Betterton will think it kind that you have been so eager in the matter of having me on board your vessel when going to meet her."

Old Blaylow looked at his son and the mute question was answered by a short [illegible]; then he turned upon the tug's skipper.

"Back to the city," said he, curtly. And as they were turning away, he added: "Have that man Downey send the bill for his confounded launch to me."



"For a long time, perhaps an hour or more, we watched the tug steadily"



"Cravath jumped among the tug's crew, lashing out right and left"

Rev. Donald Guthrie in a sermon in a Montreal church gave bad cooking as a chief reason why many men rush to the saloons. This may in a measure be true. But what about well-off drinkers who are used to good meals and who persist in patronizing the bar in great numbers? It must be bad thirst that bothers them.

It is said that in Cincinnati some oyster dealers sprinkle powder on their oysters to make them swell. Respectfully referred to the ladies in charge of a church oyster supper.

QUERY AS TO MARRIAGE LAWS

What Parts of Canada are Controlled by Federal Marriage Laws

Ottawa, Nov. 13—That the marriage law question is to again figure in the parliamentary discussion this session is indicated by a question which J. H. Burnham, M.P., of Peterborough has already sent for inscription on the order paper of the House.

He will ask—

1. What portions of Canada are solely under Federal control and jurisdiction?
2. What are the laws in respect to marriage in these districts?

Unless Mr. Lancaster has changed his mind since the judgment of the Privy Council was delivered, he is not likely to again bring up the question raised by his bill, the principle of which was declared unconstitutional. In view, however, of the extent of the agitation, it is believed the subject will be revived. Evidence of this is afforded by Mr. Burnham's query.

CANADIAN HEN WAS SECOND

In First International Egg-Laying Competition

The first international egg-laying competition at Stoess Agricultural college, Conn., U. S. A., finished its one year's test of the 96 pens of all varieties entered.

There were pens from all over the States, one from England, and four from Canada. The final report gives the positions of the three leading prize-winners as follows—

1st—White Leghorns, F. G. Yost, Sayre, Ma., 1,071 eggs.

2nd.—White Wyandottes, Beulah farm, Stoney Creek, Ont., 1,69 eggs.

3rd— White Leghorns, Marwood Poultry farm, Butler, Pa., 10.2 eggs.

The Canadian pen gained second prize with just two eggs behind the leader and 27 eggs ahead of the third pen.

One of the Canadian white wyandottes took second place for individuals for the first six months, having laid 130 eggs in 183 days. This does not include eggs laid outside the trap nests.

The report also shows that only one other pen equalled the Canadians in number of eggs laid during the six coldest weeks of last winter.

To finish with a record of 214 eggs per bird promises well for Canada's prospects in future egg laying competitions.

A DISTRIBUTION

Will be Made From the Dominion Experimental Farms

By instructions of the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture, from the Dominion Experimental Farms a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.) white oats (4 lbs.) barley (5 lbs.) and field peas (5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

LAID AT REST

The local Masonic Lodges had charge of the funeral of the late Chas H. Hindley, a commercial traveller from Manchester, Eng., who died suddenly here on Monday, the pall bearers being Bros. Robt. Fair, John Crane, Walter Stocker and A. Dendson, of Peterborough Lodge; F. D. Kerr, of Corinthian Lodge, and T. Bilsbury, of Caledonia Lodge, Manchester, who is connected with the same firm as the deceased. Rev. Jas. Price, late of Manchester, led the religious service and the service of the Order was conducted by Worshipful Masters Dandson and Kerr. There was a good representation of commercial travellers and business men who knew and respected the deceased. The floral offerings were beautiful and included designs from the A.F. & A.M., Sons of England, St. George's Society, Robt. Fair & Co. and staff, and Miss Lundy.

Mr. Thos. Bilsbury received to-day the following cablegram from the Caledonian Lodge, A. F. & A. M. at Manchester:

"Deepest sympathy in the loss of Hendley. —Caledonian 204."

GENERAL WILLIAM BOOTH MEMORIAL

Captain Watkinson, officer in charge of the Salvation Army work in Peterborough, desires to enlist the hearty co-operation of the citizens of this city in connection with the above scheme.

Commissioner D. M. Rees, of Toronto, is asking the east Ontario and Quebec Division of the Salvation Army to raise $6,000 of the $250,000, the estimated cost of the proposed memorial.

Peterborough is asked to contribute $600 which we feel is a reasonable request, and no doubt the citizens will show in a practical way their esteem and appreciation of the life and work of General William Booth who has been the greatest world-wide benefactor of humanity of the last century; also we are sure that the nature of the proposed memorial will appeal to all.

BABY BORN WITH BULLET IN SIDE

Mother Was Shot During Row With Brother-in-Law

Honolulu, Nov. 13.—To come into the world with a 38-calibre bullet in his side is what baby Cavalho did yesterday, and two hours after birth the little fellow was successfully operated upon by surgeons, who now say he will live.

Two days ago Mrs. Juan Cavalho, a Porto Rican woman, had a row with her brother-in-law, and was shot in the abdomen. Within twenty hours the child was born, and physicians found that the bullet had embedded itself in the little body.

The Man of the House.

"I was left alone for a time with my two boys—aged five and three—and until then I had never realised just what an important factor their father had been in their government," said a fond parent. "I had never believed in corporal punishment, and now that the responsibility fell entirely upon me I set myself the task of finding a better method. After several failures I tried this and found it most effective. I had often told the older boy that when his father was away he must be the 'man of the house.' Now, I wrote upon a paper the name of each boy and pinned the paper upon the wall. I explained to them carefully that whenever they were naughty I would put a black mark after their names and whenever they were especially obedient or helpful I would put down a 'round ring.' Then at the end of the day we compared the two, and the one with the best record was the 'man of the house' the next day.

"The 'man of the house' was allowed to sit at his father's place and serve the meals. Whenever there were no black marks on the day's record I gave them a prize. They entered into the little game with great enthusiasm. It really takes so little to interest a child if one goes about it in the right way!"

TAG DAY ON SATURDAY

Everyone can Help the Work of Children's Aid Society

On Saturday next, the Children's Aid Society "expects every man to do his duty." Saturday is the day set for the annual Tag Day canvass. Last year the sum of $1276.00 was raised through the liberal purchase of the tags. The collectors this year intend to make a valiant effort to increase that subscription, which can only be done through the liberality and kindness of the public.

The buying of tags for sums which are never missed, has provided a satisfactory solution to the problem of keeping and maintaining the Children's Aid Society. That it requires a considerable amount for the upkeep of the Shelter and to pay the salaries of those in charge are facts that people often fail to realize.

"Heretofore," said Mr. E. L. Goodwill, "the society has had to depend on private subscriptions and endowments, and the tag day plan has spared the officers much embarassment in soliciting these subscriptions. The work also means so much to the children and to the country, while the investment yields a greater return than any other form of benevolent work. People do not realize that it costs $2 a week to keep every child in the shelter, besides buying coal, wood, and other household expenses."

"With a fine sunshiny day and a good crowd on the streets, we anticipate most satisfactory receipts," said Mr. Goodwill.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Despondent from causes which his wife could not explain to the police, James Sullivan, a laborer, living at 56 Terauley street, drank carbolic acid in his room last evening about eight o'clock, and died a couple of hours later in St. Michael's Hospital.

SIR EDMUND AND COL. SAM

Addressed the Canadian Club at New York

New York, Nov. 13—New Yorkers who are natives of Canada and who like to go back there as often as possible, dined last night at the Hotel Astor. It was the eighth annual dinner of the Canadian Club of New York.

The loyal Canadians clapped when Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said that if ever England should fall from her greatness as head of the British Empire—and Sir Edmund interpolated that he prayed to God that this would never occur—there would be another great Anglo-Saxon nation which would take her place, and would sow the noblest civilization that the world has yet seen.

Col. Hughes explained to the diners that the reason that he was there as the only representative of the Dominion Government was that he was the only Minister who had nothing to do. He said that civilization had never been advanced among savage people so effectively as at the point of the bayonet.

"How much logic and how much time would it take to bring certain people to respect the rights of Christian nations?" he asked. "In the Soudan it was many years before bloodshed ceased. Year in and year out we read the dreadful toll of thousands of lives sacrificed in the effort to bring ultimate peace. But now I may say that life is as safe in the Soudan as in New York."

His reference to New York aroused a tittler. He was quick to understand what it meant.

"Or in Canada I may say," he concluded.

Teaching Girls to Cook.

Although cookbooks come in rapid succession—so fast, indeed, that it would take a good sized library to house them instead of the modest little shelf that formerly sufficed for the literature of the cuisine—the requirements of the child cook have been somewhat overlooked.

One of the most popular features of the public school exhibitions held each year is the demonstration by the little girl cooks from the cooking classes. The leading chefs of the day are invariably to be found in the front ranks of the onlookers on these occasions and are loud in their admiration of the little girls' skill and resourcefulness.

Not the least pleasing feature of these displays is the evident delight of the children in their work. Yorkshire puddings are whisked with a will, pastry is proudly rolled out on the floured board and the nicely browned meat taken out of the oven with a grand flourish that arouses the envy of every other child in the room.

Nearly every little girl longs to cook something all by herself, if it is only candy or chestnuts over the nursery fire, and too often those responsible for their care, afraid of burned fingers and spoiled frocks, postpone the first cookery lesson until the girl has her time fully taken up with the many interests that have been opened out to the modern schoolgirl and no longer wants to learn how to cook.

How the little girl may take the first steps in the art of good cooking is told simply and clearly in language that could be understood by every child.

Reading to the Little Ones.

Sometimes read to the children, in that lull before bedtime, a few verses or a short poem from some classic that you love.

You try to surround your children as far as possible with good pictures, tasteful furnishings and colorings, because you think that early environment educates unconsciously. By the same token listening to and becoming familiar with the best in our language will in the future enable them to reject the mediocre and tawdry in literature, as in material things.

Pick up your Tennyson and soothe and quiet them with the dreamy music of the choric song from the "Lotus Eaters:"

> There is sweet music here that softlier falls
> Than petals from blown roses in the grass,

or that exquisite lullaby from the "Princess:"

> Sweet and low, sweet and low,
> Wind of the western sea, or farther on, when their mood is brighter, the spirited bugle song with its stately phrasing and haunting refrain:

> The splendor falls on castle walls
> And sunny summits old in story.

or the lilting sound of "The Brook:"

> I chatter over stony ways
> In little sharps and trebles;
> I bubble into eddying bays;
> I babble on the pebbles.

Can a child whose ears are attuned to such sounds care for commonplace or trashy in literature?

END OF BALKAN WAR IS BELIEVED NEAR AT HAND

SMALL RIOT BREAKS OUT IN COMMONS

House is Packed on Occasion of Premier Asquith's Resolution to Rescind the Snap Vote of Monday and Liberals Defeat Motion to Adjourn--Unionist's Throw Paper and Books at Cabinet.

Canadian Press.

London, Nov. 14.—The Commons met again to-day and this afternoon adjourned until Monday, acting it is believed, on the suggestion of King George. The proposal was made by the Speaker and Premier Asquith immediately moved for an adjournment.

Lodon, Nov. 14.—The House of Commons, the popular House of the "Mother of Parliaments," was the scene last night of a riot over Premier Asquith's proposal to rescind the action of Monday, when the Unionists carried by a majority of 22 Sir Frederick Banbury's amendment, defeating the most important financial feature of the home rule bill.

The Unionists refused to permit the debate, and the Speaker was forced to adjourn the session on account of the disorder. This is an extremely rare necessity, and the situation is considered a critical one.

The Unionists almost unanimously threaten that they will continue to make business in the House impossible unless the Prime Minister accept the amendment or drops the home rule bill. They declare that his action is unprecedented and will be obstructed by unprecedented measures. Their object is to force the Government to resign.

When the session began, there were packed benches. The Premier's followers gave him a great cheer on his entrance and demonstrated that they were present in force by defeating a motion to adjourn early in the proceedings by a vote of 327 to 318.

He then moved the adjournment, which was defeated by 327 to 318.

Then the storm broke. Sir Frederick Banbury moved that a decision reached could not be reversed at the same session. 'The only honorable alternatives before the Government," he said, "are resignation or dissolution. All the respect with which the members of the minority are treated is to have the members of the Cabinet sitting opposite them grinning like apes. The Government is only a circus led by rebels. The best thing the Ulster members can do is to go home and make propositions to resist home rule."

Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, attempted to speak. He was on his feet for several minutes. Every sentence was drowned by Unionists shouts and derisive cries for Lloyd-George. He finally took his seat. The Attorney-General, Sir Rufus Isaacs, had the same experience.

Henry Page Croft, Unionist for Christchurch, shouted "The name of this Government stinks in the City of London," referring to various alleged candidates. The speaker finally adjourned the House for an hour.

Immediately it convened, Sir Rufus Isaacs was on his feet amid shouts of "Adjourn." The voice of Sir Edward Carson, who led the anti-home rulers in Ulster, arose above the din. "There will be no more business ever in this House," he said.

The speaker repeatedly appealed for order, and at length declared, "I rule that a scene of grave disorder has arisen and I adjourn the House until to-morrow."

A yell of victory burst from the Unionists. The members of the Cabinet clustered on their side of the clerk's table. No one moved to leave the House. On the Unionist side was a seething mob. An arm was raised and a document flew across the floor. It struck the Prime Minister on the shoulder. A shower or order papers fell among the group of Ministers. Mr. Asquith was white and indignantly faced the attack.

Suddenly the Unionist member, Ronald McNeill, rushed to the clerk's table and seized a heavy volume. He hurled it at the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Churchill, whom is struck full on the chest. There was an ugly rush from the Liberal benches, but the cooler members held back their colleagues.

For a moment a battle of fists seemed imminent. Then the peace-making voice of Will Crooks was raised in song, "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot." Others took up the refrain and gradually flowed into the lobby.

At a Cabinet meeting held later it was determined to adhere to the program.

TOLL RATES ANNOUNCED

Rates for Foreign Shipping Through Panama Canal.

Washington, Nov. 14.—President Taft last night issued a proclamation fixing the rates that the foreign shipping of the world shall pay for passage through the Panama Canal. The proclamation, made under authority of the Canal Act, passed by Congress in August, establishes a merchant vessel rate of $1.20 per net ton of actual carrying capacity, with a reduction of forty per cent. on ships in ballast.

The provisions of the proclamtion are as follows:

1. On merchant vessels carrying passengers or cargo $1.20 per net vessel ton—each 100 cubic feet of actual earning capacity.

2. On vessels in ballast without passengers or cargo 40 per cent. less than the rate of tolls for vessels with passengers or cargo.

3. Upon naval vessels/ other than transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, fifty cents per displacement ton.

4. Upon army and navy transports, colliers, hospital ships and supply ships, $1.20 per ton, the vessels to be measured by the same rules as are employed in determining the net tonnage of merchant ships.

The Secretary of War will prepare and prescribe such rules for the measurement of vessels and such regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry this proclamation into full force and effect.

American coastwise shipping was exempted from toll payment by Congress. It was to this provision of the act that Great Britain diplomatically protested, but no reference to the incident was made in the President's proclamation. American naval vessels are exempted without specific mention either in the act of Congress or the proclamation, because the authorities believed it unnecessary to explain the uselessness of payment from its navy department pocket to the one belonging to the treasury department. The rates named in the proclamation are practically the same as those which will be in force at the Suez Canal next year.

People never lose a chance to take a smash at the neighbors. When there is a robbery thay says "In my opinion the robber doesn't live very far away."

REAL SNOWSTORM IN MONTREAL

Snow Fell Heavily for Several Hours

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Winter started in real earnest here yesterday, snow falling heavily from 11 a.m. for several hours.

Reports of heavy snowstorms from all parts of the province have also been received, sleighing taking place in Northern Quebec and the lower St. Lawrence districts.

Quebec Needs More Judges.

Quebec, Nov. 14.—At the opening of the court of appeals yesterday, Chief Justice Archambault, discussing the lack of judges in this province said that if the Government did not see to the appointment of more judges the lawyers might expect to have to wait still longer for the judgments.

New York, Nov. 14.—Allison M. McFarland, recently acquitted in New Jersey of wife murder on a second trial, yesterday pleaded guilty to counterfeiting, in the U.S. District Court, and was sentenced to one and one-half years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

THE COMPETING BALLOONS READY TO START..

The photographs herewith were taken at the start of the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett Cup, at Stuttgart, Germany. Twenty balloons competed. The race was won by Maurice Bienaime, who piloted a French balloon. Just before the start of the race the Kansas City II. met with an accident. When the filling of the balloon was nearly completed it was discovered that there were rents in the envelope which rendered ascent impossible. The Germans, in a sportsmanlike spirit, placed the Dusseldorf II. at the disposal of Mr. Watts, the American pilot, who originally arranged to pilot the Kansas City II.

LOSS OF LIFE IN MAYFLOWER DISASTER MAY REACH ELEVEN

Old Wheel Steamer Capsized and Went to the Bottom.

THREE RESCUED

Survivors Say the Boat Went Down in Ten Minutes.

Canadian Press.

Ottawa, Nov. 14—A despatch from Barry Bay this morning, states that it is now believed eleven persons perished in the Mayflower disaster. Only the bodies of Capt. Parcher and Patrick O'Brien, passenger, have been recovered, but two search parties are out. Three survivors, Harper, Peverly and Imlack, have been taken to Combermore but are in such a state from exposure, that little can be learned from these that the vessel went down in ten minutes.

Later—The body of Robert Pachal, of Yorkton, Sask., is added to those found of the victims of the wrecked steamer Mayflower, making three known dead, and six still missing, so far as can be ascertained. It is reported that the steamer struck a rock and sunk in ten minutes.

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—Nine lives are believed to have been lost in the Madawaska river Tuesday night soon after seven o'clock, when the old wheel steamer Mayflower, a small 50-foot boat, capsized and sank three miles out of Barry's Bay, after springing a leak.

Known Dead.

Captain Erin Partchier, Combermere, married, body floated ashore.

Patrick O'Brien, Combermere, passenger, proprietor of the O'Brien House, Combermere, married, leaves widow and grown-up family; body found on island by search party.

Missing (Probably Drowned.)

G. P. Bothwell, 103 Nepean street, Ottawa, traveler for F. J. Castle Co., aged 27 years.

J. C. Hudson, Combremere, owner of the boat, married.

Wm. Boehm, Combermere, tailor, leaves widow and family.

Mrs. McWhirter, Fort Stewart, near Combermere, aged 80.

Wm. M. Murphy, Rockingham, Renfrew County.

L. Delaney, Barry's Bay.

Robert Pachal, Yorkton, Sask.

Rescued.

M. J. Harper, Alden Apartment, Ottawa, traveler for Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co.

Gordon S. Peverley, 56 Second avenue, Ottawa, traveler for Corticelli Silk Co.

J. S. Imlash, 29 1-2 Thornton street, Ottawa, traveler for General Supply Company.

Of the twelve people aboard, ten of whom were passengers and two members of the crew, three passengers, namely, Gordon Peverley, J. S. Imlach and J. M. Harper, all of Ottawa and commercial travelers, are alive to tell the story of the terrible disaster. They were found late last night by a search party who rowed out from Barry's Bay on an island about three miles down the river, in a very exhausted condition.

They were immediately taken to a near-by farm house, and there they are receiving every possible care and attention.

The dead body of Captain E. Partchier of Combermere, skipper of the ill-fated boat, was picked up by the search party near the shore, where the steamer is supposed to have sunk. His body had a life-preserver on.

The body of Patrick O'Brien of Combermere, a passenger, was also found on the island, where he died of exhaustion and exposure to the cold, after being thrown ashore by the surging waters with little life left in his body.

From the brief story that could be obtained at midnight from the three survivors, they say that the Mayflower sprang a leak soon after she left Barry's Bay. Her hold rapidly filled with water, and those on board quickly realized that death was imminent. There was hardly a moment to decide on how their lives could be saved.

A howling wind was sweeping down over the river, which is nearly a mile wide at the point where the boat sprang a leak, and the water was lashing the sides of the ill-fated boat with a vengeance. All around was black. Not a light could be seen anywhere. The boat began to lurch a little, a little more, and then terribly; then the old coal oil lamps went out by being crashed to the floor, and in a few minutes, when all was in darkness, the boat keeled over broadside and sank suddenly, throwing passengers, crew, freight and all, of which there was a good deal aboard, and machinery into the icy water.

The three survivors were able to discern some spars of timber floating near to where they had been hurled into the water. Each tried to cheer the other with words of encouragement and half-perished in water that was clogged with ice, and almost number to the point of unconsciousness, they drifted ashore, but more dead than alive.

Words, they says, could not describe those hours of suffering on the island up to the time they were found. They were too exhausted to walk, or even to get to their feet. Throughout the long cold night and terrible, even colder day, in a blinding snowstorm, they waited and prayed that help would come to them. Death seemed inevitable until at last when hope seemed practically gone they heard the swish of oars and, the sound of human voices, and they remembered little more until they awoke in a house, with kind hands to attend to their wants.

They are not yet beyond the danger point. There is a possibility of serious consequences after such an experience in the water and on the island.

More bodies are expected to be recovered.

Every conceivable source of information was tapped last night. Telephones and telegraph wires were kept humming. At Renfrew, Pembroke, Eganville and other places in the district only the most meagre details of the disaster were known.

At Barry's Bay and Combermere, the mere fact of the disaster, with names of those who were board when leaving Barry's Bay, were obtainable. A search party had set out from Combermere and at midnight had not been heard from.

Parsimony is the vice that dries up the charity in the heart.

A bookkeeper out of a job is naturally a man of no account.

OPEN SWITCH CAUSED WRECK

Fourteen People Were Killed and Fifteen Injured

Indianapolis, Nov. 14.—At least fourteen persons were killed and fifteen seriously injured at two o'clock yesterday morning when an inbound Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton passenger train ran into an open switch and crashed head-on into a freight train at Arlington avenue, Irvington, a suburb. The train was coming from Cincinnati at the rate of forty miles an hour.

The fifteen seriously injured were taken to the Deaconess Hospital in this city. The wreck caught fire but the flames were put out before any damage was done.

PLANS FOR BIG WORKS

Improvements to Toronto Harbor Would Cost $19,000,000

Canadian Press.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14.—The Harbor Commission this morning presented plans to the Board of Control for Harbor improvements to cost over nineteen million dollars, to be completed in eight years. Of this amount the Dominion Government contributes, according to a promise made a few days ago, over six millions, the harbor commission over eleven millions, and the City about one million and a half.

$60,000 JEWELRY ROBBERY IN PARIS

Paris, Nov. 14.—A robbery of jewelry worth $60,000 from a shop on the Place de L'Opera in the centre of Paris in broad daylight yesterday has caused a sensation.

The thief crept through a temporary partition connecting the shop with an adjoining building in process of reconstruction and made off with the jewels without being noticed, although several salesmen were on duty at the time behind the counters.

Australian Issue In Demand.

London, Nov. 14.—In view of the lukewarmness shown toward recent Canadian issues, it is noteworthy that the city of Sydney's half million four per cent. ten-year debentures at 97, have been considerably over-subscribed.

Correspondent of London News is Advised That Terms of Peace Between Turkey and Balkan Confederacy Will be Discussed at Once--Famine Stares Eastern Turkey in the Face.

Canadian Press.

London, Nov. 14—Official confirmation that Kiamil Pasha has addressed King Ferdinand of Bulgaria directly asking for conclusion of an armistice pending negotiations of peace preliminary was received here from Constantinople this morning.

London, Nov. 14.—A Constantinople despatch to The Daily News says: At four o'clock yesterday afternoon the director of transportation informed those making inquiries at the War Office that the cessation of hostilties had already been arranged. Simultaneously, another official summoned the chief contractors for military supplies and informed them that hostilities would cease this evening, and supply contracts would be canceled and no further military supplies would be sent to the front.

Armenian papers say that M. Popoff, the Bulgarian dragoman, has been given the mission to discuss the terms of peace.

At the Russian Embassy yesterday it was stated that the only remaining difficulty was the insistance on the part of Bulgaria on the formal entry of her troops into Constantinople. The Porte declares that this is impossible to grant, even if the Bulgarians leave the capital immediately, while the Sultan is in residence.

It is also stated that the Greeks claims are excessive.

A cholera camp was opened at Tuzla yesterday, twenty new cases being sent there.

The war correspondent of The Express, writing from Hademeui, near Constantinople, says that Europe is going to see a nation in the grip of death by starvation this winter. A famine on a scale rarely seen even in India and China has claimed the population of all Eastern Turkey in Europe.

Outlook More Hopeful.

Paris, Nov. 14.—Premier Poincare, speaking at the banquet of the Republican, industrial and commercial committees last night, referred to the more hopeful tone of the European situation. Negotiations between the powers, he said, were going on with as much mutual confidence as ever, and he had a right to say with greater precision.

Bulgarians Going by Hundreds.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—In one week 2,500 Bulgarians have passed through Montreal on their way to fight for their native land. They came from all parts of Canada.

Already the large corporations in and around Montreal say that the labor shortage question is becoming positively alarming.

BATTLESHIP BY MALAY STATES

Would Pay it Possible for the Ship in Five Years

London, Nov. 14.—Colonial Secretary Harcourt has accepted "with deep gratitude, on behalf of the United Kingdom," the generous offer of a first-class armored ship by the Federated Malay States, which have offered to make the payment (some $12,000,000) within five years, "if possible."

The only criticism, outside of hearty appreciation, consists of expressions of regret that the small dependencies should feel themselves drawn into maintaining the burden of armament, especially as the "if possible" clause inserted by the Malay States shows that there may be difficulty in raising the cash.

The Malay States are not even crown colonies, but four native states under British protection, the present constitution dating from 1874.

ROSE STUCK TO HIS FIRST STORY

His Testimony Was Repetition of Narrative at Becker Trial

New York, Nov. 14.—The imperturbable "Jack" Rose, the bald-headed gambler, whose testimony was mainly responsible for the conviction of Charles Becker, took the witness stand yesterday as the state's chief witness against the four gunmen, charged with slaying Herman Rosenthal at Becker's bidding.

Generally speaking, his testimony was a repetition of his remarkable narrative at the Becker trial. Under Becker's orders he swore, he threatened the gunmen with a "frame-up" and importuned them to take the "squealing" gambler's life. Cross-examination failed to shake his story.

Counsel for the defence, reading from Rose's testimony at the Becker trial, attempted to trip him up. But on all essential points Rose stuck closely to his previous testimony.

Dug His Own Grave.

Haskell, Okla., Nov. 14.—Joseph Turby, 75 years old, assisted in digging his own grave here Tuesday, although he thought it was to be the final resting-place of another. Apparently in good health, Turby with another man dug the grave for a woman who had died, and immediately after the work was finished Turby tumbled into the grave, dead from heart failure. Owing to the peculiar circumstances, Turby was buried in that grave.

Farmers Must Co-operate.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The striking feature of the joint meeting in Convocation Hall last night of the delegates to the various agricultural conventions being held in Toronto, was the five-minute address of Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, in which he made a plea for farmers to organise for co-operative selling, and in this way take from professional middlemen the increased price to which they as producers, are entitled. Owing to the lateness of the hour, Mr. Hanna gave only a very short portion of his address.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Toronto Investigators Discover Why They Suffer.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Many radical and necessary reforms were advocated by the Board of Trade's "high cost of living" report, which was read by Prof. M. A. Mackenzie at the luncheon at the St. Charles yesterday.

They declare that the cost of living in Canada has increased by a greater ratio than in the British Isles; also that it entails a greater expenditure to reside in Toronto than to live in the provincial cities and towns.

The reasons for such rises in the cost of living are given in the report. The committee state that the increased production of gold during the past twenty years has exceeded the increased production of commodities. This is magnified by economy in the use of gold by financiers and the subsequent increase of credit money. In other words, the shortage of food supply and the excess of money has decreased the latter's purchasing power, thus the price of commodities has risen.

Lack of competition is given as another reason. The report states that Toronto commission merchants engaged in the fruit and vegetable trade have secured a monopoly of this trade on account of the insufficient facilities for the transfer and sale of such perishable goods.

Lack of proper radial facilities are roundly scored, and some members state that a reduction of the cost of living will never be brought about until this question is settled.

The discrimination against improvements is yet another case for the cause of investigation. It is pointed out that so long as a man is allowed to hold land until it increases in value, without a cent of cost in the shape of taxes being levied, so long will certain property holders be able to hold up the rents. One solution offered is that the city should go ahead and annex all the outlying lands possible and assess it as improved city lands. This will soon solve the housing question.

SPLIT OVER THE DIVORCE REPORT

Cheaper Divorce Would Demoralise Home and Morals

New York, Nov. 14.—A cable to The Herald from London says: England is dividing into two bitterly hostile camps over the report of the Royal Divorce Commission. The supporters of the minority report hold that the easier and cheaper divorce recommended by the majority will have a demoralising effect upon the home and the moral life of the country.

There is unanimous endorsement of the provisions that the two sexes shall be on equal footing as regards divorce, but the supporters of the minority insist that otherwise the grounds for divorce be not extended, and they object to the recommendation that cases be heard in camera and the details not published until the trials are ended.

"I fancy this will make the bigots sit up and take notice, mother: 'If there ever was a person named Moses, it is certain, from the writings ascribed to him, that he disbelieved the Egyptian theory of a life after death, and combated it as a heathenish superstition. The Judaic idea of a future existence was undoubtedly acquired from the Assyrians, during the captivity.'"

He doubtless read much more, but Mallory fled to the next car. There he found a man in a frock coat talking solemnly to another of equal solemnity. The seat next them was unoccupied, and Mallory dropped into it, perking his ears backward for news.

"Was you ever in Moline?" one voice asked.

"Was I?" the other muttered. "Wasn't I run out of there by one of my audiences. I was givin' hypnotic demonstrations, and I had a run-in with one of my 'horses,' and he done me dirt. Right in the midst of one of his cataleptic trances, he got down from the chairs where I had stretched him out and hollered: 'He's a bum faker, gents, and owes me two weeks' pay.' Thank Gawd, there was a back door openin' on a dark alley leadin' to the switch yard. I caught a caboose just as a freight train was pullin' out."

Mallory could hardly get strength to rise and continue his search. On his way forward he met the conductor, crossing a vestibule between cars. A happy thought occurred to Mallory. He said:

"Excuse me, but have you any preachers on board?"

"None so far."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive."

"How can you tell?"

"Well, if a grown man offers me a half-fare ticket, I guess that's a pretty good sign, ain't it?"

Mallory guessed that it was, and turned back, hopeless and helpless.

CHAPTER XIII.

Hostilities Begin.

During Mallory's absence, Marjorie had met with a little adventure of her own. Ira Lathrop finished his reencounter with Anne Gattle shortly after Mallory set out stalking clergymen. In the mingled confusion of finding his one romantic flame still glowing on a vestal altar, and of shocking her with an escape of profanity, he backed away from her presence, and sank into his own berth.

He realized that he was not alone. Somebody was alongside. He turned to find the great tear-spent eyes of Marjorie staring at him. He rose with a recrudescence of his woman-hating wrath, and dashing up the aisle, found the porter just returning from the baggage car. He seized the black factotum and growled:

"Say, porter, there's a woman in my berth."

The porter chuckled, incredulous:

"Woman in yo' berth!"

"Yes—get her out."

"Yassah," the porter nodded, and advanced on Marjorie with a gentle, "'Scuse me, missus—yo' berth is numba one."

"I don't care," snapped Marjorie. "I won't take it."

"But this un belongs to that gentleman."

"He can have mine—ours—Mr. Mallory's," cried Marjorie, pointing to the white-ribboned tent in the farther end of the car. Then she gripped the arms of the seat, as if defying eviction. The porter stared at her in helpless chagrin. Then he shuffled back and murmured: "I reckon you'd betta put her out."

Lathrop withered the coward with one contemptuous look, and strode down the aisle with a determined grimness. He took his ticket from his pocket as a clinching proof of his title, and thrust it out at Marjorie. She gave it one indifferent glance, and then her eyes and mouth puckered, as if she had munched a green persimmon, and a long low wail like a distant engine-whistle, stole from her lips. Ira Lathrop stared at her in blank wrath, doddered irresolutely, and roared:

"Agh, let her have it!"

The porter smiled triumphantly, and said: "She says you kin have her berth." He pointed at the bridal arbor. Lathrop almost exploded at the idea.

Now he felt a hand on his shoulder, and turned to see Little Jimmie Wellington emerging from his berth with an enormous smile:

"Say, Pop, have you seen lovely rice-trap? Stick around till she flops."

But Lathrop flung away to the smoking room. Little Jimmie turned to the jovial negro:

"Porter, porter."

"I'm right by you."

"What time d'you say we get to Reno?"

"Mawnin' of the fo'th day, sah."

"Well, call me just before we roll in."

And he rolled in. His last words floated down the aisle and met Mrs. Little Jimmie Wellington just returning from the Women's Room, where she had sought nepenthe in more than one of her exquisite little cigars. The familiar voice, familiarly bibulous, smote her ear with amazement. She beckoned the porter to her anxiously.

"Porter! Porter! Do you know the name of the man who just hurried in?"

"No'm," said the porter. "I reckon he's so broken up he ain't got any name left."

"It couldn't be," Mrs. Jimmie mused.

"Things can be sometimes," said the porter.

"You may make up my berth now," said Mrs. Wellington, forgetting that Anne Gattle was still there. Mrs. Wellington hastened to apologize, and begged her to stay, but the spinster wanted to be far away from the disturbing atmosphere of divorce. She was dreaming already with her eyes open, and she sank into number six in a lotus-eater's reverie.

Mrs. Wellington gathered certain things together and took up her handbag, to return to the Women's Room, just as Mrs. Whitcomb came forth from the curtains of her own berth, where she had made certain preliminaries to disrobing, and put on a light, decidedly negligee negligee.

The two women collided in the aisle, whirled on one another, as women do when they jostle, recognized each other with wild stares of amazement, set their teeth, and made a simultaneous dash along the corridor, shoulder wrestling with shoulder. They reached the door marked "Women" at the same instant, and as neither would have dreamed of offering the other a courtesy, they squeezed through together in a Kilkenny jumble.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Dormitory on Wheels.

Of all the shocking institutions in human history, the sleeping car is the most shocking—or would be, if we were not so used to it. There can be no doubt that we are the most moral nation on earth, for we admit it ourselves. Perhaps we prove it, too, by the Arcadian prosperity of these two-story hotels on wheels, where miscellaneous travelers dwell in complete promiscuity, and sleep almost side by side, in apartments, or compartments, separated only by a plank and a curtain, and guarded only by one sleepy negro.

After the fashion of the famous country whose inhabitants earned a meager sustenance by taking in each other's washing, so in Sleeping Carpathia we attain a meager respectability by everybody's chaperoning everybody else.

So topsy-turvied, indeed, are our notions, once we are aboard a train, that the staterooms alone are regarded with suspicion; we question the motives of those who must have a room to themselves!—a room with a real door! that locks! !

And, now, on this sleeping car, prettily named "Snowdrop," scenes were enacting that would have thrown our great-grandmothers into fits—scenes which, if we found them in France, or Japan, we should view with alarm as almost unmentionable evidence of the moral obliquity of those nations.

Zam-Buk is so Very Useful

Read How Beneficial it Proved in This Case

Mrs. H. Sawyer, of Keene, Ont., writes: "My husband is engaged on a farm, and one day, while chopping wood, the top of the axe broke and fell upon his foot, cutting a nasty gash. The wound was so bad that we first thought that we would have to get a doctor, but we finally decided to dress the cut with Zam-Buk.

"Well, the Zam-Buk treatment proved a great success. It not only eased the pain, but it prevented any inflammation; and right from first applying Zam-Buk, the cut began to heal. It is now completely healed and my husband says he will never be without a box of Zam-Buk in the house, for we are sure it saved us a great deal of expense."

Over and over again Zam-Buk has been proved to be the worker's best remedy. As soon as applied to a cut, a burn, a scald or any skin injury, it relieves the pain and it sets up healing. It also prevents blood-poisoning or inflammation. It is a sure cure, too, for eczema, piles, ulcers, old wounds, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering, running sores, eruptions, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Its absolute purity, also, makes it the ideal balm for babies.

Zam-Buk Soap should be used along with the balm for washing all sore places. This soap will be found excellent for baby's bath, even where the balm is not being used.

WOMAN ESCAPES DREADFUL OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

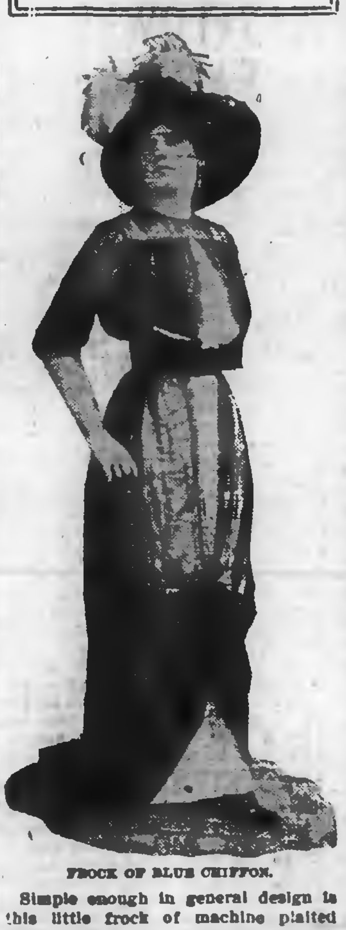
Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

PLAITS THE THING.

This Picked Up Drapery Extremely Coquettish.



FROCK OF BLUE CHIFFON.

Simple enough in general design is this little frock of machine plaited blue chiffon over a buttoned cassock gown of white charmeuse. Particularly chic, too, is the hat worn with it of black velvet and the smart little patent leather boots with buttoned cloth tops, which complete the gay costume.

SMOCKING EFFECTIVE.

Blouses Trimmed In This Fashion Smart For the Small Boy.

One of the very prettiest ideas in the way of trimming is smocking. This is an easy stitch to learn and a little of it can work wonders in lending an air of distinction to the dress. A fascinating little frock was made from the good old Holland linen, which withstands so successfully the assaults of hard usage. A fullness at the neck was taken care of by the smocking, which appeared again on the little wristband. A lovely golden brown silk was chosen to work this smocking and the result was not only a thoroughly practical gown, but an artistic and pretty one as well.

The English smocked blouses for the little lad are quite the newest fad and they are wonderfully good looking. The wash materials and the serges are both used for these blouses. Sometimes the smocking is used to lend the yoke effect, again it appears only at the neck in the front. Another model shows the smocking from the shoulder well over the round of the arm, in fact quite to the elbow. The blouses are often allowed to fall straight, although they may be confined by a belt. The little bloomers complete this costume, which is really as attractive as it is novel.

THE FARMER'S WIFE.

Practical Remedy For Monotony and Loneliness of Country Life.

We have all heard that insanity is more prevalent among farmers' wives than among women of other communities. This is explained on the ground of the monotony of the life. Having no interests, the woman in the country is likely to grow morbid and eventually to lose her grip on the sane things of life, says Dolly Madison.

One of the most practical remedies for the monotony and loneliness of farm life may be found in the forming of a club. This, in the beginning, may not be an ambitious affair. A half dozen women may get together and decide to do some one thing for their community which shall improve it, and which will give them an interest in the working out of such improvement. There is nothing which makes women feel that life is worth while like a sense of being in touch with big movements. In the city we hear much of "neighborhood houses" or "friendly" organizations and other social centers which are intended to uplift and to bring about a better understanding between the fortunate and the unfortunate. There is great need for neighborhood houses in the country, but it is on different lines from those pursued by the social settlement. In the country poverty is rarely the reason for loneliness. It is more likely to be work which keeps a woman tied to a treadmill.

The farmer's wife may make her club a place in which shall be discussed her own problems, those of the school life of her children, besides certain educational improvements. The question of overwork for farm women may be solved by the co-operation of the club in hiring specialized help. There will be more enthusiasm over vegetable gardens when there is somebody with whom to compare notes. Books and magazines may be exchanged, and the problem of high prices may be met by ordering in wholesale quantities and sharing with other members.

Each neighborhood must, of course, work out its club plans along the most practical lines possible, but I know of no better example of what a club of this class may become than the history of one in the far west where the life of the community revolves around a certain house which was bought by the farmers' wives of that section. It is a country club, not in the suburban smart set sense, but in being the practical center for the boys and girls and the men and women from adjoining farms. Here the young people play tennis, here the men meet to discuss rural problems, and here the women give afternoon teas and bring together the lonely souls, who without this little house set at the crossroads might be left to languish.

Doing Her Part.

"Wife, will you thread a needle for me? I want to sew on a few buttons."

"Why, certainly. There you are. Now, you can sew on your buttons while I go to the bridge club. Sometimes I wonder how you managed before you were married."—Washington Herald.

His Suspicion.

"Why did you leave the place in which you were previously employed?" asked the head of the firm.

"I think," said the applicant for the position of office boy, "de boss was afraid if I stayed I might git his place."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Quaint Logic.

A bit of reasoning a la mode de Dumas ascribed to Rossini: "I don't like spinach, and it is very fortunate I don't, because if I did like it I should eat it, and I can't endure it."

A Delusion.

Bilbson—How was Jones yesterday? Gilbson—He seemed to be laboring under a strange delusion. Bilbson—Indeed! I thought he was playing golf. Gilbson—So did Jones!

There is no sinecure in the soul's economy. Every power has its work to do, every capacity its gift to fill it.—Phillips Brooks.

Mustard Must Go.

By the successful experiments of the Ontario Government, there is a probability that the deadly mustard weed which causes so much anxiety among farmers, will be a thing of the past within a few years. Prof. Todd, provincial farm director, has found a way to kill the mustard seed. Last spring he had a 100-acre farm near Brockville, comprising fields of oats and barley, which were literally yellow with the mustard weed, sprayed with a solution of bluestone or sulphide of copper. This farm has produced very poor crops in the past, but this fall there was an excellent yield and no traces of mustard were found. The same method of killing the mustard will be tried on the same farm next spring in an effort to find out whether this solution should be used on all farms in the province.

Except the flood, nothing was ever as bad as at first reported.

With Belleville, Trenton and Peterborough to the west of us, with decidedly cheaper power than Kingston, and with Brockville, Prescott and other places to the east of us shortly to have cheaper power, Kingston will have to look to its laurels in a commercial and industrial way. —Kingston Standard.

Giant Sharks.

While the whale is regarded as the largest of creatures that haunt the sea, there are some sharks that can be compared in size with the former animals. These giant sharks, however, are very rare and are known under the name of the great whale shark and the basking shark. The former, which attains a length of fifty feet, is found off the coast of India, Peru and Lower California. The latter's most favorite haunt is the Arctic ocean, but it is also found near the great whale shark. These monsters, curiously enough, are quite harmless. Their teeth are very small, and they feed on tiny matter that floats on the surface of the sea. This matter the fish strains through its enormous gill rakers.

FIREFLIES IN JAPAN.

Large and Brilliant and Numerous and Not Afraid of Man.

In Japan fireflies are more than mere beetles. They are Cupid's light to guide lovers, souls of ancient soldiers, the devil's snare to tempt wanderers to death. In their light of magic gold with a tint of emerald green the Japanese see stars of hope, sorrows of broken hearts, the everlasting spirits of warriors, but, most of all, the joys of love and lovers.

Whenever they see the glimmering faint green light of fireflies hovering over the stream running into the darkness of night the Japanese dream of love and loving hearts. The light of fireflies is the guide of lovers going along the narrow paths to meet their sweethearts.

The Japanese fireflies are much larger and give brighter and more steady light than those seen in Europe or America. In old days many poor Japanese students, unable to buy candles, were wont to gather fireflies in a bag and read their books by their light. The Hotaru kago (firefly cage), made of fine laces, placed on the veranda gives almost as bright a light as the large stone lantern, but much more quaint and dreamy.

Fireflies are plentiful everywhere in Japan. They are not at all afraid of human beings and will often alight upon the dress and even on the hair or hands. It is not seldom that fireflies fly into one's pockets or sleeves.—Mock Joya in Strand.

Drinking Horns.

Drinking horns were beloved of the early Saxons, who always took their mead in this manner. Many of the old drinking horns were fashioned from the horns of the rhinoceros under the belief that "it sweats at the approach of poison." Hence, according to this superstition, the drinker would be in a position to tell at once whether an enemy had been tampering with his beverage.—London Globe.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ended Nov. 9 were 2800 cattle, 4700 sheep and lambs, 2100 hogs and 900 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 1200 cattle, 2100 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle as compared with Monday. A few loads of really choice steers were offered, but butchers or packers did not seem to want them at the prices asked, and they were held over while the demand for the lower degrees was better. The top price paid for steers was $6, and sales were made from that down to $3.75 per 100 pounds. Some choice cows brought $4.60, and the common sold at $2 to $4, while the bulls, which were principally canners stock, sold at from $2 to $3.25 per 100 pounds.

There was an active trade in small meats, the demand being good for all lines, and prices ruled steady. Lambs sold at $6 to $6.25 and sheep at $4 per 100 pounds, while calves brought from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

Prices for hogs were unchanged from Monday, but the tone of the market was easier in sympathy with the decline in Toronto yesterday. Demand was fairly good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 to $8.65 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

Edward Henderson, born in Lindsay, Ont., 62 years ago, and formerly rather prominent in Toronto, died in a hospital in Niagara Falls yesterday.

The report that Prince Arthur of Connaught will become Viceroy of India and that he is to be married shortly is declared in London to be mere "twaddle."

Samuel Price, who for some time has been mining commissioner for the Ontario Government, has resigned. He will be succeeded by T. E. Godson, K.C., of Bracebridge.

Sir James Whitney, accompanied by Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, left Toronto yesterday afternoon for New York, to sail by the Cunard steamer on Saturday for England.

The resignation of D. M. McIntyre, K.C., as city solicitor of Kingston, was made yesterday. He will enter upon the duties of chairman of the Ontario Railway Board on the first of December.

After five hours deliberation an assize court in Toronto yesterday found Ovide Latremouille, ex-policeman, guilty of robbing Edward Field, while armed with a revolver. Sentence was deferred.

Premier Borden, it is definitely understood, will make his announcement of the naval plans immediately following the conclusion of the debate on the address from the throne when the House meets.

Pardinas, the assassin of Premier Canalejas, is believed to be a man who formerly resided in Pena Pobre street, Havana. He was deported by the Cuban Government as an anarchist early this year.

James Bilton, aged 56 years, 256 Westmoreland avenue, fell from a scaffold at the Metallic Roofing Co.'s factory, Toronto, yesterday, and as a result of injuries received died in the Western Hospital a few hours later.

It is easier to do your duty than it is to worry over neglect of it. Fifteen minutes' work will fix the fence where the pigs get in. But if the break is neglected, the pigs will worry you every hour of the night and day.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

THE DIVORCE COMMISSION

The finding of the British Divorce Commission does not come as a surprise. The main results of the two years investigation were well known to the public through peculiar leakages of information. As was predicted some weeks ago by the London Times, the majority report recommended that the law be changed so as to provide for equality between the sexes in respect of justifying grounds for divorce decrees. The old legislation of 1857 is in force yet, and though it has been hammered for years by those wishing to broaden the scope of its workings, there is an evident fear that to change it would open the way for sweeping amendments, and that England, instead of having a strict divorce law, would degenerate into a position similar to that of the States, in respect of divorce conditions. The old English law provides that whereas adultery by a wife shall be deemed sufficient cause for divorce, adultery by the husband must be accompanied by cruelty and by desertion for a period of two years before a decree can be obtained. This double standard of morality, erected into statutory enactment, has been reprobated from the beginning, but the American and Canadian ideas as to perfect equality between the sexes in most matters does not obtain to the same extent in England. Yet it need not pass notice that Scotland, which has its own divorce laws, prescribes equality of standing for wives and husbands before the law. Ireland is still government by the legislation prior to 1857, and divorces from the Emerald Isle are granted by Act of Parliament in the old way.

But it is evident that the report of the Commission will produce serious consideration of whether the English legislation on divorce ought not to be replaced by something more up-to-date. The only other European country which discriminates in favor of men, in the matter of moral conduct, is Greece, surely an undying evidence of English conservatism. The Commission recommends that insanity of five years standing, drunkenness of three years (incurable) a sentence of death, and other disabilities be recognized as adequate grounds. This will lead to a stirring debate upon the relative morality of widening the causes to such an extent, but it ought to be evident that there are many of these cases in which it is unjust and conductive to immorality for the marriage tie to remain unsevered, even though both parties may be living. What the ultimate conclusion will be, it is impossible to predict with any accuracy, but there seems to be ground for the assertion that there will be some liberalising of the present very strict standards.

THE COST OF LIVING

There has been a great deal written and said about the high cost of living and the cost of high living. The man who has got his full share of the blame for the rise in prices is the middleman, the merchant who steps in between the toiler who produces and the toiler who consumes. Rather, though, it is not the merchant who derives the difference. Transportation figures largely, in many cases loss in transit, commission men. The retail grocers as a rule do not get much for their trouble in handling perishable stuff, since they face losses that often eat up their profits. Yet time and again, the price of products received by the producer, and the price paid by the ultimate consumer, have been traced, and compared, and the difference has been found to be startling. Why should apples in this year of apple plenty cost more in Ontario than oranges from California? How is it that food costs in Canada, where it is produced, almost half as much again as part of the same production does when shipped to England? That prices are inflated, there is no question. The remedy? To lower the tariff on food products would not help materially. It would probably enable surplus American stocks to be put on the Canadian market, and the Canadian producer cheated out of what he rightfully should regard as his special privilege. Yet the workers ought to have more relief than they have. The rise in the standard of living has made a considerable difference, it must be acknowledged. It may cost 50 per cent. more now to live than it did 20 years ago, because most Canadians live in 50 per cent. better style, enjoy 50 per cent. more theatrical pleasures, outings, travel, than they used to. But one instance of the waste that has caused higher prices than necessary is that of fruit. Thousands of tons of fine fruit has gone to waste on the ground in the orchards while the population in the cities pays famine prices. How is this? It is a failure to get pickers, probably, to get the stuff marketed. The shortage of labor is forcing costs away up, and until there comes a cessation of the present season of prosperity, there will be no material let-up.

CANADIAN PROBLEMS

Sir Edmund Walker said, in addressing the Canadian Club in New York—

"We can already, however, see the beginning of manufacturing in the West, and we shall rapidly repeat the history of many Western cities in the United States, which one generation from mere markets for farm produce developed into busy manufacturing centres. Until this time arrives, we must, by frequent conferences and frank argument maintain as fair relations as are possible. All must bear their share in supporting the cost of government, including that part in harnessing the country which falls upon the Government, and cannot be accomplished by private enterprise."

The sentiments here expressed will be shared by most people. Neither the East nor the West should be asked to carry an undue burden for the sake of the other. In fact, the talk that is yet sometimes heard in the East about the West being made by the East has died away. It is exploded, for the West has repaid the Eastern fold. Canadians have been uniting into a solid force, determined not only to achieve high destiny for themselves, but to carve out a place as a pillar of British Empire. The Continentalists have been routed. The makers of "adjunct" history are passing their thorny way. We have our big problems, but they do not now take such shape as they did a year and a few months ago. Our foreign relations—shall we say?— are now quite satisfactory. We have to devote our time and thought to internal development, toward meeting the demands of our new population. We are cramped in many respects, and must labor to enlarge. All of these things were conveyed, in idea at least by Sir Edmund to the New York expatriates, and a joyful message to the former Canadians it must have been.

MR. McINTYRE'S APPOINTMENT

The appointment of Donald McIntyre, K.C., of Kingston, as the new chairman of the Ontario Railway Board, is somewhat of a surprise. Mr. McIntyre has a splendid record as city solicitor of Kingston. His fifteen years experience of municipal law gives him an excellent knowledge of this branch of law and procedure, and those acquainted with him predict that he will personally be large enough to fill the post with credit.

The very fact that he was not more widely known will handicap Mr. McIntyre for a while. He was no figure in the mind's eye of Ontario, owing to his quiet, studious ways. But he will not make any the worse chairman of the railway board for that. He has a hard task to restore the prestige of the Ontario Board to what it ought to be. The chairmanship of James Leitch was sorely disappointing, and it is no secret that Sir James Whitney was perturbed on occasion over the manner in which his friend handled affairs. It would not be fair to prejudge Mr. McIntyre. Everyone will wait and hope that the choice is one to the credit of both Sir James Whitney, to the province at large, and to the board itself.

An Optimist.

J. Willis Westlake, the Florida pomologist, said in a recent address at Lake Helen:

"The orange grower must be an optimist to succeed. He can't expect 10,000 oranges from every tree at the start. He should show the spirit of John Blanc.

"Blanc's first orange crop, when he settled in Florida, wasn't much to boast of. The man, however, kept up heart.

"'How did your oranges do?' a friend asked him at the season's end.

"'Oh, we had a few,' he replied.

"'Good ones?'

"'Fine!' said Blanc. 'My wife uses them in place of lemons. It makes quite a saving.'"—Washington Star.

A Gentle Reminder.

Smith is a young New York lawyer, clever in many ways, but very forgetful. He was recently sent to St. Louis to interview an important client in regard to a case then pending in the Missouri courts. Later the head of his firm received this telegram from St. Louis:

"Have forgotten name of client. Please wire at once."

This was the reply sent from New York:

"Client's name Jenkins. Your name Smith."—Everybody's Magazine.

Nothing pleases an ignorant man so much as a chance to hand out information.

The difference between the self-confidence and conceit is hard for some men to understand.

COOKING AT THE TOP OF A CHIMNEY

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney 300 feet high by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one occasion accomplished by John Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steeplejack. The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the manager of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat. A large iron kettle was procured, and this, being filled with the necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight—was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stipulated time. Faulkner won his wager, and the pie, which, it was said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterward distributed among the poor of the district.—London Answers.

Our Denatured Food.

Were we a gastronomic nation we should insist on having French or German bread, with crisp, tasty crust, refusing the soggy loaves made of bleached, bolted flour robbed of nutritious phosphates and sources of flavor, refusing also the machine polished rice deprived of its nutritious outer parts, in which lies the delicate flavor of this cereal, leaving it pretty to look at, but, as one of the government agricultural experts, David Fairchild, has forcibly expressed it, "as tasteless as the paste that a paper hanger brushes on his rolls of wall paper." We should exclude the chemically greened teas dumped into our groceries because not wanted in any other country. We should protest against the peaches and other fruits, formerly brought into our markets, soft, sun ripened, luscious, but now offered to us hard, unripe, flavorless.—Century.

Tea Drinking In Siam.

Tea is to be found in every tent and dwelling in Siam. There is always a kettle on the fire filled with tea and prepared for drinking, which is done by adding milk, butter and salt. This is their way of fixing this beverage and is said to be pleasant after one becomes accustomed to it. A peculiar mode of hospitality is shown by these people in reference to their tea. It is always at the disposal of every stranger and traveler. He need not ask for it. Neither is it expected that he should, but he must have his own cup. This is imperative, and accordingly every one carries a cup with him at all times. Some of these utensils are marvels of workmanship and are highly valued. They are generally made of some fine grained wood and ofttimes are lined with silver and gold.

Temperature of Volcanoes.

Scientists have secured an accurate measurement of the temperature of boiling lava in a crater. The experiment was a very dangerous one, and it was considered a triumph of precaution no lives were sacrificed in making the test. The crater of Kilauea, in Hawaii, was selected for examination. The work progressed very slowly. For a long time it was impossible to obtain results, but after several thermometers had been destroyed a pyrometer was substituted to advantage. The temperature recorded was 1,010 degrees C., which is the same as 1,850 degrees F. Iron is still unmelted at this heat, but gold, silver and copper become a molten mass at a lower temperature.—Harper's Weekly.

A Pessimist.

The "duffer" at golf becomes so used to finding himself in all kinds of out of the way places that he hits every ball in the confident expectation of getting into difficulties with it. Such a player was he who speaks thus in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch:

"Is this your ball over here?"

"Is it in a hole?"

"Yes."

"A deep hole?"

"Yes."

"With slightly overhanging banks, so you can't possibly get at it?"

"Yes."

"Then it's my ball, all right."

SHORTHAND WRITING.

"Stenography" Not the Only Name by Which It Is Known.

Shorthand writing is known by other names than "stenography." "Tachygraphy" is only one of them. Its second part, of course, comes from the same root as the latter end of "stenography"—that is, from the Greek "grapho," meaning to write. "Tachy" is derived from the Greek "tachys," meaning swift; so only the shorthand writer who has the ability to take down rapid speech and transcribe it quickly has the right to call herself or himself a "tachygrapher." (The "ch" sound is like that of "k.")

"Stenography" comes from "grapho" combined with "stenos," which means "narrow" in Greek. So a "stenographer" is either a narrow writer or she or he practices "narrow writing."

Not so many years ago we heard a good deal about "phonography" as a name for shorthand writing, but the term seems to have gone out of use. It comes from that same useful root "grapho," combined with "phonos." The latter word means "sound," so that a phonographer is one who writes down sound as he hears it. The phonograph is, of course, an instrument for writing or recording sound.

Then there are "brachygraphy" "steganography" and "logography" as other names for what we generally call stenography. In the order given they are derived from "grapho" combined with "brachys," meaning "short;" "steganos," meaning "covered;" "secret" (a stenographer is one who writes in cryptic or mysterious writing, not to be read by the uninitiated) and "logos," meaning "speech."—New York Times.

Destruction of Superfluous Books.

Edmund Gosse has explained his onslaught on the books which he thinks should be discarded by great libraries. He does not advocate any ruthless holocaust. Everybody, he says, who is accustomed to libraries knows in his heart of hearts that in process of time there accumulate in them masses of what is more than useless, what is positively harmful literature, as for instance:

"Badly printed editions of the popular English poets, without notes or apparatus of any kind; handbooks of law which are entirely out of date and mere traps for the feet of the litigant; works on medicine and surgery that are too modern to be curious and yet too ancient to be safe; bad old dictionaries and faulty encyclopedias; superseded summaries of history without a fact that is not recorded elsewhere; theology printed "at the request of parishioners;" exploded and blundering science—these burden the shelves in tens of thousands. It is particularly libraries collected between 1780 and 1850, roughly speaking, that abound in specimens that should be cleared out."

The faults a man boasts of show what a fool he is.

TOOK STAMPS AND SILVER

Robbery at Taylor and Sons Coal and Wood Office

A rather daring robbery was committed last night at the office of H. B. Taylor & Sons, the coal and wood dealers, corner of Wolfe and Aylmer streets. All the perpetrator secured was a little over $3 in postage stamps and silver. Entrance was effected by means of prying up the office window. The robbery did not appear like the work of an amateur, as the thief plainly went about it in a definite manner. All the office drawers were rifled but nothing of value taken. He evidently did not have any designs on the safe as it does not appear to have been molested.

Mr. Taylor, sr., was the first to discover the robbery, when he entered the office early this morning. The till is one of the automatic kind which flies open by pressing a certain key. The perpetrator left no clue of any description and the firm have no suspicion as to the guilty party.

Detective Newhall is working on teh case.

MINORS SAY THEY WERE SUPPLIED WITH LIQUOR

Sentence was suspended this morning upon John Dougherty the lumberman who pilfered a $40 overcoat from Ralph McQuade, his roommate. The coat has been recovered and the accused has made restitution and paid the costs of the case, in all $18.10. He must also report to Chief of Police Thompson at least once a month or whenever he is in the city.

CHARGE NOT PROVEN.

The charge against Percy Kennedy of supplying liquor to Charles Trotter a butcher was not proven. Trotter is a black lister whose term expires Nov. 30th.

Trotter under examination said that he had given Kennedy 50 cents to buy a flask of whiskey, and that the two had partaken of the contents. He admitted that he did not inform Kennedy that he was on the "list" and therefore could not purchase it himself.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appeared in Kennedy's defence, stated that License Inspector Stewart could not produce evidence to prove that Kennedy really did supply the liquor, other than the accused's own statement. Inspector Stewart had to confess that such was the case and stated that Trotter alone knew the true facts of the transaction.

Kennedy did not go into the box in his own defence.

SELLING TO MINORS.

George McKenzie, a bartender at the Montgomery Hotel was charged with supplying liquor to Harry O'Haro, who is under the age of 21 years.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant.

O'Haro will be sixteen years of age in March. His story was that he and Andrew Sullivan a lad about his own age, were supplied with lager and a flask of whiskey at the Montgomery Hotel bar. He identified McKenzie, the bartender, in court as the man who had served him.

McKenzie before selling him the liquor, inquired their ages, and both had answered that they were twenty-one.

The case was adjourned to Saturday morning until Andrew Sullivan, a material witness was subpoenaed, Mr. Gordon contended that Chief Thompson should have had his witnesses ready, claiming that the Magistrate rarely gave him the benefit of an enlargement in similar cases.

P. C. McGINTY FAILS TO REPORT

Veteran Police Officer is Ill at His Home

P. C. McGinty, popularly known as "Charlie," is off duty to-day through illness. For the last few weeks the popular officer has not been feeling in his usual good health and yesterday his condition became so acute that Chief Thompson advised him to go home. This morning he did not appear at the station and although his condition is not serious it will necessitate confinement to his home.

P. C. McGinty is seventy-eight years of age and the oldest and the most familiarly known constable on the force.

GREEN ISLANDERS HAD GOOD LUCK

Local Members of the Hunting Party Return Home

Messrs. Robert Neil and Felix Brownscombe, of the Green Island Hunt Club, returned last night from two weeks' hunting at Lake Memesagamesing, not far from Sudbury. The party, unlike some other clubs. The deer hunting in their district got their full complement of deer. was very good, although the partridge were rather scarce. On the first day of the hunting season, November 1st, a foot of snow fell and lasted for three days. After that ideal weather conditions prevailed. All the deer shot were exceptionally large and in good condition. One buck tipped the scales at 225 pounds, dressed.

WOMEN FLEE TO THE MOUNTAINS

Country is Raided by Turks and Albanians

Athens, Nov. 14.—Telegrams received here from Arta, on the Albanian frontier, report that the Zagora country in the north-west of Greece has been raided by a band of 100 Turks and Albanians, who spread terror before them. The women and children of the district fled to the mountains for safety, but these being covered with snow, the fugitives are now dying of hunger and cold.

The Zagora district is deprived of its male inhabitants because of the fact that they are accustomed to emigrate and to engage in trading pursuits in all parts of the world, leaving their families at home. The district therefore, lies at the mercy of the raiders.

BRISK DEMAND FOR BUILDING LOTS

Activity in the Southern Part of the City

A prominent real estate merchant told a Review representative to-day that a brisk demand for building lots in the southern part of the city had been induced by the establishment of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company there.

He stated that one man bought 20 building lots, each with forty feet frontage, and in a marvellously brief period he had sold fifteen and the remaining five would soon be gone. All the lots were disposed of at good prices.

"Dozens of enquiries are being received regarding lots in the south, and workmen's houses will commence to rise in many localities in that section of the city in the spring," said the Review's informant.

Peter Collins Acquitted.

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 14.—After one hour's deliberation the high court jury here returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Peter Collins, the young Cobden farmer, accused of stabbing Grant Appleby to death in Rose Township on Aug. 30. Chancellor Boyd declared that he was not surprised at the verdict, and warned Collins to avoid evil company in future. The affair, he said, would cast a cloud on his whole life.

In charging the jury after the evidence, the judge said that they had only to consider the evidence of the accused, who declared he had stabbed the young Toronto Veterinary College student by accident when the latter attacked him near the Appleby home. As to the pretty Toronto girl, Lillian Gow, who lived at 209 1-2 Sherbourne street up to the time she came to Cobden on April 20 last, he said there was no doubt she was the cause of the trouble between the young men.

"Since the first woman in the Garden of Eden got the man into trouble men have quarrelled over women, and I suppose will continue to do so," he said.

The Left Over Sandwiches.

Sometimes after a party there are sandwiches left over. Here is an excellent way of using them up: Make a batter exactly like you use for pancakes and add to it either sugar or salt, according to whether the sandwiches are sweet or savory. Then each sandwich is dipped in the batter and fried till a golden brown in fat from which a faint bluish smoke is rising. No matter how dry they are they are delicious done in this way. Crusts that have been cut off from sandwiches dry in the oven, put through a mincing machine and use as coating for fish, rissoles, etc.—Baltimore American.

QUALITY AND CHARACTER

Quality in a man's character is of the greatest importance.

In the matter of clothes quality is also of equally important.

Therefore quality is the first essential in all things for the making of success.

In the matter of clothes that a man wears he is often judged, rightfully or wrongfully, such is the case, nevertheless.

So that a man should exercise great care in his selection of Clothes.

This is made easy for the man when he can walk into a man's store and buy a suit of clothes or an Overcoat when he gets with it a positive guarantae of the quality, with a further stipulation of money refunded if not satisfactory. These are the kind of Clothes that are sold at Cameron's New Men's Store on George-st. Not another thing is handled in this store but men's wear.

Every article in the store is brand new. Every Suit and Overcoat is made so as to carry the marks of good quality till it's worn out.

Don't be afraid to walk into the store, take a look at the goods whether you buy or not—it will be nice to get acquainted. Don't forget that it is CAMERON, near the corner of Charlotte. 3d

ONE REASON FOR TURKISH DEFEAT

In Some Cases They Did Not Have Proper Equipment

Berlin, Nov. 14— The reasons for the breakdown of the Turkish army before the invaders are brought to light in a letter from Capt. Persius the war correspondent of the Tageblatt. Writing from Uskub after visiting the battlefield of Kumanova, he says he found on the persons of the fallen Turkish infantrymen numbers of blank cartridges and also cartridges of the old German rifles, used in 1871. He also drew swords of some of the fallen Ottoman cavalrymen and found them unsharpened and blunt, and it was the same with the bayonets of the infantrymen.

He saw a battery of field guns which had been captured by the Servians. The sights were fixed at 2,500 yards, but the barrels were only slightly discolored by powder. He was told that when the Turkish gunners opened their reserve ammunition boxes they found them filled with soap.

The correspondent adds that hunger was one of the main causes of the Turkish defeats. The commissariat absolutely lacked organisation. Hundreds of the Turks threw away their rifles and surrendered only in order to get a piece of bread.

An Ingenious Woman

Who Laid a Pretty Plan

By ELLEN R. MERTON

Edward Dingley returned from the city to his home much distressed. Throwing himself into a chair, he covered his face with his hands and moaned.

"Why, Edward," exclaimed his wife, "what's the matter?"

"The rascals have got me in a hole. I am liable at any moment to be arrested and tried. I shall certainly be convicted, for these men who have been using me as a catspaw have arranged to throw the whole blame upon me."

"And yet they have made money through you."

"Yes. I am the only honest one in the lot, the only one who has gained nothing by the transaction, and yet I must serve a term in prison for a crime they have committed and by which they have become rich."

"You must not go to prison. It would kill you and me too."

"What can I do?"

"How much time have you?"

"I am liable to be arrested any time after a warrant can be procured—perhaps tomorrow."

"Well, we must lay a plan and do it at once. You must disappear."

"What would that avail? I shall be tracked and taken. And until I am taken I shall live under a suspense more dreadful than prison."

"You must die."

"What do you mean?"

"You must be murdered."

"For heaven's sake! Is this a time to talk nonsense?"

"They will not follow a dead man."

Dingley looked at his wife inquiringly. She seemed to be thinking and thinking hard. Indeed, she was not heeding what he said, so absorbed was she in her own thoughts. Presently she turned to him and said:

"Leave me. I must think out a way by which you can evade these men who have ruined you. Have you any money in the house?"

"Yes. Thinking that I might go away, I brought home $1,000 in bills."

"Good. I didn't think you could be so thoughtful. Edward, you are a great fool, the kind of fool to believe that all persons are as honest as yourself. But such fools are very lovable, and I love you. Now go, and when I am ready for you I will call you."

She kissed him and led him to the foot of the stairs. He went up to his room, and she began to walk the floor, exercising her inventive faculties to the fullest extent. Two hours later she called him and unfolded a plan she had formed by which he might escape from the toils in which he had been caught.

• • • • • • •

The first snow of winter was falling when one evening a man without baggage alighted from a train not far from the village of L. and walked to a hotel. The clerk turned the register toward him and handed him a pen, with which he wrote his name, Edward P. Dingley. Then he was shown a room. He returned to object to it. He was shown several others before he was satisfied, at last choosing one on the third floor. Before retiring he gave the clerk a package marked to contain $500, which he desired him to place in his safe.

"Do you see that young man sitting over there smoking a cigarette?" he asked the clerk.

"The one in the checkerboard suit?"

"Yes."

"Well, what of him?"

"When did he come here?"

"About an hour after you did."

Dingley eyed the man in the checkerboard suit suspiciously.

"What's the matter with him?" asked the clerk.

"I'll tell you," replied Dingley in a low voice. "This afternoon I drew $1,000 from the —th Bank in G. That young fellow was in the line before the paying teller's window and presented a check just before I presented mine. Then he stood aside from the line, counting the bills he had drawn, but I noticed he kept one eye on me and the money I drew. After leaving the bank I looked back and saw him not far behind me. I saw him again on the train coming here. I wonder what interest he can have in me."

"His appearing to follow you is probably the result of coincidence. He is a traveling man from a well known house—at least he told me so—and has with him a large trunk made especially for samples."

"Well, I've given you all the money I have with me. I think it is always best when stopping at a hotel to deposit valuables in the safe. Then it can't be stolen."

With that Mr. Dingley bade the clerk good night and went upstairs to bed.

The next morning about 10 o'clock the chambermaid announced at the office that, having knocked at the door of one of the rooms, No. 321, she had received no reply and, opening the door with a pass key, had entered it, found it empty and blood on the bedclothes, which were much tumbled. The clerk remembered that No. 321 had been assigned to Mr. Dingley. He went at once to the room and found the condition as stated by the maid.

Remembering his conversation with Dingley on the previous evening concerning the commercial traveler in the checkerboard suit, he also recollected that the man had paid his bill at 6 o'clock in the morning and taken a train leaving at 7. Referring to the register, the clerk found the drummer's name to be Burton and at once telegraphed the firm he claimed to represent inquiring concerning him. A reply was received that no such man was in their employ.

Meanwhile the clerk questioned the hotel porter, who told him that when he carried in the supposed drummer's trunk he had remarked on accepting a tip that it was very light, whereupon he had been told by the owner that it contained samples of laces. But he noticed that on carrying the trunk out in the morning its weight had been considerably increased. The clerk asked how much it had been increased, but the porter could form no idea of the additional weight.

The proprietor of the hotel, having received enough information concerning the case to warrant a grave suspicion that a murder had been committed in his house, reported the matter to the police.

An inspector came at once and was shown to No. 321. Taking away a sheet that had blood stains on it, he submitted it to a test, which indicated that it had been shed by a human being. With the other facts in the case it was plain to the police that Dingley had been observed to draw a goodly sum from the bank, had been followed and murdered, the murder having been committed possibly in self defense while the thief was trying to steal the money. The murderer had brought the trunk in order to pass himself off for a commercial traveler and had used it for the purpose of removing the body.

Meanwhile before the murder was published a warrant was sworn out for Dingley's arrest, and an officer went to his house to serve it. He found there Mrs. Dingley, who told him that her husband had not returned to his home as usual the evening before and she did not know where he had gone. He was to have brought home considerable money, which he told her he was to use in making certain payments. She feared that he had met with foul play.

When the murder at L. was published it was supposed that in order to avoid arrest Dingley had absconded and that the murder story was a fake to cover his flight. But gradually the fact of his having drawn a sum of money from the bank, which he had left in the possession of the landlord of the hotel, and the other circumstances attending the murder came out, and the opinion gained ground that he had really been murdered and his body carried out in the supposed commercial traveler's sample trunk, and the opinion of those who held that he had taken so much trouble to "fake" his demise was pronounced ridiculous. At any rate, the police spent much time in endeavoring to find his murderer, and no effort was made to find Dingley himself. Mrs. Dingley put on mourning for her husband, which was evidence that she believed him dead.

The widow took up the charges against her husband and spent much time in unraveling the conspiracy through which he had suffered. Dingley's removal rendered this easier than it would have been had he been present. Little by little the energetic lady laid bare the rascality of the conspirators till at last they were obliged to return their ill gotten gains, and it incidentally came out that Dingley was an innocent man. Then one day he drove up to his own house in a cab, and he and his wife were soon locked in a loving embrace.

Then the method by which it was made to appear that Dingley had been murdered was explained.

Mrs. Dingley had personated the young man in the checkerboard suit, wearing also a false brown beard. She had never been seen at the hotel without a hat, under which she had tucked her hair. The trunk had been nearly empty when taken to her room at the hotel. She had herself carried a suit case, in which were a number of heavy articles, which had been transferred to the trunk before it was carried out. Dingley had with him a sharp knife, with which he made a gash in his arm that had produced a plentiful supply of blood and smeared the sheets. He had refused the rooms offered him till he found one from which escape would appear difficult, but from which, by the aid of a short rope he carried in his pocket, he could swing himself on to an "L" of the building.

JUNIOR RISES TO PROTEST.

Thinks It's a Foolish Thing to Name a Boy After His Father.

"I certainly do not believe in this 'junior' business—that is, naming a boy for his father," said a young attorney the other day. We will have to refer to him as A. Blank for obvious reasons.

"What's the matter with that?" a friend asked. "I think that it is just fine—perpetuates the name, you know. You see, your father, Judge Blank, is widely known. You are his only son, you see, A. Blank, Jr."

"That sounds all right in theory," insisted the young attorney, "but I have had the sad experience. In a case like mine one has no individuality; he completely loses his identity. I am next to nil for that matter."

"What do you mean?"

"Just this. For twenty-five years I have been introduced as 'the son of my father.' Not as myself, A. Blank, stand or fall, but as 'why all of you know Judge Blank—this is his son.' Since the baby came to my house about six months ago all that has ceased."

"That's good," exclaimed the friend. "Proud father gets back his long lost name, eh?"

"No," was the sad reply; "now I am identified simply as 'the father of the child.' The boy hasn't been named yet. Father insists on calling him A. Blank 3d, but I am holding out for Bill, Hank or Zeke, so he may have a name all his own to be identified by."—Kansas City Journal.

A Dramatist at Work.

When Eugene Walter writes a play the tools necessary to the process are one large room, one outfit of furniture and one exceptionally rapid stenographer. Mr. Walter and the stenographer enter the room. The door is locked, and work is begun by placing the furniture as it is to be placed on the stage—in other words, by setting the scene. Then the young dramatist begins to act. He is all the characters in his play. He rushes about the apartments, quarreling with himself, making love to himself, now standing here as one person and then racing to the opposite end of the apartment to be another. All the time he is speaking the words that come into his mind as natural under the circumstances, and the stenographer is taking them down at top speed. At the end of an hour or two an act is finished, an invisible curtain is rung down, and if the amanuensis hasn't fainted, as two did in one day of labor on one play, the stage is set for the next act.—Channing Pollock in "The Footlights—Fore and Aft."

There are so many worthless men in the world that the man who behaves himself half the time is tolerably sure to become distinguished.

A conceited young man will probably get over it in time; experience takes it out of him. But there isn't much hope for the conceited old man.

PETERBOROUGH WILL AGAIN BE REPRESENTED IN O.H.A. BY JUNIOR AND INTERMEDIATE TEAM

President Ray and Secretary Glover Re-Elected — Rule Barring Players From Executive Rescinded and Percy Bond is Elected to the Committee — Annual Meeting to be Held After Close of Playing Season.

The face-off for the 1912-13 hockey season in Peterborough took place last night at the rink, when between twenty-five and thirty fans and players attended the annual meeting of the Hockey Club.

In the absence of President Sam Ray, Secretary R. M. Glover had charge of the meeting. He read the statement of receipts and expenditures of the 1911-12 season, which showed a balance of $60.41.

Over $300 was spent in supplies, mostly hockey sticks. "We bought about enough sticks to keep ten teams going, and I guess we did," remarked Secretary Glover.

The rule preventing players from becoming an Executive officer was rescinded, and Percy Bond, who was later elected, will hold a job on the committee this season. There was evidence from some quarters of a desire for a general house-cleaning on the Executive Committee.

Patrons and Patronesses of the Club are: Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. Denne, Mayor and Mrs. Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. A. Elliott, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

Hon. President—Dr. Wightman.

President—Sam Ray.

Vice-Presidents—H. W. Fobin and Jos. Picard.

Sec.-Treas.—R. M. Glover.

Executive Committee—J. P. Bond, Fred Whatley, F. D. Craig, C. E. Curtis.

It was decided that Mr. Glover, in representing the local club at the O.H.A. meeting on Saturday, should give his support to the amendments, of which notice has been given to the Association, and are as follows:

COMMERCIAL TEAMS.

Present clause: 7.—No club whose members average under 14 years of age shall be admitted, and no club shall be admitted or retained as a member which has not a bona fide membership of at least ten active members.

Amendment: By Dr. W. G. Wood, Toronto. After words "members" in the last line add—"Or represents or plays under the name of any commercial organization."

By W. A. Hewitt, Toronto: To juniors to play one intermediate match in a season, while retaining junior certificates.

By R. J. Burns, Toronto Canoe Club: To allow clubs that have senior and junior, but no intermediate teams, to use juniors once in senior games.

By J. Ross Robertson, Toronto: To extend to teachers the privilege allowed by students of a choice between their school and home teams.

By W. A. Hewitt, Toronto: To provide that players facing the puck must keep the blades of their sticks on the ice until the referee drops the puck.

On motion of the secretary it was decided that the annual meeting of the club be held at the call of the President within a month after the playing season.

This will give the officers an opportunity of looking after the players and the future interests in general in the off season.

The Club will be represented in the junior and intermediate series of the O.H.A. The probabilities are that Peterborough will have to seek a new district. Present indications are that Lindsay, Trenton and Belleville will be without intermediate hockey. Such being the case, the local club might be grouped with Cobourg and Bowmanville.

H. W. Fobin, a new vice-president, is teller at the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Fred Whatley, elected to the executive, is General Assistant Superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and has been one of the warmest supporters of the hockey teams.

The executive will meet on Monday night, and players wishing to turn out with the Juniors, are asked to hand in their names.

Bobby Hall, Jerry Coughlin, Fred Kelly, Whitty Bearss were among the old boys out to the meeting.

The lighting of the rink is to be improved.

The boys were glad to see Jack Thirabeck up and doing again after an illness of some weeks.

SUIT FOR $25.000 AGAINST PITCHER RUBE MARQUARD

Diamond Star Served With Summons in New York Restaurant.

New York, Nov. 14.—Suit for $25.000 damages was filed yesterday against "Rube" Marquard, star pitcher of the New York Giants, by Joseph Kane, husband of Blossom Seely, an actress, alleging that Marquard alienated her affections.

The irate husband recently traced the pair to an Atlantic City hotel, where he caused a scene by breaking into their room. They eluded him and escaped.

The summons on Marquard was served in a New York restaurant on Tuesday night when he was in the company of Miss Seely. For some time they have been appearing in a vaudeville sketch together.

MANOR KING PREPARING FOR THE ICE RACES

Thomas Hodgson, of Orillia, Ont., has sent his pacing horse "Manor King," 2:29 1-4, to Charley Barrett of Park Hill, Ont., to be prepared for the big ice race meeting in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, next January and February. This young stallion was sired by Direct Hal, 2:04 1-4 dam Lady of the Manor 2:04 1-4. Mr. Hodgson picked out Joe Patchen II 2:03 1-4, when a green one, and raced him over the ice the year before selling the champion money winning sidewheeler of 1912 to R. J. McKenzie for about $7,000. Manor King was raced a little for education at the fall fairs in Ontario, and took a record of 2:29 1-4 at Peterborough. He will be entered in a number of $1,000 stakes this winter.

JUNIOR CHAMPS

Green's Team Won Out in Y. M. C. A. Basketball League

By a score of 12—6 Jack Green's quintet defeated Thompson's team yesterday and won the championship of the Junior Class Basketball League.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The prospects for a better team than we have ever had, are said to be particularly bright just now. Several old O.H.A. players are working on the C.P.R. here and have expressed their willingness to turn out with the bunch. Mr. Archie Mathison purposes having a rink on the pond north of the park, which will have a skating surface of 80 by 160 feet, with good accommodation in the way of waiting rooms and seats.—Havelock Standard.

Frank Bowerman has recommended to the London club a shortstop, who, he says, can play rings around Brant, Gilhooley and Schwind.

"Battling" Nelson, former lightweight champion, has accepted terms from the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club, New York, to meet the winner of the "One Round" Hogan-Leach Cross battle on Thursday night. Nelson will meet the winner on Thanksgiving afternoon. The Dane will get one-third of the gross receipts, and the scale of prices will range from $2 to $7.

Although Joe Wood, the hero of the world's series, tops the list of pitchers in the 1912 American League averages, Walter Johnson, of the Washington club, probably is the leading pitcher of the season.

In games won and lost Wood excels Johnson, but the Washington pitcher worked in seven more games than did Wood. Johnson struck out 303 men in 368 innings—the season's record—and held 1,312 opposing batsmen to 89 runs. Wood pitched 344 innings in 43 games, during which 104 runs were scored off him. He struck out 258 batters. The Boston pitcher won 34 out of 39 games, while Johnson won 32 out of 44, besides playing two ties.

Edward Walsh, of the Chicago club, was the workhorse of the season. He pitched in 62 games, twelve more than any pitcher in the league.

The Effect.

"Yes," said the detective, "but what did you mean when you replied that your vote was worth $300?"

The alderman forced a laugh.

"That's easily explained," he cried. "Of course I knew there was an old dictograph in the room somewhere, and I just said that for effect."

"Exactly," the grim detective replied, "and here's the effect."

Whereupon the burly policeman stepped forward and led the alderman to the waiting patrol wagon.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DISTRICT CONVENTION OF MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Inspiring Address on the Work in China by Rev. R. B. McAmmond.

The annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society, Peterborough District, was held in George street Methodist church yesterday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session was devoted to the reading of reports and addresses. Miss Udy, of Bridgenorth, gave a very interesting talk on "Systematic Giving," and Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson gave one of equal interest, "Resume of our W. M. S. Work." Mrs. J. K. Moore, District Organizer, occupied the chair. At the conclusion of the afternoon session, a substantial repast was prepared by the ladies of the George street Church.

The evening session was opened at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. Isaac Couch, as chairman, gave a short address in which he welcomed the speaker, the Rev. R. B. McAmmond, a missionary who has done great work in China.

Mr. McAmmond, on rising, remarked that it was a pleasure to be present, as no doubt they all knew. He was a great believer in missionary work and missions. Most of us do not realize that at one time, China was so powerful that it ruled the destinies of the world. Many discoveries, such as paper, printing and gunpowder, which were known to the Chinese hundreds of years before Christ, were only discovered in Europe a few centuries ago. Women and men sent out by the Church had gone out, hoping great things and it was on that which he was about to speak. When he first went to China, about six years ago, he had seen incidents of which he had read in the Bible at Abraham's time, showing why the people had stood still for so long. He found the multitudes of the lowest class, the coolies, always kind, peaceable, and industrious. The artisan class and business class were the same. Then there was the teacher class, of which he did not hesitate to say that no one man in the room had the culture these men had. He had often marvelled that the men of this class had never heard of God. If they are heathens now what will they be when they hear the word of God; He believed that the world had never seen the real Christien man such as the Chinaman will be. The Chinese women as a rule had no brains, and in West China, more than 85 per cent. of the women knew nothing, not even about their own language, and it is the same in the higher classes except in the difference in dress. This illustrates the great work for the women to do in China.

In the last three or four years there have been wonderful strides of progress almost beyond belief. The schools particularly have advanced and girls' schools, hitherto unheard of have been established and are doing a very good work.

The missionaries could have little influence in doing away with the curse of foot binding, but a Chinese Governor over a province of 800 000 people had abolished it in four months. Here Mr. McAmmond gave instances showing how the Chinese enforce the law.

Three years ago there was not an electric light in his province and now most of the cities are lighted by electricity. It was almost impossible to realize the improvements so quickly is China waking up. Mr. McAmmond gave insights into the way he and Mrs. McAmmond were working and the difficulties they had to encounter. He closed with an appeal for mothers to exert their power in influencing their sons and daughters to carry on the good missionary work. It is only from a lack in workers that China is not almost a Christian nation. The Chinaman though at first a staunch heathen is easily converted with his first insight of the Bible, so wonderfully in God helping the missionaries.

Following a prayer led by Rev. Mr. Couch, Mrs. J. K. Moore proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker and was seconded by Mrs. Kendry.

The Rev. Mr. McAmmond is a very powerful speaker and thrilled the whole gathering with his address.

At one time he lived in this city and matriculated from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. His home is now in Morrisburg.

PAINTER KILLED AT HIS WORK

Missed His Footing and Fell to the Pavement

Toronto, Nov. 14.—James Bilton, aged 56 years, 256 Westmoreland avenue fell from a scaffold at the Metallic Roofing Company's factory, King and Dufferin streets, yesterday, and as a result of injuries received died in the Western Hospital a few hours later.

Eagle & Sons are painting the building, and Bilton, who is a painter, was working on a scaffold. In some unknown manner he missed his footing or stepped off the planks by mistake and fell to the pavement.

He was taken in a police ambulance to the Western Hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a fractured skull and did not recover.

Bilton was married and leaves a widow and family.

ELOPERS UNITED AT THE FALLS

Parents Objected But Knot Was Tied Just the Same

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Unable to obtain the consent of their parents to their union, Charles F. Hastings, a Hamilton business man, and Miss Mary Breheny, also of Hamilton, called on ecclesiastical aid and were married here yesterday, under a dispensation granted by Roman Catholic Bishop Colton of Buffalo. The story of their elopement became public this afternoon.

Thomas Breheny, who lives at 172 Simcoe street, Hamilton, had refused to grant his permission for the union for several years, and recently the bridegroom's parents also refused to consent to the marriage. Then it was that the trip to the States to have the knot tied was thought of, and executed. Miss Lela Jackson accompanied the young couple to this city, and acted as bridesmaid.

FUNERAL OF SPAIN'S PREMIER

Highest National Honors Were Bestowed on Canalejas

Madrid, Nov. 14— The body of the Spanish Premier, Jose Canalejas, was entombed in the Spanish Pantheon yesterday afternoon with the highest national honors. The entire nation is in mourning, and all civil life and business was suspended in Madrid until after the ceremony.

Jing Alfonso, accompanied by Prince Charles of Bourbon-Sicilies and Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria, Infants of Spain, walked behind the hearse from the Chambre of Deputies to the Pantheon, while 250,000 persons stood with uncovered heads in tribute to the dead Premier. The members of the Diplomatic Corps and an official from every department of the Government attended the funeral.

THE ORIGIN OF THE CRESCENT

Was Once Emblem of the Byzantine Empire

Though now regarded as essentially Mohammedan, the crescent was Christian in its origin. A crescent moon was the emblem of the Byzantine Empire and the Eastern Church, and the Turks adopted it as a badge of triumph after the capture of Constantinople in 1453.

With reference to the crescent the story of the origin of the crescent-shaped Vienna roll is worth recalling. It arose in the sixteenth century when the Turks were besieging Vienna, and failing to carry it by assault began to drive mines under the walls. In that period the city's bakehouses were in the walls under the fortifications, and when the mines were almost through the sound of the work was heard in the underground bake houses and the alarm given. It was to celebrate this event that the bakery adopted the Turkish emblem as the shape in which to make their bread.

INCREASE IN LABOR DISPUTES

Twenty One Caused Loss of 98,000 Working Days

The preliminary estimate of the number of labor disputes in October, issued by the Department of Labor, shows that the number of strikes was about twice as great as that recorded during the same month of last year. The dispute of coal miners on Vancouver Island continued throughout October, this being the only dispute in which a great number of men were involved. About twenty-one disputes were in existence, and caused a loss of about 98,000 working days.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

According to the record of industrial accidents, there were 104 workmen killed and 324 injured. Compared with the record for September, this is an increase of fifteen in the number killed, and a decrease of ninety-five in the number injured.

LOCAL OPTION BY-LAW IN NORTH MONAGHAN

The council of North Monaghan township will place a local option by-law before the people at the municipal elections in January. At a meeting of the township council Monday evening, a strong deputation asked to have a by-law prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquor submitted, to which Reeve Howden and the Council acquiesced.

The deputation consisted of Rev. Mr. White, Mr. John Brown, John McIntosh, Mr. Joseph Madill and H. B. Cowan, president of the County Temperance Association.

Mr. John Brown introduced the deputation, Rev. Mr. White being the first speaker, representing Frazerville Methodist church. He stated that the Temperance party were striving to increase their dry area and that they hoped before long to have the whole of Ontario under local option. John McIntosh of the deputation told the Councillors that North Monaghan had been dry for twenty-nine years, and hoped it would remain so. Mr. Joseph Madill agreed with the other speakers, and thought that it was for the benefit of the community in general to submit a local option by-law.

Mr. Cowan was of the opinion that if local option passed in the city of Peterborough, it would strengthen the Temperance Association and also if it passed in Monaghan. "In a local option district," he said, "the law was more strictly enforced than in communities where it was not in force."

Mr. Brown thanked the Council on behalf of the deputation for the attentive hearing that had been extended them.

Reeve W. G. Howden, replied that personally he was in hearty sympathy with the efforts of the deputation.

"The people of Peterborough have one magazine in North Monaghan already, and North Monaghan people do not want another," said the Reeve.

G.T.P. TO SKIP THE EASTERN SECTION

The following extract from the Globe of November 13, shows how the G. T. P. Company proposes to live up to its agreements. All that was foreseen by the Conservative, who urged from the platform at two general elections, but the Liberals pretended that it could not happen, and besides Cox could not wait. Read what The Globe says now—

"Another development may be expected before long. It is rumored in usually well informed circles here that the Grand Trunk will next year succeed in getting a connection from Chicago through Winnipeg, either by arrangement for running rights over the Hill lines or else by purchase of the necessary connecting links. Thus the company with two main outlets from the west, one via Chicago and one via North Bay, would have no need for the N. T. east of Cochrane, and would naturally use every influence to get out of leasing and operating the whole of the National Transcontinental." The Globe, Nov. 13th.

For the Children

A Cute Little Doll In Postman's Uniform.

Photo by American Press Association.

In various sections of London kindhearted women of wealth have organized associations and societies for the purpose of instructing and amusing the children of the poor. Notable among these is one called the Children's Happy Evenings association. That is a very appropriate name, for many little ones are gladdened and made happy by the entertainments given for their benefit. Recently the children were invited to the annual doll show of this society and there they beheld dolls of all kinds and sizes dressed in all manner of costumes. The show was held at Lady Wernher's residence, Bath House, Piccadilly. We print a picture of one of the dolls arrayed in postman's garb to give a faint idea of the many wonderful dolls the children were privileged to see and admire.

Discovery of Quinine.

Although you may not have had to take any of this bitter medicine you must have heard of it as a cure for fevers. Quinine and Peruvian bark come from the cinchona tree.

The value of this Peruvian bark as a cure for fevers was discovered in a peculiar way. The natives of the country where it grew knew nothing of its virtues, although they suffered terribly from fevers. A tribe who was in the habit of drinking the water from a neighboring pool discovered one day that it had all turned bitter and was unfit for use through a storm having blown down some cinchona trees that had fallen into the lake, so they had to go some distance for water.

Not long after two of the tribe fell ill of the fever and as they were too weak to go so far for water they drank out of the old pool and were astonished to find that the fever soon began to get better.

Silent Quaker.

The company is seated so that each one can whisper to his next neighbor on the right. When all are ready the whispering begins, each one telling his neighbor to do some absurd thing. When every one has received a commission the leader announces that "meeting has begun." All solemnly shake hands, after which no one must speak or laugh. Each in turn rises and performs the task assigned him with the greatest gravity. Any one who laughs or speaks must pay a forfeit.

Suggestions for commissions: One might be ordered to make pantomime speech, another to dance a jig, one to put an imaginary baby to sleep, another to sing an operatic solo in pantomime, another to find a mouse under her chair, another to make three grimaces, indicating surprise, delight and grief, and so on.

A Noted Girl Athlete.

One of the most remarkable girls in England is Nellie Stockwell. She is only thirteen years old, but she has won five yearly championships in athletic sports in competition with all the other girls of the London county council schools in south London.

Nellie was nine years old when she won the championship the first year, and nobody expected that such a young girl would be the winner. But she got either first or second place in about every event on the program of the championship contests, and so the prize went to her.

She has continued to win prizes ever since then. She has more than thirty by this time.

At Bedtime.

When we're upstairs in bed,
That's when our family tell
The interesting things.
We know it very well.
They talk, of course, all day;
They have so many friends.
They ask us 'bout our school,
And ev'rybody 'tends
To what we answer, but
When we're tucked up in bed
We'll hear them laugh and laugh,
"What was it some one said
To make you laugh like that?"
I'll ask them all next day.
"Why, nothing special, dear;"
That's what they always say.
When we're grown up we'll know
(That's how I comfort Ted)
Just exactly what they say
When we're upstairs in bed.

One of the most attractive toilet novelties seen in some time is the new violet toned toilet sets. They are made of a special brand of celluloid in Germany, tinted a rich violet, and some of them are decorated with gold. Although of celluloid, they are by no means to be classed among the cheap articles, as they are rich in appearance and decidedly costly, some of the pieces costing more than the average silver articles. In the gold decked ware a set of thirteen pieces is sold at $49. Thirteen does not cover the number of articles obtainable, however, as there are all sorts of brushes and manicure implements, powder boxes, jewel cases, etc., which make a complete set of the plain violet number about thirty and cost between $70 and $80. A ring mirror, for instance, is $0.50. The simplest little piece of the manicure set is 50 cents. The articles are very pretty and novel and sure of a pronounced vogue.

Omit Soap.

Do not use soap in cleaning paint. Soapsuds usually fog the polish and make the furniture look dingy. One tablespoonful of coal oil to a washpan of water applied sparingly with a moistened cloth will usually take the fog from any fine piece of furniture, even the piano. Do not use too much water on any painted, stained or varnished surface. Coal oil used alone will fog the wood, and too much of it used and left on will make the finest polish dull and sticky. Every particle of the oil should be either rubbed in or wiped off.

Plants Which Live in Ice.

Plants do not freeze to death in the early winter, but perish from thirst. The process is simple. The cold causes the withdrawal of the water from the cells of the plants, forming ice crystals outside the cells. The frost, cooling and contracting the surface, acts as a sort of pump, and as soon as the cell is emptied of its life giving fluid the plant dies. The truth of this theory has been proved by numerous careful experiments. Great variation was found in the amount of cold necessary to cause the death of vegetation. Some plants dry out quickly and are killed before the freezing point is reached. Many plants will survive zero weather, and some die only at 20 degrees below. Certain vegetable growths never freeze. There are forms of bacteria that even when immersed in liquid air, the most intense cold available, come out of their bitter bath as lively as ever.—London Telegraph.

ARE STRONGLY FOR SCHEME SERVED BY THE HYDRO

Representatives of Civic Bodies All Over the Province Put Themselves On Record In Favor of Municipal Railway Systems.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Men of all shades of political opinion have voiced themselves in support of this new project which when consummated will be the means of making the Ontario fruit and market garden industry rank foremost on the American continent.

The scheme outlined, though in an embryo state, will connect Kingston with Owen Sound and Toronto with Midland. All that will be required will be to purchase the land covered by Hydro poles and wires, thus eliminating future easement expenditures. The power is already there, the tracks need to be laid and cars purchased. This also will enable the commission to supply small quantities of power to small towns and villages.

The following resolution was passed: "Resolved: That in the opinion of this meeting, representing municipalities, it is desirable that a system of electric railways, including street railways, be owned by the municipalities, be established and built, and further, that the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be requested to look into the advisability and practicability of building such a system and to furnish a report thereon to this association.

"In order that the request to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be made definite, it is further suggested that the initial report should refer only to road following the Hydro transmission lines of the commission at present existing and contemplated in the Niagara power zone, extending throughout Western Ontario and the Midland district. It is desired that the report shall cover cost of construction, cost of operation and probable revenue in each case."

The above resolution, passed by the Ontario Electrical Association, which held a meeting for this purpose at the city hall yesterday, when representatives from 30 municipalities were present, was carried unanimously.

Although the essential feature of the conference was the discussion on the feasibility of laying down radial railways, more particularly along the routes taken by the commission's high tension wires, the president, ex-Mayor Geary, in his opening remarks dwelt upon the many benefits derived from the adoption and use of the Hydro power.

"We have every reason to be thankful that the Hydro-Electric Commission has proved such a splendid success," he declared, "especially knowing, as we do, that it has been the means of relieving the municipalities of Ontario of the intolerable burden of the control of public utilities by private companies, and we have great reason to be proud of the fact that the Government was bold enough to regulate the electric supply, which is proving to be such a boon to the people. The early success of the commission in regard to the supply of power and light now places us in a position to see no reason why the commissioners should not relieve us of another burden, namely, transportation. We are now at the mercy of these companies who display a monopolistic attitude and give no ear to our requests for better service."

Many well-known electrical experts from all over the province were in attendance. They came more to receive suggestions than to offer them. Many objections were presented and Hon. Adam Beck answered as many as he could with the information at his disposal.

Mayor Price of St. Thomas wanted the lines constructed by the municipal authorities jointly, and the use of Hydro power adopted, but he wanted the railway run by private companies on lease.

The conference was tendered a banquet at McConkey's by the city, at which Mayor Hocken presided.

St. Jean, Man., Nov 15.—Following his arrest and conviction for indecent offences against Adrian Richard, aged sixteen, D. The Dane then placed the revolver to his own head and pulled the trigger, inflicting a wound which caused death in a few minutes.

JOHNSON'S AIDE GETS ONE YEAR

Judge Held He Wilfully Lied Under Oath.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Albert C. Jones, a real estate dealer, who signed $30,000 bonds for Jack Johnson in an attempt to obtain the negro pugilist's release from jail, was yesterday sentenced to one year in jail for contempt of court by Federal Judge Landis.

Jones, it was charged, scheduled property which he had deeded to his wife. Judge Landis declared Jones had "wilfully and maliciously lied under oath in court in relation to his ownership of the property."

Jones announced he would appeal from the sentence.

Sleet Storm Works Havoc.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—A sleetstorm in the vicinity of Forthton, Athens and Addison, played havoc with the telephone and telegraph poles of that district. Under the weight of the ice-crusted wires scores of poles were broken down, completely demoralizing the rural system.

Against Contract System.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 15.—The contract system of prison labor was condemned in the report of the committee on prison labor presented yesterday at the Congress of the American Prison Association in annual session here.

The committee, however, recommended the system when no other means of employment could be provided, believing it preferable to idleness. The employment of prisoners, the report maintained, should be directed entirely by the state and the products of this labor should be disposed of by the state.

James H. Leonard, superintendent of the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield, was elected president.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC FOR FIVE MUNICIPALITIES

Hon. Adam Beck Signs Contracts and Forwards Them to Mayors

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The Hydro-electric will soon girdle all Ontario. Yesterday Hon. Adam Beck signed contracts with five municipalities for the supply of the "people's power." The new towns that will be illuminated by the Government's power system are Brantford, Paris, Port Dalhousie, Brockville and Prescott. The signed contracts were returned to the mayors of these places last night.

It will be a very simple matter to supply Brantford, Paris and Port Dalhousie, as at the present time transmission lines are strung through that section of western Ontario. It will, however, be some time before Brockville will get its power. The transmission line has been erected from Morrisburg to Prescott, which is about 20 miles from Brockville. A large gang of men began work at Prescott a few days ago to complete the construction of the line to Brockville.

Farmer's Heavy Loss.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—The barns and stables of Charles N. Murray, on the town line between August and Elizabethtown, containing the season's crop, were destroyed by fire, supposed to have started from spontaneous combustion. The damage is estimated at $3,000, against which there is only $900 insurance.

DEATH OF MRS. NORDHEIMER

While attending her son Roy's marriage at Holy Trinity Church a week ago Wednesday, Mrs. Nordheimer, who was in her 68th year, contracted a cold which developed into angina pectoris.

PRESIDENT OF HORSE SHOW ASSOCIATION AND HIS WIFE ANXIOUSLY AWAIT THE OPENING OF BIG SOCIETY EVENT

MR. AND MRS ALFRED G VANDERBILT

Probably there is no one more interested in the coming horse show, which opens at Madison Square Garden, New York, on November 16, than Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt. Regarded as one of the ablest judges of horses in the world, Mr. Vanderbilt, as president of the Horse Show Association, has made every effort to have this year's show superior to any of the past. His wife, who, before her marriage to Mr. Vanderbilt, was Mrs. Smith Hollins McKim, will also be an enthusiastic spectator at the exhibit. Mr. Vanderbilt will have no horses to show in New York this year

Constantinople, Nov. 15— Bulgarian troops have reached the vicinity on Kilies on the Black Sea coast at the entrance of the Bosphorus, and are within a few miles of the Capital. Men belonging to the Turkish lifeboat station have left. The cholera epidemic among the Turkish troops, holding the line of fortifications at Tchatalja, is rapidly becoming worse. Five hundred cases are reported daily, and the total now exceeds six thousand.

TWO BADLY INJURED WHEN LOCOMOTIVE BOILER EXPLODED

One Man Had Leg Blown Off, His Skull Fractured and Was Terribly Scalded—Engineer Was More Fortunate

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 15.—Two men were badly injured, one probably fatally, this morning, when the boiler of the engine on Grand Trunk train No. 11, giving accommodation from Niagara Falls to Windsor, exploded at Junction Cut. That several were not killed is a wonder. The injured are:

George F. Cook, Engineer, of Niagara Falls, 45 years of age; badly scalded, lacerated, and suffering from shock

Samuel Salt, of Niagara Falls, 36 years of age; right leg blown off, skull fractured and terribly scalded.

The victims were rushed to the City Hospital, where doctors said Salt could not possibly live. It is supposed that the water ran low in the boiler and caused the explosion, although this will never be definitely known, as the engine was demolished.

DID NOT HAVE ENOUGH BOATS

Steamer Held in Port Till Regulations Are Followed.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The lesson of the Titanic has not been lost upon the Canadian Government. This is illustrated by an order issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries this week. It came to the notice of the Department that the steamer A. W. Perry, which sails between Yarmouth, N.S., and Boston, was not complying with the marine regulations, in the matter of not carrying the necessary number of lifeboats.

An order was immediately telegraphed to the proper authorities at Yarmouth to have the steamer held in port until additional boats were provided. This required the cancelling of a scheduled trip, but not until the law was complied with was the captain allowed to sail. The Government is determined to enforce the marine regulations, and safeguard public life and property.

Workman Is Burned.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Henry Watson, aged 26, 27 Gordon street, was badly burned with molden lead at Prince Arthur and Bedford road yesterday afternoon. Watson was employed by the city waterworks department and was putting in a main. The metal was being heated in the regular pot, when it was accidentally upset.

Watson was down in the ditch and the molten lead poured on him and his head and left shoulder were burned. He was taken in the ambulance to the Western Hospital and has a fair chance of recovering.

WIPE OUT ALBANIANS

Servia Said to be Engaged in War of Extermination.

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The reports of atrocities committed by the Servian troops on the Albanians are confirmed by Captain Persius, the correspondent of The Tageblatt, writing from Uskup.

He says he witnessed the burning of Albanian villages and heard from numerous eye-witnesses of the reckless shooting, not only of men but of women. The Servians, he adds, admitted they were carrying on a war of extermination against the Albanians. Servian officers declare "they must be swept from the face of the earth."

King Nicholas' Reply.

Rieka, Montenegro, Nov. 15.—King Nicholas of Montenegro gave a quite curt and pointed reply to the Austro-Hungarian Minister when he made representations with reference to Montenegro's action against Alessio and the port of San Giovanni Di Medua. His Majesty, admitting that he had no authority from his allies to give a definite answer on the subject, continued:

"For my part, I at once emphatically reject even the suggestion that the two Serb kingdoms will not be allowed to occupy San Giovanni Di Medua and Alessio, also the more so as at present neither Turkey nor autonomous Albania exists. I consequently consider the communication of the Austro-Hungarian Minister null and non-existent."

Galt Fears Floods.

Galt, Nov. 15.—Heavy rain again caused the Grand to rise almost to the flood level below the town; farm lands were flooded. Residents say they never saw swamp and hollows filled with water as they are this fall. This is an indication of a bad spring flood.

Inspecting Good Roads.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—A. W. Gray, assistant provincial highways engineer, is making an official inspection of the new roads that have been completed in these counties, under the good roads system.

ARE STILL IN THE RING

Independents Renew War on Bell Telephone Co.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The Canadian Independent Telephone Association, in seventh annual convention at the City Hall yesterday, devoted several hours to discussing the terms of a proposed standard form of agreement for an interchange of service with the Bell Telephone Co. This agreement was before the Dominion Railway Board when the late Judge Mabee was chairman, and, with the exception of two clauses, the Independent and Bell Companies have agreed upon its terms. These clauses were suggested by Judge Mabee, and the Independent Association considered that the matter was practically settled, but General Manager Sise of the Bell Corporation, in a recent communication to the Independent Association, declined to agree to these clauses as they now stand, and is said to have held out the threat that if the matter is taken to the Railway Board again his company would refuse to accept the other clauses which are said to have already been agreed upon between counsel of both parties. The convention decided to instruct its counsel, Mr. H. D. Gamble, K.C., to resubmit the whole matter to the Dominion Railway Board.

It was maintained in the convention that the disposition of Independents in the matter had been to secure an agreement which would be absolutely fair to both parties, and that every effort had been made to conciliate rather than antagonize the Bell Company.

EXPERTS VIEW ROYAL GEORGE

Preparations Are Being Made to Float the Liner.

Quebec, Nov. 15.—There are now two wrecking experts on board the C.N.R. steamer Royal George, stranded one mile east of Point St. Lawrence. They are Capt. Saunders of New York, who arrived in Quebec from Newfoundland, on Tuesday last, and Capt. Parry-Jones, from Cleveland, Ohio, who arrived yesterday, and immediately proceeded to the steamer. Capt. Parry-Jones is one of the most experienced wrecking experts, whose duty confines him to the lake shipping, and is reputed to be the most capable man in Lloyds' employ.

Both these men went on board the steamer to superintend the necessary preparations prior to attempting to float the vessel, which they look forward to with confidence.

Railway Change.

Mr. E. Harden, the genial conductor of town, has been notified that he is to be transferred to Midland. He expects to leave about the end of the month. Mr. Ringling, of Lindsay, is to succeed him.—Madoc Review.

PREMIER BORDEN INTIMATES FAR-REACHING REFORM

In Dealing With An Appeal From the Decision of the Dominion Railway Board He Says the Privy Council is Incapable of Dealing Adequately With Such Cases and Legal Practice Will Have To Be Changed.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—An intimation which may be of far-reaching importance, fell from the lips of the Prime Minister yesterday afternoon, while presiding over the Privy Council, at the hearing of the appeal of the C.P.R. respecting its route between Weston and Lambton. The Dominion Railway Commission last spring refused to approve the route selected by the railway company on objections filed by property owners in the Humber Valley. They, at the time, suggested an alternative route, but this was not adopted by the Railway Commission, which contented itself with refusing approval of the route proposed by the C.P.R. The hearing yesterday was for the purpose of reversing the Railway Commission's order.

Appeals from the Railway Commission to the Privy Council are becoming quite common, and Mr. Borden remarked yesterday that he could hardly conceive a body less capable than the Privy Council to deal with disputed questions of fact and complicated problems in engineering.

W. E. Raney, K.C., who appeared for himself and other property owners, suggested that the statute did not authorize an appeal like the one in this case, but Mr. Borden did not agree with him.

He said, however, "I think some change will become necessary in the law if appeals upon questions of fact continue to come before us. The Railway Commission conducts many hearings quite informally and decides many questions of fact in a somewhat summary manner and quite properly, too, because it is desirable that the commission should proceed expeditiously and with as little formality as possible. The result is, however, that when an appeal is taken to the Privy Council, the record of testimony taken before the commission is sometimes informal, and, perahps, not as complete as might be desired.

"Then again, very often we are called upon to pass upon questions of detail, which we are hardly qualified to deal with. For example, we are asked to make orders regarding gradients at highway crossings and the like. I think that either some other method of appeal will have to be found, or appeals to us must be limited to those cases which are certified by the Railway Commission."

P. Lyall, Contractor, Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 15.—Peter Lyall, the head of the great construction company of Peter Lyall & Sons, is dead here after a long illness.

Mr. Lyall was born in Caithness-shire, Scotland, in 1841, and came out to Montreal in 1870. He was for two years president of the Montreal Caledonian Society, and had given large sums to charity.

His firm has handled large building contracts in all parts of Canada.

FIRST FIGHT AT THE PRISON FARM

MAYOR SUED FOR SLANDER

Dr. Sundar Singh is Acting For the Hindus.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Victoria, Nov. 15.—The Mayor of Victoria is being sued for libel by Dr. Sundar Singh, acting on behalf of all the Hindus in the province. The alleged libel consists of an interview given by the Mayor to the Canadian Mail in which he stated that Hindus were unsuited to the country; that they were a source of trouble; that they were immoral and quarrelsome and had not the rough stamina to become good workmen.

GALT WANTS THE WIRES BURIED

Will Ask the Hydro Electric Commission For Help.

Galt, Nov. 15.—Ald Dakin, chairman of the local Hydro-Electric Commission will apply for power to inaugurate underground wiring, thus compelling the Bell Telephone Co. and C.P.R. and G.N.W. Telegraph companies to transfer transmission lines to conduits. The policy to be followed is that conduits shall all be laid by the corporation, primarily for Hydro-electric wires, but the extra cost to accommodate the lines of private companies shall be paid by them, according to the space used. This places the construction of the conduits entirely in the hands of the municipality.

Tried to Bribe Officials.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 15.—A jury in the Supreme Court, American side, last night, brought in a verdict of guilty against Clifford R. Bowman, Niagara County, supervisor from the ninth ward of Niagara Falls, charged with attempted bribery. It was charged that Bowman obtained a promise from an architect to pay $1,500 to be selected to prepare plans for an almshouse, and that Bowman offered part of this money to several other supervisors. He will be sentenced Monday.

Bowman is a papermaker, and was employed by a Canadian paper until several years ago.

Churchill Accepts Apology from Unionist Who Threw Books.

London, Nov. 15.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The House of Commons yesterday afternoon adjourned till Monday, acting on a suggestion which is believed to have emanated from King George himself.

The proposal was made by the Speaker, who intimated that it would be advisable "for the House to take further time to consider the points at issue" between the two factions in regard to the home rule measure.

Premier Asquith immediately agreed, and moved the adjournment of the House.

No one in London doubts the King was responsible for advising this turn of affairs. While the Cabinet was in session after the turbulent outbreak of Wednesday, Lord Knollys, the King's private secretary, arrived direct from Buckingham Palace and held a conference with the Premier in the Speakers' residence, and it is considered obvious that yesterday's procedure was then decided on as the best means of warding off, and perhaps entirely preventing, a renewal of the riotous obstruction to which many of the Unionists have pledged themselves.

A graceful apology from Ronald McNeill, the Unionist member who hurled the book at Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, during the disturbance, helped to cool the atmosphere yeterday. Mr. McNeill acknowledged that act was "entirely reprehensible," and he, extremely regretted his loss of temper. Winston Churchill accepted the olive branch with equal heartiness.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, in his remarks suggesting that the members take a period for reflection, emphasized the undesirability of Parliament departing from its established precedents. He said he could not help thinking that some solution of the difficulty might be found which would be acceptable to all parties and would be more in accordance with precedents that had governed the House, and would not set up a new precedent.

Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the Unionists, both welcomed the Speaker's interposition, which the Unionists claim is a victory for their contention.

Justifies Uproar.

London, Nov. 15.—Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, speaking at a Unionist demonstration in Albert Hall, said that he did not regret Wednesday's disturbance in the House, and did not try to stop it.

The Unionist demonstration was an old fixture, but was utilized as an opportunity to express confidence in the tactics of the leaders. Earl Lansdowne of the Opposition in the House of Lords, and Bonar Law were the principal speakers. Lord Lansdowne, however, said little about Wednesday' scene in the House of Commons and gave no hint as to the future policy.

Dealing with the home rule question, he said he believed that the reason support was accorded home rule in the country was that the people were feeling intense weariness over the Irish question. That, he declared, was a feeling of cowardice, which was unpatriotic and unstatesmanlike.

EXCUSE ME!

BY RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY H. K. FLY CO.

But this was our own country—the part of it which admits that it is the best part—the moralest part, the staunch middle west. This was Illinois. Yet dozens of cars were beholding similar immodesties in chastest Illinois, and all over the map, thousands of people, in hundreds of cars, were permitting total strangers to view preparations which have always, hitherto, been reserved for the most intimate and legalized relations.

The porter was deftly transforming the day-coach into a narrow lane entirely surrounded by draperies. Behind most of the portieres, fluttering in the lightest breeze, and perilously following the hasty passer-by, homely offices were being enacted. The population of this little town was going to bed. The porter was putting them to sleep as if they were children in a nursery, and he a black mammy.

The frail walls of little sanctums were bulging with the bodies of people disrobing in the aisle, with nothing between them and the beholder's eye but a clinging curtain that explained what it did not reveal. From apertures here and there disembodied feet were protruding and mysterious hands were removing shoes and other things.

Women in risky attire were scooting to one end of the car, and men in shirt sleeves, or less, were hastening to the other.

When Mallory returned to the "Snowdrop," his ear was greeted by the thud of dropping shoes. He found Marjorie being rapidly immured, like Poe's prisoner, in a jail of closing walls.

She was unspeakably ill at ease and by the irony of custom, the one person on whom she depended for protection was the one person whose contiguity was most alarming—and all for lack of a brief trialogue, with a clergyman, as the tertium quid.

When Mallory's careworn face appeared round the edge of the partition now erected between her and the abode of Dr. and Mrs. Temple, Marjorie shivered anew, and asked with all anxiety:

"Did you find a minister?"

Perhaps the Recording Angel overlooked Mallory's answer: "Not a damn minister."

When he dropped at Marjorie's side she edged away from him, pleading. "Oh, what shall we do?"

He answered dismally and ineffectively: "We'll have to go on pretending to be—just friends."

"But everybody thinks we're married."

"That's so!" he admitted, with the imbecility of fatigued hope. They sat a while listening to the porter slipping sheets into place and thumping pillows into cases, a few doors down the street. He would be ready for them at any moment. Something must be done, but what? what?

CHAPTER XV.

A Premature Divorce.

Suddenly Marjorie's heart gave a leap of joy. She was having another idea. "I'll tell you, Harry. We'll pretend to quarrel, and then—"

"And then you can leave me in high dudgeon."

The ruse struck him as a trifle unconvincing. "Don't you think it looks kind of improbable on—on—such an occasion?"

Marjorie blushed, and lowered her eyes and her voice: "Can you suggest anything better?"

"No, but—"

"Then, we'll have to quarrel, darling."

He yielded for lack of a better idea: "All right, beloved. How shall we begin?"

On close approach, the idea did seem rather impossible to her. "How could I ever quarrel with you, my love?" she cooed.

He gazed at her with a rush of lovely tenderness: "And how could I ever speak crossly to you?"

"We never shall have a harsh word, shall we?" she resolved.

"Never!" he seconded. So that resolution passed the house unanimously.

They held hands in luxury a while, then she began again: "Still, we must pretend. You start it, love."

"No, you start it," he pleaded.

"You ought to," she beamed. "You got me into this mess."

The word slipped out. Mallory started: "Mess! How is it my fault? Good Lord, are you going to begin chucking it up?"

"Well, you must admit, darling," Marjorie urged, "that you've bungled everything pretty badly."

It was so undeniable that he could only groan: "And I suppose I'll hear of this till my dying day, dearest."

Marjorie had a little temper all her own. So she defended it: "If you are so afraid of my temper, love, perhaps you'd better call it all off before it's too late."

"I didn't say anything about your temper, sweetheart," Mallory insisted.

"You did, too, honey. You said I'd chuck this up till your dying day. As if I had such a disposition! You can stay here." She rose to her feet. He pressed her back with a decisive motion, and demanded: "Where are you going?"

"Up in the baggage car with Snoozleums," she sniffled. "He's the only one that doesn't find fault with me."

Mallory was stung to action by this crisis: "Wait," he said. He leaned out and motioned down the alley. "Porter! Wait a moment, darling. Porter!"

The porter arrived with a half-folded blanket in his hands, and his usual "Yassah!"

Beckoning him closer, Mallory mumbled in a low tone: "Is there an extra berth on this car?"

The porter's eyes seemed to rebuke his ears. "Does you want this upper made up?"

"No—of course not."

"Ex—excuse me, I thought—"

"Don't you dare to think!" Mallory thundered. "Isn't there another lower berth?"

The porter breathed hard, and gave his bridal couple up as a riddle that followed no known rules. He went to find the sleeping car conductor, and returned with the information that the diagram showed nobody assigned to number three.

"Then I'll take number three," said Mallory, poking money at the porter. And still the porter could not understand.

"Now, lemme onderstan' you-all," he stammered. "Does you both move over to numba three, or does yo'—yo' lady remain heah, while jest you preambulates?"

"Just I preambulate, you black hound!" Mallory answered, in a threatening tone. The porter could understand that, at least, and he bristled away with a meek: "Yessah. Numba three is yours, sah."

The troubled features of the baffled porter cleared up as by magic when he arrived at number three, for there he found his tyrant and tormentor, the English invader.

He remembered how indignantly Mr. Wedgewood had refused to show his ticket, how cocksure he was of his number, how he had leased the porter's services as a sort of private nurse, and had paid no advance royalties.

And now he was sprawled and snoring majestically among his many luggages, like a sleeping lion. Revenge tasted good to the humble porter; it tasted like a candied yam smothered in 'possum gravy. He smacked his thick lips over this revenge. With all the insolence of a servant in brief authority, he gloated over his prey, and prodded him awake. Then murmured with hypocritical deference: "Excuse me, but could I see yo' ticket for yo' seat?"

"Certainly not! It's too much trouble," grumbled the half asleeper. "Confound you!"

The porter lured him on: "Is you sho' you got one?"

Wedgewood was wide awake now, and surly as any Englishman before breakfast: "Of cawse I'm shaw. How dare you?"

"Too bad, but I'm 'bleeged to ask you to gimme a peek at it."

"This is an outrage!"

"Yassah, but I just nachelly got to see it."

Wedgewood gathered himself together, and ransacked his many pockets with increasing anger, muttering under his breath. At length he produced the ticket, and thrust it at the porter: "Thah, you idiot, are you convinced now?"

The porter gazed at the billet with ill-concealed triumph. "Yassah. I's convinced," Mr. Wedgewood settled back and closed his eyes. "I's convinced that you is in the wrong berth!"

"Impossible! I won't believe you!" the Englishman raged, getting to his feet in a fury.

"Perhaps you'll believe Mista Ticket," the porter chortled. "He says numba ten, and that's ten across the way and down the road a piece."

"This is outrageous! I decline to move."

"You may decline, but you move just the same," the porter said, reaching out for his various bags and carryalls. "The train moves and you move with it."

Wedgewood stood fast: "You had no right to put me in here in the first place."

The porter disdained to refute this slander. He stumbled down the aisle with the bundles. "It's too bad, it's sutt'nly too bad, but you sholy must come along."

Wedgewood followed, gesticulating violently.

"Here—wait—how dare you! And that berth is made up. I don't want to go to bed now!"

Woman's World

Edla Soller, Leader of Orchestra, Plays Twenty-eight Instruments.

MISS EDLA SOLLER.

Miss Edla Soller, who is spending a short time in this country, is the only woman conductor of a male orchestra. Miss Soller is a Swedish girl and a composite of almost everything a man demands when in bachelorhood he foolishly builds for himself castles of air and paints in smoke that ideal woman.

Physically she may be passed by with the words pretty, graceful, blond and twenty-three. Mentally she is equally charming, being a born musician sans too much temperament, a suffragist and a philosopher of rare instinct and divination. She is a big game hunter and a naturalist of much experience despite her years. She is a horsewoman of exceptional ability and longs to get back to the wintry lakes and rivers of Norway and Sweden so that she may add new laurels to her already acknowledged prowess on skates.

So much for her attainments, which she counts but secondary, but which many, many girls would point to with pride and fight for no other distinctions.

As a musician she is better known abroad than in this country. She has mastered no fewer than twenty-eight instruments. She plays the piano well enough to have had her fame as a pianist wafted from an obscure village in Sweden to the ears of the king and queen. She was three years old when she began playing the piano. When she was fifteen she was taken to court by the conductor of the Royal Opera in Stockholm. So delighted was the late King Oscar with the girl's playing that he took a medal from his breast and pinned it on the bosom of the child.

Miss Soller comes from a long line of distinguished musicians, her father at one time having been conductor of the Royal Opera at Copenhagen. He retired to teach budding musicians and to compose oratorios for festival work. As soon as the small Edla was able to sit up straight he began to guide her tiny fingers over the black and white keyboard. Later mademoiselle went to the Royal conservatory in Leipzig, and now she has branched out into the paths wherein her father, her grandfather and grandfather's father sought fame.

Being a Woman.

Whatever else the suffragettes have done they have made many of us heartily weary of being women. Every one is talking about us; no one is content to leave us alone. Some solution of the "woman question" is an ingredient in every panacea offered to the contemporary world. We are praised for qualities we are ashamed of having and blamed for things we never did. It is really no wonder that we long for our "rights;" we are so used to being put off with either injustice or mercy. Even the presidential campaign, as it turns out, does not leave us quite out of the limelight. It must be very easy, in comparison, to be a man. A man may have duties as a citizen, as a husband, as a father, but no one particularizes his duties as a mere male. Being a woman, on the contrary, has apparently a code of its own, and women of entirely different races, temperaments and circumstances must somehow agree upon it. Some of us who are busy living up to our personal fates would cravenly beg the Zeit-Geist to take care of it all. But that, we are told, is the unpardonable Laodicean sin.—Atlantic.

Perfumery Cakes.

Although not new, there is an increasing demand for the cakes of perfumery. These solid blocks of pressed sachet are very easy to use and the fragrance is decidedly more lasting, as the attars are not distilled by alcohol, as is the case with the liquid extracts. It is said that each block contains as much floral essence as you would find in a quart of the liquid perfume. When the odor becomes faint all that is necessary is to scrape off a little of the wax, thus exposing a new perfume surface. There are various odors which have been corralled in a solid in this way—the ever popular violet, the heliotrope, lilac, rose, carnation, coryopsis, lavender and sandalwood. Each cake is inclosed in a little neat looking box, suggesting leather, and the price is very reasonable.

Being imposed upon is not the worst of it; we all take time to tell our friends about it.

ONE OF THE SIX HUNDRED

The recent anniversary of the charge of the Light Brigade recalls the fact that there is still one amongst us who took part in that glorious ride. Lord Tredegar, though an octogenarian, is still hale and hearty, and takes a very keen interest in military matters.

Captain Morgan, as he then was, wrote a vivid account of the great charge just after that glorious event took place, and the following is a fragment:

"The 8th, 4th, and 11th followed us in, and suffered nearly as much as ourselves. We saw the enemy between us and home, and at them we went. I cut down one fellow as he ran one of my fellows through with a lance, and digging my spurs in my horse's sides he went at it as he has often gone at the big fences in Monmouthshire. I got through them with only a few lance pokes, which I managed to parry, but the number of men had diminished. We had to retire through a shower of Minie bullets, and we reformed in rear of the Heavy Brigade. I numbered off 32 men. We went into action 145 in the morning."

When the charge was over the gallant soldier found that he was the senior officer, all the others who were superior in rank having been killed. Throughout the whole campaign he displayed the greatest gallantry, and nearly lost his life on several occasions.

What Pavement Artists Earn.

One of the minor industries of London that is not dying is that of the pavement artist. His numbers, if anything, are on the increase, and it is reckoned amongst the fraternity that there are now about 500 of them pursuing this calling in the metropolis. With about 500 pavement artists in London, each earning on an average 12s., something like $1,500 is given every week by pedestrians in the metropolis.

There are a few with especially favored pitches who do much better than this, making a princely 30s. or $10 a week, but there are none of them who manage to run a nice little villa in the suburbs, with a well-dressed wife and family, like the beggar in the City with the hare-lip who was unmasked by Sherlock Holmes. There is, however, one man on a pitch in Westminster, where he has been for thirteen years, who goes away every day for luncheon and tea, leaving a cripple friend in charge while he is absent.

An Electric Waiter.

An Australian has invented an electric waiter for hotels and restaurants, operated by the customer seated at his table. A wooden frame holding the menu-card is fitted with push buttons opposite each item, and "pressing the button" rings a bell in the kitchen and displays the order and the table-number. The kitchen apparatus also prints a check the original of which comes to the customer, with a duplicate on an endless tape. This device has been in successful use in New Zealand.

Peach Betty.

Chop fine two cupfuls of not too ripe peaches. Butter a baking dish and place on it a layer of peaches, sprinkling with cinnamon, sugar and butter. Place on this a layer of the crumbs, alternating with the peaches until the dish is three-quarters full, leaving breadcrumbs on the top. Add no water, but cover tight and steam three-quarters of an hour in moderate oven. Remove, cover and brown quickly. Serve with milk or sauce.

Chiffonade Dressing.

This is extremely good to serve on lettuce, romaine or any green salad. Into a glass jar put one hard boiled egg finely chopped, a teaspoonful of finely cut chives, a teaspoonful each of chopped red and green peppers, a teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a teaspoonful of paprika and an eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, half a cupful of olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar. Allow it to become very cold and just before serving shake the contents of the jar thoroughly.

MR. W. H. HILL,
Manager Central Ontario,
Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,

I am delighted with the result of my 20 year endowment policy, No. 36,715, in your Company, which matured and was paid on the 1st inst.

Being interested in this Policy I took particular pains to read all I could about Companies failing to come up to their estimates and the frequent claims of superiority of the No Profit Policies, and I wondered if I had not made a mistake in paying for a participating Policy, but when you pay me $482.20 of profits, I find I made no mistake, as I never at any time expected more than $500.

I noticed in the last issue of the "Saturday Night" a result where a man in some Company did not receive 3 % on the extra premium he paid for profits—it set me thinking—so I figured out what rate of interest I received on the extra I paid, and find I received almost 8½ % compound interest on the $9.30 I paid extra for a participating Policy—not bad, eh?

The profits on my Policy were distributed every five years, and I am assured that if they had been on the reserve plan I would have received considerably more.

However, I am well satisfied, and I want you to know it, and to thank your Company for it.

I know now, too, that I made no mistake when I took out that other Policy with you a few years ago.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBERT CHAMBERS.

RADIANT HOME HEATER

WILL KEEP THE TEMPERATURE UP AND THE COAL BILL DOWN

Ever since base burners were invented, the Radiant Home has been pre-eminent.

It will radiate more heat from a given amount of fuel; it will retain fire longer; it will obey the action of the dampers quicker than any other.

Its arrangement of flues and construction of grate are patented, so that imitations are necessarily imperfect in the vital points.

There is no lost heat—no waste fuel.

You will be agreeably surprised at the ease with which the coal bin repels the assaults of the Radiant Home.

TRANSPORTATION TALK

News of Railroads.

On receipt of [illegible] news of the completion of the laying of steel on the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. across the "Great Divide" between Alberta and British Columbia last week, the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, sent the following telegram to Mr. [illegible] J. Chamberlain, Vice-President and [illegible] Manager of the road at Winnipeg:—

"I received your telegram of 20th, on my return yesterday. My best congratulations on accomplishment of laying main line steel across Great Divide, uniting Provinces of British Columbia and Alberta with the band that will soon span the continent and give another great artery of transportation that will add volume to Canada's carrying trade, assist wonderfully in developing the richest northern country of this province, and unite us still closer to our sister provinces of the Dominion."

Letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. headquarters from one of the prominent artists of New York, who has just returned from a trip over the Grand Trunk Pacific, as far as the Canadian Rockies, contains the following:

"I went out to the end of steel on the Grand Trunk Pacific, then took the trail over to Maligne Lake, which I found to be the most beautiful I ever saw in my life. I had a delightful trip and made several sketches. Returning, I stopped off at Wainwright, and from there went out duck shooting in different directions, and had a most delightful time. Next year I hope to be able to get away earlier and see more of your magnificent country."

The following construction work on the Grand Trunk Ry. System has been under way since January, 1911, and will be completed by the end of this year:

Overhead Bridges.

At Brighton, Oshawa, Scarboro, Groveton, Grimsby, Mallorytown, and Palmerston, Ont.

Subways.

East Brighton, Vt., Pownal and Cobourg, Ont.

New Stations.

Cobourg, Guelph, Manilla Jct., Brule Lake, Thorndale, Wyebridge, Hepworth, Maxville, Dublin, Ont., and Beloeil, Chaudiere Jct., and Beauharnois, Que.

New Freight Sheds.

Have been constructed at Cobourg, Paris Jct., Glencoe, and Bowmanville, Ont., and West Detroit, Mich.; also a fruit shed at Detroit, Mich.

A large engine round house has been erected at Tiffin, Ont. Coal chutes have been built at Ottawa, Ont., and Elsdon, Ill.

Y. M. C. A. buildings have been constructed at Port Huron, Mich., and Elsdon, Ill.

The only addition to the mileage of the Grand Trunk Railway proper has been the building of the cut-off between Tay and Birch, Ont., about 9 miles, shortening the haul between Midland and Toronto.

A prominent member of one of the largest wholesale dry goods houses of Montreal, who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast, including Vancouver and San Francisco, writes the Grand Trunk as follows:—

"On our trip to the Pacific Coast and return we travelled over ten different railways, making use of the dining car service on each, and would like you to know that we did not find in any case that the service on the dining cars of other lines was superior to the Grand Trunk Railway, and, in many cases, it was very much inferior. I take this opportunity of informing you as to what we think of the service you are giving on our great Canadian railway."

ALD. GRAHAM WILL RETIRE

North Ward Alderman to Step Out at End of Term

Ex-Ald. Kerneghan Most Likely to Run Again

With the municipal elections only seven weeks distant, there appears to be quite a little interest manifested as to who the candidates for the aldermanic chairs will be for the year 1913. There are five of the present councillors whose one year term will expire this year, namely Ald. Duncan, Gordon, Brown, Graham and Morgan. The city fathers naturally exhibit some reluctance just at the present stage, about expressing themselves as to their intentions.

There are rumors, of course, although very vague, that Mayor Bradburn will have opposition in the mayoralty contest.

"No intimation to that effect has reached me," said Mayor Bradburn in reply to a query to-day, "and as far as I am concerned any such action will not alarm me in the least."

The latter was certainly not feeling any uneasiness over the possibility of being contested.

During his regime he has undertaken very onerous responsibilities together with the council and a change in the chief magisterial chair would result in a shifting of the honor of carrying out to a successful completion those undertakings commenced under his guidance and administration. It may be safely deducted that no serious opposition will be encountered by the present mayor.

ALD. GRAHAM OUT.

The aldermanic contest in the north ward may be counted upon to be very interesting. Alderman J. G. Graham has announced his intention not to again be a candidate. His partner Alderman Johnston has another year to serve. The aldermanic possibilities for Alderman Graham's seat so far as known are D. H. Kerneghan and W. J. Langford, Jr. It is also known that Mr. R. J. Kidd has been approached but declined to offer himself as a candidate.

Mr. Walter Green is a man whose name has been generally mentioned as a possibility in the west ward. Whether he will enter the contest, however, is not positively known.

Ex-Ald. Joseph Metheral is another man who may decide to enter the field again.

Charming Winter Resorts of California, Mexico, Florida.

Now is the time to take advantage of a trip to a milder climate and escape the cold winter months. Round trip tourist tickets are issued by the Grand Trunk Railway to California, Mexico, Colorado, Pacific Coast Points and the Sunny South, at low rates giving choices of all the best routes. Features in connection with this route: only Double Track Line to Buffalo and Chicago; Fast Service; Modern Equipment; Unexcelled Dining Car Service; Palatial Electric Lighted Pullman Sleeping Cars, all elements of safety and comfort. CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Wheat prices broke today under the seasonal low record established 24 hours before. Hope of speedy peace in Europe was chiefly responsible. At the end of the session a feeling of steadiness prevailed, but the market showed a net decline of 3-4c to 7-8c and 1c.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d to 1d lower on wheat, and ⅜d to ½d lower on corn. Antwerp wheat closed 1¼c lower.

BOILING GEYSERS.

What Causes the Spouting of These Natural Steam Engines.

Geysers are found in only three places in the world, according to a publication entitled "Geysers" issued by the department of the interior. These three regions are Iceland, where geysers were first discovered; New Zealand and the Yellowstone National park, in which these natural steam engines are more numerous and of greater beauty than in the two other areas mentioned. In the Yellowstone the geysers are found in detached geyser basins, or fire holes, as they were called by the first explorers, and the groups possess individual peculiarities which give character and interest to each locality. The most noted of these basins is, however, that known as the Upper Geyser basin of the Firehole river, one of the headwaters of the great Missouri. The whole floor of the valley is fairly riddled with springs of boiling water, whose exquisite beauty is indescribable. Light clouds of fleecy vapor curl upward from waters of the purest azure or the clearest emerald and, encircling rims of white marblelike silica, form fit setting for such great gems. A large part of the valley floor is covered with the white deposit of silica known as siliceous sinter, deposited by the overflowing hot waters. The weird whiteness of these areas, the gaunt white trunks of pine trees filled by the hot waters, the myriad pools of steaming crystal and the white clouds floating off from the chimneylike geyser cones form a scene never to be forgotten by those fortunate enough to behold it.

The intermittent spouting of geysers was long a riddle to scientific men. The theory, which bears the name of the illustrious chemist Bunsen, is now generally accepted. This theory is based on the well known fact that the boiling point of water rises with the pressure and is therefore higher at the bottom of a tube of water than at the surface. In a long and narrow or an irregular tube ebullition in the lower part is only possible at a much higher temperature than at the top owing to the weight of water column above it. If by the continued heating the lower layer of water attains the temperature at which it can boil steam is formed, whose expansive force lifts the superincumbent column of water, causing a slight overflow at the top, which shortens the column, so that steam is formed at a higher point and a further lifting and relief of pressure ensues, followed by an eruption.

They Shoot, but Never Steal.

Montenegrins pride themselves on the possession of two great virtues—patriotism and honesty. Their love of country has been demonstrated in their history, and their honesty is witnessed to by their laws. One remarkable law of the Black Mountain Kingdom directs that any man finding a purse or jewelry upon the road shall place the same upon the nearest stone, so that the loser will have only to retrace his steps to recover his property. That law is never violated. A Montenegrin thinks nothing of shooting a man with whom he disagrees, but would shrink in horror from the idea of stealing the veriest trifle. Montenegrin law is more severe upon the thief than the homicide.

Ancient and Modern Bathing.

Soap is really quite a new factor in the world's life. Most of our ancestors were filthy and dissembled the fact by the use of stifling perfumes. Washing one's hands, which was only done by the very best people, meant dipping the fingers in rosewater and drying them on a napkin. Even the Romans of the decadence, who were probably cleaner as a community than any before or since, bathed in water and rubbed themselves with oil. It sounds nasty to us, but then so does, for example, Chinese music, which millions of human beings think delightful.

Sheep Eat Sheep.

Even the sheep at the antipodes have "developed the carnivorous habit," according to a Melbourne newspaper. They have taken to attacking and eating each other as well as rabbits which are still very numerous in Australia in spite of the prodigious quantities of them that are trapped, tinned and exported. So far the phenomenon of the carnivorous sheep has not been noticed outside the southern district of New South Wales, but the news will doubtless soon spread.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.
